NEW BUILDING.

MR. BABCOCK CONTEMPLATED IS NOT LIKELY TO BE BUILT.

Mayor Mr. Stillman, who Drew the Will, and one of the Executors, May Lose Improbable Contingency Whereby it May be Built.

It is late Mr. George H. Babcock had erecting two fine buildings, one on each of the north westerly corners of the Park, on East and Madison avenue. All of these buildings was well under way toward completion when Mr. Babcock died.

Soon after, and while there was still a recovery from his illness, he conferred with his architect, Mr. O. S. Hedges, who understood his direction to be to proceed with the preparation of the plans for the second building, and it is also understood that provision had been made for carrying on the work, in case Mr. Babcock's illness proved fatal.

Mr. Babcock, who leased stores in the present new building, say they leased them with the distinct understanding that the second new building was to be built as a market on the most modern improved plans, and in fact if this was not done they were not inclined to consider their leases binding.

It is said that in the will it would appear that Mr Babcock clearly intended that the work should be carried out forthwith.

But Since a few days ago hailed the welcomed intelligence with joy because it would afford employment to our needy unemployed during the present Winter and early Spring, and because it would be a substantial improvement to the city, that it seems that there is a question about the work proceeding as it was understood Mr. Babcock intended.

The codicil to the will was drawn by Lawyer William M. Stillman, and says that the executors are authorized to complete Mr. Babcock's building operations. The report is out within a few days that Mr Stillman had said that the codicil did not authorize the erection of the proposed new building and that the work would not be done by the executors.

A News reporter questioned Mr. Stillman to-day as to whether or not the report was true.

Mr. Stillman said in reply that there was an appropriation made in the will for the new building, and he did not see how it could be done unless the title to the property was vested in the widow and she cared to go ahead with the work. The executors were only authorized to complete the present building.

When told of Mr. Babcock's reported desire to Mr Tesle, Mr. Stillman said that the matter was talked over in his presence, but no definite conclusion was arrived at.

So this it does not appear likely at present that the new building will be built.

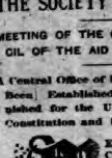
THE SOCIETY AT WORK.

MEETING OF THE CENTRAL COUNCIL OF THE AID ASSOCIATION.

A Central Office of Investigation has been Established. — Work Furnished for the Unemployed.—The Constitution and By-Laws.



MEMBERS of the Central Council of the Citizens' Organized Aid Association held an adjourned meeting in the parlors of the Crescent avenue church last night.

In the absence of President Tyler, Mr. H. B. Newhall, the first vice president, presided. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

The committee on membership recommended that the following names be added to the Council: Mrs. W. A. Woodruff, Trinity Reformed church; Mrs. Valentine Christner, German church; Mrs. Thomas, Baptist church; Mrs. M. C. Dobbins, W. E. C.; Mrs. Catharine Webster, Friends; Mrs. Andrew Zeiss, St. Peter's Evangelical German Lutheran church, and Dr. Edward Rushmore, at large. The above were elected and on motion of Mr. Babcock the secretary was instructed to cast the ballot of the Council for the election of the persons named.

Mr. Newhall, in behalf of the committee on Employment, reported that they had been considering the question of securing work for the women who seek employment. The committee recommended that a list of names be secured and an attempt be made to secure work among the families who ordinarily would put off the work till Spring, but who, under the circumstances, would have it done now to give aid to the unemployed.

The committee on Painting in the city through its chairman, Mr. Newhall, reported that the matter had been carefully talked over, and the committee would recommend that Plainfield and North Plainfield be considered one district, and the district committee to consist of 10 persons. The recommendation was adopted and the following were appointed as such committee: Mr. Hall, Mr. Newhall, Mr. McKelvey, Dr. Simpson, Mrs. Kimball, Mrs. Haviland, Mrs. Updyke, Mrs. Myers, Miss Tweedy and Mrs. Mead.

The president stated that as Mrs. P. M. French had declined to serve on the Council as a representative of the Methodist church, that action was left for the present without representation.

Mayor Gilbert said he thought the constitution was too long and complicated to insure the best results. In his opinion the simpler it was the better.

Dr. Carroll suggested that a shorter name would be desirable, and he recommended calling the society "The Aid Association." The name had already been adopted no further notice was taken.

Mr. Newhall as first vice president he was a member ex-officio of all committees he would withdraw as chairman of the Finance Committee. Mr. H. B. Pierson was appointed in his place. The committee now stands: Mr. E. C. Pierson, Mr. H. P. Reynolds, and Miss Leonard.

Mayor Gilbert asked if the association had done any practical work yet. He said the employment committee had already given work to 20 or 40 men, who had families to support. We can't employ every man who applies to us for work, we must pick out those who are in want and have families to support. Some of the men who apply are not in direct want, and for this reason every case should be thoroughly investigated.

In reply to the Mayor's question, Mrs. Updyke stated the work of investigation the cases had been begun. Mrs. W. A. Woodruff had been secured as agent with an office in the Boys' Club, where she could be found from nine to eleven o'clock each morning. Every application for relief to any society is referred to her for investigation. Mrs. Woodruff, Mrs. Updyke said, was very competent for this work, by reason of her long association with the work of the Relief Association.

Statistics will be prepared and reports made each month.

It was decided that hereafter all cards given out entitling the holder to work, should be given out by the association.

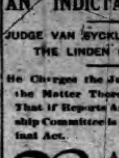
The meeting then adjourned.

—The annual business meeting of the Plainfield Board of Underwriters will be held this evening at the office of M. M. Denham at 7.30 p. m.

AN INDICTABLE ACT.

JUDGE VAN SYCKLE AGAIN AFTER THE LINDEN COMMITTEE.

He Charges the Jury to Investigate the Matter Thoroughly, and Says That if Reports Are True the Township Committee is Guilty of a Criminal Act.



RATHER surprised were those attending the opening of the Union County Court yesterday morning, when Judge Van Syckle, in his charge to the Grand Jury, again called upon the jurors to investigate the Linden Race Track matter.

At the last term of court the Judge sent the Grand Jury back because it had failed to find an indictment. The part of the judge's charge referring to the matter was as follows:

"At the last term of this court I called the attention of the grand jury to a matter of grave importance, which it is my duty to present again and to submit to you for your action.

"This court is credibly informed that during the fall last past the Township Committee of Linden township in the county, granted a racing license to the Linden Park Blood Horse Association, and were influenced and persuaded to do so by the payment of the sum of five thousand dollars, ($5,000) or some other large sum of money to the committee for the benefit of a private corporation.

"This, gentlemen, was an indictable, criminal act. Whenever it becomes undertstood that public officers may be controlled in the discharge of their official duties by the contribution of money to some object which they desire to promote, the public interest which alone should guide them in their official action will be disregarded, and there will be an end of official integrity.

"If the evidence before you establishes the facts I have stated, it will be your duty to indict for misfeasance in office the members of the Township Committee who voted for the license in consideration of such payment. It was a clear breach of their duty as public officers."

With great acumen, great depth of thought, and with wonderful power of description, he has enriched the literature of this age with a number of books, of which "Sartor Resartus" (the tailor remade) is of the most unique type and Carlyle's own character. THE TARIFF ONCE MORE

Congress Reassembles and Goes to Work Again.

AN INCOME TAX DECIDED UPON.

The Democratic Members of the Ways and Means Committee Settle Upon Some Important Changes in Internal Revenue Taxes—Ten Cents More on Whisky.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Congress took up again today the work which the holidays interrupted. The attendance in both houses was slim. In the house the tariff fight is again in progress.

The scheme of an individual income tax proposition very triumphant at the meeting of the Democratic members of the ways and means committee. All of the members were present when the final meeting was held at the treasury department. Comparatively little time was wasted in discussion. The plan had all been prepared and tonight over time and again, and the lists was joined on two propositions—first to levy a tax of 2 per cent against individual incomes of $4,000 and upward and the incomes from corporations (that is, the difference between the gross income and the operating expenses, or, in other words, the net income), and the second a proposition offered as a substitute by Mr. Cockran of New York to tax the incomes from corporations 1 per cent and inheritances 5 per cent, to place a tax of 10 cents on whisky and to restore sugar to the dutiable list at ½ cent per pound.

Cockran's Substitute Defeated.

The vote on Mr. Cockran's substitute proposition was taken first, resulting in its defeat by 7 to 4, as follows: Yeas—Messrs. Wilson, Cockran, Stevens and Montgomery. Nays—Messrs. McMillin, Turner, Whiting, Bryan, Bynum and Tarsney. Nays—Messrs. Wilson, Cockran, Stevens, Montgomery and Breckinridge.

It was also decided in connection with the latter proposition to increase the whisky tax 10 cents per gallon—that is, from 90 cents to $1, to be levied against whisky in as well as out of bond.

Upon the representation that this increase would work undue hardship to the owners of whisky in bond it was decided to extend the bonded period from three to eight years. The tax on playing cards, at one time fixed at 6 cents per pack, was reduced to 2 cents, and the contemplated tax on perfumes and cosmetics was discarded. No increase was made in the tax on cigars, but the increase on cigarettes—$1 per thousand—was allowed to stand.

The committee estimates that the tax on the income from corporations and individuals (corporations being treated as individuals) will raise $30,000,000 revenue—$12,000,000 from corporations and $18,000,000 from individuals. The increase in the whisky tax, it is estimated, will give an additional revenue of $10,000,000 per annum. The proposed tax, inheritances, it is estimated was to be levied in case the proposition for an individual tax failed, was not deemed necessary.

Revised Internal Revenue.

Summarized, the internal revenue features of the Wilson bill are as follows: A tax of 2 per cent on individual incomes over $4,000 and on corporation incomes; a tax of 2 cents per pack on playing cards, 40 per gallon on whisky, $1 per barrel on beer, $1.50 per thousand on cigarettes and 10 per thousand on cigars and cheroots. These features of the bill will be presented to the full committee today and will be formally introduced in the house later in the week. Before the Democratic members adjourned they also decided upon the programme for the tariff debate.

It will begin on Monday today, and the general debate will continue until Monday night, Jan. 8. Nine days will be allowed for the debate, under the five minute rule, during which time the bill will be open for amendment. The evenings of those nine days will be devoted to general debate. The final vote is to be taken Jan. 17. The necessity for prompt action on the tariff is deemed of such crying importance that it is not expected now that the Hawaiian matter will be allowed to interfere with the tariff. The latter will have precedence until disposed of.

Before the final vote on the individual income tax was taken Mr. Cockran offered a proposition to the effect that in lieu of authorizing the defeasance resulting from the enactment of the Wilson bill bond issue should be authorized. When the question was put, the proposition was unsupported by one affirmative vote—that of Mr. Cockran himself.

MITCHELL BACKS OUT.

The English Sculler Does Not Seem to Want to Face Corbett.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 3.—Charley Mitchell has shown the white feather or something that very much resembles the article despised by all lovers of the prize ring. Yesterday his alleged manager, Malone in fact Corbett in the scene, the latest developments seem to indicate that the Englishman is ready to squeeze through any loophole to escape facing the champion of America. Tom and not the alleged knockout of the Duval Athletic club by Governor Mitchell in the sanyin here is the real sensation of the day in sporting circles.

After Solicitor Christie, under conviction from the governor, refused to have anything to do with the test case brought by the athletic club, by which promoters of the contest hoped to have Florida law relating to prize fights settled so as to preclude the possibility of any interference on the day set for the fight, the managers of the club hastened to employ other ways and means to pull off the affair in spite of the governor and the courts.

Manager Bowdoin of the club sent Harry Mount over to St. Augustine to see Mitchell and induce him to sign amended articles of agreement. The original articles, Mitchell refused to sign, provided that the fight should occur "within two miles of the city of Jacksonville." The club wished to change this clause so as to have it read that the fight should occur "within the state of Florida."

When the situation of affairs was explained to Mitchell and he was asked to affix his name to the amended articles of agreement, he flatly refused to sign. He said that he would never put his name to the paper unless the old site for the contest was definitely fixed.

LAWYER SCANLAN POISONED.

Two Attempts Made to Kill the Managing Attorney in the Coughlin Case.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—Kickham Scanlan, who is the most energetic lawyer on the part of the prosecution in the Coughlin case, has escaped two attempts upon his life since the trial began. These two attempts were made while Mr. Scanlan was living at 1548 West Adams street.

The first time Mr. Scanlan was poisoned was the evening of the day he made his opening speech to the jury. That night he and his wife ate dinner at 6 o'clock, tiffin and home. Half an hour after leaving the table Mr. Scanlan was seized with violent pains, which almost threw him into convulsions. His wife was a so affected.

Plain symptoms of arsenical poisoning were present in both cases, but prompt medical assistance prevented any more serious result than a severe headache the next day.

Mr. Scanlan joked his wife that night at dinner about their illness and seemed to think no more about it. Within half an hour after dinner both he and his wife were again taken with violent pains, the symptoms of arsenical poisoning being more prominent than on the night before. The physicians had a hard time, but some little difficult in getting them out of danger, and then he advised them that nonetheless they would be the victims of further attempts of the same kind. The police have strong suspicions as to who doctored the food, but as Mr. Scanlan's solicitation have made no arrests.

Vicar General T. M. A. Burke administered the last rites. Bishop's peal from the cathedral chimes announced the sad news.

Besides Vicar General Burke, Chancellor Ward and McDonald had a consultation, at the close of which they announced that they feared the worst. Typhoid had set in, and he was sinking rapidly. His spirit passed away while the prayers for the dead were being recited by the 15 or 20 clergy present at the bedside.

He was made administrator of the Albany diocese on Jan. 1, 1874, and on Oct. 16, 1877, Bishop Conroy resigning, he was declared bishop.

WORK FOR THOUSANDS.

Pennsylvania's Iron and Steel Industries Brightening Up.

GOOD NEWS FROM MANY POINTS.

Cause For Rejoicing in Pennsylvania Cities and Towns Came With the New Year. Four Thousand Carpet Weavers in Yonkers Go Back to Work Again.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 3.—Nearly all of the iron and steel plants in and about Pittsburg have resumed operations, giving employment to thousands of idle men. On the south side Oliver's Tenth street mill, the Sligo mill, the Clinton mill, Jones & Laughlin's mill, A. M. Byers & Co.'s mill and Dilworth, Porter & Co.'s mill are all working. Instead of running on double turn at the Sligo plant, as first announced by the management, the works will be operated on the three turn system. This system, although it reduces the earning of each individual, will enable the firm to give employment to a greater number of men.

The Oliver & Roberts wire and rod mills did not start, owing to the inability to secure a sufficient quantity of steel, but will be ready for work on Thursday.

Carnegie's city mills resumed in some departments, and others will be started before the close of the week. The Homestead works of this firm resumed operations in every department. There was great rejoicing among the employees, and a large crowd thronged about the mill entrance. The exact number securing work could not be learned, but it is estimated at 8,500. It is claimed that the company has orders enough on hand to insure operation until April 1. Secretary Lovejoy of the Carnegie Steel company denied the statement made that the company would accumulate stock, orders or no orders, to give employment to their workmen.

CAME TO LIFE.

A Supposed Murdered Man Revives and Tells His Name.

TOURTON, N. J., Jan. 2.—The supposed murdered man whose body was brought to this place Tuesday night by Professor Albert Hoolaman of Paterson, proves to be James West, a peddler who lived at Black Oak ridge, on the Pennkness mountain road, about five miles from here. The man's features were disfigured, and his condition, and his body was horribly cut from his waist upward.

Everybody in the Norton House, where the body was taken, thought the man was dead. Dr. W. S. Collar was called in, and after he had labored for several hours there was discovered a slight sign of life in the supposed corpse.

The man finally recovered sufficiently to give his name. Although West was well known to everybody in Pompton, his injuries had so disfigured him that no one had suspected his identity until he told his name. When West recovered consciousness, he stated that he was unable to talk much. All that could be learned from him was that he was on his way home on Monday night when some one assaulted him from behind. He had no recollection seemingly of anything after that. West was removed to his home in the mountains. It was reported later that West was making slowly and could not live, as his condition was very critical. The authorities have no clew to West's assailants.

The employees of the Brazilian cruiser Nictheroy have struck for wages still higher than those originally demanded. The new demands have been refused, and it is possible that all may leave the vessel. The United States cruiser San Francisco has finished coaling and will go south today. Her destination is Rio Janeiro.

Eight more injured ones are lying at the hospital, but all are thought to have fair chances of recovery except possibly John F. Russell of Olcott, N. Y., who was badly burned about the body and arms. His chances are said by the doctors to be still dubious.

Three Victims of a Smashup on the Union Pacific Burned to Death.

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 3.—Three men were killed, four seriously injured and a dozen slightly hurt in a wreck on the Union Pacific railway near Linwood, Kan., 27 miles west of Kansas City. The wreck was caused by a freight train running into the rear end of a mixed freight and passenger train.

Fire caught from the stoves, and before the dead could be removed the cars were enveloped in flames. The flames spread so rapidly that the [illegible] under the debris of the wrecked cars could not be reached. Faint and piteous calls for help were heard, but the men who had been saved were powerless to aid the poor fellows, and soon their cries ceased. To have ventured into the burning wreck would have been certain death. The unfortunate men whom the passengers heard but could not help were Conductor Atwood and Herman Sosine, a stockman of Clay Center, and Stockman Martin of Wakefield, Kan. Conductor Atwood was frightfully burned, and his body was not reached for several hours. The bodies of the other men were burned to a crisp.

The Rock Island conductor notified the Union Pacific officials here at once, and General Superintendent A. T. Palmer took a special train to the scene of the wreck. The relief train returned to Kansas City, Kan., with the injured, and they were taken to St. Mary's hospital.

Question of the Hour.

Upon Africa's sunny strand they wandered, two daughters of the forest in all simplicity.

Strewn upon the beach were the shattered fragments of the staunch ship that had been torn in pieces by the cruel waves the night before.

Presently they paused, shuddered and averted their faces.

At their feet lay the corpse of a woman, her golden hair all bedraggled with the brine, her blue eyes staring to heaven.

"Look!" cried the tall native.

They turned again.

"Verily it seems"—

They were gazing in each other's faces, and the lips of one spoke for the hearts of both.

—"like crinoline yet. They still make their skirts fearfully wide."

With a parting glance at the remains of the European they retraced their steps.—Detroit News-Tribune.

A BREACH.

An Earnest Plea, Either For Marriage or Restoration.

"My good woman," argued the worthy magistrate, "you love your daughter. What leads you to that conclusion?"

"Shure, y'r honor, she could me sd hersilf, y'r honor."

"Possibly, but what she told you is not evidence. You must only tell what you know to be of your own personal knowledge. Did you hear him making love to her?"

"Not exactly, sorr."

"Did you ever see him kiss her?"

"Divil the wanst, y'r honor. Let me see the loikes av that an sorry the bone he'd leave in his body, barrin the wans that was broke, sorr."

"How do you know he made love to her, then?"

Trying to Reduce Expenses.

Husband—This book says that walking is not sufficient exercise and that arm exercise is too much neglected. So your idea that you get exercise enough trotting around shopping, while hired servants are doing the housework, is all nonsense. Why not discharge the servants, my dear? Your health really needs arm exercise, you know.

Wife—Does it? Very well. Hereafter, when shopping, I'll buy more and carry home the bundles.—New York Weekly.

A Doubtful Case.

The garrulous young man's chin hadn't been still for three hours. The last half hour had been devoted to caution in speech.

"It is a very difficult thing," he said, "for any person to say nothing."

"I don't know as that," dissented the young woman very gently. "You have been talking all evening."—Detroit Free Press.

Burned to Death.

FRIGHTFUL ACCIDENT AT MILLINGTON YESTERDAY.

While Taking up the Ashes from Her Stove Mrs Harrison was Burned so that She Died Shortly Afterwards.—Even While Burning She Struggles to Save Her Children.

There was a frightful accident at Millington yesterday morning in which a woman lost her life. As Mrs. Benjamin Harrison, a young wife, was taking up the ashes from her stove her dress caught fire.

She rushed out doors and the air fanned the flames into fiercer action, and in a moment she was enveloped by them.

As soon as she got out doors she remembered the children, and, although suffering intense agony, rushed back, and catching up one under each arm, ran out again. The oldest child is aged three years, the other only eleven months. As soon as the devoted mother reached a place where the children were safe, she fell unconscious and was later found by a milkman named George Aiken who had heard her screams of terror and agony from a distance and hurried to her assistance. She was lying on the ground when he came up. He first moved the children away and then smothered the flames about her. There was not a semblance of clothing on her body which was frightfully burned, the spine and intestines protruding. The furniture had caught fire and was badly scorched before the flames were extinguished.

She was carried into the house and a physician summoned who did all in his power to alleviate the pains of the sufferer, and save her life, but his efforts were of no avail, and she died at two o'clock.

The husband is almost demented over the frightful accident and his loss.

The funeral will take place Friday at 11 o'clock from the Millington church.

The child fell at the edge of the curb out of the way of the wheels, and narrowly escaped falling into the opening of the sewer at the corner, which was being cleaned by men at the time.

THEY HAD A RECEIPT.

VERDICT IN FAVOR OF THE ADMINISTRATORS.

In the Case of Strobel vs. the Administrators of the Jos Male Estate.—It Was Claimed That the Receipt Was Given by Mistake.

Yesterday at Elizabeth in the case of Strobel vs. the administrators of the Joseph Male estate the defendants produced a receipt in full, which was found in the papers of the deceased, for the claim sued on. The plaintiff had taken the claim by assignment after the receipt had been given and without knowledge of it. The party from whom the claim was assigned claimed that the receipt had been given by mistake, but as he could not establish that to the satisfaction of the jury a verdict for the defendant resulted.

Mr Charles A. Reed appeared for plaintiff and Mr. Craig A. Marsh for the estate.

A Shake Up in Realty.

If the "oldest inhabitant" is able to take a walk in the new neighborhood for homes called "Watchung Park," next Spring, he will experience some sort of a surprise that that which came upon him when he took a tramp up East Front street, not long ago, and found, instead of a hall field, two beautiful avenues, called Sanford and Westervelt, both bounded, with pretty houses, costing from $3,000 to $6,000 each. Mr. Aaron D. Thompson started, not long since, to make his Watchung Park property even more valuable than the Crescent's first built field is, and Mr. Thompson is usually successful in his undertakings. The map which will appear in Saturday's News shows the property. Mr. Thompson will give prices and other information.

ON TRIAL FOR MURDER.

Samuel Edwards Being Tried For the Killing of William Carroll.

The trial of Samuel Edwards, colored, for the murder of William Carroll at Bound Brook, on the night of April 19, 1893, was begun before Justice Magie, in the Somerset Circuit Court, at Somerville, yesterday. Edwards made his escape after doing the deed, and it was weeks before he was found and arrested. Edwards and Carroll had an altercation on the street at Bound Brook over a young woman. Edwards started for home and on his way down the tracks of the Lehigh Valley Railroad was assaulted by Carroll in the thicket, and the main artery severed. He bled to death.

The defence intend to show that the cutting was done in self-defense. They expect to prove that Edwards had frequently been threatened by Carroll, and that Carroll struck him twice with a cane and Edwards believed his life was in danger when he used the knife.

It is well worth seeing.

The Grip.

La Grippe! Dark Secrets of diseases, Why Pneumonia, Bronchitis and coughs, Watery eyes and nodded mornings, Aches and shakes, groans and groanings Swollen joints, rheumatic twinges, When your nostrils get to stinging Then your sad misgivings merge Into one dismal dirge, Monster, may the devil take you!

Go as soon and do not tarry;
Go and never more return;

Bear your rapid flight to Never

EDITORIAL NOTES

Paidology and Ephebics.

We don't know whether you have any children or not, but if you have do not send them to school another day till you find out whether their teacher understands psychogenesis, paidology and ephebics. These are vital to education.

President G. Stanley found it out. It was good of him not to keep it to himself, but to tell in The Forum all the world about his find. The professor wants teachers and parents to study the children. While the young ones are under 5 years old, the investigation into their thoughts, words and deeds is called psychogenesis. After the age of 4, however, you must not call this child study psychogenesis any more, on pain of losing caste as an intelligent human being. You must now say paidology. You keep on with paidology till the youngster is 12 or 14. Then apparently so many new elements of depravity break out that you must get a new name for your child study, and thenceforth call it ephebics. Ephebics lasts from "adolescence up to full nubility," when, thank heaven, we are done.)

Professor Hall skips embryology and psychogenesis and jumps bravely into paidology at once in The Forum paper. He informs us that the paidological experts commence their task with the physical measurements of school children. The thing began in Boston, of course. Of 24,500 pupils in the Boston public schools who were measured as to their height, weight and periods of growth, it was found that the children of American parents were both taller and heavier than those of foreign parentage. This disproves the theory that the American people are deteriorating physically. Further, the children of parents belonging to the laboring classes are not so tall or heavy as the children of nonlaboring parents. Country children are taller than city children of the same age.

It is found that apparent mental dullness is often the result of defective hearing, which teachers ought not to forget. When a child does not grow any through a considerable period, it is a sure sign that something is out of whack with that child's health. Nasal diseases seem to be associated with weakness of memory and attention. One concludes from a reading of Professor Hall's paper that the studies of childhood which he proposes should really be very useful, provided he would only call them something English.

Who Would You Like to Be?

Few of us are perfect beauties. Still few of us are as rich as we would like to be. We have not very good health. Our friends do not always treat us as well as we think they ought to. We are not conceited enough to believe we are very wise, or eloquent or gifted—at least, most of us are not. Some people may modestly claim that while they are not beautiful they are good, but the writer and readers of this have not even that satisfaction. We have not been lucky. Moreover, although we know we are not either very beautiful, gifted or good, still we in our secret hearts are sure that if we had our just deserts in this life we would be getting a great deal more money, honor and affection than we now do. Then, too, there are solemn moments in all our lives when we go off by ourselves and abase ourselves with all the invectives in the language for being the greatest fools that ever breathed the air of this free country. You do—you know you do.

Still, would you like to be somebody else? You would like to be as handsome as this person, as famous as that one, probably, or as rich as a third one, or on the whole, is there any one individual alive whom you would change with, you turning exactly into that person, exchanging all your drawbacks for his? No? We thought so. Well, then, don't grumble, but go on and do the best you can, making of your life the grandest structure you can with the tools at your command.

Do the thing that's nearest,
Though its dull at whiles,
Helping when you meet them
Lame dogs over stiles.

An interesting question of state and national jurisdiction will come up for settlement in congress this winter. The legislatures of Virginia and South Carolina have given permission to a foreign company to land upon their shores an ocean cable from Brazil. In the United States senate Mr. Frye of Maine has introduced a resolution which will bring up the whole question of whether an individual state has the right to grant such permission. During the Harrison administration both Secretary of State Blaine and afterward his successor, Foster, declined to act on the foreign cable company to land, refusing the request on the ground that no United States cable company would be allowed a landing on the coast of Brazil.

It is well for Chicago to raise $2,000,000 and feed her destitute. But she ought to make the slobberlied among them do something to earn the money. There is plenty of unfinished public work in Chicago.

Anything will do for a pretext when a man wants to kill himself—even losses in a friendly game of poker.

SESSION BEGAN LIVELY.

Few Members Present, but a Hot Debate in the House.

FEATURES OF THE INCOME TAX.

The Democrats Failed to Start the Tariff Debate From Lack of Members—Frye Broaches the Hawaiian Matter In the Senate—Admiral Benham Heard From.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The most significant thing in the session of the senate was the resolution introduced by Senator Frye of Maine declaring it to be the sense of the senate that the administration should commit no overt act of interference in Hawaii pending the investigation of the Honolulu matter by the committee on foreign affairs. The evident object of the resolution is to declare the sense of the senate to be adverse to any armed interference, either direct or indirect, should any coup d'etat be resorted to for the purpose of restoring the queen to the throne.

The senator asked that the resolution lie upon the table for the present, and it is expected that he will make it the subject of some remarks before asking its reference to the committee on foreign affairs.

The discussion of a private bill called up by Senator Pugh indicated a desire on the part of some senators to repeal the present law which excludes all foreigners from the right of ownership of real estate in the District of Columbia, but it likewise developed the fact that to this repeal some other senators are strongly opposed.

Not a Very Rousing Democrats.

The tariff debate of 1894 did not begin in the house, as anticipated. The Republicans showed fight at the very outset, and they scored the first victory. Before the time arrived for Mr. Wilson to take the floor Mr. McCreary tried to arrange an agreeable agreement by which two days—Friday and Saturday—should be given to the consideration of the Hawaiian resolution. Mr. Hitt, the Republican leader of the foreign affairs committee, expressed a willingness to acquiesce in the arrangement, but Mr. Boutelle of Maine wanted to precipitate the question immediately by calling up his resolution. Both sides were ugly, but after a lively row the speaker held that Mr. Boutelle's resolution was privileged. The Democratic members of the ways and means committee were not willing to go ahead with the Hawaiian discussion until the tariff debate had been gotten well under way, however, and the question of consideration was raised against the Boutelle resolution. The Republicans then executed a flank movement by refusing to vote.

The Democrats found themselves in the humiliating position of not being able to muster a quorum. They were in check, and after revoking all leaves of absence Mr. Wilson reluctantly moved an adjournment. The Republicans declined to second it, a quorum here today, but the effect of the Republicans' tactics will probably be that the Hawaiian matter will be entirely postponed until the bill is disposed of.

Details of the Income Tax.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Representative McMillin, chairman of the subcommittee in charge of the internal revenue feature of the tariff bill, outlines the salient features of the income tax section, which he expects to complete in a day or two, as follows:

"The corporation part of the measure will not require an inquisition on every individual to determine what amount of corporate stock he holds, but the assessment will be made against and paid by the corporations in the first instance, and hence a man owning corporate stock will not be worried by annual returns on a subject for an individual income tax. The corporation will pay the tax of each of its incorporators and will in turn charge it up against them.

"The second tax is that levied on the corporation pays for an incorporator on the dividends he would derive, he in turn is credited with that amount in assessing his general income for taxation. As to the foreigners and foreign associations holding interest bearing securities in this country, they will be assessed the same as our own citizens. It will not be necessary to go abroad in order to ascertain these investments, as the assessment against the corporations will cover all of its stockholders, foreign as well as domestic. The collection of the tax will be in the hands of the internal revenue bureau. It will not necessitate the appointment of new tax collectors in the various states, but a few additional assessors and deputies will be required to work under the present revenue collectors. It should be understood that the tax will be confined to about $5,000 corporations, according to estimates furnished me by the treasury department, so that no large force will be necessary to keep track of such a comparatively small class. The tax on dividends will affect about not more than one-third as many as were taxed under the old income tax law."

Mr. McMillin says the bill will provide means for compelling disclosures as to incomes somewhat similar to the methods used by several of the states. He says the penalties for failing to report or for false reports have not yet been fixed.

BIG BLAZE IN TOLEDO.

Began in the Grain Elevators and Swept Away the Chamber of Commerce.

TOLEDO, Jan. 4.—Fire caused a loss of fully a half million dollars. It broke out in the grain elevator of F. M. Quade & Co. on the river, fronting on Madison and Water streets. The cause is as yet unknown. An explosion of dust caused a general alarm. The elevator and its contents were entirely destroyed.

A strong northwest wind carried the flames across to Madison, where the exchange and business block of C. A. King & Co., which is also a total loss. The flames also spread westward across Water street to the rear of a large five story business block known as the Chamber of Commerce building, owned by Hon. T. P. Howell and occupied by the Western Union Telegraph company, the American District company and a large number of offices, which was also destroyed.

From this the flames spread south to the next building, five stories high, occupied as a museum and theater and known as "Wonderland." This was gutted by the flames within a few minutes. The next building southward was the wholesale drug house of West & Truax, which is also a total loss. A strong firewall checked the flames at this point.

To the west they leaped across Summit street, the office retail street of the city, injuring the Hardesty block, but the fire was here checked without great damage. In the rear of this building is the office of the Postal Telegraph company, the manager of which succeeded all the apparatus possible, thus cutting off all telegraphic communication for a time, as the Western Union offices and instruments were destroyed totally.

A two story block on the northeast corner of Water and Madison streets, diagonally across from the Chamber of Commerce, was also destroyed. The total loss will reach nearly $1,000,000. Owing to the high wind, help was requested from the nearest cities, and the following responded promptly by Cleveland, Detroit and Adrian. The two latter departments reached the city before the fire was under control and rendered efficient service. There were fortunately no fatalities, though Captain Frazier of Company No. 1 was overcome by smoke and reported killed, but he is all right.

THE BARROWCLIFFE CASE.

The Young Woman Can Speak, but Has Not Named Her Assailant.

JERSEY CITY, Jan. 4.—The condition of Miss Barrowcliffe is improving. Wednesday she was able to say a few words, but as yet the authorities have shown no disposition to tax her memory in regard to the assault which was committed on her. The mother, who has lived for some time past in Brooklyn, called at the City hospital, but was denied an interview with her daughter. It was said, however, that later in the day Mrs. Barrowcliffe was permitted to see the girl.

The police authorities have not as yet been able to definitely upon any of the large number of suspects that have been placed under surveillance as the guilty persons. The only certain fact is that the guilty one is among that number. A woman's hatpin was found near the spot where the assault was committed, and it has been identified by Miss Barrowcliffe's friends that the pin does not belong to her. The very slightest clew is being seized upon by the police with eagerness. They hope within a very few days to be able to draw their net around the criminal.

Armed Crank Called at the Jail.

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—A crank carrying a huge revolver and who said he was commissioned by the Deity to do good appeared at the county jail and asked to see Theodore Durrant, the condemned assassin. His request was refused. Pointing at his weapon, he said he would commune with the Lord ordered him to do so. He was promptly arrested and taken to a station house, where he said his name was Fred Nanes.

Mitchell Signs the Articles.

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., Jan. 4.—Mitchell has signed the articles which on Tuesday he refused to put his name to. This practically assures the Duval Athletic club of their ability to pull off the fight. If the fight will be managed in the same as our citizens. It will not be necessary to go abroad in order to ascertain these investments, as the assessment against the corporations will cover all of its stockholders, foreign as well as domestic. The collection of the tax will be in the hands of the internal revenue bureau. It will not necessitate the appointment of new tax collectors in the various states, but a few additional assessors and deputies will be required to work under the present revenue collectors. It should be understood that the tax will be confined to about $5,000 corporations, according to estimates furnished me by the treasury department, so that no large force will be necessary to keep track of such a comparatively small class. FAULKNER MARRIED.

A Brilliant Southern Society Wedding at Hampton.

MANY SENATORS WERE PRESENT.

The West Virginia Senator Weds a Belle of Old Virginia—A Beautiful Service. Providence Society Turns Out to a Swell Wedding Also.

FORT MONROE, Va., Jan. 4.—Of the many brilliant weddings that have taken place in old St. John's church at Hampton during the 250 years of its existence, that of Senator Faulkner and Miss Whiting easily heads the list. The day was perfect, and the entire lower peninsula turned out to witness the event.

The church had been handsomely dressed with palms and growing plants, while over each pew was placed a floral design, that in front of the altar being a beautiful tail, giving a subdued and mellow light to the ancient edifice. The party commenced at the church ground and left grounds at the church ground and left grounds at 5 o'clock, advanced from the wings and formed in the main aisle to receive the bride. The organ and orchestra commenced playing the wedding march from "Lohengrin" when a chorus of eight young lady friends of the bride, all dressed in pink chiffon over satin, sang the march as they advanced to the altar. They were followed at this moment on the arm of her father and passed through the lines thus formed to the chancel, where the groom and his best man were smilingly awaiting her arrival.

They were followed by the bridal party and misters, who took positions on either side of the altar. The groom, the Rev. Dr. Bryan, proceeded with the Episcopal marriage service. The bride's dress was an elegant white satin, elaborately trimmed with point lace, and the bridal veil was of point lace. She wore a handsome diamond pendant containing 82 large stones—a present from the groom—and carried a bouquet of bride roses. The maid of honor, Miss Phillips, wore white bengaline trimmed with chiffon. The bridesmaids wore pink crepe de chene and carried huge bouquets of La France roses.

Silver From Senators.

In addition to the handsome present from the groom, the bride received many beautiful and costly presents, consisting of silver, cut glass and bric-a-brac of great rarity.

The popular senator was handsomely remembered by his colleagues, who presented him with a fancy silver service of five pieces inscribed "To the Hon. Charles J. Faulkner of West Virginia from his fellow senators, Jan. 3, 1894."

Among the prominent people present were Governor W. A. McCorkle and wife and Judge E. B. Faulkner and wife of West Virginia, Senator Hunton of Virginia, Senator and Mrs. Gibson of Maryland, General Stahl and B. H. Warner of Washington, Colonel George R. Tingle of Montgomery and many others. The senator and his bride left for the south, while their friends returned to Washington by the special train which was held over for their accommodation.

Down-Tyler.

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 4.—The leading society wedding of the season took place at St. Stephen's Episcopal church, the contracting parties being May Livingstone Dews, daughter of Joseph Dews of this city, and Charles Whitcomb Tyler, rector of Trinity church in Gatbric, O. T. It was a full choral service and was largely attended. The costumes were magnificent. Rev. George McClellan Fiske officiated, assisted by Rev. Mr. Hopkins, rector, and Assistant Priest Evelyn Barton. Rev. Mr. Paterson of Clinton, Ia., acted as best man. A brilliant reception followed the ceremony at the bride's home. Among the guests were Governor D. Russell Brown, Congressman Oscar Lapham, Chief Justice C. R. Matteson, Colonel J. H. Wilson and Colonel H. Martin Brown. Mr. and Mrs. Tyler left for the west.

THAT LENOX BURGLAR.

The Police Think He Is One of a Batch of Six Prisoners.

ALWAYS POLITE AND MYSTERIOUS.

Six Men Arrested and Some of the Stolen Property Recovered—Two of Them—Their Confessions Lead to the Arrest of Four More, and Now the Town Is Excited.

LENOX, Mass., Jan. 4.—At last the Lenox authorities think they have the famous burglar with the soft voice and polite manner—the man who has invaded the residences of the wealthy summer people and the shops of the townspeople, and who has invariably been kind in speech when he has called on ladies in their rooms at night to secure their jewels or money. They think they have him because they have six men under arrest and have some of the stolen property, which was found in the possession of the men, who tell various tales incriminating each other in their eagerness to get off. Whether there are one, two or three burglars or more is not known, but it is known that these six men do know, and the truth will probably be known at once.

The excitement began in Lenox when it was known that John Brown of Lexington, Mass., and Charles J. Smith of this place had been arrested.

Had Stolen Goods.

They had in their possession the goods stolen from James Clifford and Frank Barrett on the night of Nov. 27 in one of the famous Lenox robberies. Tuesday evening Brown went to a livery stable in Lenox owned by Michael Mahanna and engaged a team to take him to Richmond. He was under the influence of liquor and displayed several articles of cutlery.

Mr. Mahanna suspected the source of the articles and notified Selectman William Mahanna, who, with Sheriff White, drove to Richmond and found Brown at the home of Mrs. Conklin, having in his possession a valise filled with the stolen goods. He was arrested and returned to the Lenox lockup, where he confessed to having bought the goods late in the afternoon from Charles J. Smith, a carpenter who has been in the employ of Mr. Clifford for several years, coming to Lenox from Boston.

Smith was found in bed at the house of O. E. Carey and was placed under arrest and taken to the lockup. In an interview Smith said: "For some time I have suspected Schemmerhorn of being implicated in the Clifford burglary, and I told him that I was on to his racket and would buy some of his stuff. Schemmerhorn agreed to show me the goods, provided I would go into a scheme to hold up on the road a man named Martin, who drives a beer wagon from Lenoxdale. I agreed to this, and the goods were shown me. Schemmerhorn then told me that Clarence Curtis, Francis Fenwick and Robert Howard were with him and implicated in the robbery. He also offered to sell me a gold watch which he took from the bureau in Mrs. Gravesner's room on the night of Nov. 17, when the rectory burglary occurred.

"I agreed to buy the watch and some gold pins for $25 and paid him $5 down, taking the gold pins that were included in the bargain. I have tried to get a second party to buy some of the goods, so that I could have proof of Schemmerhorn's guilt and then go to work. Brown walked up the street with me, and passing White's stable went in to get some beer. Schemmerhorn asked me if Brown was a friend, and being assured of the fact showed him a bag of stolen goods, and Brown took a portion of them, paying $5.

Were Brought to Jail.

"Brown then wished me to take him to Mrs. Conklin's in Richmond, but I declined and sent him to Mahanna's, and soon after Brown left Clarence Curtis came to me and asked why he had not had a chance to dispose of some of the goods which he had.

"Brown came back at this time, and Curtis asked him to buy, and when Brown refused he offered to give him some goods, which I was to accept. Schemmerhorn then came up and gave Brown a valise filled with goods, and Curtis returned with a tin box filled with knives and revolvers, which was also placed in the valise. Brown then started for Richmond. I had nothing to do with the robberies and was only interested to find the guilty parties and get the reward."

Smith's story concerning himself is looked upon as untrustworthy and told to protect himself.

Following Smith's confession Fenwick, Schemmerhorn, Curtis and Howard were placed under arrest. Five of the prisoners, all except Howard, who is ill, were taken to Pittsfield and arraigned before Judge Tucker on the charge of breaking and entering. They all pleaded not guilty on this charge. Brown and Smith, on the charge of receiving stolen goods, pleaded guilty. The court adjourned for a recess and to allow the prisoners to secure counsel for their defense. All the prisoners on examination all were placed under bonds of $500 except Smith, whose bond was $800. The cases were postponed to Saturday.

SALT BUSHES.

Plants of Interest Whenever There Are Dry Spells and Consequent Scarcity of Seed.

Plants that will resist drought and salt-ish soils on deserts and dry plateaus are evidently very extraordinarily serviceable, and those who discover the adaptation of certain plants to such localities are doing good service to mankind. One of their "salt bushes" in the old world is Atriplex hollosus, but probably one of the best known is the Australian species Atriplex halimoides, more recently called Anabasis varia. There are many localities in America where the introduction of this plant would be of great benefit to our agricultural interests. The Agricultural Journal of Cape Colony gives an interesting account of the successful experiments made in that portion of the world, where the Australian plant has been introduced through Baron von Mueller of Melbourne. The plant has been found of so much value there and so well adapted to the peculiar conditions that the demand for the seed has been doubled or beyond that supply. There is a demand not only by the settlement, but from outsiders in the belief that the plant will be found of inestimable benefit wherever there are dry or salty conditions. The plant has biscuit flowers, as in all Chenopodiaceæ, in the same plant, and usually plants with distinct sexes on separate plants. The illustration with this is of a male plant. It will be seen that this specimen from the A. balmus is having the flowers scattered over the whole plant instead of their being simply terminal, as in that species. The rare of course other distinguishing characters.

Meehan's Monthly authority for the foregoing, gives this matter prominent attention, thinking it to the interest of our people who may have dry or salty soil to introduce the plant, and that it has been one of the reproductive of American gardens. The mid-winters agricultural enterprise that they are usually far behind other sections of the world in introducing and testing valuable plants that would possibly be in the best interests of agricultural progress to try.

Transparent Leather.

Transparent leather many be manufactured, according to the French magazine, as follows: After the hair has been removed from the hide the latter, tightly stretched upon a frame, is rubbed with the following mixture: Glycerin 125 parts; water 125, 1,000 parts; salicylic acid, 2 parts; picric acid, 2 parts; boric acid, 25 parts.

Before the hide is absolutely dry it is passed in a room which the vapor of the sun do not penetrate and is saturated with a solution of bichromate of potash. When the hide is very dry, there is applied to its surface an alcoholic solution of tortoise shell, and a transparent aspect is thus obtained. This leather is exceedingly flexible. It is used for the manufacture of toilet articles, but there is nothing to prevent it from being used as postgear, and perhaps with fancy stockings shoes made of it would not prove objectionable in the night. They would at least have the advantage of originality.

An Inexpensive Electrical Machine.

Take a glass, expose it to the fire, so that it shall be perfectly dry, and place it up side down up a table. Afterward, take a tray perfectly dry and place it upon the glass in such a way that it shall be perfectly equilibrium. Finally, take a sheet of paper slightly smaller than the tray, bent it and rub it rapidly with a brush, and it will become quickly electrified. Then place it upon the tray.

An industrial journal says that an electrical machine, will this have been constructed without any expense. If the finger be brought near the tray a spark will appear. This spark will be so much the brighter and the series of sparks will be so much the longer in proportion as the glass and trays are drier. If while the spaces up to ling divers from that of the room in which the experiment is performed is darkened, these sparks will appear extremely brilliant.

About Coon Cats.

The subject of "coon cats," or sometimes called mule cats, has been repeatedly discussed, and it is now generally conceded that they are the result of an alliance of our domestic tabby with some oriental feline, probably the angora. This cross would show the long, bushy tail of the oriental species. [illegible]

Dr. Morris Gibbs tells in Science that these cats are quite common in parts of New England, and may be purchased at a very reasonable figure and according to the demands and the supply in the cat market. Few persons are able to distinguish between genuine augoras and these hybrids, and many are the unsuspecting buyers who have paid a high price for a common "coon cat" worth not more than $2.

Squaring the Circle.

"It is impossible with ruler and compasses to construct a square equal in area to a given circle. These are the words in the final determination of a controversy which is as old as the history of the human mind. But the race of the circle squarers, unmindful of the verdict of mathematics, that most infallible of arbiters, will never lie out so long as ignorance and the thirst for glory shall be united." Such is the conclusion of a historical sketch of the many attempts to square the circle.

To Relacquer Old Trays.

Old trays may be relacquered by the following process, according to a writer in The Technologist: First clean them thoroughly with soap and water and a little rotten-stone; then dry by wiping and exposure to the fire. Next, get some good copal varnish, mix it with some lampblack powder, and apply with a brush to the denuded parts; after which set the tray in an oven at a heat of 212 to 300 degrees, until the varnish is dry. Two coats will make it equal to new.

Cutting Steel With Steam.

A French physicist affirms that steam escaping under pressure may groove and polish metal like emery and even cut through metal plate. A metallic surface exposed to a jet of steam at a pressure of 100 pounds was channeled and striated as with a saw or file.

TWO SEA TRAGEDIES.

A Norwegian Captain Saw Them Through the Spindrift.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4.—The Norwegian bark Einar, Captain Olausson, arrived here from Tuneberg after a most eventful and thrilling passage. Owing to the terrific weather she experienced the fore part of the voyage, Captain Olausson was compelled to deserve a leaking and dismasted brigantine and leave her crew of 10 men to perish. The same day a lifeboat containing two half naked men, having for their signal of distress a shirt attached to an oar, was sighted. Every effort was made to rescue these unfortunates, but a sea swept over them, and they were never afterward seen. Captain Olausson betrayed deep emotion as he told his story.

"Late in the afternoon on Nov. 11," he said, "during the fiercest part of the storm, the lookout made something in the water dead to leeward. The vessel's course was altered, and she headed in that direction. Passing on the crest of a tremendous sea, there appeared a boat containing two naked men. Spindrift was being tossed aboard high, but as they reached the top of the sea they were distinctly seen, and their cries for help were heartrending.

"We decided to heave to and called to the men to pull up to the vessel, but they had disappeared and were no doubt swallowed up in the sea that broke over the Einar a few seconds later and deluged her fore and aft."

Captain Olausson lay to until daybreak, when the wind again increased rapidly. Just at daybreak he made a distressed brigantine to leeward, with all hands clinging to a stump of the foremast. Such terrific sea prevailed that it was impossible to approach the vessel, so the Einar was again hove to as close to the vessel as possible, anticipating a lull in the storm that would permit them to rescue the wrecked.

As night overtook them the brig was lost to sight, and 30 hours later Captain Olausson said he had made so much leeway that his vessel was within a few fathoms of the Lemon shoals. He jammed all possible sail on his vessel at great risk and managed to clear off just in time. He supposed that the unknown craft went on the shoals and was wrecked with all hands. The weather moderated Nov. 20.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 4.—The announcement of the engagement of the beautiful Miss Louise H. Morris to Mr. Frederick Gebhard of New York caused a decided stir in local society circles, though it had been known for many days that Mr. Gebhard was a devoted admirer. Miss Morris, since her introduction into society a few years ago, has been a reigning belle. No engagement has been announced. It is said that Mr. Gebhard and his fiancee will shortly go abroad with a party to be chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. J. Brown Lord.

Expiration on a River Steamer.

PADUCAH, Ky., Jan. 4.—The Evansville and Tennessee river packet steamer W. P. Nesbitt grounded on the bar at Panther Creek island, in the Tennessee river, 60 miles above this city. A mulatto fireman was scalded by a jet of steam at a pressure of 100 pounds was channeled and striated as with a saw or file [illegible] was scalded, and some passengers were seriously injured.

A few months later he was persuaded to accept the nomination as member of congress for the district composed of Susquehanna, Bradford and Tioga counties, and he was elected after a bitter fight, taking his seat in December, 1851, the youngest member of congress.

He was standing in front of the train waving a red lantern. The shadows fell across the upper portion of his face, partly covered by an old slouch hat. The engineer reversed with a jerk and the train stopped.

"Make sure of your aim, mun! Don't let one of them escape!" howled the chief of the 14 detectives as they surrounded him.

"Hands up! Move a muscle and you're dead! We've got ye dead to rights! We've been laying for you!"

"Eh?" said the Missouri farmer, "have ye robbed and captured the train?"—

"Watch him, men! I know him by the shade I got in Chicago. He's an uncle of Bill Dal"——

"What's the matter with you fellers?"

"Why did you stop this train, you villain?"

"Nuthin, only thar's a bridge washed out down to Turkey Bend, and"——

But the rest of the conversation was addressed to the jag.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Irish Wit and Courtesy.

A sudden gust of wind took a parasol from the hand of its owner, and a lively Irishman, dropping his bod of bricks, caught the parachute.

"Faith, ma'am," said he, "if you were as strong as you are handsome, it would not have got away from you."

"Which shall I thank you for first—the service or the compliment?" asked the lady smilingly.

"Troth, ma'am," said Pat, again touching the place where once stood the brim of what once was a beaver, "that look of your beautiful eye thanked me for both."—Scottish-American.

THE JUNIOR LEAGUE

GIVE AN ENTERTAINMENT IN VINCENT CHAPEL.

It was Very Successful and was Largely Attended —A Very Interesting Programme.

A S T evening, in Vincent chapel, the entertainment given by the Junior League proved a success in every respect. The chapel was filled both upstairs and down, by a large attendance. The little ones, dressed in white made a pretty sight as they all gathered on the platform, which had been enlarged for the occasion.

The programme opened with singing by the league of a piece entitled "Merrily, Oh!" Boys as well as girls took part in this. Next Lillie Haberle recited "Creeping Up the Stairs," followed by a piano duet "Clayton March," by the Misses Pancborn and Ross.

Miss Flora Smalley sang very sweetly: "Up in the Sky." After the "Mother Goose Exercise," which provoked much mirth, Charles Bryan recited "The Ship's Colors" in a creditable manner. The league sang "Angry Words," and then there was a recitation by Miss Sadie Howell, entitled "The Little Page."

Undoubtedly the feature of the evening was the violin solo, "Home, Sweet Home," by Clarence Mills, who played in a most excellent manner. He received a bouquet in appreciation of his fine performance. The enthusiastic audience applauded until Master Mills responded with an encore, in which he and his teacher, Prof. Coade, rendered a difficult selection.

Part second of the programme was as follows: Song—"I Come, I Come," by the League; Recitation, "The Wanderer," by Miss Mabel Smith; recitation, "The Way You Say It," by Miss Fannie Dodd; song: "What Makes a man a Gentleman," by the league; recitation, "The Boy Always Late," by F. Lucker; recitation, "The Little Orphan, by Annie M. Thatcher; tambourine drill, Master Mill's orchestra, Concert Gavotte, and the Wand drill by the boys.

The following girls took part in the tambourine drill: Mabel Stevens, Tillie Haberle, Clara King, Tillie Hope, Sadie Howell, Lottie Pancborn, Tillie Epner, Mildred Terrell, Tillie Zeiss, Lena Sampson, Flora Sears, Doris Herrin, Lois Hartpence, Tillie Sutphen, Addie Hustis-ton, Nellie Ansur, Florence Hill, and Jennie Smith.

THE Y. M. C. A. DIRECTORS

THE REGULAR MONTHLY MEETING HELD LAST EVENING.

Reports Made by the Various Committees.—The Average Attendance at the Educational Classes for the Past Month was 65.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Y. M. C. A. was held at the Association rooms last evening. Vice President D. E. Titsworth presided, in the absence of President Murray. Chairman Osborne, of the Educational Committee, reported for the last month educational classes a total average attendance for the month of 65. J. W. Garrett, in reporting for the Reception Committee, said that the number served with refreshments at the New Year's reception was largest than upon any previous year. The ladies waited upon the table from 4.30 until seven o'clock. A large quantity of refreshments was donated and the only expense for talent was two dollars. Fifteen members of the Reception Committee rendered service in connection with this reception.

Mr. T. E. Hazell, of the Music Committee, in his report spoke of the special music which had been an attractive feature of the young men's meetings.

In the absence of Mr. Ln Bostenay of the Devotional Committee, the General Secretary reported for the three Bible training classes held on Saturday night and Sunday afternoon. The average men's meeting and the meetings at Washingtonville and the Mt. Pleasant school house, for the benefit of the young men who had professed conversion at the rooms had united with the church during the year.

The General Secretary, in his report, mentioned the few instances in which the Association had been able to provide work for the unemployed and also among other things that before had been sent to two other associations about men who have removed from Plainfield there. Two letters have also been sent to men who have visited our rooms but who have since left our city.

Mr. R. Boyd, for the committee presented the names of several young men for membership in the association.

—The report reached Plainfield yesterday that Craig A. Marsh had obtained an order of the Supreme Court setting aside the conviction and sentence of Lawrence Sullivan on the ground that the sentence was for ninety days while the law only permitted thirty days imprisonment for disorderly conduct. The conviction was set aside in the present instance because a technical error in the papers prepared by the Court which imposed the sentence.

THE CLUB OUT OF DEBT

BESIDES HAVING MONEY IN THE TREASURY.

The Reform Club's Annual Installation Ceremonies.—Excellent Remarks Made by President Spencer and the Newly Installed Officers.

THE installation ceremonies of the Reform Club held at their ball last evening, were well attended. Good singing was rendered by the choir and prayer was offered by Treasurer Spicer, after which the routine club business was transacted. Messrs. Voehl and Titsworth were appointed an escort to conduct the candidates elect to the platform. President Spencer thanked the club for the honor again conferred upon him and said that as it was the 10th anniversary it seemed fitting that a word should be said in reference to the condition of the club. In the matter of its members and enthusiasm, he said, the club was not to be compared with what it was in years gone by. Many of those who left, said he, was the matter with the Reform Club, and who never put in an appearance at its meetings, would now find their aid in building up instead of helping to tear it down, the result would be gratifying to the friends of temperance as well as to the club. In reviewing its history he said the club started out auspiciously and in short-sanines, but with all they had accomplished the money, so generously contributed by the people of Plainfield, for the purchase, renovating and embellishing of Reform Hall and were to-day out of debt and have money in the treasury and were therefore financially sound, which was a very essential feature in any organization. In concluding, he requested the cabin Christian women and all others who had helped in any the temperance movement, and paid glowing tribute to the lamented English, Matzen, Barger, Good and Lane, who had died during the year. He hoped the members should renew their efforts to perpetuate the Club out of respect to those who had passed away from earth.

First Vice President King thanked the Club for the honor conferred upon him and pledged himself to renew his efforts in helping the Club and especially the weekly Thursday night meetings. Vice President Smaller and Crossley were absent on account of sickness. Recording Secretary Ayres, in an able temperance worker, assured the club of his loyalty to the cause in a few very appropriate remarks. Treasurer Spicer, in accepting that office, made a very favorable report of the financial condition of the Club and urged the members to more energetic, harmonious work. Financial Secretary Reynolds recited his interesting experience of his connection with the work of the club. First Marshal Smith made telling remarks in his usual humorous way.

Second Marshal Sadler accepted his position with a few appropriate words to the club. Last but not least John Goodwin accepted the position of Sergeant at Arms with some remarks to the point. At the conclusion of the installation, a recitation entitled "One Hour in the Bar and One Hour in the Grave," was ably rendered by Master Albert Bruce, after which selections were rendered on the piano by Miss Randolph of Duer street, followed by vocal selections by Mr. George F. Randolph. The refreshments of which there was a bountiful supply, were under the direction of Mrs. King, assisted by Mrs. Ayres, Mrs. Titsworth, Miss Hawkins, Mrs. and Miss Thompson and others.

THE ATCHISON'S TROUBLES.

Causes that Led to the Appointment of Receivers.

Receivers J. W. Reinhart, J. J. McCook, and J. C. Wilson of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad Company yesterday made the following statement of the events which led to their appointment:

"The financial condition of the Atchison Company was clearly and accurately given in the statement of the directors issued Dec. 26, showing that its business accounts were normal, which is confirmed by the fact that the pay rolls for December, 1893, amounting to $2,500,000 for the entire system of 8,345 miles of railroad and about $1,500,000, were practically met from the earnings of the month in which the receivership matters were under discussion. The payment of these rolls is now about completed.

"The condition of the system, including the St. Louis and San Francisco, Atlantic and Pacific, Colorado Midland, and all other auxiliary companies, is as given in the directors' statement of Dec. 26, which shows total demand and fixed loans and notes, with collateral due from December, 1894, to June, 1896, $6,300,000, and total coupon interest and other fixed obligations due Jan. 1, $1,500,000. Since the appointment of receivers the loans have been continued and the collateral held intact for the company.

"Upon the return of President Reinhart from Europe, he was confident of *the ability of the company to pay its in*terest on Jan. 1, and gave expression to his belief without hesitation. The condition of the negotiations at that time he saw no reason to change his views until the afternoon of Monday, Dec. 18, when it became known to the officers of the company that Chairman Magoun could not possibly survive more than a few days."

Stopped from Cutting Down Trees.

Wednesday Andrew Jepson, of Prospect street, Westfield, began to cut down the fine maple trees in front of his property. Mrs. Peck, who holds a mortgage on the property, ordered Jepson to stop, which he declined to do, claiming that he was acting under permission from the Town Committee. Committeeman Conant was called upon and corroborated Jepson's statement. Three trees had been cut down and Jepson was about to begin on the fourth when he was stopped by an order from a Justice. A law suit, it is thought, will follow.

Edwards Pleads Self-Defense.

The defense concluded its testimony yesterday, at Somerville, in the trial of Samuel Edwards charged with the murder of William Carroll. Justice Magie charged the jury this morning. Most of the day was occupied in the examination of Edwards. He said that Carroll during the quarrel pushed a pistol in his face and said: "I'll do you yet before this night is over." Edwards said he thought this a case of danger after that and he borrowed a penknife to defend himself. When Carroll attacked him on the railroad tracks he struck him first with his fist and then with a cane.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Greatness of New Jersey.

Those who have been inclined to think small potatoes of the state of New Jersey may put aside their sneers. We cheerfully pay tribute to her worth, wealth and dignity as revealed in the report of the Farmers' Institute and Burlington county board's annual convention at Mount Holly. We learn from this report that New Jersey farms have declined in value because their owners put too low an estimate on them. Perhaps this is the case elsewhere as well. When a farmer only sells $30 to $50 an acre for his land, according to the Burlington county board, the would be buyer thinks there must be something mean about that land and passes on, whereas if $300 an acre was charged he would think it really worth having and would not rest until he had made it his own. We offer the suggestion to land owners elsewhere.

We are glad to learn that visitors to the World's fair "were lost in astonishment" at Jersey products—we are indeed. Some of these products are cabbages, of which one market gardener alone has shipped this year 80,000 heads. New Jersey is the boss state for asparagus, too, that often clears to the man who cultivates it $100 an acre.

But most of all the Jersey dairyman is to be appreciated, not because he furnishes to Philadelphia half of its milk supply, but because he at last is a farmer who has beaten the middleman. The Dairymen's association report that their organization now fixes its own price and has increased the gains to the farmer 11 per cent without increasing the cost to the consumer. The middle milkman who hereafter sets foot in Jersey is to be commiserated.

The great labor unions seem to be approaching nearer to the verge of state socialism, or nationalism, as some prefer to call it. The American Federation of Labor declares in a resolution passed at its annual convention that it is the duty and province of government—national, state and city—to provide relief for the unemployed; that the national government should control the telegraph system and also establish postal savings banks. The federation is not so hard on the United States senate as those who want that venerable body abolished altogether, still it would like to have the senate more directly responsible to the people. It therefore recommends such a change in the constitution as shall allow senators to be elected by direct vote of the people, as representatives are.

Vaillant, the Paris dynamiter, used to live in this country; but, like most of his brethren and sisters, he restrained his propensity to throw bombs in the Yankee republic. He is remembered as having lived in Santa Fe 15 years ago, where he gave French lessons, although he was a tanner by trade. After a few months at Santa Fe the tanner teacher dropped out and went to old Mexico. It is said that he could scarcely make his living. Perhaps that is why he turned dynamiter.

Casimir-Perier and Dupuy simply changed places in the French government. M. Dupuy was premier. He resigned, and Casimir-Perier, who was president of the chamber of deputies, was appointed premier in his place. Then Dupuy was immediately elected president of the deputies to fill Casimir-Perier's chair. It was a fair exchange.

Horace Greeley on proofreading: "As to proofreading, I think a first rate proofreader could always find a place in our concern within a month. But the place requires a universal knowledge of facts, names and spelling. Don't fancy the proofreader knowledge required is a mere secretary of state, president or any such trust will be sufficient."

It is agreeable to find that the legislatures of nearly all the monarchical governments of Europe sent telegrams of sympathy to the French chamber of deputies after the bomb explosion there. They even headed off the United States in the promptness with which they did this.

There is something queer about that Wilson tariff bill. Every manufacturer is quite willing a duty should be put upon articles manufactured by his neighbor in some other line, but he is absolutely certain it would ruin the country if his kind of goods is levied on.

We shall have 46 states by spring, instead of 44, if the bills already introduced to confer statehood on New Mexico and Arizona get through congress. New Mexico's chances seem better than Arizona's.

Paris has still a great number of socialist members of the municipal council. Their leanings have again been shown by the appropriation made in the municipal council in aid of the French striking coal miners.

Debating societies and financial writers will frequently want to know this winter how much money of all kinds there is in the country. The annual report of the United States treasurer puts the amount of gold coin and gold certificates at $82,932,877.

Three of our ocean steamships are now at Rio Janeiro—the Charleston, Detroit and New York. The San Francisco is also there in addition.

CANNOT AVOID CRANKS.

Another One Following George Gould About.

CHICK SAYS HE WANTS $100,000.

Wants the Gould Cottage at Lakewood and Attends a Dinner Dance—Says Mr. Gould Promised Him the Money to Re-establish a Magazine.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., Jan. 5.—When George Gould left New York to come here to live for the winter, it is probable that it was with a sense of relief that he would be out of the way of cranks, who were continually bothering him with their demands for money. But one has put in an appearance at Lakewood with the modest demand of $100,000, which he says Gould promised him some time ago, and he is also after a like amount from John Wanamaker.

The crank returns to be an old newspaper correspondent, and his name is Ernest C. Chick, although he says are himself as Poole. He came here and at once set out to see Mr. Gould at his cottage, Gray Gables. It so happened that Mrs. Gould was giving an afternoon tea and reception, so that when Chick sent his card in he was admitted, the servant thinking he might be one of the invited guests.

As soon as his business was known, however, he was asked to leave, which he did, although rather reluctantly.

Crank at the Depot.

He then walked about the village, passing the Gould cottage frequently with the hope of catching a glimpse of Mr. Gould. His actions seemed rational enough at times, but he talked at random, his weak points being the $100,000 promise and also Brooklyn politics, which he claims are in a bad state. He said District Attorney Ridgway was the "squealer on Tom McKenzie" on a promise from President Grover Cleveland of the position of supreme court judge.

Chick had learned in some way that Mr. and Mrs. Gould were to give a dinner and dance at one of the hotels, and he went there to interview Mr. Gould. The money, he said, was to be applied to re-establishing The Aldine, a magazine which has not been published for 15 or 20 years.

Mr. Gould and his party appeared on time for their dinner, and Chick made an effort to have a talk with him, but Mr. Gould evaded him. He then wrote a letter to Mr. Gould, telling him that District Attorney Ridgway was in the house and he had better invite him to his dance, for he was one of the most influential politicians of the day and stood the best chance of being next president of the United States of any man in America.

The note never reached its destination, as it was intercepted by the house officer, who began to notice his queer actions. He then sent in the following:

Mr. Gould, please address:

If convenient, give me five minutes' time between now and half past 11 tonight.

E. C. CHICK.

This note met no better success, so he concluded to wait until about half past 11 o'clock, when the guests prepared to leave.

Mrs. Kingdon Saw Him.

He again tried to see Mr. Gould, but his purpose was defeated by Mrs. Kingdon, Mr. Gould's daughter, who spoke a few words to him. He seemed satisfied at this, and Mr. Gould went home before Chick was aware of it. While he was waiting for Mr. Gould he was not at all idle, for he kept Mr. Ridgway busy avoiding him and the notes he was trying to get to him. Mr. Ridgway said the crank had been troubling him for a year or more, and lately he had been sending him a dozen notes a day relating to the exposure of the Mc-Kenzie-Hyatt election ring and doing away with bossism in Brooklyn.

Chick wandered about the streets most of the night, having no money to pay for a lodging. He was at the depot watching all trains in the hope of meeting Mr. Gould. He is a short, squarely built man, with bushy black hair, mixed with gray, and wears a full beard. He dresses fairly well, and when talking on certain subjects he speaks fluently and intelligently.

FROZEN EUROPE.

The Temperature Extend as Far South Even as Rome.

VIENNA, Jan. 5.—The northern wind is increasing in violence at Trieste. The streets of the city have been rendered impassable, and the theaters and other places of amusement were closed last night. Fifty persons have been injured. The congestion of the port is entirely suspended. Reports from Belgrade say that the Danube is frozen over.

PARIS, Jan. 5.—The bodies of three persons who had perished from cold were found in the streets. There have been heavy snowstorms at Marseilles and in Provence. A number of trains are snow bound at Port Vendre. Traffic on the railways in the north of France is greatly delayed and disorganized.

The Rhone is frozen over at Tarascon. The railways on the island of Corsica are blocked with snow. The mail steamer from Marseilles for Corsica encountered a terrific gale and was for many hours in danger of foundering. She lost all her masts and sustained other serious damages. After a heavy struggle with the wind and sea she succeeded with much difficulty in entering Toulon harbor.

Mrs. Becker was given the alternative of yielding the children peaceably or having a writ of habeas corpus issued, which would result in their being sent to their father. She consented to give the children up. With their father they left for St. Louis.

HUNTING FOR A QUORUM

Democrats In the House Blocked by Missing Members.

TARIFF BILL DEBATE IS DELAYED.

Senator Hoar Keeps the Hawaiian Matter Alive in the Senate—Pennsylvania Democrats Have Off Years—Many Postmasterships Distributed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The session of the senate was significant in two respects, through belief and appearances so far as action is concerned. Senator Hoar of the Republican side introduced a resolution calling on the secretary of the treasury for his authority for the payment of Special Commissioner Blount for his Hawaiian services, and Senator Gray of the Democratic side served notice that on Tuesday next the Democrats would insist upon taking up the federal elections bill and continuing with its consideration until the measure should be finally disposed of.

The object of Senator Hoar's resolution is manifestly to call into question the right of the president to send a personal commissioner to Hawaii, or indeed any commissioner, without the concurrence of the senate first obtained by the confirmation of his nomination, and this object will be more most effectively reached by demanding the authority of the secretary of the treasury for the payment of Commissioner Blount for his services and expenses.

The notice of Senator Gray indicates that the Democrats are determined to dispose of the federal elections bill at an early day and before it can be hampered by the tariff bill or any other party measures which might come over from the house demanding early consideration through motives of party expediency. The bill will be taken up Tuesday, and it is expected that it will continue to be the paramount question in the senate until finally disposed of.

The Democrats in the house lacked just 29 votes of a quorum, and the Republicans again succeeded in blocking the debate on the tariff bill. It is almost certain that the Democrats will have a quorum present today, but two days already have been wasted, and they probably will negotiate an extention of the limit of the debate beyond Jan. 17, on which date the programme contemplated a final vote. There was some talk of changing the original programme to vote on Jan. 17 and of reducing the time for general debate to four days and debate under the five minute rule to seven days. With this idea in view some of the Democrats who desired to speak were approached and asked if they would agree to speak very briefly, with the privilege of extending their remarks in the record, but several of them threatened to vote against the bill unless they were given the opportunity to tell the home folks upon senators why they opposed it in part or as a whole. It is likely, therefore, that the time of the debate will be extended.

Our Attitude Toward Brazil.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The report current in Montevideo that President Peixoto was negotiating with United States Minister Thompson looking to the intervention of the United States fleet at Rio de Janeiro in accomplishing a settlement of Brazilian difficulties was denied by officials of the state and navy departments. The dispatch from Montevideo was shown to Secretary Herbert, and he said that if any such intervention was contemplated he was not informed. This of course is equivalent to saying that it is not contemplated.

In the state department it was asserted that no information of such a negotiation had been received by Minister Thompson and that no instructions had been sent him to take such action.

Correspondence was required for the report that the United States and German authorities had together taken action to prevent the rebel forces from again attacking the city of Rio or doing damage to it.

Postmasters Appointed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The following postmasters were appointed:

Massachusetts—Michael J. Griffin, Holyoke; Charles S. Ashley, New Bedford; Frederick L. Churchill, Plymouth; John W. Louden, Lovegun Guiney, Auburndale; Ellen Mehan, Brookfield; Abby E. Brown, Hyannis; Reynolds Ellis, Drake, Gardner; Morton Z. Woodward, Shelburne Falls.

Pennsylvania—George R. Nye, Ellwood City; John E. Malone, Lancaster; John R. Stauffner, Millersburg; Thomas Hall, Wellsboro.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The following fourth class postmasters were appointed:

Pennsylvania—Bainbridge, G. S. Elden Keppart, F. A. Rephart.

New York and New Jersey Bridge Bill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—A resolution introduced in the senate by Senator Gorman revealed the reason why the New York and New Jersey bridge bill, which passed both houses of congress before the adjournment previous to the holidays, was not sent to the president for Mr. Cleveland's signature at that time. It appears that in the hurry of reaching an agreement the conferees of the two houses failed to properly specify the lines of the bill which it was intended should be omitted.

Pennsylvania Democrats Objected.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The Pennsylvania Democratic delegation in the house was to have held a meeting to agree upon concerted action on the Wilson bill. Eight of the delegation were present at the hour set for the meeting, but as the other two Pennsylvania members were absent it was decided to postpone the meeting until this afternoon.

PORTER'S ECCENTRICITIES.

Kept His Son in the Cellar and Wrote Love Letters to Young Women.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Jan. 5.—The hearing as to the sanity of Timothy H. Porter, a wealthy paralytic of this place, whose relatives object to his marriage to Miss Mabel Earle of Bridgeport, was commenced in the probate court. The courtroom was crowded, and the evidence submitted was sensational.

Schuyler Merritt, a near relative, was the first witness. He said that Mr. Porter was very erratic; that he had written love letters of a flowery character to young ladies in Stamford, New Haven and Bridgeport; that Porter had erected a massage establishment in his cellar and had kept his son, a Yale student, in the cellar for days and injured his health thereby.

He also stated that just prior to the death of his wife Porter had made her sign a codicil to a will turning over $250,000 to him; that the wife objected, and when at last she consented to sign Dr. Geid, the attending physician, was obliged to guide the pen.

Lewis Porter, the son, declared that his mother had been killed through the brutality of the father. Judge Stoddard asked for a postponement of the case till Monday, which was granted. Among the witnesses to testify are Dr. Allan McLane Hamilton of New York, Dr. Stearns of Hartford and Dr. Porter of Bridgeport—all experts on sanity.

REQUESTED DOLE TO GO

The Provisional Government Invited to Step Out by Willis.

THE QUEEN AGREES TO PARDON ALL

A Reply Is Being Drafted by the Hawaiian Ex Power, and Preparations to Resist the Restoration Continue—The Extinct Augmented.

AUCKLAND, New Zealand, Jan. 5.—Advices from Honolulu to Dec. 23 have been received here by the steamer Alameda, which has just arrived from San Francisco. The officers of the vessel stated to an Associated Press correspondent that the excitement in Honolulu over the political situation was growing in intensity.

The provisional government was as firm as ever in its determination to maintain its position and was continuing its preparations to resist any effort that might be made to restore the monarchy. The members of the police force of the island had been notified that they would be expected to take arms in defense of the government, and a number of them had been dismissed from the service for refusing to obey this order.

Willis Makes His Request.

The officers further stated to the interviewer that the minister of the United States had written to the provisional government requesting that they surrender office, as the United States government had decided in favor of the restoration of the queen.

The minister, in his communication, informed the government that Lilinokalani had agreed to grant amnesty to all those who had taken part in the revolution, to ratify the obligations of the present government and to govern faithfully in accordance with the present constitution. The government was preparing a long reply to the minister.

The Commercial Advertiser of Honolulu, in an article supporting the government, declares that the United States congress has taken the matter out of President Cleveland's hands by calling for the papers in the Hawaiian correspondence, and asserts that the provisional government will not retire from power unless it is compelled to by force, and says that this is not likely to be employed.

Temporary repairs have been made to the Canadian and Australian Steamship company's steamer Miowera, which stranded at Honolulu last October, and she will proceed to San Francisco.

Advices by steamer from Apia, Samoa, say that the Samoan natives have shown signs of restlessness since the departure of the warships and that further trouble is feared.

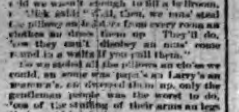
CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

THE ROYAL BALL.

An Interesting Description Written by One of the Participants.

Once it was a day we didn't have any thing to do, 'cause it was a holiday, an Alick said, "Well, we must do something, as I'm sick, so I have a state ball an' you go as you'll all dance." But the trouble was to find people, 'cos Charlie said we wasn't enough to fill a ballroom, so Alick said: "Well, then, we must stead to pillows and dolls from every room an clothes an' dress them up. They'll do, 'cos they can't disobey an mus' come round in a waltz if you call them."

So we needed all the pillows an' dolls we could, an some was papa's an Larry's an' women's, an dressed them up, only the gentleman people was the worst to do, 'cos of the stuffing of their arms an legs that would keep the wrong way an made



Alick cross an say they wanted to be grilled badly, an we had to tie on their skees, an the corners of the pillows that made their heads would stick out, 'cos really they had no heads, but Alick said this was a serious undertaking, an there was to be no laughing, an if there was it would be such flagrant disobedience of duty—it was a long word sir sounded like this.

Well, an this was the way we were. I was the Princess of Wales, wif my middle skirt on an flowers on my head—I lost my crown out of a window—an Ethel was the Duchess of Connaught an dressed like me, an Alick was the Prince of Wales 'cos then he said he could order every body an Claude was Sir Randolph Churchill, an Eddie was the Duke the king of Spain wif a crown on, an the twins was the Ickle Duke of Albany wif his Ickle sister, an we dressed three pillows to' them, 'cos they was small an they was the three fairies from fairyland.

An then the ball began, an it was love ly, only the people was so trembling I danced wif Sir Garnet Wolsey, who had papa's spare suit, but he was heavy an did flop so, an 'twas velly hard to get him round. His cap came off, an his feet would get in my way, an I sat him down. But the slab of Perdis was worse, fo' his crown wobbled off six times an at last got stepped on—that's the slab in the picture wif the crown on. Santa Claus' beard fled on—an Ethel danced wif the home sec-retary, an she said his feet dragged shock lardy all the time, an at las' he bent in two. An Alick danced wif Lady Moonlight, 'cos he said she is too ugly to be any-Lady real, an he said, "Once round 'till he sufficient of this!" An Claude had an oth'r lady, who he said was Lady Macbeth of Shakespeare, an the king of Spain snatched over top of the fairies, an his crown came off, an the twins kept on getting banged over an skratched their knees.

An it was being a beau-ti-ful ball, but then, as we were goin round the corner Lady Moonlight got velly doubley up in her waist, an Alick said, "She's fainted," only 'jus' as he was goin to give her just one more turn round her feet got heavy an swinged round his legs an flunged him onto the table an banged 'gainst Ethel an upset the home sec-re-tary right on his face, an I couldn't stop quick 'nough an cause plumpies on top of them wif fir

Garnet Wolsey, an there was a dreadful noise, 'fo' all the cakes an flngs mamma gived us was all spoilt, an in the middle of it all—

Nurse came in, an we all tried to hide. She was so cwoss an said: "Oh, my good soul! Mercy me! Whatever has come to the, gin'ral?" 'Cos she thought it was papa firs' of all, an then she got us out, an—an—we r whipped badly. Papa did it, 'cos of his pillows, an Alick had stuck his sword into some, 'cos they was soft, an now Alick says it's time we went an lived on a desert island, where we couldn't be bad an disobey anybody—so that's all 'bout our ball.—Evelyn Stuart Hardy in Gentlewoman.

Bound For Fairyland.

Two little maidens went hand in hand,
Trudging and toiling o'er fairyland;
They lost their way in a tangled dell
And came at last to a wishing well.

What did they wish for? They wished for home.
But gave their hand to a merry gnome.
Who led them on to a fairy bower,
And there they slept in a fitful flower.

Through fairy morrows each reigned a queen.
In jeweled crown and a robe of green;
But in the arbors, where roses grow,
Their kind nurse found them—they'd gone to sleep.

WHITE, of Plainfield.

Equal to the Emergency.

The kind hearted old gentleman watched the young woman seated next to him in the elevated train with interest. She held a magazine in her hand with its leaves uncut. She looked through the table of contents and raised the corners of the leaves so as to get a glimpse of the various illustrations. The old gentleman drew out his pocketknife hesitatingly. He opened it still more hesitatingly. The young woman seemed entirely oblivious of his acts and evident intentions, but their fellow passengers were able to arouse a great deal of interest in the proceeding. Finally, just as the old gentleman reached forward, extending his knife, the young woman dexterously drew out a hatpin and began cutting the leaves of her magazine. The old gentleman leaned back and delivered himself of a confidential aside to the man next to him:

"I have heard," he said, "that women can do anything with their hairpins and hatpins, but at any rate they'd need a knife to sharpen pencils with," at that moment the provoking young woman drew a pencil from her reticule, bit the wood off the top of it and made a note on the reticule she was reading. The car giggled, and the old gentleman began to read his paper with an injured air.—Boston Herald.

The Earlier Women.

From what is said on certain platforms it might be believed that until we, the women of today, came on the stage, no woman ever knew anything. Yet one of the most striking and appeal for the study of political economy, said: "The exigencies of our times demand that the social and economic conditions receive more and more attention. History is full of women who have ruled great countries and who have exercised a wisdom which showed an accurate knowledge of the subject. They are not called economists by history, but had they lived at this time they would have been given that just place."

Both secular and Christian history abound with eminent examples of women who were wise and successful leaders in the days of old. Medieval history likewise has its names of women who filled high places, and modern history has never been without bright illustrations of women's intelligence and influence.

In numerous particulars the advantages of today are superior to those of any earlier day, but it is far from true that superior advantages make all the difference in the world. The exceptions in divers fields of human life and action are too many for such a claim.—Minneapolis Housekeeper.

Wife More Than Queen.

The marriage of Queen Victoria, then only 20 years of age, to Prince Albert of Saxe-Gotha was, it is well known, a veritable love match, but for some years the royal love making was not at all to the liking her sense of dignity and her witty affection. The story goes that one day, after a little disagreement, her majesty having expressed herself in rather a despotic tone, the prince, whose manly self respect was smarting at her words, sought the seclusion of his own apartments, closing and locking the door after him.

In about five minutes some one knocked at his door.

"Who is it?" inquired the prince.

"It is I. Open to the queen of England!" haughtily responded her majesty.

There was no reply. After a long interval there came a gentle tapping and the low spoken words:

"It is I, Victoria, your wife!"

The Former's Wife.

Has the farmer's wife a right to any part of money? is a question which many a faithful, hard working and overworked woman tries to settle. She looks at the matter in this way: Had she gone out doing her own work under her maiden name and toiled early and late, without complaint, without a holiday, without perquisites of any kind, she would have earned money to keep her well clothed and no doubt have had many a trifle over for a luxury or for a savings bank account. But, having married, her board and a mere pittance for clothes, often grudgingly given in many cases, are considered quite enough. No true wife would accept spending money the giving of which would impoverish the husband, but the selfish indifference to the rights of a wife to share the profits which she has helped to earn in the case of much of the illness, depression and insanity which farmers' wives suffer to so great a degree. —New York Ledger.

Screens For the Nursery.

A pretty nursery screen is made by covering the panels with any solid background desired—black, red or brown—and pasting pictures cut from nursery tales upon them. One panel can be handsomely decorated with the figures that made last year's calendar such a thing of beauty, illustrating as many of them do in such lovely fashion the procession of the months.

The plethora indeed in these days of really exquisite specimens of the lithographer's art makes a disposition of them after they have survived their brief pronut in current weekly, monthly or annual a real problem to those who dislike to discard them wholly or keep them forever out of sight. Hospital scrap albums are a good solution of the dilemma up to a certain point, but there are more than enough in many households for even two or three of these.—New York Times.

Mrs. Simpson's Nerve.

The slender, delicate little wife of Jerry Simpson did something that seems well nigh incredible. During his first year in congress she resided in charge of the Kansas farm with her son, a boy not yet in his teens, and one man. All went well until some disease carried off 60 or more of the cattle. With an idea of saving something out of the catastrophe she told the hired man to remove the pelts. He flatly refused. She promptly dismissed him. Then in spite of the cold, with no help save that of her son, with her own hands she removed every one of those 60 pelts!—St. Louis Republic.

Little Nelly, while at the seashore with her mother, was very fond of making calls upon some ladies in a neighboring cottage, and the frequency with which she would bring home little presents of cards and pictures, etc., led her mother to fear that she might be in the habit of asking for these things. She therefore gave the child strict orders never to do such a thing. The next day Nellie returned from her visit laden down with pretty colored cards of various sorts, and when her mother called her and questioned her severely if she had asked for these things she replied, with conscious virtue:

"No, mother dear. You told me I must never ask for things, so I just took 'em."—Harper's Bazar.

BOROUGH COUNCIL.

THE FIRST REGULAR MEETING FOR 1894.

Attacking the North Plainfield Electric Light Company.—The Alleged Reasons.—What is Said Pro and Con.—$1,700 Contributed for Improving Grove street.

The first meeting in 1894 of the borough Council was held last night. It was a long session, the meeting being prolonged by a discussion on the question of renewing the lighting contract with the Edison Company. The meeting was presided over by Mayor Saunders. Those present were Councilmen Fountain, Hummer, Howell, Needham and Neal. Councilmen Hoagland was absent. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The property owners on Westervelt avenue petitioned for a sidewalk in front of Mr. Merritt's place.

A petition was read from the residents of Brook avenue for a sidewalk on the Brook avenue side of the late Mr. Curtis place.

Both the above petitions were referred to the Street Committee.

Lights were petitioned for on Manning avenue, between Somerset and Warren streets, and on Race street, between Warren street and the Electric Light Station. The matter was referred to the Committee on Lights with power.

Mr. E. H. Leland petitioned for the appointment as Night Marshal. The petition was referred to the Committee on Marshals.

The following bills were ordered paid:

S. A. Brock	7.64
P. M. French	12.70
B. F. Gavin	25.00
J. A. Thickstun	67.55
A. Thorn	4.35
Davis and Herrick	25.00
P. Scudder	5.00
Z. Wilson	50.00
J. Lyons	40.23
C. Brock	4.94
Fond Machine Tool Company	71.40
W. Keenan	2.00
S. Moore	2.25
W. N. Pangborn	60.00
W. N. Pangborn	14.25
P. Kellegher	10.00
J. Vetterlein	20.00
Edison Electric Light Company	380.00
A. M. Griffen	8.12
J. F. Wilson	43.32
M. Earll	10.75

Borough Counsel Charles A. Reed's opinion in regard to the question of the borough's right to raise funds by appropriation for work on Grove street was read, showing that the borough could not do so legally unless the petition was made for the work by the property owner, and then only after passing an ordinance ordering the work to be done.

The reading gave rise to a chance to express themselves on the matter. The opinion also stated that there was no legal objection the work being done, provided the expenses were contributed.

Mr. Fountain reported that he had received a statement from the Edison Electric Light Company, whereby it agreed to furnish light to the borough for a period of one, two or three years, at $17 per lamp per year. The report was received and filed.

The Tax Collector's report, showing that during the year $8,576.46 had been collected, was received and filed.

Borough Magistrate Crossley's report was received and filed.

Mr. Needham, of the Sewerage Committee, reported that the Committee had been delayed by the election of a new committee on sewerage in the Plainfield Council.

Mr. Fountain reported that lights had been placed on Willow, West End and Rockview avenue.

The Committee on Marshals reported that Mr. Conrad Brokl had been removed as night marshal and that Mr. Lyon had been appointed in his place.

A resolution was offered by Mr. Fountain authorizing the Council to enter into a new contract with the Edison Electric Light Company for three years at $17 per light per year.

Then the discussion began. Mr. Howell said he thought figures should be obtained from other companies and bids be called for.

He said the lights were very poor during the past year, as it was almost impossible to see some of them at times.

Mayor Saunders called Mr. Hummer to the chair, while he took the floor to express his views. He said:

"The borough had an excellent contract last year and that it was not lived up to by the company was the Council's fault in not enforcing its terms. This Council has not done its duty in looking out for the borough's interest in regard to the lights. My only objection to the passing of this resolution is the fact that we have received no bids from any other source. The question of whether or not the plant is in the borough or not has nothing at all to do with the matter. We are here in the interest of the tax-payer and if we can get light from the city of Plainfield, and I am informed on good authority that we can, for $16 per light it is our duty to do so in the interest of the tax-payer. This would be a saving of $1 per light per year, or $250, to the borough. It makes no difference whether the companies are composed of Democrats or Republicans, we must consider the price.

Mr. Needham:—"There is another item to consider besides price. If we let another company enter the borough it would necessitate the placing of another set of poles and wires in the borough. It isn't likely that two sets of poles and wires along our streets would be desirable. The price is very reasonable. In fact would they charge $20 per light."

Mr. Howell:—"I consider it my religious duty to save money for the tax-payers and if we can get cheaper light I am in favor of it."

Mayor Saunders: "I don't want to support a monopoly, and is not asking for bids that is what we would be doing."

Mr. Fountain:—I have not been a resident of the borough for a very long period, but I was told that a few years ago when the Plainfield company was asked to light the borough they agreed to do so provided North Plainfield would subscribe for $6,000 of stock. This is the reason the borough company was started. When you talk of monopolies I think we will be supporting one when we begin a contract with a company which is, I am told, owned by the men who control the street railway, the gas company and the water company. The North Plainfield company stepped in at a time when we most needed it. If it had not been established we would have to pay a much higher price for light to a monopoly that would have us in its control."

Mr. Howell then said, with consent, asked what the borough would have to taxes if the Edison Company was forced out of existence.

Mayor Saunders replied that it was not a matter of forcing any one out of business, but whether or not the borough could secure light at a less price. Mr. Saunders offered an amendment to Mr. Fountain's resolution, which provided for the giving out of the contract if the Edison Company would agree to furnish light at $16 per lamp."

Before the amendment was voted upon, Mr. Cooley of the company was asked if he could furnish light for the borough at $16 per lamp.

Mr. Cooley said he would furnish light as near as the Council would agree to place the lamps as thickly as they are in the city, that is on every other pole. Mr. Cooley also stated that it cost considerable to cart its coal. The carting, he said, was done by residents of the borough. The company did not go outside to get its carting done.

Mr. L. B. Woolston, as a fireman, asked what would be done with the steam fire gong, which had been placed on the electric light station, if the company was forced out of business. He said before an alarm could be given thousands of dollars of damage might be done by fire.

Mayor Saunders said that such remarks were out of order.

Mr. Cooley said the company had not been protected as if deserved to be. Their lamps had been broken at a fearful rate. In one month 20 lamps had been broken. This was a great expense to the company.

Mr. Fountain said if the borough really wanted economy, the Council could buy the electric light plant and furnish its own light. The money from the commercial lighting would more than defray the expenses and the borough would get its light at about one third less than at present.

He said the borough could issue bonds for $40,000 at five per cent. to buy the plant.

The mayor said the Council was not in the electric business at present.

Mr. Hegeman:—"As a matter of business, Mr. Mayor, is the argument of a saving of 1c per lamp a sound one? If you give the Plainfield Company a contract for three years, what will happen at the end of that time. Will we get our light at the end of that time as cheap as now? The borough company would no doubt be out of the way by that time, and the result would be we would have to pay whatever they saw fit to charge. I, as a tax payer, think we ought to look ahead.

"I'll warrant the responsibility will be off of your shoulders. I ask that the matter be looked into with common sense."

After Mr. Moon and Mr. Needham had spoken upon the question a vote was taken on the Mayor's amendment which was lost by a tie vote and which the casting vote given provided the Edison Co. would furnish light for $16. The amendment was lost by the following vote:

No:—Mr. Fountain, Hummer, Neal, and Needham.

Yea—Mr. Howell.

The original motion to give out the contract was then voted upon and lost.

A motion was carried authorizing the Committee on Fire, Water and Lamps to invite bids for the lighting of the borough, as follows:

Yea—Messrs. Fountain, Howell and Neal.

No—Messrs. Hummer and Needham.

This settled the electric light matter for the present.

Resolutions were adopted, authorizing the drawing of warrants for the following notes: Coe for $600, due Dec. 27; another for $1,000, due Jan. 15; and still another for $300, due Jan. 8.

Mr. Needham offered a resolution, which was adopted, stating that it was the sense of the Council that the license fee for saloons in the borough should be increased to $250. A copy of the resolution was ordered sent to the Excise Commissioners.

As the borough had a legal right to have Grove street improved provide d the expense was borne by citizens, a resolution was adopted authorizing the work to be done as Mayor Saunders stated that the property had raised $1,750 for the work, as follows:

Mr. J. F. Wilson	$500.00
Dr. Cooley	100.00
Mr. J. S. Perrine	100.00
Mr. Emerson	50.00
Smalley Bros., carts and horses	300.00
Amount of contributions in the end of the unemployed	670.00
Total	$1,700.00

Mayor Saunders said the work would would be started at once.

One resolution of Mr. Needham, an appropriation of $300, who made for the cleaning out of a ditch in the vicinity of Harrison and Wilson avenues, to keep the water from washing gullies in the above avenues.

Mayor Saunders appointed Messrs. Andrew Lore, sr., and Frank Curtis to serve on the Board of Health from Jan. 15, for four years.

Mr. Needham offered a resolution, which was adopted, authorizing the publishing of the sidewalk ordinance only in each of the Plainfield daily papers.

A sidewalk was ordered laid on Manning avenue, for 200 feet east of Westervelt avenue.

Council adjourned.

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Coles died this morning, after a lingering illness, at her home on Warren street. She was 76 years old. She formerly lived on Grandview avenue. The funeral services will be held Monday afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock.

The Rev. Arthur Crane, the Evangelist, who is now a resident of our city, has been invited to take part in the great Union Revival Campaign in Brooklyn inaugurated by Rev. A. C. Wixon. He will preach every evening next week in the Green Avenue Baptist church.

Miss Trypheua Mattox, of Webster place, was very agreeably surprised last evening by about thirty young people. The evening was spent in dancing, after which a collation was served and the party returned home in the early morning with many pleasant thoughts of the evening's entertainment.

Mr. Augustus Elster died yesterday afternoon at his home on Harmony street. He was taken with the grip a week ago Thursday, and had to give up work and go home. For about 14 years he had been employed by Mr. L. M. French as a woodworker in his carriage manufactory. Wednesday Mr. Elster was out of doors, comfortably covered. He was taken with a relapse, which proved fatal. A wife and three children survive him. His father and mother live at Pilawood.

A warrant was issued for Kouzleman's arrest, and it was served last night by Constable Taynor, and Kouzleman was locked up. Kouzleman was tried this morning, and held in the sum of $200 to pay $5 per week to his wife.

Who'll Be the Next?

And now rumor has it that ex-letter carrier Joseph Shepard is to be the next Postmaster. A few weeks ago it lay between Holdrid and Shepard, but it is reported that a delegation of prominent Democrats waited on Congressman Dunn and said if he gave it to Holdrid with of his "combine" record, they were done with him. But what about Stover, whom the leaders endorsed to a sure thing.

Death of Mr. Isaac Scribner.

Mr. Isaac Scribner of Maple avenue died Thursday evening. Mr. Scribner was a familiar figure about Plainfield, for when he has been actively engaged in the brick business from 1865, when he first came here until a few years ago, when, on account of his failing health and his age—he was 69 at the time of his decision—retired, his son, Mr. S. B Scribner continuing the business for some time afterward.

Death was caused suddenly by congestion of the lungs.

A full account of the life of Mr. Scribner as told by himself to a News reporter, has already appeared within a few years in The News, from which it appears that he was born March 1, 1824, in Greene Co., N. Y. He was educated in the public schools there, and settled in Newark, where at the age of 16 he went into the brick business, as which he followed for a time completed.

In 1865, he was married to Miss Caroline A Mount, of Morristown, who, with a son, Mr. S. B. Scribner, and a daughter, Mrs. John Randolph, survive him.

For two years he continued in business at Newark, and in 1867 came west to Baltimore, Md., and engaged in business. In 1869 he made his home in Baltimore, and removed to Petersburg, Va., where he re-engaged in the same line and continued until the outbreak of the rebellion, in 1885, when on account his strong Union sentiments he had to remove North. After a brief visit to Baltimore again, he located in this vicinity, in 1866, and started a brick yard in North Plainfield. He furnished the brick used in most of the brick houses here until a few years ago.

He was a member of the First Baptist church, and a consistent Christian in all his dealings, and was much liked by all who knew him.

The funeral services will be held Monday afternoon, at 2 o'clock. The remains will be interred in Mt. Pleasant Cemetery, Newark, Tuesday.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Remedy for the Present Muddle.

We are sure it would be a good idea to have the Tariff questions —now before Congress and some that are not— referred to the people for decision by a popular vote at a special election on the measures apart from men and parties.

Their decision would help Congress to decide matters quickly and give the people what they want, whether it be Free Trade, as the majority declared in favor of at the Presidential election in 1892 when they voted the Democrats into power, or the Wilson Compromise which is neither Free Trade nor Protection, or to leave the McKinley tariff alone, and then to stop Tariff agitation altogether for a period of say ten years, unless the people by a similar Referendum demand it.

This is nothing more in spirit than the Referendum of the Swiss Republic of a thousand years, probably the most perfect Republican form of government in the World.

The country is at present in great distress because of the Tariff agitation, in Congress, and is likely to continue so during the present year unless some such remedy as we suggest is applied to ascertain which measure the people will have the most confidence in, and then to give them that without delay.

The merchant orders his goods at this time usually for the year; but the present tariff muddle makes him afraid to give his orders.

Hence the factories must remain idle and the employees continue to suffer from want.

These employees are the merchants mainstay, and when they have no work he has no business.

The farmer can get no prices for his products such as he could get when the people are prosperous and the demands are greater.

In fact we are all as the spokes of a wheel: we must all move together to make the wheel of prosperity go around.

Let President Cleveland call for such an election as we suggest. Let Congress act immediately on the people's verdict and we will soon have good times and plenty of them.

Give us the Referendum.

What Nobody Wants to Do.

While the large cities are feeding thousands of unemployed men and women this winter, there are two classes of employers who have tried vainly during the summer and autumn months to get suitable help. These are the farmer and housekeeper. Farm labor appears to be something the average man will not perform. General housework appears to be something the average woman will not do. The western farmer annually loses part of his crop for want of help to gather it. The eastern housekeeper wears her life out in the struggle to get somebody to do her kitchen work.

There must be something intrinsically disagreeable in these two occupations. The fact that they are shunned almost universally shows perhaps that in the march of modern improvements both the household and farm have fallen behind. The hours of service are severely long in both; the pay is small—smaller relatively for the farmhand than the hired girl. A glimpse, too, into the stuffy, dark hole which is called the hired girl's room in some city houses will show one reason why girls will not do housework.

There must be a revolution in both occupations, so that farm labor and domestic service shall be brought up with the times. Perhaps co-operative housekeeping will solve the riddle for the home; perhaps the vigorous use of his brains for the next few years will solve it for the farmer. At any rate it will help some if both the classes of employers mentioned will remember in the treatment of their help always to do as they would be done by.

A ROW ON IN HONOLULU

Official News Is Brought by the Cutter Corwin.

INFORMATION CLOSELY GUARDED.

Great Excitement at Mare Island Navy Yard Caused by Sudden Orders From Washington—Warships Coaling Up In a Hurry—Willis Sent Cipher Dispatches.

VALLEJO, Cal., Jan. 6.—The news of the arrival of the United States steamer Corwin from Honolulu, which instead of stopping at San Francisco steamed ostensibly for the Mare Island navy yard, has created a ripple of excitement which has not been equaled here in many years. As officer in the executive ranks said: "If the Corwin comes to Mare Island direct, you may depend upon it that the situation in Honolulu is serious. It is possible that Admiral Irwin may order the Corwin to deliver his dispatch at the government telegraph office, in which case he would send an officer ashore at the Presidio Angle island or some here."

Several messages were received here from Washington, each addressed to Commander C. E. Clark, with the words: "Admission "Rush." The dispatches were immediately sent over to the navy yard and delivered.

Half an hour later Commander Clark's cutter was sailed away, and Lieutenant Wadsen, executive of the Mohican, was hurried ashore, proceeding direct to the telegraph office, where he deposited several dispatches, which were immediately rushed to their destination.

Word has just been received here that preparations are being made to load nearly 100 tons of coal on the ship's deck. This information is reliable, and it is thought that the dispatches are in response to those brought by the Corwin.

The captain of the steamer Sunol, which arrived here from San Francisco, reports that the revenue cutter Corwin is anchored off Red rock, opposite San Quentin. The officers at Mare island are in a great state of excitement. They firmly believe that there has been trouble at Honolulu and look for interesting developments.

All hands on the Corwin had evidently received the strictest injunctions as to silence on that point, and no intelligence could at first be got out of anybody. Finally a hint of the news was given by one of the crew, who said over the side to a reporter:

"There is a big row on down in Honolulu."

Afterward, in answer to a question, Captain Munger shouted:

"The queen had not been put back on the throne when we left, but she may be there now all the same."

Cipher Dispatches From Willis.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The state department received in cipher form dispatches forwarded from Minister Willis to the authorities in Oahu by the revenue cutter Corwin, which arrived at San Francisco on Friday. The officials of the department refuse absolutely to make any statement regarding the contents of the advices received and are even reticent in acknowledging that they have yet secured any telegraphic news since the Corwin reached San Francisco.

The dispatches were immediately translated on receipt at the department and has declined to give the purport of their advices, but it is now generally accepted that they fully confirm the cable received from Auckland.

Since the receipt of this cablegram from Auckland those who are best informed on the Hawaiian situation have been carefully studying Minister Willis' latest instructions and are inclined more strongly to believe that the situation at Honolulu is exactly as reported in the news from Auckland.

A theory which gains most support is based on the belief that the last instructions sent to Minister Willis contemplated further action by the administration.

Think the Queen Accepted.

It is thought that the queen, finally seeing that her cause would be lost unless she accepted the conditions imposed by Minister Willis for her restoration, accepted them as contained in his published instructions and notified him that she would grant amnesty to members of the provisional government if she again became queen. Minister Willis thereupon carried out his instructions and notified President Dole that it was the desire of the United States government that the provisional government should surrender in favor of Lilioukalani. President Dole promptly refused to accede to this request.

The advices sent at this time to time by Minister Thurston to President Dole no doubt strengthened the provisional government in the belief that the arrival of Mr. Thurston at Honolulu probably occurred before Mr. Willis asked President Dole to surrender.

His presence, with his thorough acquaintance of the public sentiment in this country on the Hawaiian question, has cement ed the determination of the provisional government to hold out against every attempt toward the restoration of the queen.

It can be stated definitely that the Corwin sailed from Honolulu on the 23rd of December, which is one day later than the Alameda departed. The cable stated that Mr. Dole was preparing a statement, and it is believed now that this statement was his reply to the request of Minister Willis to surrender. The reply having been completed and forwarded to Mr. Willis the next day, the latter immediately dispatched it to this country by the Corwin.

Secretary Gresham said that he would receive Minister Willis' report by mail and that it would probably reach here next Wednesday evening. It is believed that this mailed document is the reply of President Dole to Minister Willis.

No One Allowed on the Corwin.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 6.—The United States revenue cutter Corwin has reached here from Honolulu. The Corwin's commander refused to give any information and declined to allow a messenger from the Merchants' Exchange to board the vessel. The Corwin avoided the San Francisco side of the bay and proceeded on her way to Mare Island navy yard.

Officers, presumably having the government dispatches, were landed in a small boat near the Presidio military reservation west of San Francisco. The officers of the cutter absolutely refused to hold any communication with any one.

Big Sugar Failure In Italy.

TRIESTE, Jan. 6.—The banking house of Perry & Bonay at Salzano, in northern Italy, has failed for 8,000,000 francs. Signor Perry has committed suicide.

Prince Napoleon Dead.

COPENHAGEN, N. H., Jan. 6.—Ex-State Treasurer Peter Nielsen died at the house of his daughter here.

THE SIERRA LEONE AFFAIR.

The French Commander Attacked the British Frontier Station.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 6.—Elder, Dempster & Co. received a telegram concerning the Sierra Leone affair to the following effect: The French by surprise attacked the British station at Waringi. Inspector General Lendy was at one time supposed to be besieged in by natives at Karnako, and the expedition was sent to his relief. It appears that the men attacked by the French force were not under Inspector General Lendy, unless the expedition had joined him when it reached Karnako.

Inspector General Lendy was really in charge of the recently organized frontier force. When the French entered and took Heramakonah, said to be an English town, Lendy was sent up with the frontier police and staid at the English town of Falaba, relieving the small garrison there. Very conflicting reports have since been received both regarding his whereabouts and his condition.

The Sierra Leone expedition started three weeks ago and was under the command of Colonel Ellis. The expedition consisted of the 1st battalion of the West India regiment and 120 of the frontier police. The French authorities on the frontier were notified of the dispatch of the British expedition, so that the French forces were also engaged in punishing the marauding Sofas under Ahmay Samadou, a powerful chieftain, whose territory extended both the French and English territories.

The British were operating against a portion of the chief's force which had been driven into the British sphere by a French force of Senegalese, commanded by French officers.

The collision between the British and French forces was due to the fact that the French commander, not expecting to find the British so far north, mistook them for Sofas and opened fire upon them. In addition to Inspector General Lendy of the frontier police Messrs. Liston and Roughton, British officers, and one sergeant and 20 men of the British force were killed.

The Schooner's Crew Safe.

BOSTON, Jan. 6.—A cablegram received in Millbridge, Me., from Captain William Pickett of the wrecked schooner Mary Lynchburner announces the safe arrival at some European port of himself and all the crew. The Lynchburner was in collision with an unknown ship at the time mentioned and was damaged so seriously that the crew had to abandon her.

Three Prominent Men Injured.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Jan. 6.—A carriage in which were riding Lieutenant Jacques, chief of ordnance at the Bethlehem iron works; Baron Von Dreiber, who had charge of the Krupp gun exhibition at the World's fair, and Manuel White of the Bethlehem iron company, was upset in a runaway here, and all were seriously injured.

Europe Still Shivering.

LONDON, Jan. 6.—There has been a heavy snowstorm in Ireland and Scotland, and traffic of all kinds is delayed. A heavy gale is blowing on the east coast of England. In the south of England and France there is an indication of a change to milder weather. In the south of Germany the weather is still severe.

Known Farmers In Luck.

TOPEKA, Jan. 6.—A discovery just made in Ford and adjoining counties will be of incalculable benefit to the farmers of that section. A large body of artesian water flows under the whole section, requiring only an opening to permit it to gush out on the surface in great abundance.

Made an Unfortunate Discovery.

BARROWCLIFFE CASE.

In Delirium the Young Woman Moans "Harry."

MAY BE A CLEW TO THE CRIMINAL.

Jersey City Police Are All at Sea, but Think Her Assailant Was a Friend and Not a Tramp—Robbery Not Believed to Have Been the Motive.

JERSEY CITY, Jan. 6.—Superintendent Smith is now of the opinion that Miss Barrowcliffe was assaulted by a person with whom she was acquainted. Dr. Varick is of the same opinion. He feels certain that it was not a tramp who attacked her. When he asked her if she knew who struck her, she made no reply and Sears crying, George Ennis, the tramp who was arrested on account of statements made by Kremm that he was in the house at the time of the outrage, was discharged. As regards Ormon, who was arrested in Brooklyn, Superintendent Smith says that he has little suspicion of his guilt.

Either in delirium or while talking in her sleep Miss Barrowcliffe uttered a name which her attendants believe to be that of her mysterious assailant of a week ago. It was the single word "Harry."

One of the special nurses on guard in Miss Barrowcliffe's room in the Jersey City hospital heard the sick girl stirring uneasily in her bed. Promptly, in a low, appealing voice, Miss Barrowcliffe said: "Harry! Oh, God, Harry!" There was a moment's silence, broken by a moan from the bed and a somewhat louder repetition of the name "Harry." The nurse approached the bed and found Miss Barrowcliffe apparently wide awake and weeping silently. She spoke no more until House Physician Varick, followed her to answer a few last questions.

Asked Her About Harry.

Dr. Varick could not, however, draw from her any admission regarding the identity of the brute who left her for dead in the vacant lot at Marion. Finally he asked, "Who is Harry?" The girl instantly covered her head with the bed clothing and cried pitifully. It is now for the police to find out the answer to Dr. Varick's question.

Late Thursday night Detective Dalton and Cap ain Lang arrested a young man who was known to have been an admirer of Miss Barrowcliffe. The superintendent after an hour's conversation with the prisoner permitted him to go free. He claims to have obtained valuable information from the young man.

"Up to date," said Superintendent Smith, "I have discovered nothing save what confirms me in my opinion that the assault was committed by a friend of the unfortunate girl. We hope to catch him in a very short time. Miss Barrowcliffe's mother has made no further trips to Jersey City. I do not know the name by which the former Mrs. Barrowcliffe goes in Brooklyn."

Not an Ordinary Robbery.

A careful consideration of the case has led the police to believe that robbery was not the motive which led to the crime. If the assailant was a tramp why did not know Miss Barrowcliffe, the robbery was incidental.

If, as the police believe, the attack was made by a man with whom she was acquainted, the robbery was only an attempt to lessen the possibility of detection.

Warden Osborne made public some new facts regarding Miss Barrowcliffe's mother, who found the daughter she supposed dead long ago through the publicity given the case. It seems that Mrs. Barrowcliffe's guarded statement to the warden that she had some suspicion that the story of her daughter's death was untrue. When she visited the hospital Mrs. Barrowcliffe declined to give her address, but said she would learn her daughter's condition from the newspapers. She said she would not return to the hospital for some days unless the patient's illness assumed a more serious phase.

POPULIST FORCE FELT.

They Held the Balance of Power In the House.

DEMOCRATS STILL LACK A QUORUM.

The Causes of Democratic Dissatisfied With the Wilson Tariff Bill Passed a Resolution to Push on the Debate—Crisp Lectured the Insurgents.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The strong arm of the committee on rules was invoked in the house to break down the obstruction in the path of the tariff debate. An ironclad order was brought in setting out the programme for the tariff debate and fixing Jan. 25 as the day for taking the final vote.

This resulted only in sidetracking Mr. Boutelle and his Hawaiian resolution, as when the vote came to be taken on the adoption of the order the Democrats lacked nine votes of a quorum. At least 20 Democrats at the capitol either absented themselves from the hall or refused to answer to their names when called.

For four hours the Democratic leaders tried with roll call after roll call to bring their men into line, but instead of gaining they lost votes on each successive roll call. The Populists with the exception of Mr. Bell of Colorado, also declined to aid the Democrats to get the tariff bill before the house, giving as the reason for their action the short limit it was proposed to set on the debate. Their votes would have made a quorum. The proceedings are therefore of additional importance as marking the first time in the history of either branch of congress since the organization of the third party that its members have held the balance of power.

Finally, it having become manifest that a Democratic quorum could not be secured, General Catchings moved an adjournment, which was taken amid the cheers of the Republicans.

The Populists Recognized.

Speaker Crisp and a number of the Democratic leaders determined during the fight in the house, when it became evident that the Populist votes would be sufficient to make a quorum, to give the third party recognition as a party during the progress of debate if its members would agree to vote. A proposition was formally submitted to Representative Jerry Simpson of Kansas that the Populists should have three hours during the afternoon and two hours during the evening for debate as long as the general tariff discussion lasted.

Mr. Simpson conferred with his associates, and they were greatly pleased that for the first time in the history of their organization they had received a tender of actual recognition as a party on the floor of congress. It was decided, however, not to accept the proposition, as the Populists believed that the five days allowed under the rule for general debate was entirely insufficient for a full presentation of the tariff question.

Representative Burrows outlined the parliamentary attitude of the Republican side in the opening session to-day on the tariff bill. "It is the first positive step in opposition to the Wilson bill," said he. "No exact plan of opposition has been determined on as far as the Republicans are concerned, as the lines of opposition will have to be shaped to each forward movement of the friends of the bill as it develops." For the present the failure to vote is a protest against the unjust rule which the majority seek to pass by which general debate is limited to five days. This rule, if passed, will limit the general debate on this great measure, involving vast economic principles and industrial interests, to three days of next week. We protest at this juncture, and we will continue to protest at each successive stage of the contest."

Crisp Captured the Caucus.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The Democratic caucus met in the hall of the house of representatives at 8 o'clock last night to consider the Wilson tariff bill. There was a good attendance. Judge Holman was chairman and Mr. Alderson secretary of the caucus. There were 147 Democrats in attendance when the proceedings began. There are 216 Democrats in the house, and a majority therefore is 108. The attendance indicated that in the neighborhood of 40 who are in the city remained away. As soon as the roll had been called it was decided to limit the speeches to five minutes each. General Wheeler, who was one of the prime movers in the caucus project, then took the floor and made a vigorous speech against the proposition to place coal and iron ore on the free list. Speaker Crisp followed. He offered a resolution declaring that it was the duty of every Democrat to vote for the consideration of the tariff bill, and also that it was the duty of all Democrats to attend the sessions of the house and maintain a quorum until the tariff bill is disposed of.

In a ringing speech the speaker took occasion rather sharply to reprimand Democrats who had been responsible for the inaction of the house during the past three days. These were several other speakers.

The caucus lasted for two hours only. Practically nothing was accomplished. Only two amendments looking to a change of the bill were finally proposed, both relating to the sugar tax, but neither of them was voted on.

The only result of the caucus was the strengthening of the hands of those favoring the bill by the passage of the resolution offered by Speaker Crisp declaring it to be the duty of Democrats to vote to consider the bill. This resolution was made the peg on which those opposed to certain features of the bill hung their objections. Most of their opposition was directed against the income tax, and its opponents gained a slight victory in an additional allowance of two days for general debate should this proposition be presented by the committee. The caucus was much more harmonious than was expected.

Crisis at Rio Janeiro.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—An important conference on the Brazilian situation was held at the navy department between Secretaries Gresham and Herbert and Attorney General Olney. Commodore Ramsay, chief of the bureau of navigation, was also present as an expert in naval matters. The conference was the result of the receipt of a number of telegrams from Captain Picking, showing that a crisis at Rio was imminent and asking for instructions. The conference lasted over an hour. At its conclusion a report was made to President Cleveland, and soon thereafter the president wrote a long and carefully prepared series of directions for Captain Picking, which were immediately forwarded in cipher to Rio.

A Mean Practical Joke.

When Colonel Singleton was a candidate for congress from one of the hill districts of Arkansas he had a rich experience. He soon became the butt of his opponents' jokes, and as there were 16 aspirants for the position his life was an exaggerated burden. Once when the candidates on horseback were going to meet by appointment in oratorical contest Singleton fell behind, determining no longer to submit to their raillery. The party passed out of sight, leaving the disconsolate candidate to his own reflections. A slight rain had fallen, and when the party crossed a broad, shallow creek one young fellow conceived the idea of a joke.

"Suppose," said he, "that we take off our coats and wait until Singleton comes in sight, when we will put them on, giving to him the impression that the creek is deep. We'll not say anything to him, and he will think that we want him to plunge into the water."

The idea was acted on. Pretty soon Singleton came along.

"That's all right," he yelled, when he saw the men hurriedly putting on their coats. "I understand you. Want me to get wet, eh?"

He dismounted, and although the day was fearfully cold he took off his clothes, mounted and cheerfully guided his horse, he entered the stream. The water was not more than six inches deep, and when he perceived the cruel joke he stood up in his stirrups and began to swear, when his clothes fell into the water and began to float away. In attempting to reach over and regain them he fell and his horse, staggering, stepped on him. His rage was terrific, and when he arrayed himself in his garments he borrowed a gun at a neighboring house and chased his political opponents 15 miles, totally forgetting his appointment to speak.—Exchange.

Ostracized.

Her despairing glances rested upon the limitless sea that compassed her about.

"Oh, cruel fate!" she moaned.

She drew her garments more closely about her and shivered.

"Alone, what have I to live for?"

Woe was in every accent of her voice.

"No more may I know human society."

Her glances rested, as has been stated, upon the limitless sea, but her thoughts were elsewhere.

In bitterness she was wondering what on earth possessed her to be vaccinated on the arm anyway.

Remarking to herself that it made her mad enough to eat shingle nails, she wended her way homeward.—Detroit News-Tribune.

BURGLARS IN A TOMB.

Ghoulish Thieves Break Open a Vault to Steal Jewelry.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 6.—The residents in the vicinity of the cemetery at Providence were startled by the report of a loud explosion. It was soon discovered that an attempt had been made to enter the family vault of Colonel E. E. Norton. Holes had been drilled in the air and dynamite exploded, shattering the masonry. The iron door was then pried open with crowbars. The object of the ghouls was to secure the valuable jewelry on the body of Colonel Norton's wife, who was recently buried.

The thieves were frightened away before they had time to secure the jewels. The smoke lay on the floor, where the robbers had left it, with the glass broken, and beside it lay the bars and other implements of the robbers. There is no clew to their identity. The appearance of the vault indicates that the work was that of professionals.

DRAWING A CROWD.

A Rat In a Cage Causes a Commotion In Detroit.

A boy 10 years old suddenly appeared on Monroe avenue, near Randolph street, the other forenoon with a stunted bull dog in his hand. The trap contained a rat—an old veteran—who had probably eaten 20 times his weight in Michigan cheese. For years and years he had been too fly for those who sought his destruction, but the pitcher had gone to the well once too often. He was squealing and squirming about, but there was no one to pity. The boy had scarcely gained the street when there was a rush for him, and men and boys were heard shouting:

"He's got a rat!"

"Lemme git my dog!"

"Good gracious, what a whopper!"

"Don't let him git away!"

The man who knows all about rats was there, of course. Also the man who has made the killing of rats a specialty for his life. They worked their way to the front.

"You don't want to fool with that rat," cautioned the first.

"I think I know my business," blandly replied the second.

"So do I."

"Don't interfere with me."

Three or four dogs were brought into the crowd. The man who is always willing to lose the job also got off a street car and elbowed his way in to the front.

"What's all this fuss about? A rat, eh! Now, then, everybody stand back. Gimme that trap!"

The boy demurred. It was his trap and his rat. He felt that he ought to be consulted.

"Lem'me go, Gallagher!" yelled one of the crowd.

"Where's your rat?"

"Somebody hit the man with a red neckti."

A policeman now appeared. He began to use his official elbows to open a path for his body, but the crowd resented the action and began to hustle him until he threatened to collar some one. Meanwhile the two men who knew all about rats were fawning with the man who wanted to lose the job, and the boy was declaring that his brother would lick the man who stole his rat.

"You're a liar!"

"Hit him one!"

"Look out for the cop!"

The crowd began to circle around, and the boy fell down and lost his trap. Some one picked it up and shook the rat out, and dogs and men and boys were all mixed up and falling over each other. In the confusion the rat got away into the sewer, the policeman rapped three men on the back with his club and the crowd dissolved, leaving about a dozen hats kicking around on the battleground. Then a lot of people shook their fists in the air and another lot called somebody a liar, and everybody went away mad and threatening to get even if it took him a whole year.—Detroit Free Press.

A Use For the Big Stamps.

People sometimes hear odd things on the street cars.

The other day a sweet young thing in seal furs said to a sweet young thing in dark green:

"Alice, is it true that the Columbian stamps will not be used after this year?"

"That is what I understand," replied the sweet young thing in dark green.

"I'm so sorry."

"Why?"

"You know Frank Jimson, don't you?"

"Of course. He went away to college last September."

"Well, we corresponded with each other. Did you know that?"

"No. Isn't that nice?"

"Yes, but mamma permitted the correspondence only on condition that she read the letters. We are so young, you know, and she is dreadfully afraid we'll write love letters to each other."

"What have the Columbian stamps to do with it?"

"Just this: We write our love messages on the envelopes and paste the stamps over them. The stamps are easily soaked off, you know, and I would be surprised how much we can put under a Columbian stamp when we write a real small hand."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

She Is Happy.

She is one of those very matter of fact girls.

"How are you getting along with your music?" asked the young man, who was calling on her.

"Well," she answered, "of course it wouldn't be proper for me to compliment myself. But some of the neighbors have told me that they have staid awake at night for hours listening to my playing."

And she smiled in a self approving way that was sweet to behold.—Washington Star.

A Warning.

TEN BIG BACHELORS.

SHOW TEN NOT VERY LITTLE MARRIED MEN HOW TO BOWL.

And the Charming Wives of the Defeated Ten, Look on and Enjoy the Game.—Mascots and Hoodoos of No Value.—Willie Thiers' Great Score.

Ten meek men, who acknowledge the superior bliss of married life, and ten bold, bad bachelors, who acknowledge nothing but their ability to bowl, met in the Park Club Rooms Saturday evening in another argument upon the subject, "Does a man who is owned by a wife love better than a man of younger years and a growing mustache but no wifey."

The first round in this argument was disposed of some weeks ago, and the married men and their charming better three-quarters were elated at the score of the game bowled, which made the Bachelors' ears look weak.

The Bachelors made up their minds that they were being "sandbagged" and passed themselves together—so that in the second discussion they upheld the honor of the Bachelors on their part the Benedicts got a cold sneer and "what fiend of the Bachelors."

The final bowling game of the series, and undoubtedly the closing of the argument, took place on last Saturday evening.

The ten men on both the Bachelor and Benedict team met on much terms that the contest was very personal. The Bachelors were ready to battle in favor of the Bachelors.

The usual form of the Bowling game is followed. Each man bowls two balls in each frame, and the total of the two balls is the score for the frame. The game is played in ten frames.

The Bachelors were the first to bowl, and Mr. Ed. Bachelor, captain of the Bachelors, was the first man to bowl. He bowled a nice game, and made a score of 177. The Benedicts were very much pleased with the score, and thought that they would have no trouble in beating the Bachelors.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Unlucky Year.

For a generation, perhaps longer, 1893 will stand in history as the unlucky year. Commercial failures unprecedented in modern times have been thickly sprinkled along the pathway. The depression and hard times have not been confined to the United States alone, but singularly enough have been shared by all English speaking peoples. The largest single bank failure recorded for the year was that of the National Bank of Australasia, which went under in April with liabilities amounting to $37,500,000. Australia and all England's south Pacific colonies were shaken to the center financially. The next largest failure was perhaps that in which the American Erie railway, with a floating debt of $6,000,000, went into the hands of a receiver in July.

It was a terrible year financially for railroads, with 30 of them at present in the hands of receivers. It was also a year of unparalleled accidents and loss of life on trucks and trains. There were 29 serious accidents and collisions, most of them during the World's fair months. An average of over three persons a day was either killed or badly injured on railway trains in 1893.

Fire, flood and storm keep pace with the other calamities. Certainly not less than $200,000,000 went up in flame and smoke in 1893, mostly in the United States. The most destructive single fire, however, was that which occurred in London, July 17, with a loss of $7,500,000. Large areas in Boston and Chicago were burned out again. In Boston two great fires occurred, one of them destroying $2,500,000 worth of property, sweeping away the chestnut ground ravaged by the fire of November, 1872.

March 23 a tornado struck several of the southern states, causing in Mississippi alone a loss of 18 lives and over $2,000,000 worth of property. Aug. 27 a West India cyclone swept up along the coast of Georgia and South Carolina, crushing and drowning nearly a thousand people, destroying crops and making thousands of negroes destitute.

A still more terrific storm visited the gulf coast Oct. 2, involving the loss of 1,000 lives and an incalculable amount of property. Not less disastrous was the great cyclone on the coast of western Europe, Nov. 19. A storm so destructive to shipping has not been known on the British and French coasts in half a century. Even these storms in America and Europe are insignificant, though, when compared with the calamity that overtook the town of Kuchan in the Persian province of Khorassen. There on the 17th of November an earthquake shock caused the loss of 12,000 lives.

Of lynching horrors and train robberies the melancholy year of 1893 goes down to history loaded full. May we make no such unhappy record in these respects for 1894! With so many sickening events crowding one another upon the observation and memory, with the want and bitter hard times all around them, it is scarcely to be wondered at that so many persons lost their mental balance, forgetting themselves sometimes in insanity, sometimes in suicide. In New York city alone there has been an average of a suicide a day during the whole of 1893. The number of thousands taken off by the cholera in Asia, eastern Europe and north Africa there are no means of knowing. It must have been at the lowest 50,000, however.

Eighteen hundred and ninety-three has given to man its lessons of suffering and horror. Let us endeavor now, if mankind shall learn from the woe and want it suffered to be just and kindly, then its losses will not be all loss. At any rate it is gone. Whatever comes after can be no worse. We breathe a deep, long drawn breath of relief and turn our faces with new hope and determination to 1894.

The innate selfishness of mankind shows up in a lurid light among some of the European diplomatic officials in Rio Janeiro. There have been hints and signs that they favored from the beginning the cause of Mello, the insurgent. Nothing was done of an overt nature, however, and the United States agents in Brazil could only guess that such was the case. It has gradually transpired, though, that the European diplomats hope the breaking up of Peixoto's power will in some way annul the reciprocity treaty between Brazil and the United States and throw across the water the trade which by reason of that treaty now comes to us. Therefore they encourage by all the underhanded means in their power the rebel side. Some people are mean enough for anything.

Our new navy comes in very handy now, in view of the family quarrel in Brazil. It will take the cruiser New York 17 days to reach Rio. Next after her goes the big double turret monitor Puritan, ship Minnetonka, which has never yet been away from the Atlantic coast.

Mello insists that he is a republican, but his course, says Admiral da Gama, makes no secret of his desire for the restoration of the empire. How they will fight it out between them in case they are victorious will be an interesting operation to witness.

One thing is certain, 1894 will be a better year than 1893 was. The reason is that it cannot be worse.

THE HAWAIIAN MYSTERY

Nothing but Wild Rumors of the Corwin's Dispatches.

A MESSAGE IS EXPECTED TODAY.

Unconfirmed Report That Minister Willis Came From Honolulu on the Cutter, Ex-Commissioner Mosset Summoned to Washington.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 8.—A rumor was current here to the effect that Minister Willis had been given his passports and was aboard the Corwin. Nothing has developed to corroborate the report, and it is generally discredited. Though considered quite probable that the minister has been tendered passports, it is not believed he is on board the Corwin nor that he was a passenger on her. The unprecedented action of the Corwin's officers, however, in keeping the matter out of the story, for it is certain they are concealing some important fact from the public, and it may be that the minister to Hawaii is hidden in her cabin.

When the Corwin steamed in through the Golden Gate, her commander refused to receive even officers of the revenue patrol steamer Hartley, telling them they were not wanted. The cutter then steamed south, approaching the southern shore, and at a point off Harbor View a small boat was lowered and one man sent ashore.

This individual was never seen by any of the newspaper men, nor was he recognized by any one else. It was supposed, however, that the man put ashore was an officer of the cutter intrusted with dispatches for Washington authorities. So far as known the boat never returned to the Corwin. As soon as the cutter's small boat returned from shore the Corwin steamed slowly across the channel to Sausalito and thence to San Quentin, where she now lies. No one else has left her so far as known.

If Minister Willis was the man put ashore, careful search has failed to bring his whereabouts to light. It is almost a foregone conclusion, however, that Minister Willis would not call from Honolulu and leave Mrs. Willis behind. That she has not landed here is almost beyond doubt.

The conduct of Captain Munger of the Corwin toward the representatives of the press and public in general is without precedent in this port. From the moment the Corwin arrived the men on board have been inaccessible as if they were in midocean, save for the brief interview that a reporter had with Captain Munger when the cutter came ashore in his gig to mail a packet of letters.

The captain saw fit to go ashore with the letters himself rather than to trust a newspaper man with them. The story, for story it certainly is, is almost beyond doubt. The conduct of Captain Munger of the Corwin will not help matters any.

A cablegram from Honolulu says that Queen Liliuokalani has been summoned to Washington to appear before the Hawaiian committee. He left for the capital yesterday afternoon.

SHOT BY A WOMAN.

The Mother of a California Venus Kills Her Daughter's Admirer.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 8.—Harry G. Pool, a young man well known about town and of a well to do family, was shot and almost instantly killed by Mrs. Shattuck, the aged mother of Estrella Shattuck, a young and pretty chorus girl at the Tivoli Opera House.

Young Pool was summoned to Miss Shattuck's home on Stevenson street, where the girl's mother met him and demanded that he marry Miss Shattuck at once. Pool refused, and Mrs. Shattuck put a pistol to his temple and fired. The young man was arrested for murder and is now a raving maniac at the city prison. The girl is also in hysterics and unable to talk.

Special Officer Shadgett is acquainted with the Tivoli company as leader of the amazon march in the spectacular production, "Island of Cuba," Estrella Shattuck says: "The pleasing young person with a sword who leads this march is perhaps as much entitled as any one to wear the title, 'the California Venus,' as she was the model of the crowning figure in the Midwinter fair fountain in the Sunset City, and her ensemble in stuff will stand amid the falling drops of water in front of the Administration building as a sample of what California can produce in the way of female beauty."

TARIFF BILL BLOCKED.

The Situation In the House Becomes Intensely Interesting.

WARRANTS FOR ABSENT MEMBERS.

Some Democratic Members Advocate That Speaker Crisp Should Resort to "Counting a Quorum"—Another Caucus May Be Called—The Senate and Hawaii.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—The tariff will occupy the entire attention of the house during this week, or, if not the bill itself, then the row over the attempt to get it before the house. After four days of fruitless effort to secure the presence of a voting Democratic quorum the house adopted, just before adjournment on Saturday night, the extreme expedient of ordering the arrest of all members absent without leave. Warrants were issued for the arrest of 40 members. Among these were Messrs. Cadmus, Cornish, Fielder, Gardner, Geissenhainer and Londensleger of New Jersey; Belden, Lefever, Lockwood, Magner, Page, Sickels and Weaver of New York; Bingham, Scranton, Heiner and Woomer of Pennsylvania.

The other absentees have been excused on account of sickness, important business or other cause. Deputies were sent out in all directions to serve the warrants. Of these 40 members, 21 are Democrats and 19 Republicans.

As none of them live a long distance, they can hardly get here today, and a quorum is therefore doubtful, although the Democratic leaders express their confident hope that 170 voting Democrats will be in their seats when the gavel drops.

Democratic Look Grave.

From the Republican absentees of course no aid is expected. They will be brought here under duress, but they can't be made to vote. This applies to some of the Democratic absentees. Representative Sperry of this city declares that, although the opposition within the ranks of the Democratic majority can be organized, as some of them like Mr. Sperry desire, enough Democratic members might refrain from voting to prevent the consideration of the bill in its present shape.

Privately some of the Democrats do not hesitate to admit the gravity of the situation. The possibility of defeating the consideration of the bill strikes terror into their hearts, and some of them, like Colonel Oates, openly advocate a resort to the parliamentary expedient utilized by the fifty-first congress of counting a quorum. Speaker Crisp asserts most positively that they will not be forced to this resort. He thinks a voting quorum will be here certainly on Tuesday at the latest.

If it cannot be obtained, then another Democratic caucus will be called. This is indeed what those who are dissatisfied with the bill want. In that caucus they declare that as soon as they can demonstrate that not a sufficient number of Democrats will vote to consider the bill the leaders will be obliged to accept the modifications which the dissatisfied members will propose. Some of the eastern Democrats who are fighting the income tax provision are also willing to go to almost any lengths to eliminate this feature of the Wilson bill.

An Interesting Week Begun.

Altogether the prospects are good for a very interesting contest in the house during the coming week. Of course, if the quorum is secured today or Tuesday, the special order will be carried out, and the bill probably to recompense the house for the two days lost since the order was reported by the committee on rules. But it will be hard to get unanimous consent for the debate to that extent. Once the debate is under way under the operation of this order, it will proceed to the exclusion of everything else, with the night sessions devoted to general debate.

Mr. Tarsney of Missouri, member of the ways and means committee, said to an Associated Press reporter this evening that if a voting quorum was not secured by Tuesday he would favor the adoption of a rule empowering the speaker to count members to make a quorum. "We must meet revolution with revolution," said he.

If the Democratic members are driven to this extreme, it is believed that the Republicans for self vindication would be compelled to support it.

Hawaiian Matters In the Senate.

The principal item of the senate programme for the week has been agreed upon. It is to be the consideration of the federal elections bill, which is to be taken up by the senate immediately after the morning business on Tuesday.

This programme, like all other programmes in the senate, is subject to change, but it is believed that it will be practically observed in this instance except in one contingency. It is barely possible that the Hawaiian matter may again demand the attention of the senate, to the exclusion of all other subjects, for at least a portion of the week.

If the government should fail to give explicit denial to the report that Mr. Willis has asked the Dole government to retire in the interests of Liliuokalani, there is sure to be a number of resolutions of inquiry introduced, and several very pointed speeches may be expected.

There will in any event be some discussion of Hawaiian affairs over Senator Hoar's resolution inquiring into the expenses and the salary of Mr. Blount while on his special mission, and there is a possibility that the Frye resolution, declaring that until the congressional inquiry is completed this government should suspend all efforts at interference in the affairs of that country, may be called from the table. The whole question depends very largely upon the color of the news from the Pacific and the attitude assumed by the administration. If it should become apparent that the Queen and her party are not materially, the senate would be disposed to let the subject alone until the committee on foreign relations can conclude its investigation.

Abortive Bill's Prospects.

If the federal elections bill is allowed to hold its place on the calendar and to be taken up, it will doubtless give rise to some partisan speeches on both sides of the chamber. While it would seem probable that there will be almost if not quite a solid party vote for and against the repeal of the existing laws, there are a great many Republicans too indifferent to the question to exert themselves to the extent of making speeches against it. The opposition will be led by the New England senators, and in this Senators Hoar, Frye and Chandler are expected to take a leading part. There will also be speeches from other Republican senators in the debate.

It seems probable that there will be an effort to keep down any echoing of the bill on the Democratic side. Senator Gray will lead the fight for the bill because of his position as a member of the committee on privileges and elections. Senator Hill will be among the most zealous supporters of the bill on the floor of the senate.

HUNTING A LIVE STAG.

Washington Cross Country Riders Indulge In Royal Sport.

GAME TOO SWIFT FOR THE PACK.

The Stag Shot Away Like a Flash, With the Hounds After Him In Full Cry, and Went Straight For the Shelter of His Stable For Almost of the Hounds.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—Live stag hunting has been inaugurated among the cross country riders of Washington. In spite of the unpleasant weather a considerable party of society folk followed such parts of the run as they could from the road. There was a good field of riders, who, after hunting several miles of dog scent, finished with a lively burst of a mile or more after a big Irish stag, which was loosed in sight of the hounds and gave the pack the liveliest warming up they have had for a long time.

A field in pink, a magnificent stag in full career over fields and fences, followed by an eager pack in full cry, was a treat alike to riders and to spectators. Hunters enjoyed it, the horses rejoiced in it, and even the stag apparently thought it was good sport, but the hounds declared subsequently that it was the greatest bunko game that they had ever been invigled into.

To have a large, live stag in full sight of them, and to have him fairly out foot them and take refuge in a tight barred stable when they were beginning to make the pace too hot for him, was too much almost for foxhounds' equanimity.

A Baron In the Chase.

The run was a joint affair between the Chevy Chase Hunt club of Washington and the Monmouth Hunt club of New York. Hounds and horses of both organizations were out in force, and the stag was loosed from the stables of the latter club, where he had been in training for some days. Among the riders who assembled at the start were Mr. Butterfield, Mr. Von Keemer, Mr. Wallach, Mr. Hitt, William and Lewis Early, Henry M. Duke, Robert Cullen, Mr. Lindsley, Mr. Stone, Percy Evans and Baron Van Kettler.

One of the stablemen from the Monmouth club was in waiting with a stag, a big antlered fellow, held in leash. As the pack came into sight 100 yards away the quarry was loosed.

A Gamy Old Stag.

The wary old stag ran like a rabbit. Washington county might be a trifle strange to him; but, true to his native instinct, he went straight for the shelter of his stable like a homing pigeon. Down through the Chevy Chase subdivision he went like a streak, taking a four foot fence like a bird, and turning north went through the settlement, taking every jump in sight with a madly enthusiastic pack of hounds about a field behind him.

Turning south toward Chevy Chase, he struck the Connecticut avenue road, clearof the car tracks as though he suspected a private carriage concealed there-about and then "hit the grit" in the direction of Tennallytown.

There was apprehension in the minds of the hunters when they saw their game apparently heading away from the clubhouse, and for a moment it looked as though the pack would get between him and the stable, and the hunt would be continued indefinitely toward the eastern shore of Maryland. But the stag knew his business, and at the last minute bolted the road, quartered across ahead of the pack and landed in the club stable by about the same 100 yards' start that he had on the pack at the outset.

Dashaway—Nice reel too.

Cleverton—None better.

Dashaway—Elegant kit.

Cleverton—You bet.

Dashaway—Nice fishing suit you have on.

Dashaway—Did, eh? Then you have forgotten something, haven't you?

Cleverton—Forgotten! Why, what do you mean?

Dashaway—Why, you've forgotten to save enough money to buy your fish with.—Harper's Bazar.

The Old Man's Idea.

"I met an old fellow down in Ohio not long ago," said the drummer, "on a train going out of Columbus, and he became communicative on very short notice. He was quaint, though, and I rather liked it. He talked a great deal about his boys, and I asked him after awhile how many he had.

"'Seven,' he replied.

"'That's a fine lot,' said I. 'What do they do?'

"'Well, six of them are in politics and one is in jail.'

"'That's bad.'

"'Yes, but it might be worse. There might be seven of them in politics.'"—Detroit Free Press.

A Telltale Look.

"How did you get on?" was asked on the Rialto.

"Oh, I met with fair success. I played Hamlet for the first time, you know. It went all right, except that I stumbled and fell into Ophelia's grave."

"That must have been awfully embarrassing."

"So it was, but I would not have minded it if the audience had not looked so tired when I rot out."—New York Herald.

A WOMAN DRUMMER.

SHE ACHIEVED GREAT SUCCESS IN A FIELD NEW TO HER SEX.

She Entered a "Territory" Larger Than Ireland, Fell in a "Commercial Exodus" Peculiar to Humidity, Drew an Assistant Whom to Drown Back.

The first woman to become a commercial traveler in England while in New York recently, was seen at her sport-goods by a reporter.

Mrs. E. D. Sawkins, the "drummer," looked a good deal more like an effective society woman than what you might expect of one who is "merely business." She is tall and slender, with beautifully arranged blond hair, clear blue eyes and delicate complexion. A handsome black silk gown trailed after her as she walked and her manners were pleasant, refined and quite English, you know."

When a woman has been a glittering success at anything, it is always interesting to other women to know how she did it.

"How did I happen to become a commercial drummer?" said the lady. "It was this way. I never could bear the round of visits and tea drinking that make up the life of so many women. I wanted to be in business—to be doing something of some account.

"I took a position as bookkeeper with a wholesale firm of manufacturing chemists in London, and one day when one of the commercial travelers, who was unreliable, was away, and they needed some one to send out, I said to the head of the firm:

"'Let me take up his business, and see how I can succeed at it for my own amusement, but I think he now I was very much in earnest, at any rate, he concluded to let me try.

"I began by soliciting orders in the small towns about London. Finally I traveled all over Europe as a representative of this house. I came to the United States and visited nearly all of the large cities here as well. You see, I am an American. I was born in Brooklyn, though I have lived a large portion of my time in England and Australia.

"I traveled for this one firm for nine years, and finally they wanted me to go to Australia to establish branches of the business in several of the large cities there. The head of the firm went with me, and the large stores now doing business in several of the principal cities there are evidences of our success.

"After I had been in Australia about six months I was married to Mr. George Sawkins, the astronomer and newspaper man, a native of Surrey and grandson of Thomas Sawkins, who was once second in command of the unfortunate exploring expedition under Sir Edward Parry.

"My husband wished me to leave the business at once, but I was under contract to the firm and obliged to remain with them six months after I was married.

"Mr. Sawkins is a student and thinker, and when he decided to lecture on 'Scientific Religion' I determined to take the management off his mind in always-ad vertising, and as I like business I turned manager.

"I always went in advance of him, attended to the distribution of circulars, the posting of his pictures in the windows and the advertising and notices in the papers. I carried on advertising liberally to papers. I was invariably well treated by the press. After I had completed my circuit of towns ahead, I would go back and join Mr. Sawkins."

"Do you think commercial traveling a good field for women?" was asked.

"I think it is a splendid thing for a woman. If she is businesslike, she is sure to be successful. Besides, she can do about four times as much for an employer as can a man. A lady going into a store and asking to see the proprietor will stand five chances to a man's of seeing him. I often was admitted to the head of the firm immediately, while a dozen men were waiting to see him.

"Then, too, a man is often told to call again, so you see the waste of time he has, compared to a woman. It certainly is a much pleasanter and more healthful occupation than that which most women in business have.

"I always made it a point to travel first class and stop at the best hotels. I took a sample room and arranged my wares as attractively as possible. As the firm were manufacturing chemists I had all sorts of cosmetics, perfumes and toilet articles for ladies. These I would arrange as invitingly as I could, taking care to have pretty specimens of the kinds.

"Before trying to see the proprietor of any business house I would find out his name, so that I would know positively for whom I was inquiring. I was careful to be always well dressed—you know appearances are a great deal after all—and when I once gained admittance to the gentleman I said at once that I represented such and such a house and endeavored to make an appointment with him to come and look at my samples. I never carried any samples with me, because that looked too much like a canvasser.

"I was careful to make my appointments so that no two probable customers would come at the same time. When I got the gentleman there and could give my entire time to him, I always succeeded in getting an order, often selling a lot of goods he didn't want or had no intention at first of buying. Frequently my orders would amount to £1,000 worth, sometimes £5,000. You see, I dealt only with wholesale men and never sold less than half a gross of anything.

"Hair dyes were some of the things I sold the most. There was an enormous demand for them in England and Australia."

"She she very much to look pretty and young over there just as much as here?"

"Oh, yes, indeed. I also sold a good deal in New York at one time.

"When Mr. Sawkins concluded to come to New York to lecture, we broke up our pretty home in Australia and took a sailing vessel, my husband, his valet, our little son, my maid and myself, for this country. The captain had a saloon fitted up for us, and we were fourteen weeks on the way. Such a delightful voyage as it was! We brought 200 chickens from my poultry yard on the ship.

"I am now manager for my husband, and I have already received a good offer from a well known theatrical manager here to attend his entire business, but as I am averse I could not accept."—New York Recorder.

How Children Should Eat.

Children should be trained to eat slowly, no matter how hungry or what important business is pressing. Mouthwater a little food well ground than a hearty meal swallowed in haste. Cold food is even more difficult to digest than hot if taken too rapidly. The normal temperature of the stomach is about 98 degrees. Food has to be raised to this temperature before digestion can take place.—People's Health Journal.

THE RIO SITUATION.

While Both Sides Are Waiting Yellow Jack Puts In an Appearance.

LONDON, Jan. 8.—The following dispatch was received from Rio de Janeiro via Montevideo: Admiral da Gama still holds out, stating that he expects the Aquidaban and Republica with re-enforcements from the south. He appears confident of the ultimate result and received £12,000 on Saturday from sympathizers in order to pay his men.

The diplomats have refused to recognize the belligerent status of the insurgents on the ground that the provisional government has not a sufficient standing. Admiral Chavas, the minister of marine, resigned his office on account of a difference of opinion with President Peixoto, especially regarding the imprisonment and general treatment of the naval officers suspected of sympathy with the insurgents. His successor, Admiral Netto, is considered honest, though he has no special ability.

The past week has been uneventful. There was some skirmishing in the vicinity of Mocanguez and occasional firing along the shore front of the city. The forts at the mouth of the harbor, which have been silent for the past week, fired again. The cruiser Tamandare fired a few shots daily at the batteries of Nictheroy, the latter replying.

The government continues mounting artillery on the heights within the city limits and is awaiting the arrival of the new warships before attacking Admiral da Gama. Several smack of Yellow Jack have been carried on board merchant vessels and also in the city, and it is feared that a continuance of the intense heat will bring a severe epidemic later on.

RIOTING IN ROME.

A Mob Used Pistols and Daggers on the Police.

ROME, Jan. 8.—A crowd of workmen assembled in the Trastevere quarter and marched to the center of Rome bearing two red flags and shouting: "Live socialism!" "Live the Sicilian martyrs!" The police were on guard at the passage of the Garibaldi bridge and ordered the crowd to disperse, but the latter opened fire upon the police with revolvers, and during the riot which followed a policeman was stabbed with a dagger. Finally the police succeeded in dispersing the crowd and in capturing the two red flags and two anarchists.

The police seized about 1,000 letters at the house of Father Ursa, curs of Santa Lucia, who was arrested, together with his sister and nephew. A number of letters were found by the police at the residence of the priest's companions now in custody. Many of these letters are in cipher from Cipriani.

A mob attacked and disarmed a corporal for refusing to join in their seditious cries and afterward brutally beat with cudgels some gendarmes who intervened. A sharp conflict followed between the police and the rioters, ending in the dispersal of the mob. Four arrests were made during the fight, and two gendarmes were wounded.

The police of Naples have arrested several agitators suspected of organizing riots which were anticipated, causing the shops to be closed and spreading a general feeling of alarm throughout the city. There was no trouble, however.

AFTER HIDDEN GOLD.

A Treasure Hunting Party Will Sail For the South Seas.

VALPARAISO, Ind., Jan. 8.—Charles Henderson of Wellstown is making arrangements to sail Feb. 15 from Philadelphia to the South seas to secure a hidden treasure which he buried on an island near the South American coast. He wrote to a friend here to join the expedition.

Before the war Henderson was a sub officer on a slave vessel making regular trips to Africa. One day the vessel was attacked by a United States man-of-war, and in their efforts to escape it struck a rock, and the crew had to take to their boats. The captain told Henderson that he had $75,000 in gold aboard, and if he would assist him in secreting it from the crew he would give him half. They reached the islands and buried the gold in a cave. The captain and four of the crew died of smallpox two weeks later, and while trying to leave the islands the boat capsized, drowning all but Henderson and one companion, who were picked up by a passing vessel and carried to New Orleans.

He lately has fallen heir to a legacy of $20,000 in Philadelphia, from which city he returned on Tuesday, having purchased a vessel called the Firefly, which he is having remodeled, and with which he will sail, the Flora K. Pine. The party will sail under a passport as a party of American expansionists to visit all places in the South seas.

CITY COMMON COUNCIL.

AN ADJOURNED MEETING HELD LAST NIGHT.

Grant Avenue Property Owners Petition for the Re-Macadamizing of that Thoroughfare.—The Mayor's Message.—An Ordinance on Fire and Buildings Presented.

The City Common Council met in adjourned session last night. President Shoe and Councilmen Dumont, Erickson, Frost, Fisk, Frazee, Gross, Millington, Stockton, and Westphal—10, absent—Councilmen Bird—1.

Clerk McMurray read the minutes of the last meeting and the same were adopted.

Residents of Grant avenue petitioned Council to re-macadamize that avenue as soon as it was before the street railway company had its tracks.

The petition was referred to the Committee on Streets.

The following message from the Mayor was read:

MAYOR'S OFFICE.

PLAINFIELD, January 4, 1894.

To the Honorable Common Council:

GENTLEMEN:—In submitting this, my fourth annual message, to your honorable body, it hardly seems necessary that I should point to a period before you the administration of the various city departments for the past year, or that I should undertake to advise you concerning the needs of those several departments. Most of you were members of the last council—you have had large experience in our municipal affairs—you understand the needs of the city, the tendency of the times to increase, and I believe that you appreciate the necessity of economy in the administration of public affairs.

I shall, therefore, only call your attention to such matters as appear to me of special importance at the present time, and worthy of consideration because of their relation to the future welfare of the city.

FINANCES.

The most perplexing problem that every Common Council has to deal with, is that which concerns the question of taxation. How to prevent a too rapid increase of taxes, and yet make proper provision for the needs of our rapidly growing city.

The improvements which are necessary to promote continued growth and prosperity necessitate expenditures which necessarily increase the tax rate, and this in turn is apt to prove detrimental to other public interests. Who legislation requires the exercise of liberality as well as economy—the former to say where it is necessary—the latter to say where it is possible without injury to the public service.

The reputation of Plainfield for beauty and healthfulness is widespread, and if we continue our efforts to make it attractive, it must continue to grow, and the taxes will naturally keep pace with its growth.

The growth of manufacturing interests during the past few years has been accompanied by a rapid building up of certain sections of the city, which calls for increased expenditure to provide lights, police and fire protection, cross-walks, macadamized streets, etc.

While, therefore, we may not be able to prevent a gradual increase of taxes, it is our duty to watch closely the expenditures of each department, and economize as much as possible. The tendency of the times is to increase rather than decrease the taxes, and we should not, as a rule, towards a too generous expenditure. We cannot afford to keep on increasing our disbursements year after year until our tax rate becomes burdensome, and we have to apply the pruning knife occasionally, will surely, in time, develop an embarrassed financial condition. The thought deserves more than passing consideration, because of the steady increase of claims upon our treasury, incident to the natural growth of the city.

Analysis of the Treasurer's report for 1893 in accordance of several important particulars. The increase of expenditure in the various departments, compared with 1892, is as follows:

Streets	$2541.12
Lights	134.32
Police	399.44
Fire Department	2000.00
Hydrants	1440.00
Water Supply	1000.00
Poor Fund	267.37
Board of Health	256.56

making a total increase of expenditure for 1893 over 1892 of $9,502.12.

The Fire Department increase is owing to the erection of its new building which must be considered exceptional.

It is evident that we cannot keep up this rate of expenditure with our present income, and if therefore will be necessary for you to consider, carefully the necessity of retrenchment during the current year.

The Council of 1892 began the year with cash on hand, which could be used.....$1941.39
Uncollected taxes of 1892.....1000.00
Uncollected taxes prior to 1892.....2000.00
Total.....$4941.39
Notes outstanding.....$2250.00

The Council of 1893 began with cash on hand that can be used.....$135.07
Uncollected taxes of 1893.....2000.00
Uncollected taxes prior to 1893.....2000.00
Total.....$4135.07
Notes outstanding.....$2450.00

These estimates of uncollected taxes are exclusive of schools, poor and library taxes.

Reports show where the amount of back taxes that any Council succeeds in collecting seldom exceeds eighty per cent. of the amount delinquent for the preceding year.

Assuming that to be the amount that you will be able to collect, the Council of 1894 begins this year with the following financial exhibit:

LIABILITIES.

Amount of notes outstanding.....$2,450.00

AVAILABLE ASSETS.

Cash.....$4,175.07
Taxes that can probably be collected.....1,960.00

Quite a considerable saving to the city would be effected if the delinquent taxes could be collected through the office of the tax collector. It seems to me that having a tax collector, with all the necessary machinery to collect taxes, it should not be necessary to employ a second collector, to collect delinquent taxes. The credit for this suggestion belongs to the new Councilman from the Second Ward.

THE PUBLIC HEALTH.

Whether or not the early settlers of Plainfield had in view the importance of the spot when they selected a site for their new settlement, cannot be definitely stated, but certain it is that they might have ranged the whole state over without finding a more favorable one. The requirements of health that they sought for were good soil and ground which form so large a part of Plainfield, Branch a natural river for surface impurities which has much to do with the low death rate of our city. If Branch and river have not reputation for healthfulness, it will not be because nature has not dealt bountifully with her, but rather because of the neglect of the people to properly estimate the dangers of impurities and improper disposal of house sewage in the thickly settled portions of the city. This is the danger that menaces the public health today, and the utmost vigilance of its people is kept constantly before the people in order that a more earnest desire for the completion of sewers may be awakened.

The Council of 1892 left an appropriation for the purchase of a horse for the isolation of contagious diseases. No action has yet been taken to secure such a house. This matter is important and should receive early attention.

I am informed and believe that numerous water closet connections with Green brook and the North avenue sewer are still kept up. It may not be generally known that this is a violation of State Law, and renders offenders liable to a heavy fine and imprisonment. While this law seems unnecessarily severe, and its enforcement at this time rather more than beneficial to the health of the city, the fact that we are charged with the duty of preventing, if possible, an open violation of the laws of the State, not only makes this a very perplexing question to deal with, but causes me to feel my responsibility in the matter. I have refrained time for from taking any action in the premises, hoping that a solution of the problem would speedily be reached through the introduction of a sewerage system.

SEWERAGE.

We have made some progress towards a sewerage system during the past year. Surveys and plans have been made, submitted to, and approved by the most experienced sanitary engineers in the State, and contracts for the sewers are to be constructed, requires that the owners of three-fifths of the real estate of the city shall petition the Common Council to cause the same to be constructed. Until this petition is signed the law has not yet been complied with, but is likely to be in the near future, when the only obstacle to the prosecution of the work will be removed. It will be a great day for the city when Council will be can begin operations in the early spring, and if the press and the people generally will take up the subject and urge those who, for personal reasons, are opposed to it, to sign the petition to do so at once, the requisite number of signatures may speedily be obtained. The work should be begun at an early day, would furnish the best solution to the present intolerable nuisance, as far as Plainfield is concerned, that can possibly be suggested.

POLICE.

Our police force will shortly have to be increased, it is not large enough to cover properly the entire city. We have in service at the present time, nine patrolmen of whom two are on duty at the night and seven by day. All that portion of the city lying south of Seventh and La Grande avenue and east of Park avenue is practically without police protection except as it is furnished with special officers. The same may be said of the entire district north of Richmond street, south of the railroad. Two additional patrolmen are entitled to position. Fortunately for us in the past, the orderly character of the city has been such as to, along with only partial protection, but the property interests in the sections referred to are becoming so important that the time has come to leave them longer unprotected.

I also recommend the employment of three additional officers, but considering the present condition of the finances, will be wise to postpone action until later in the year.

STREETS.

The importance of our roads has become so generally recognized, and so fully appreciated, especially in New Jersey, that our people are no longer satisfied with the streets as a condition of half way excellence. The demand from every section is for the best that can be obtained. I refer to reports on lines already macadamized—to the street which calls for the employment of a large number of men under competent supervision.

The appropriation for streets, we have expended money very freely in this department, and our streets generally are in very good condition, but the expenses of this department is so uniformly heavy that we cannot, in justice to other interests, reduce the appropriation for the year, but the amount of new work undertaken is not very large, and I do not recommend to a lower appropriation than usual. It is absolutely necessary that the property of those who live outside pay their proportion of the taxes levied here, for your appropriation is not to be considered as for the benefit of the residents of Plainfield, and see how it will work. I regret very much indeed the necessity of recommending such a large sum for the support of the poor of the city, for it does seem that this year of prosperity, of which all reports indicate, of the streets, but we must recognize the limitation which both law and necessity puts upon our ability to expend.

Unemployment is already a large city to raise, by private subscription, a fund to furnish work to unemployed men, whose families are in destitute circumstances, and with a small appropriation for the poor, and with the charity committee, we have contributed to a considerable extent with the committee of the Street Commissioner, and a force under which there are now being employed upon the streets, and at other points work four days in each week to the men in the communication. In this has enabled no charge upon the city—it is a combined effort to help the needy without pauperizing them.

CITY POOR.

The demand upon the Poor Fund the past year has been greater than usual, for reasons already referred to, and while I do not think a larger appropriation will be necessary for the coming year, I do not feel warranted in asking for a lower appropriation than usual. It is absolutely impossible to foretell what the demand will be, and the

Would Play Santa Claus.

A sort of modern Don Quixote appeared in Pennsylvania at Christmas time. He did not go tilting at windmills, but at chimneys, and got the worst of it. He took the Christmas traditions literally, it seems, especially the story of Santa Claus climbing down the chimney. Whether he had been taking anything else previous to his attempt to interpret Santa Claus literally is not disclosed, but on the face of things it looks like it.

This honest farmer determined that he would be the Santa Claus of his house. While his wife and children were asleep he could easily have distributed the gifts for each so that they would have found them on waking in the morning. That is how less conscientious Santa Clauses do. But not in the mind of this Pennsylvania Don Quixote. The saint had to come down the chimney. It was chimney or nothing. Why this had to be thus can only be explained on the supposition that the honest man had been taking something, as above hinted. At any rate, though, he stole softly out of bed, dressed himself up as the Christmas saint, climbed upon the roof and prepared to execute himself down the wide old chimney.

The long and short of it is that he stuck fast half way down and nearly died of cold and fright. He might have been there to this day only that when his wife missed him and searched for him in the morning she heard a voice in the chimney. It was an awfully weak voiced Santa Claus though. She could not get him out and had to call the neighbors in, and they worked an hour and a half and finally got him down the chimney before they could extricate the farmer. This is the difference between old times and our degenerate time.

A Robbers' Refuge.

If any one but the governor of a sovereign state had written it, we might suppose that there could be some ulterior political motive in the letter Governor Fishback of Arkansas has written to the president on Indian Territory as a school for criminals. But since no suspicion of this sort can be attached to it, Governor Fishback's opinion that Indian Territory must be cleaned out by the United States government is entitled to serious consideration.

A map in possession of one of the robbers captured at Oliphant showed that the gang had made almost a bee line from the country to that place. Yet another map (of the vicinity of Chattanooga) was evidence that they were planning another train attack. The governor declares that the Indian reservation has become a school of crime. Thieves and murderers take refuge under the laws designed to protect Indians. They make the territory their headquarters. Thence they make raids upon the white western country. That, however, is not the worst. They are demoralizing both Indians and young white men. Men who had before been respectable citizens were caught among the Oliphant desperadoes. Governor Fishback is right. The United States should take measures to protect its citizens.

Mr. W. E. Richards, agent of the Russian government for the trans-Siberian railway, is patriotic enough to buy in America the steamers Russia wants to connect with that road. There will be 19 of them to begin, and they will run from Shanghai ports to ports on the Pacific coast. Vancouver, B. C., will be one of the ports. The others will be dotted along the coast of the United States all the way down to San Diego, Cal. Russia's ambition is boundless in peace and in war. As a peaceful enterprise, it is her ambition now to control the commerce of the Pacific ocean. A great means to this end she believes will be the trans-Siberian railway, which it is expected will be completed in six months. Five of the merchant steamers have been bought in New York. They will be obliged to steam around Cape Horn to get to the Pacific ocean, thence they must cross that to Russia in Asia. Why do we not complete that Nicaragua canal?

The awful wear on the nervous system of making hundreds of typewritten copies of the same letter has been alluded to by a writer in the Chicago Tribune. Mr. Bonney, being one who has not tried has any idea of the trial it is. One girl says: "I have been nearly crazed at times and been made ill more than once. I have known of several instances where young women were placed in infirmaries and asylums to recovering; from making hundreds of copies of the same letter. I would rather run a sewing machine and stitch shirts at 8 cents apiece." Why do not employers get their circular letters printed in typewriter type?

The New York Press has been looking into the question of railroad losses for 1893 and finds it to be the most disastrous year American railways have ever encountered. Nearly one-fifth of the railroads of the country are now in the hands of receivers. The united capital of the roads, consisting of stocks, bonds, lands, rolling stock and other property, amounts to $11,611,894,000, a sum more than twice as large as the national debt.

Sing the doxology for 1893! Let us forgive him for the suffering he brought us and thank him for the lessons it taught us.

PEACE IN HAWAII.

Minister Willis Has Made His Demand.

AND IT HAS BEEN REFUSED.

After That Matters In Honolulu Settle Down Immediately.

A Steamer Arrives Bringing News Up to Jan. 5, at Which Time Minister Willis Was Simply Waiting—The Provisional Government Was Asked to Resign at Once and Was Told That Liliuokalani Would Grant Full Amnesty to All and Reign With Justice—The Meeting Between Minister Willis and the Hawaiian Ministry.

VICTORIA, B. C., Jan. 9.—The Canadian Pacific steamer Warrimoo has arrived, bringing Honolulu advices to Jan. 5. Most intense excitement prevailed throughout Honolulu until the arrival of the revenue cutter Corwin. After that Minister Willis made his demand upon President Dole to surrender his government to the deposed queen. The government promptly refused, and Minister Willis took no further step to enforce compliance with his order. The excitement then rapidly subsided, and a week before the sailing of the Warrimoo there was perfect tranquillity. It is now thought that the crisis has passed.

The following dispatch from Honolulu is dated Jan. 3: Since the sailing of the United States revenue cutter Corwin on the morning of Dec. 24 no advices have left here for the coast. The vessel took press dispatches against the orders of the United States legation, but it is doubtful if all of them are landed, as it is understood that a strict watch will be placed on the vessel as soon as she arrives near the harbor and that she will likely be ordered at once on a cruise.

Mr. Willis' Demand.

Application was made for permission to forward dispatches by the Corwin. This was in each case promptly refused, and dispatches were only put aboard afterward through the courtesy of those who shall be nameless. The Corwin took the demand of Minister Willis upon the provisional government to step down and out, which was couched in the following words:

"SIR: PRESIDENT AND GENTLEMEN—The president of the United States has very much regretted the delay in the consideration of the Hawaiian question, but it is unavoidable. So much of it as has occurred since my arrival has been due to certain conditions precedent, compliance with which was required before I was author ized to confer with you. The president also regrets, as most assuredly do I, that any secrecy should have surrounded the interchange of views between our two governments. I may say, however, that the secrecy thus far observed has been in the interest and for the safety of all your people. I need hardly promise that the president's action upon the Hawaiian question has been under the dictates of honor and of duty.

"It is now and has been from the beginning absolutely free from prejudice and resentment and entirely consistent with long established friendship and treaty ties, which have so closely bound together our respective governments.

"The president deemed it his duty to withdraw from the senate the treaty of annexation which was signed by the secretary of state and agents of your government, and to dispatch a trusty representative to Hawaii to impartially investigate the causes of your revolution and to ascertain and report the true situation in these islands. This information was needed the better to enable the president to discharge a delicate and important duty. Upon the facts embodied in Mr. Blount's report the president has arrived at certain conclusions and determined upon a certain course of action, which it becomes my duty to acquaint you with. The provisional government was not established by the Hawaiian people nor with their consent, nor has it since existed with their consent."

Mr. Willis then read the president's view which the president had taken of the matter. He stated that Queen Liliuokalani had been told that she would be expected to grant a general amnesty. Mr. Willis continued:

Liliuokalani's Promise.

"In obedience to the command of the president I have sought the queen's agreement to this course, and I now deliver a writing, signed by her and duly attested, a copy of which I will leave with you. I will now read the writing. (It will read from the original, leaving with you a certified copy):

"I, Liliuokalani, in recognition of the high sense of justice which has actuated the president of the United States, and desiring to put aside all feelings of personal hatred or revenge and to do what is best for all the people of these islands, both native and foreign born, do hereby and herein solemnly declare and pledge myself that if reinstated as the constitutional sovereign of the Hawaiian island I will immediately proclaim and declare unconditionally and without reservation to every person who directly or indirectly participated in the revolution of Jan. 17, 1893, a full pardon and amnesty for their offenses, with restoration of all rights, privileges and immunities under the constitution and the law, which have been made in pursuance thereof, and that I will forbid and prevent the adoption of any measure of prescription or punishment for what has been done in the past by those setting up or supporting the provisional government.

"I furthermore solemnly agree to accept the restoration under the constitution and laws and to abide by the revolution, and I will abide by and fully execute that constitution with all the guarantees as to persons and property therein contained. I further covenant solemnly pledge myself and my government, if restored, to assume all the obligations created by the provisional government in the proper course of administration, including all expenditures for military or police service, it being my purpose, if restored, to assume the government peacefully as it existed on the day when it was unlawfully overthrown."

The Question Submitted.

"It becomes my further duty to advise you, the representatives of the provisional government, and your ministers of the president's determination of the question which your action and that of the queen devolved upon him, and to say that my recognition of the Hawaiian government as now constituted and my further official relations with it depend upon the answer which shall be made by the constitutional sovereign of the islands to the demand which I am instructed by the president to make, that as a condition precedent to any consideration by the president of the future relations of the United States with the Hawaiian islands the government which existed prior to the 17th of January last should be restored in full authority, and that the queen should undertake to pursue the course marked out for her by the president's representative, and should assure full amnesty to all who participated in the movement which led to her deposition. I am directed to say that the president expects a definite answer at the earliest moment which the queen can command consistently with a proper consideration for the gravity of the situation and the importance of her action."

Minister Willis Waiting.

Minister Willis then said: "I am directed by the president to say that he expects a definite answer at the earliest moment which the queen can command consistently with a proper consideration for the gravity of the situation and the importance of her action. I will now receive your communication."

Minister Willis then left the room, and the ministers withdrew to consider the matter. They returned in about an hour and a half and handed Minister Willis a communication, which he read, and then said: "I will take this with me, Mr. President, as your secretary may not have got every word, and it may help him. I will also leave the certified copy that I returned to-day agreement of the queen."

The Hawaiian government will take the matter under consideration and answer you as soon as they are ready.

Mr. Willis—Yes, sir, gentlemen. Good day.

DUVAL CLUB DEFIANT.

It Declares the Fight Will Take Place In Spite of Governor Bennett.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 9.—The long looked for statement by the Duval Athletic club has been issued. It is as follows:

"The governor of Florida, speaking for himself and also for the governor, having declared that the Corbett-Mitchell contest will not take place in Florida, it is now proper that we inform the public that neither the attorney general nor the governor possesses any judicial power, and to add that the state officers, acting under the direction of the governor, have refused to allow any judicial determination by the courts of the law which, it is claimed, the governor has violated, and to the end we have caused the prosecution, originated for the purpose of testing the law, to be dismissed; and, further, that the executive of the state, apparently in an unconditional repugnative of seeking the opinion of the highest judicial tribunal of the state as to the construction of the statute, has declined to do so.

"The public is hereby assured that the contest will take place as advertised; that no plans have been formed or are taken and that none will be by either the governor or attorney general to stop this contest, and that tickets can be bought with the confidence that it will take place under the conditions as signed."

The announcement has stirred up no little excitement in Jacksonville. Friends of the club say that the Duval people are showing great nerve, while opponents claim that it will bring down the wrath of the governor in the matter. The result is awaited with no little interest.

TARIFF DEBATE BEGUN.

The Democrats Finally Secure the Long Sought Quorum.

MR. WILSON OPENS WITH A SPEECH.

Mr. Reed and Mr. Boutelle Had a Lively Tilt With the Speaker Before the Tariff Bill Was Got Under Way—Much Manuvering Took In the Senate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The debate on the Wilson tariff bill is at least under way after a deadlock of four days. The Democrats, with the aid of warrants to arrest absentees, succeeded in counting a quorum, and the obstruction which the nonvoting Republicans, Populists and discruntled Democrats placed in the path of the tariff debate last week was forced aside.

A sharp tilt with Mr. Boutelle over the Hawaiian matter and a lively debate over the adoption of the special order fixing the limits of the debate precuned Mr. Wilson's opening speech. Mr. Reed left the fight for the minority. Mr. Wilson said that he would move an amendment to the rule providing that the general debate continue throughout the present week, with night sessions, the debate under the five minute rule to begin next Monday and the final vote to be taken on Jan. 29. Mr. Wilson also moved that general leave to print be given. There was a ripple of applause as Mr. Wilson finished his proposition for an extension of time.

The Debate Begun.

Mr. Reed announced that his associates on the Republican side would not give their consent to Mr. Wilson's proposition. The ex-speaker said that the Republican side did not mean to be put in the position of acquiescing in this or any other step on the part of the majority.

Mr. Reed then offered a motion to recommit the bill with instructions to the committee to amend it so as to give four additional days' debate and to permit the bill to be amended by paragraphs. The motion was lost—9 to 178—and the vote which adopted the rule the speaker rapped sharply for order. "In accordance with the special order just adopted," said he, "the house now resolves itself into committee of the whole for the consideration of revenue legislation. The gentleman from Tennessee, Mr. Richardson, will take the chair."

The speaker relinquished the gavel to the tall, slim Tennessean. A deep hush fell upon the house. The members took their seats, and the galleries leaned forward. All eyes were centered on Mr. Wilson, the chairman of the ways and means committee, who sat calmly in his seat in the center of the Democratic side.

He rose and in a low voice asked to dispense with the first reading of the bill. No objection was made. Mr. Reed, the Republican leader, with the courtesy always extended on such occasions, asked that unanimous consent be granted to the gentleman from Virginia, Mr. Tucker, to proceed without limit. Then Mr. Wilson rose, stepped back a few feet in the aisle and began his speech with a slight apology for the informal manner in which he should deal with his subject. At first his voice was low and tremulous, but as he proceeded he warmed to his theme and spoke loud and resonant, and his gestures grew easy and graceful. Mr. Wilson is a slight man, with a pale, scholarly face, drooping mustache, dark gray eyes and high receding forehead, capped by a shock of gray hair. Standing in the aisle looking down upon the sea of upturned faces, he made his argument for the bill which bears his name.

After speaking an hour and a half he was so exhausted that he asked the indulgence of the house to continue his remarks today. He spoke without notes and was given very close attention both by the members on the floor and the spectators in the galleries. He frequently interrupted with applause, and his speech evidently made a deep impression. The evening session was devoted to general debate on the bill.

The night session was devoted to set speeches. Mr. Lane of Illinois supported the Wilson bill, as did Mr. Bell of Texas. Mr. Morse of Massachusetts and Mr. Bowers of California opposed the bill. At the conclusion of the latter's speech the house adjourned.

Hawaiian Talk In the Senate.

The Hawaiian controversy waxes warmer from day to day in the senate. Nearly a dozen senators have spoken since Hoar introduced on the subject, but the end is not yet in sight, and after over an hour's sharp discussion the senate adjourned with the Hawaiian question unsettled. Hoar's resolution on Wednesday and a possibility of Mr. Turpie's resolution, presented on Monday, Jan. 15, will be heard.

Senator Hoar succeeded in accentuating the fact that Commissioner Blount was paid from the secret fund of the state department, a fact being substantially admitted by the Democrats.

Senator Frye made an ineffectual effort to secure a vote on his resolution declaring for non-intervention by this government in Hawaiian affairs, but there was strong objection, and it went over until Wednesday, when Mr. Davis of Minnesota will speak on the subject.

Senator Turpie presented a resolution alleging the inexpediency of annexing Hawaii to the United States, but declaring that the interference of foreign governments with that country should be regarded as a hostile to this country. He will probably submit some remarks on the matter in a few days.

LIVELY AT TRENTON.

New Jersey's Legislature Assembles and Warms Up Immediately.

TRENTON, Jan. 9.—Both houses of the state legislature convened today. The governor's message was received and read. The organization of the house was lively. The Republican house caucus had selected the following officers: John I. Holt of Passaic for speaker, J. Hyatt Pier of Hudson, clerk; Joshua Maddock of Burlington, reading clerk; Edgar Williams of Essex, engrossing clerk; W. N. Norton of Mercer, assistant engrossing clerk; John L. Swayze of Sussex, journal clerk; Henry L. Birks of Essex, bill clerk; Lysander E. Watson of Monmouth, sergeant-at-arms. Thomas McEwan of Hudson was chairman of the caucus.

The Republican senators had nominated Maurice A. Rogers of Camden for president of the senate.

The Democratic senators held a conference in the room of the president of the senate with barred doors and a number of assistants to guard all access to them. When they finally concluded their secret confab they refused to say anything as to the nature of the business done. It is known, however, that the conference was called to talk over a plan to prevent the Republicans from organizing the senate.

A significant fact is that Superintendent Ford of the capitol was instructed to take from the desks of the senators their names, which have always been placed there before the session and which were placed on each desk yesterday afternoon. This is done so that Senator Bradley of Monmouth need not be recognized as a senator.

The plan of the Democrats, so far as can be learned, is to refuse to have Senator Brady seated and possibly Senator Ward of Salem. This would leave the Republicans without a majority necessary to elect their officers. The Democrats will claim that these senators were illegally elected and will refer their certificates to the supreme court.

FIRE IN THE WHITE CITY

Several World's Fair Buildings Were Destroyed.

LIBERAL ARTS PALACE IN RUINS.

Flames Started a Blaze in the Music Hall, Which Licked Up the Casino, the Peristyle and Other Structures—Fatalities to Firemen—A Map About Spectacle.

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—The World's fair came to an end like that of Pompeii. A rushing flame of flame, a hot, Gothic architecture tumbling into chaos, bewildered mobs of people—all were there under a starry sky of Eastern constancy, with Lake Michigan's broad expanse a weird Mediterranean. It was a tragedy of spectacle.

The Casino Music hall and the famous peristyle were wholly destroyed, and the beautiful palace of the Liberal Arts contained not a thousandth of dollars' worth of exhibits as it is ruins. It was not until 2:30 this morning that the fire was entirely subdued.

The fire started in the Casino just east of the Agricultural building and north of the peristyle. The Casino was quickly destroyed, and the flames swept north on top of the peristyle, and, dropping, made a second line of fire along the line of the colonnade.

The flames then sprang through the Music hall. While the fire was burning there was one of the most singular and fascinating sights of the night. Along the crowd announced the collapse of the peristyle. A moment later another terrific yell from the crowd told that the Liberal Arts building had caught fire and that the whole exposition was threatened.

A dramatic coincident marked the destruction of the peristyle. One of the landers upon which was a group of firemen fell with the columns, and one of the heroic fire fighters went down to death, while a number of others suffered injuries more or less severe.

The sky was livid and brilliant at this time with falling sparks, many of which fell away to the north, showering the roofs of the Art palace, Women's building and the various state structures with fire. Every train and street car going northward that just before the flames broke out he kicked two tramps off one of the Music hall and told them to find quarters elsewhere. They left in the direction of the station, and soon after the fire broke out, and everything on the ground was in terror and confusion.

The fall of the peristyle was grand. Whirlwinds of burning embers were being carried from the end of the Court of Honor toward the Administration building and also over the monumental roof of the Liberal Arts building, the largest exhibition room on earth. The great golden statue of the peristyle could be seen lifting her lovely celebrante aloft through the clouds of smoke and flame.

top of the peristyle were scores of statues. The spectacle for these people fortunate enough to be on the many sidewalk just east of the peristyle was more of a succession of gigantic human beings plunging one after another headlong into the waters of the lake below.

The origin of the fire is said to be revenge on the part of a couple of tramps. The police record of the Thirty-first street station just before the flames broke out he kicked two tramps out of the Music hall and told them to find quarters elsewhere. They left in the direction of the station, and soon after the fire broke out, and everything on the ground was in terror and confusion.

The fall of the peristyle was grand. Whirlwinds of burning embers were being carried from the end of the Court of Honor toward the Administration building and also over the monumental roof of the Liberal Arts building, the largest exhibition room on earth. The great golden statue of the peristyle could be seen lifting her lovely celebrante aloft through the clouds of smoke and flame.

Scarlet Colored Flames.

Remorselessly the fire was hurling itself through the interstices of the big iron arches at the north end of the building. The flames wound like constrictor fashion in and around the mammoth electric lights suspended from the roof. Below these fearful curls of iron, likely to drop at any moment, no man dared to go, even the hardiest not venturing within 100 feet. Frantic efforts with the fire hose at first were plunging through the aisles not incumbered with wreckage or drenched with the falling cataracts of water, most of which fell far short of the topmost flames.

The clouds of smoke and vapor that every moment or two shut out the view of the fire in the roof were colored in the most fantastic fashion, running from green and violet to vivid scarlet. Just what caused the extraordinary coloring none seemed to know. Some were that the dyestuffs and chemicals in the exhibits drowned in water were the origin.

The federal officials put the maximum loss in the Liberal Arts building at $1,000,000. On the other hand the estimates made by the people connected with the local directory made the highest figure only $500,000 in the Liberal Arts building.

About 10:45 a great iron arch gave way directly above the French wares, and falling heavily buried them beneath the burning pile, and they were abandoned. Back of the French was the Japanese exhibit, and about it clustered a crowd of excited and frantic Japanese. This, like many exhibits, has not been released from bond, and the goods could not be taken from the building. Under the direction of some Japanese officials the wares were carted to the doors, and there they stood guarded by natives of the Flowery Kingdom, who sorrowfully awaited the destruction that seemed inevitable.

Foreign Exhibitors Frantic.

All of the American exhibits had long ago been removed, but the formalities of the custom house had detained the goods of the foreigners. Superintendent Graham of the Manufactures building said it would be weeks before a schedule of the damage could be prepared.

"It can hardly be overestimated," said Mr. Graham. "It is an awful sacrifice of wealth. I have feared this ever since the fair has closed, and now it has come worse than I ever dreamed."

All through the great structure frantic exhibitors rushed, seeking the safety of their goods.

The fire department fought with energy and skill, but the conditions were all against success. A fierce wind came over the lake, flinging fiery embers every where and fanning the flames into fierce life with every moment.

Huge billows of flame rolled northward over the great glass roof, being manfully breasted by the men upon the roof, who were handicapped, however, by the lack of water. An heroic effort was made to get streams to the top of the giant structure, for the only apparent salvation of the structure lay in getting men upon the promenade and pouring streams into the fulsome blaze.

The water supply was fearfully inadequate. Time and again the streams were cut off almost entirely. Scattered throughout the fair grounds are hydrants from which the supply was to be drawn, but they were insufficient in the hour of dire need. Finally, that it was impossible to reach the roof, the chief ordered his engines into the building.

Firemen's Gallant Fight.

With clanging gongs and the clatter of hoofs, steamer after steamer rattled through the smoke down the fire lit aisles until the center of the building was reached, and then the work began. The burning heaps of merchandise, and the last struggle of the firemen was taken up. Streams of water were hurled upon the blaze, but with little effect. From above a fiery hail of embers poured down upon the firemen. The heaps of blazing merchandise grew more and more numerous, and fast by foot the engines were forced back toward the other end of the building. Now and then a blaze would break forth in a new place, but showed no sense telling of a new stand of the insidious enemy. Pipemen were hurried in the direction of the fresh danger, and with the extinguishing of the blaze rushed back again to the battle over the exhibits.

About the Manufactures building cordons of policemen were stationed, and groups of bluecoats guarded every entrance, but the eager crowds which thronged over the bridges and crushed about the walls of the blazing piles could not be stopped in their course, and thousands gained admittance to the building. They thronged every aisle, and cursed every passage way, and pushed forward to the thrust back time after time by the officers on guard.

Shortly after 11 o'clock four firemen were caught beneath a mass of falling embers just outside the Manufactures building. Instantly the crowd was upon the spot, and upon the mass, and soon the injured men were removed. Their names could not be ascertained by the chief, but it was said that all or one men were unconscious when rescued and that two of them were fatally injured.

The climax of interest was reached after midnight, when a company of 30 men could be seen by the watchers outside the building edging their way along the ridge of the roof. Heretofore all efforts in this direction had practically failed, and owing to the frightful loss of life on the fair grounds when firemen were ordered up to fight a possible fire on the roof, the marshals had been slow to incur the responsibility of duplicating such a peril.

Dead and Injured.

The great fire was not without its work of death and injury. For the second time within the history of the exposition firemen risked life and limb to save the property of others, and saddened homes are the result. William Mackey, pipeman of Engine Company No. 61, fell from a ladder on the peristyle and was internally injured and died at Mercy hospital.

The injured are Captain Frederick Getz, Truck Company No. 16, fell from the roof of Manufactures hall, left leg broken, chest badly injured and internally hurt; Eugene Dunsell, watchman in the French section of the Manufactures building, struck on head by plank, badly cut and bruised, removed to Mercy hospital.

At midnight President Higginbotham telephoned that he had been in the burning building over two hours; the roof had burned and fallen, but that fortunately few of the exhibits were in the range of the falling embers.

"I should say that the loss by water would be much greater than by fire," he said. "The total loss to exhibits will not exceed $100,000. Of course the loss is serious enough, but the fire is now fairly under control, and there is no more fear. All told, the contents of the Liberal Arts building did not exceed $1,000,000 in value. As to the Casino, peristyle and Music hall, there is no loss. We should not regret their burning, as it is the cheapest way to remove them."

A Great Woman Chess Player.

It has been said that a man who can play a great game of chess can lead an army to victory. Cannot the same, then, be true of a woman? If so, Kentucky has produced a great woman chess player. She has been pronounced the greatest woman chess player in America. Her name is Mrs. J. W. Showalter, the wife of the champion. She is only 22 years old and is described as the possessor of very abundant golden brown hair, large, full, violet blue eyes and a charming peachblow colored complexion. Perhaps if she lives until the next great war she will develop into a successful general in the army.

She said in a recent conversation that her husband had taught her to play chess. She continued, "He began by giving me the odds of a queen, and as I learned quite rapidly he played the game with me a good deal." She was asked, "Does he give you odds now?" and she replied, "He can't give me the odds of a knight and win the game, though with the odds of a pawn and two moves I cannot beat him."—Indianapolis Sentinel.

A Woman of Genius.

Mrs. Charlotte Westcott Romney, to whom belongs the credit of having the greatest number of exhibits entered for competition at the World's fair, no fewer than 14 articles having been entered by her for inspection, is an accomplished writer for the press. At the age of 16 she taught Greek. At 20 she held next to the highest position in one of the public schools in Chicago. Later she became literary editor of the Chicago Times. She gave up this position to marry a young lawyer who died a short time after their marriage. She has returned to her newspaper work, going to Washington as a regular correspondent and special for several papers. She has visited papers in California, Colorado, Texas, Mexico and other places; has been abroad, but is now living in Chicago and has turned her attention to patents and inventions, which she bids fair to make successful.—Exchange.

Confections of the Toilet.

Here are some of the so called confections of the toilet to which the French lady pays so much attention: Silk corset laces; silk drawstrings for skirts, tights, etc., lace ruffles run with narrow ribbons, garters with buckles and bows, cuffs and collars of silk plush, gold and silver bands to keep the skirts from running up above the hips or waist; shoes, boots and slippers lined with colored kid, embroidered handkerchiefs edged with narrow lace, hemstitched flannel skirts, muslin and silk ruffles edged with valenciennes laces, ruffling on nightdresses and dressing jackets, beautifully trimmed to the garment; silk embroidered veils, silver ornaments, such as the violets, flowers, leaves, clover, etc., applied to an opera bag; fur lined carriage shoes, silk covered footrests, silver buckles for the belting in dress waists, infant muslins for underwear, etc.—Fashion Journal.

Woman's Work.

"Don't talk to me about men's work," began a disgusted looking woman as she rolling into the first convenient chair. "Look at me! I was up half the night with the baby. I happened at the breakfast table to send John and the children off happy. I had a letter from my mother-in-law; she's coming to visit us. I went to market. I went to the dressmaker's. I rushed home in time for the children's luncheon. I went to the club and read a paper on woman's place in the business world. I visited my poor family. I hurried home to make the dessert. I dressed for dinner. John brought home unexpected company. I put the children to bed. Went to the theater with John, who thought I needed recreation, and who would have been grieved if I had declined it. Came home and was up three hours with the baby."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A Persian Boudoir.

A Persian lady's rooms do not occupy much of her time or attention. They are very simple, and taste plays no important part in them. The walls are either plainly tinted, ornamented with scrolls, carved in plaster or inlaid up to the ceiling with fragments of looking glasses. Her bedding by day is rolled up in a corner of the room also generally inhabits. On a shelf in every niche stands a turquoise colored vase, on which rests a sacredly scented shaddock.

This is the only decoration excepting the exquisite carpets and rugs which are spread about the floor. She is thoroughly domestic and spends her women servants and slaves much as if they were her equals, interesting herself in the cookery and often making the sweetmeats in which an original household delights.—Upholsterer.

Woman's Hands.

American women have the smallest hands in the world; then come in order the Austrian, the Spanish, the Italian and the French. The Spanish small hands, however, have a large palm, round at the wrist end, and soon become ugly. The Russians have a middle sized hand, well made as a rule. The English have, if not the prettiest hands, the most aristocratic ones, rather too long and too dry, but always refined. As to the Germans, their hands are commonly large, thanks to their fashion, established from generations past, of sending young girls of all ranks down to the kitchen to learn all menial work, including cooking, washing and tossing.—New York Advertiser.

How to Cleanse the Carafe.

Carafes, which have so lately replaced the ice pitcher, are pleasing and refreshing to look at if they are kept fastidiously clean and bright. Unfortunately the purest water obtainable very soon dulls the inside, and it isn't every one who knows a quick and easy way to remove this. A very simple thing to do is to tear a newspaper into small bits and nearly or quite fill the carafe. Then pour in warm soapsuds, with a little ammonia, and shake well. The paper will soon scour the bottle thoroughly clean, and it only remains to rinse it out well before using it again.

A Family of Clever Women.

A remarkable instance of hereditary talent descending in the female line is exemplified in the family of Mme. Blavatsky. Her grandmother, Princess Dolgourski, was a famous geologist and botanist. Her daughter, Mme. Blavatsky's mother, Mme. Hahn, as a novelist, was called the George Sand of Russia; Mme. Blavatsky's sister, Mme. Jelihovsky, has written 60 stories, besides articles innumerable, while Mlle. Jelihovsky, her daughter, has shown the family talent by translating Mme. Blavatsky's novel, "The Caves and Jungles of India."—Washington Post.

The Face Bag.

To keep the face clean without the use of soap make a little bag of cheese cloth and fill it with bran, oatmeal or almond, and when you wash your face use this bag in place of soap. When the bag is dried, it may be utilized again if the meal is almond, but where oatmeal is used it should be renewed every day.—Exchange.

That's what's the matter with the most of us. What's the reason? Poor circulation of the blood. You cannot be healthy unless the blood is pure. Ayer's Sarsaparilla makes pure blood. Get up good circulation, healthy action, and how quick your pains and aches will vanish. One foot bath of Anti-Tire will do it. Trial size, 15c. Regular size, 25c. LIABILITIES.

To creditors	$179,548.42
Difference in Mr. Schepflin's favor if he could realize on the assets at their face value	$106,997.04

The failure is attributed largely to heavy losses which the concern has had to sustain during the past two years in the South and West, by customers who have failed owing Mr. Schepflin large sums of money. His losses in this way alone are placed at over $50,000 within two years, and he did not feel able to stand the drain any longer. He would have tried to pull through, however, for the sake of his employees, of whom there are a great many who will suffer. The action of the New York banks last Friday in refusing him any further credit in money, which he required to pay his help, and meet running expenses, was however, the last straw. This action was unexpected, as he offered what in ordinary times would be considered as abundant collateral in bills receivable for goods sold.

Mr. Schepflin began the wholesale business in Plainfield in a small way in 1865, on the third floor occupied by Mr. F. W. Runyon's printing office in the Dunlap building, corner of East Front and Somerset streets.

His good business methods enabled him to make rapid strides toward prosperity. Within a few years he had to seek larger quarters and more capital to enlarge his facilities.

In 1867 he increased his capital to $100,000 by taking as partners Mr. A. C. Baldwin of Park avenue, and later Mr. Charles Tweedy of Crescent avenue, each of these gentlemen putting in $40,000, or in all $80,000 of the $100,000.

The firm leased the Elston Marsh (afterwards the T. J. Carey) four story brick building, corner of West Front and Grove streets, and removed into it. In 1885 the property was destroyed by fire. It was, however, insured, for enough to cover most of the loss, although the concern suffered seriously by the fire.

The building was rebuilt, and the business still increasing the concern bought four adjoining lots and erected on them four large brick buildings which they forthwith occupied in addition to what they already had.

Still the concern grew and the business finally reached a magnitude of one and a half million dollars per year.

The concern was rated very high commercially, with credit good for half a million dollars as late as six years ago.

Mr. Tweedy died some five years ago, and his capital with what it had earned was drawn out of the firm by the executors in settlement of the estate. About the same time Mr. Baldwin retired from business on account of his health and years, and Mr. Schepflin continued the business alone. He got along very well until within two years ago, when the numerous failures of customers in the West and South made it advisable to retrench.

Last year matters growing worse finally compelled Mr. Schepflin to take his present course.

The utmost sympathy is felt for him, by all who know of his trouble, and the wish is strongly expressed that he will be able to make some arrangements which will enable him to continue.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Clarinda Peney died yesterday at South Plainfield of erysipelas. She was 27 years old.

Mrs. Louie Milner of New York has returned after a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Bird of West Front street.

The "Lone Star Quartette," formed of young boy members of choirs, has lost a bright particular beam of light, according to a communication sent us, which states that Master Louie Tallamy has resigned his position as a "Lone Starite."

It seems almost incredible that in this age, people living as near New York as Mr. Bethel, a small village beyond the Watchung mountain, should be total strangers to a metropolis. Miss Margaret Terrel, a resident of Mt. Bethel, and exceedingly well informed, bright and pleasant personally, on Monday made her first visit to New York in 25 years. It was like going to the World's Fair. Miss Terrel returned home in the evening to the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jones of Grandview avenue where she was visiting, feeling just about as those who "did the Fair" felt after their first day—tired out, both mentally and physically.

NUPTIALS.

Moore—Miner.

Mr. Frederick S. Moore and Miss Josephine Miner were married at St. Mary's rectory, at eight o'clock last night, by the Rev. Father Smyth.

Mr. Henry Windham was best man and Miss Reili was bride-maid.

A reception followed at the home of the bride, in one of Mr. Love's new flats. The bridal couple left on the L.V train for Washington.

Concerning the Late Mr. I. Ames.

The death of Mr. Charles I. Ames which occurred in this city on Tuesday morning, is deserving of more than passing notice. He had lived in Plainfield twenty or two years or more, and no man enjoyed greater respect in the community. He left an impress of purity of thought and life on those with whom he came in contact. He was a man of scrupulous sense of justice and honor, and all who knew him felt the genuineness of his character. It may be truly said that he was faithful to every trust, and charitable without ostentation. He was identified with Grace Church for many years as a member and a vestryman. His connection with it began when it was a small, struggling parish, and to its welfare and growth he generously contributed and in its prosperity rejoiced to the day of his death.

Those who had the privilege of being his neighbors must testify to a sense of great loss, for his kind interest and sympathy never failed, through years of unbroken friendship. But above all, the sweetest memories are those which gather about his domestic life. What his unselfish devotion was to those nearest to him cannot be expressed in the columns of a public journal.

Bank Directors Elect Officers.

The newly elected directors of the City National and First National Banks, published in yesterday's News, met later in the afternoon and elected officers as follows:

CITY NATIONAL.

President—Charles Hyde.
Vice President—Elias R. Pope.
Cashier—W. F Arnold.

FIRST NATIONAL.

President—Charles Potter.
Vice President—D. F Randolph.
Cashier F. S. Runyon.

Workmen Go on a Strike.

This morning Street Commissioner Gavin, who has charge of the grading of the upper end of Grove street, discharged one of the men because he thought he was loafing. Several of the other workmen on strike because their fellow workman had been discharged. Most of them returned to work, however.

An Important Meeting

To-morrow night's meeting of Central Lodge, No. 48, Ancient Order of United Workmen, will be a most important one as the question of establishing a fund to insure the permanency of the lodge and Order will be discussed. The new officers will also be installed by Master Workman Salmon Baker.

A Load of Hay Upset.

This morning as a farmer named Reynolds from over the mountain was hauling a load of hay off the scales at Mr. Thorpe's coal and lumber yard, on Watchung avenue, the wagon upset, and the hay was thrown against the side of the office and across the sidewalk.

VETERANS AND AID

JOINT INSTALLATION IN G. A. R. HALL LAST NIGHT.

Past Department Commander James Atwood Installs the Post Officers, and Mrs. W. C. Smith Does Likewise with the Women.

THERE was a public installation last night in Grand Army Hall of the newly elected officers of Winfield Scott Post, No. 72, G. A. R. and Woman's Relief Corps No 16. The ceremonies appropriate on such an occasion and the patriotic address made by Mr. Liebthorn, one of the editors of the Mail and Express of New York, served to bring back to the minds of the old comrades scenes never to be forgotten, when once seen. It brought back to them visions of blood, shed and strife, when the men who compose the Grand Army Posts of to-day were fighting for a noble cause—the saving of the Union.

The G. A. R. officers were installed by Past Department Commander James Atwood, and were as follows:

Commander—R. W. Reese.
Senior Vice Commander—C. B. Stephens.
Junior Vice Commander—C. H. Westphal.
Quartermaster—Andrew Cox.
Surgeon—William Gale.
Officer of the Day—L. L. McVey.
Officer of the Guard—Robert Milligan.
Adjutant—M. C. Dobbins.
Sergeant Major—Capt. Hand.
Assistant Quartermaster—Francis E. Whitely.
Council of Administration—M. C. Smith, J. E. Stewart, S. C. Baker and Charles Graves.
Chaplain—John Goodwin.
Delegates to the Department Encampment—Andrew Cox, and W. W. Cortelyou.
Alternates—Messrs. McVey and Allpaugh.

At the conclusion of the Grand Army's ceremonies Mrs. Smith, the retiring president of the Relief Corps, installed the following officers:

President—Mrs. Angleman.
Senior Vice—Mrs. M. C. Dobbins.
Junior Vice—Mrs. L. L. McVey.
Chaplain—Mrs. Corwin.
Conductor—Mrs. Hadin.
Guard—Mrs. Mattox.
Assistant Guard—Mrs. Josie Huntington.

When the women had been installed Commander Reese took charge of the meeting.

After his Graves had rendered a solo, Past Department Commander James Atwood made a short address. He said that now that new men had been elected the old ones should also look after the welfare of the Post. Concluding he said, "Winfield Scott Post is one of the best Posts in the department. If it were not for the Winfield Scott Post I should say that it was the best. You must always co-operate, for without co-operation you can do nothing. Winfield Scott Post never gets left."

Commander Reese then said he wished to introduce to the Post a daughter of an old soldier, Miss Anna Cooper of Westfield. Miss Cooper recited "Christmas Night" in a manner showing her to be an elocutionist of talent.

A piano solo was rendered by Miss Ida Randolph in a most excellent manner.

Mr. Lightborn was next introduced. His address was a very patriotic one. He said: "I never fought in the war but I am nevertheless a member of the Grand Army. I am one of 19 honorary members of the Grand Army of the Republic because I love my country. I hold that no man can love his country without loving the Grand Army. He would have no country and no Union, but for them. I have no toleration for the man who treats with disdain these grand noble men who staked their lives for the Union. I never yet looked into the face of a Grand Army man that I did not feel like taking off my hat to him.

"Each year sees these ranks growing thinner, and each D-coration Day finds more graves to decorate, but as they leave the ranks their deeds still remain behind them. Their deeds will never die. Every locality should feel honored in having a Grand Army Post in its midst. No one who feels a love for his country can help but honor them. The patriotism dies the nation dies, and when the throbs of patriotism are felt by every person then does the nation grow.

"I love the Grand Army because it has associated with it memories of a precious country. The cruel battles fought forever settled the question of secession. I was born and raised in the South and a bloody battle field covered with the dead shown to me by my father will always be fixed on my memory. I am the only Republican in my family. I say, placed be the hand that takes up the pen to veto the pension of a soldier."

Addresses were also made by Assistant Department Quartermaster Bodine and Department Quartermaster Kouts.

The programme was brought to close with a piano solo by Miss Randolph and a recitation and reading by Miss Cooper.

In the hall below a beautiful repast, prepared by the ladies, was feasted upon by the members and guests.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

DEMOCRATS HOLD THE FORT.

But it is Said They are Anxious to Compromise

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 10.—The second day of the Legislative fight started this morning, with the Democratic Senators holding the fort.

The Republican Senators met at eight o'clock in the Assembly Chamber. Previous to opening the session they demanded the keys to the Senate Chamber of the Superintendent of the State House, but were refused.

Attorney-General Stockton is expected to give his opinion as to which is the legal body some time to-day. Already, it is said, the Democrats have made overtures to the Republicans, agreeing to surrender the chamber if they are given a few of the offices.

The Republicans refused, feeling confident that they will yet be recognized as the legal body.

Union County Didn't Back Him.

The Trenton correspondent of the Elizabeth Journal has the following to say of Judge Ulrich of this city, in his report of legislative matters:

"Judge Ulrich was there, too, as a candidate for Comptroller. Candor compels me to say that no man was less named, either for the Comptrollership or any other office, than was Judge Ulrich. He did not have the Union county contingent to back him, and as yet I have been unable to find what he did have to back him, except a full consciousness of his ability to ask for the office and fill it if he could get it. It is a fact, too, that his candidacy tended to weaken even the numerical weakness of Union county's claims, for it gave some outsiders the excuse for opposing Union on the ground that she wanted too much."

Plainfielders Challenge Perth Amboy Crack Shooters.

Eccentric Conduct of the Moon and Healy.

The foreman of the Union County Grand Jury received yesterday a postal card, signed "Mr. W. P. Healy, Elizabeth, N. J., U. S. A." On the postal card was a fine of no nation in particular, on a background of thunder clouds. Beneath the flag was printed: "United States vs. Superintendent Byrnes." Then there was a laboriously printed statement, interspersed liberally with Scriptural quotations, to the effect that the wicked should die, because astronomical data proved that the motion of the moon was accelerated from 12 p. m. to 12 a. m. Nov. 3, and Mr. Healy defied Col Bob Ingersoll to disprove the fact. It was also stated that for five days the moon was 30° out of her orbit, and Mr. Healy said that Col. Bob Ingersoll could not disprove that, either. The last words of the statement were:

"The Lord lives! The wicked shall die! Wake up!"

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Girls.

We observe that numerous good people at present seem to be troubled over the question, What shall we do with our girls? Hard as the question is, a majority of mankind will agree that it is much easier to say what we should do with our girls than what we should do without them.

One gentleman with old fashioned ideas suggests that after completing their education, at an age which he puts at 18 years, girls should be sent into domestic training for one year and made each to run a house all herself, attending to its details as though she were the actual mistress of it and responsible for its expenses. He quotes with approval the example of a mother of six daughters who trained them every season that way.

But would it not be absurd to train all girls exactly alike, as if they were leaden bullets to be run in the same mold? Would it not, on the contrary, be the part of wisdom to ask the girls themselves what they want to do and encourage them to do it? Is a girl's education to only begin. If a young woman were born to be a singer, an artist or a teacher, would it not be manifest foolishness to have her waste a whole year on housekeeping when she should be spending it gaining her profession? The one essential thing in the training of a girl is that she should be educated to do some good, earnest work—no matter what—whatever she likes best, but something. Idleness, novel reading, day dreaming and a narrow, hypothrum home life will fritter away and ruin soon the brightest, most rigorous mind.

The St. Paul Press Club.

The prevailing Minnesota originality permeates organizations and individuals. The St. Paul Press club was the first, and we believe is thus far the only one admitting to membership newspaper men and women on equal terms. From its progressive basis that St. Paul Press club has now evolved another idea worth noting. Harry W. Mack, of the St. Paul Globe, and chairman of the club executive committee, is said to be originally responsible for this idea.

Twenty-five members of the club were appointed to write each a story of 3,000 words and each to beat a most fiendish twist in it, as the case might be. The 25 stories have been published in book form and are for sale. The prospectus says: "The volume is designed to be the greatest literary production of the northwest in 10 years." St. Paul newspaper men are nothing if not modest.

The book contains 300 pages and is illustrated with portraits of the handsome newspaper people who wrote the 25 stories. It is beautifully bound and printed. Its name will especially commend it to the newspaper fraternity all over the country. It is this, "For Revenue Only." In brief, the club is earnestly desirous of raising revenue to meet the expenses of its government, and hopes this book will be the means of bringing the name. Newspaper people who where present to the St. Paul Press club assurances of their distinguished consideration, and they hope so too.

It is announced that a beet sugar factory is to be started at Omaha by Count Ladenasky and that it will cost $1,000,000. A refinery will be run in connection with the factory. Two hundred Polish families are coming over to make the sugar. The farmers of Nebraska on their part must guarantee to plant and cultivate 6,000 acres in sugar beets annually. We may hope that this sugar beet factory will not in time come to be known as Ladenasky's folly.

Chicago now outranks New York in at least one respect—that is the number of unemployed persons. The number there now reaches 117,000. New York has 100,000. Many of the poor, stranded fellows in Chicago are those left over from the World's fair. If some of them had saved a part of the wages paid to them while the exposition was in progress, they would at least now have money enough to take them out of town.

That is rather ironical comfort that the anarchists send in messages to their comrades in Valliant, the bomb thrower. They say in effect, "Never mind, Valliant, your comrades will know how to avenge you if the tyrants dare to take your head." It may be plain to the anarchist mind, but not to the rest of mankind, what good it will do a man after he has lost his own head to have the heads of other people shot off.

One afternoon lately the telephone bells in the office of the mayor of New York city began to ring in a way that made the bello boys jump. "What is it? Who are you?" they exclaimed. The answer was this, "It is John D. Mooby, mayor of Cincinnati, possessing his complete ode to Mayor Gilroy." Thus the only telephone line between New York and Cincinnati was opened.

JERSEY'S TWO SENATES

One Is Democratic, and the Other Is Republican.

REPUBLICANS ARE LOCKED OUT.

The Democrats Organized First and Refused to Recognize the New Republican Members—Republicans Retired to a Lobby Room and Elected Their Officers.

TRENTON, Jan. 10.—There are today two senates in this state. One is the Democratic senate, which is recognized by Governor Werts. The other is that of Republican senators, which is recognized by the house. That is the situation. The Democrats have the keys to the senate chamber, and the Republicans must meet where they can.

Early in the afternoon a detachment of police was ordered to the statehouse in command of Captain Cleary of the Trenton department. The captain went at once to the governor's private room and received instructions from him. Already the corridors were so thronged that all passage to the senate chamber was completely blocked. The police then marched up the corridor, pushing the crowd back, and formed a passageway to the doors of the chamber.

In the senate chamber the Democratic holdover members were seated, waiting for 3 o'clock, the time for meeting, to arrive. The doors were locked. Sergeant-at-arms Nathan of the last session was guarding them within. No one but a few state officers and favored persons were admitted, newspaper men excepted.

At five minutes to 3 Samuel Thompson, the clerk of the senate, called the senate to order, and on resolution of Senator Daly, Robert Adrian of Middlesex was elected temporary chairman. The roll was called, and Senators Winton, Miller, Mc-Michel, Perkins, Hinchliff, Brake, Martin, Daly and Adrian answered to their names.

A Fight at the Doors.

The officers were in their seats when the Republican senators rapped at the door for admission. The crowd outside was in great commotion, and the senators had an exceedingly difficult time to get to the doors of the chamber. The sergeant-at-arms demanded the names of those who rapped. The doors were opened a little, and the first senator to enter was Bradley of Monmouth. He was closely followed by Senator Skirin of Mercer and Senator Packer of Gloucester.

When Senator Ketcham entered, County Clerk Gummere of Mercer attempted to enter with him. The sergeant-at-arms and his attendants made a desperate effort to keep him out, and Senator Ketcham struck two or three of them over the head with a cane, at the same time exclaiming, "You don't own this senate!" Finally all the senators were admitted and took their seats.

Chairman Adrian instructed the secretary to call the roll, when Senator Stokes rose to a question of privilege. He said they had come here to organize the senate in the usual way. They were surprised to find the senate duly organized, and wanted assurance that all the senators elect would be sworn in. He wanted to know whether Senator Bradley would be sworn in or not.

Chairman Adrian replied that the hour of 3 o'clock having arrived, they had organized in the regular way and had then taken a recess to await the possible arrival of the senators. Senator Daly then offered a resolution that the credentials of the new senators be referred to a committee of three, to be appointed by the chairman. Senator Stokes protested against this and said it was about time for them to assert their constitutional rights. He said the people of the state had elected a majority of Republican senators and should have the fruits of their victory. He said he understood that Senator Bradley had been sworn in. Bradley replied that he had. Chairman Adrian called him to order.

Senator Skirin then presented the credentials of the new senators, and sworn of office, but Adrian refused to accept them.

At this point Senator Voorhees of Union took the floor, but Chairman Adrian refused to recognize him, and he then demanded his rights as a senator from Union county. Chairman Adrian directed the sergeant-at-arms to compel the gentleman to take his seat, but Senator Voorhees defied him, saying that he did not recognize him as his sergeant-at-arms.

Voorhees Defied the Chair.

"I demand my rights, Mr. Chairman, and I propose to have them," continued Mr. Voorhees. "I am here with my credentials and oath of office, and I must be recognized."

When still refused, he advised that the Republican senators withdraw, and they all repaired to a lobby room. Chairman Adrian directed the sergeant-at-arms to clear the lobbies and floor, but the lobbies were not disturbed.

The Republicans proceeded to organize by electing the officers selected in the morning. They then sent a message to the house and were recognized by that body. The committee on credentials ingress and egress through the windows. A committee was also sent to the governor, who stated that he had already received a message from a body who called themselves a senate, and he would have to consult his legal adviser before doing more.

The Democrats remained in session in the senate chamber, and after completing the organization the credentials of the senators were called for. Vouchers from citizens of Camden, Salem and Monmouth counties were presented against the seating of Senators Rogers, Ward and Bradley on the grounds of fraud, corruption and bribery. Senator Winton offered bills repealing the race track laws. The Democratic senate adjourned until this morning. Senator Winton offered bills repealing the race track laws. The Democratic senate adjourned until this morning. The Republicans remained in session. They should be admitted to the chamber except state officers and senators. The Republicans became wilderment until evening. The house organized without anything of moment taking place.

The Republican senate held a short night session in the assembly chamber. They requested the assistant janitor of the statehouse for permission to enter the senate chamber, but were refused. The sergeant-at-arms of the Democratic senate had taken the keys home with him.

A big crowd in the corridors offered to break open the doors, and the senators had to appeal to them not to do so. Senator Ketcham offered a resolution that the sergeant-at-arms of the Republican senate ask for the keys before the next session. The senate then adjourned till this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The New York Legislature.

ALBANY, Jan. 10.—The business of the legislature session of 1894 began in earnest. In the assembly both galleries and the space behind the railing were filled with spectators. The number of ladies in the ladies' gallery was unusually large for the opening night.

The probable make-up of the standing committees was the chief topic of interest among the members. Speaker Malby called the house to order, and proceedings were opened by prayer by the Rev. Mr. Bentwick. Many new bills were introduced, and the following annual reports were received and ordered to be printed:

Superintendent of banks, state comptroller, Central New York Asylum For Deaf Mutes, Institute For Deaf Mutes, city of New York, superintendent of public works, adjutant general, state engineer and surveyor, board of managers of the State reformatory and railroad commissioners. The last report was read for the information of the house. The speaker then announced the standing committees.

In the senate Senator Tim Sullivan was the only one absent, the circle who had a floral offering on his desk. By some oversight the usual prayer was omitted, and the session began by the reading of the names.

The following annual reports were handed down: Bank superintendent, railroad commissioners, New York Children's Industrial home and state treasurer.

Mr. Saxton, president pro tem. of the senate, then announced the appointment of the standing committees.

AFFAIRS IN BRAZIL.

Peixoto Still Awaiting Many Proposed Traitors.

BUENOS AYRES, Jan. 10.—The latest advices from Rio Janeiro are as follows: Peixoto is at the capitol. The arrest of persons suspected of sympathy with the revolution is constant. One of the persons arrested was an emissary from the federal leader, Saldanha da Gama, who was bearing letters for Admiral de Mello. President Peixoto is fortifying the coast and is preparing to attack Admiral de Mello.

The insurgents have made an unsuccessful attempt to effect a landing on the island of Mocanguez. Admiral Saldanha da Gama has issued a proclamation declaring that the recent monarchical pronouncement issued in his name was apocryphal. He denounces President Peixoto as a military tyrant and declares that the people ought to overthrow the Jacobins and establish a civil republic on a firm basis. Disorder has occurred at Pernambuco, Para and Ceara.

TWO BIG TARIFF GUNS.

Wilson and Burrows Open the Debate.

A MAMMOTH PETITION PRESENTED

The Senate Not Ready to Consider the Federal Elections Bill, and It Went Over. Boutelle's Hawaiian Resolution Reported Favorably.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—It was a field day in the house for the tariff. The galleries were thronged all day, and the floor was crowded. Each side put forth its most brilliant orators for the day session. Mr. Wilson, the chairman of the ways and means committee, completed the speech which he began Monday, and Mr. Burrows opened the debate for the Republicans with a three hour reply.

During the course of Mr. Burrows' speech he displayed a petition which he said was 30 yards long, protesting against the passage of Mr. Wilson bill and the placing of wool on the free list. He said he also had letters from 45 states protesting against it. Mr. Burrows spoke for almost three hours. At the conclusion of his speech there was a great outburst of Republican applause, so long continued as to call forth a rebuke from the chair. The Republicans generally went to Mr. Burrows' seat to congratulate him, and he was presented with a bouquet of 37 roses, this being his fifty-seventh birthday. After order had been restored General J. C. Black of Illinois, ex-commissioner of pensions, took the floor, and Mr. Black is also of Illinois to-day. The good points of all the speakers were liberally applauded by their respective partisans.

At the evening session Mr. Haines, a Democrat from Troy, N. Y., in the name of the collar and cuff industry, fired the first shot into the Wilson bill. His display a gigantic petition protesting against the collar and cuff schedule and declaring that if it were to become a law it would ruin this American industry.

He then presented to the committee the mammoth petition, the like of which has never been seen in the house. It was a gigantic web some 2 feet thick, 6 feet long and 4 feet wide, bound in red, white and blue, addressed on the cover, "To the Congress of the United States," the title being, "The Petition of the Citizens and Collar and Cuff Operators of New York." It was carried into the hall of representatives by four men. It was signed by 60,519 people, 50,706 from Troy and vicinity and the rest from Albany.

Indorsed Boutelle's Resolution.

A message was furnished in the Hawaiian matter by the action of the house committee on naval affairs, which voted unanimously to favorably report the Boutelle resolution to the house.

This resolution is an ironclad one, calling upon the secretary of the navy to inform the house by what authority orders have been issued placing the naval forces under the orders of Minister Blount, and to furnish copies of all orders or suggestions issued by his authority to officers of the navy since March 4, 1893, concerning the use of naval forces at the Hawaiian Islands.

An amendment was made changing the date to March 4, 1889, so that the operations of the navy in Hawaii under the Harrison administration would be included. The secretary of the navy is directed to furnish the information and is given no option to withhold documents which he might consider secret or the publicity of which at this time might be regarded as contrary to public policy.

Chairman Cummings of the naval committee will report the Boutelle resolution to the house immediately, but says that it cannot be considered until the debate on the Wilson bill has been finished. Mr. Boutelle, on the other hand, thinks that the resolution can be called up at once and be debated for 15 minutes by each side, as provided for by the rules.

Elections Bill Goes Over.

The session of the senate did not develop the interest that was anticipated. The consideration of the federal elections bill was not begun according to the programme of Senator Gray, as no one seemed prepared to speak, and after some colloquy between Senators Sanders, Gray and Gorman over the method of procedure the measure finally went over until next Monday. At that time Senator Gorman will make up an finished business, and Senator Gray gave notice that he would press its consideration "seasonably and continuously" until a vote be had.

The Hawaiian situation failed to elicit the debate that was promised. Senator Chandler's resolution calling for an opinion as to the constitutionality and regularity of the appointment of Commissioner Blount by President Cleveland was called up and after some discussion, in which Senator Sherman had expressed his opinion that its passage would be disrespectful to the foreign relations committee, which is already considering the subject, Senator Chandler, finding his own party not a unit in support of his proposition, promptly withdrew it.

Offered Money to Dice.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—The managers of a Jersey City banquet which is to take place Jan. 20, are doomed to disappointment, and members of congress are laughing at their expense. The Jersey City men wrote recently to 18 paton McPherson asking him to invite ex-Speaker Reed and Representative Wilson of West Virginia to attend the banquet and respond to a tariff sentiment. In the absence of the senator a Jersey City representative undertook the task. He was authorized by the letter to offer to Messrs. Reed and Wilson $100 each and their expenses. When Mr. Reed heard the proposition, he grinned and said:

"Of course the laborer is worthy of his hire, but for the present and the next few years I prefer to devote my time to my own hands here. I regret that it will be impossible for me to accept the generous offer."

Mr. Wilson at first was disposed to regard the proposition as a joke, but when informed that it was made seriously he smiled and said, "I am afraid you will have to excuse me."

Both men have received many invitations to public dinners, but this is the first that has been accompanied by an offer of money.

HER MIND IS CLEARING.

Miss Barrowcliffe Begins the Story of Her Adventure.

THE POLICE THINK SHE ONLY FELL

The Attempted Assault Upon the Young Jersey City Music Teacher Is as Much a Mystery as Ever — In Time She Will Probably Tell All.

JERSEY CITY, Jan. 10.—Steadily the clouds that obscure the intellect of Miss May Barrowcliffe are vanishing. She was able to recall her movements of that eventful night up to the time of leaving Mrs. Smith's dwelling to keep her engagement with her cousin. Then her mind began to wander. She is gaining physically and mentally; and in a few days she will reveal who her assailant was, if she knew him, or describe him if a stranger.

Her mind was clear in one particular. No one is allowed to see her except the two detective nurses and Dr. Varick. Even the hospital physicians are excluded. She knew that her cousin, Gertrude Dexter, had not been at her bedside for several days, and she rebuked her cousin for her apparent neglect.

Asked For Her Cousin.

Her first query when she aroused was, "Is this Sunday?" A moment later she asked the nurse if she did not think Gertie was behaving badly in not coming to see her. "She does not come to see me at all. I think it is very strange," remarked the patient.

Dr. Varick explains that it is done that her improvement shall not be retarded. Just at the close of the day she seemed brighter than she had been at any time since she has been a patient, and she was interrogated about what she could recollect of the night of the assault. She remembered distinctly having called at Mrs. Smith's dwelling to give the music lesson, and even recollected that she and Mrs. Smith talked at the door as she was taking her leave, and her remark that she had to hurry, as she had an engagement to meet Gertrude Dexter at half past 6 o'clock. She could not tell what occurred after leaving Mrs. Smith's.

"I went along; to where the trains turned," was the vague statement. Her mind began to wander. She was stronger and was propped up with pillows. For the first time she took the bowl of gruel in her own hands and drank it.

The police have adopted the theory that she may have fallen from the "rocks. On Monday she said, "You must think I am a goose not to remember how I came to fall." This theory appears plausible now.

Six avenue is three or four feet above the lot. At one point near Van Wagenen avenue the embankment has been washed out, leaving a gap of two feet, but when the street and lot are level. The rocks are steep, and it is now regarded as possible that she stepped over the edge of the street and pitched headlong to the rock covered lot.

The fall dazed her, and she may have mechanically wandered around the lot until she lapsed into unconsciousness and fell on the rock where she was found on her forehead. They are pursuing this theory, despite the statements of the hospital physicians.

New Witnesses Found.

Detectives Hobbs and Cline were at the lot Tuesday overturning the bowlders and making a thorough search for the missing postage stamp.

They found a new witness in Margaret Murphy, a young girl living on West Side avenue, who overheard how Miss Barrowcliffe knew Mrs. Smith's address into Linwood avenue.

D. W. Dobert of 140 Rutgers avenue is a member of the Helping Hand society, a charitable organization connected with the Grace Methodist Episcopal church at Marion. He furnished a possible clue to District Attorney Winfield. The Helping Hand society aids all calls for charity. He says that on the Wednesday prior to the assault a tramp, rather neatly dressed, applied for work. He told an interesting story and was given money to assist him in reaching his destination. The fellow did not leave the city, so Mr. Dobert has been informed, as he was seen about the Marion section late Friday afternoon.

The district attorney refuses to disclose the character of any information that he has received.

FATHER CORRIGAN DEAD.

He Was a Prominent Figure in the Catholic Church.

JERSEY CITY, Jan. 10.—Rev. Patrick A. Corrigan, D. D., of Hoboken, N. J., is dead. Father Corrigan was born in Ireland 58 years ago. After taking holy orders he came to the United States and was assigned (to Jersey City. Fifteen years ago he was transferred to Hoboken, N. J. He was a zealous worker and an advanced thinker. In the events which have begun the Catholic church of the United States in such a turmoil for the past few years he took a prominent part. He was a vigorous supporter of Archbishop Ireland and the liberal and progressive element, and at the time of his death he was as widely known as any Catholic in the country.

DROWNED A CLERGYMAN.

Two Men Charged With Causing the Death of Rev. Henry Chesseman.

CAMDEN, N. J., Jan. 10.—Rev. Henry N. Chesseman, pastor of the Eighth Street M. E. church, this city, was deliberately drowned in the Delaware river at the foot of Chestnut street by two men, who are supposed to be the ones now under arrest, charged with the crime.

Officer Zaner heard the clergyman cry loudly for help, but owing to the darkness was unable to locate the direction from which the sound came. He heard a second cry, but twitch stilled. Two sailors who had also heard the cries reached the spot about the same time as the officer. They saw the body of a man floating in the river, and leaping in brought it to shore. Life was not yet extinct, but the heart beats were very faint.

Mr. Chesseman expired in a few minutes. Shortly after the cries were heard two men are known to have run away from the wharf. The police later arrested Isaac George and Solomon Willis on suspicion of having committed the crime. What the clergyman was doing on the wharf at that time of night and what was the motive for the crime are mysteries.

THE MAN WITH THE IRON MASK.

The Masked Victim of One, and the Man Neither of the Numerous Persons Supposed.

Do we really at length know the great secret of the man with the iron mask? If the theory of a recent investigator is correct, there is very little doubt that we do, and the mysterious prisoner of Pignerol and the Bastile was neither a brother of Louis XIV nor Count Matthioli nor the husband of the grand mademoiselle nor Superintendent Fouquet nor any other of the numerous persons on whose behalf a claim has been set up by the ingenious. M. Bazeries has been engaged for some time in an attempt to discover the key of the cipher used by Louis XIV for his most secret state letters, and at length he has succeeded.

There exists a number of documents in the grand monarque's handwriting in the cipher, but hitherto no one has been able to make them out. Among them, M. Bazeries professes to have discovered a truly remarkable document. It is contained among the papers of Marshal Catinat, carefully preserved by his descendants. It sets forth the fact that the long wrinkle displeased at the conduct of M. de Balonde, who, against his orders, had raised the siege of Conti, and it ends by ordering him to be imprisoned at Pignerol, where he was to be shut up at night and only allowed to take outdoor exercise "in a mask." Supposing the authenticity of the document can be proved, it seems certain that this M. de Balonde and the man in the iron mask (which, by the way, was a velvet mask) are one and the same.

Language of Postage Stamps.

Of late years the postage stamp has been invested with a language of its own. When a stamp is inverted on the right hand upper corner, it means the person written to is to write no more. If the stamp be placed on the left hand upper corner inverted, then the writer declares his affection for the receiver of the letter. When the stamp is in the center at the top, it signifies an affirmative answer to a question or the greetings, as the case may be, and when it is at the bottom it is a negative. Should the stamp be on the right hand corner as a right angle, it asks the question if the receiver of the letter loves the sender, while in the left hand corner means that the writer hates the other.

There is a shade of difference between desiring one's acquaintance and friendship. For example, the stamp at the upper corner at the right expresses the former and on the lower left hand corner means the latter. The stamp on a line with the surface in an affirmative is the same place, only reversed, signifies that the writer is engaged. To say farewell, the stamp is placed straight up and down in the left hand corner.

The Apple's Early History.

The apple was probably introduced into England by the Romans, as many varieties were early in cultivation about Rome. Pliny mentions and describes some 30 different sorts, named for those who had originated or grafted them. Henry VIII is said to have been a great patron of the apple, and by his command large orchards were planted in Kent by Richard Harris, fruiterer to the king.

The early settlers in New England brought apple trees with them, an island in Boston harbor where they were planted still bearing their name. So readily was the apple domesticated and so kindly did it take to its new conditions that it soon became the lusty symbol of New England. The fruit was at once appreciated, adopted and spread by the Indians, many of the old Indian orchards being still common in the eastern states.

Singular Things About Hawaii.

"There are no snakes nor any other venomous reptilian life on beautiful Hawaii," says a correspondent of Science. "Wandering along the edge of the pali we see on the low trees charming pink shells. There are many varieties of these land shells in the forests of the tropics, and a collection has been made and catalogued from Oahu, Maui and Hawaii."

Pegasus, the Winged Horse.

Pegasus was, according to Greek mythology, a winged horse, the offspring of Neptune and Medusa, and which sprung forth from the neck of the latter after her head had been severed by Perseus. He is said to have received his name because he first made his appearance beside the springs of Oceanus.

Echoes From the Press.

Asbestus was known to the ancients, who made towels, napkins and other like articles of it. They used to clean them by throwing them into the fire.

The first notice of the use of coal is in the records of the abbey of Petersborough, England, in the year 850 A. D., which mention an item of 12 cartloads of "sea coal."

In Japanese sawing the teeth point toward the handle, and both saws and planes cut toward the workman.

A whale's throat is so small you could choke him with your fist, and he feeds on the smallest things in the sea.

If a pint of water be added to a pint of proof spirit, the mixture will not make a quart. A chemical change is the explanation.

Artificial ivory is made from condensed skimmilk.

The largest known species of night flying insects is the atlas moth, a resident of the American tropics, which has a wing spread of over a foot.

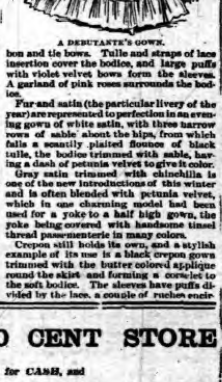
EVENING DRESS.

Fur and Satin Are to the Fore—Popularity of Turquoise and Other Shades of Blue.

Evening dresses now largely occupy attention and require much thought. For girls' evening wear, crepe gauze in any of the popular shades is a delightful material, draping most exquisitely. Moire antique in turquoise or forgetmenot blue—colors that have taken on a sudden popularity—and draped with deep vandyked flounces of cream lace, is seen in hand-some evening gowns, but this silk is too solid and important looking for very juvenile wearers and unquestionably suits better the style of women over five and twenty.

A sufficiently elaborate debutante's gown is of white grosgrain covered with tulle. The skirt is trimmed with three flounces of plaited tulle, headed with white satin ribbon and tie bows. Tulle and straps of lace insertion cover the bodice, and large puffs with violet velvet bows form the sleeves. A garland of pink roses surrounds the bodice.



A DEBUTANTE'S GOWN.

Fur and satin (the particular livery of the year) are represented to perfection in an evening gown of white satin, with three narrow rows of sable about the hips, from which falls a scantily plaited flounce of black tulle, the bodice trimmed with sable, having a dash of petunia velvet to give it color.

Gray satin trimmed with chinchilla is one of the new introductions of this winter but is often blended with petunia velvet, which in one charming model had been used for a yoke to a half high gown, the yoke being covered with handsome tinsel thread passementerie in many colors.

Crepon still holds its own, and a stylish example of its use is a black crepon gown trimmed with the butter colored applique round the skirt and forming a corselet to the soft bodice. The sleeves have puffs divided by the lace, a couple of ruches encircling the elbow.

For theater bodices accordion plaited chiffon is literally used, especially shot in gray and pink and other light tones of satin.

The best of all materials for ball dresses—tulle—has once more come to the fore, and over it lace flounces and lace scarfs are draped on skirts and bodices.

Fashions in Hosiery.

Stockings are so very pretty just now. Some black silk ones, embroidered, are most attractive, but the plain, open worked ones are preferred by many. These can be purchased in pure silk and in spun silk. Silk stockings both plain and embroidered, can be had in any color to match any dress. Cashmere and lisle thread stockings, both plain, embroidered and ribbed, are also in stock. Some in fine indian cashmere look almost like silk, and they of course are a little less expensive and wear longer. Then there are what the shopkeepers call "plated stockings," which means a combination of silk and cotton.

NEW STYLES IN STOCKINGS.

It is not necessary to wear stockings to match the dresses, as black silk embroidered is the color to accord with the gown or simple black silk stockings can almost be worn with anything. But with light satin shoes to match the dress stockings of the same hue are a necessity.

Black cotton hosiery comes with white feet for those who object to the colored feet, though the fast dyes now in stockings of fair quality have done much to obviate the old prejudice against wearing all black cotton hose.

What a French Dressmaking Artist Says.

One sees thousands of eccentric things, goes out for their novelty, in Paris, so that is is difficult, even in the best houses, to know exactly what will become the real mode. The best way to do, according to a Paris correspondent of Harper's Bazar, is to get the confidence of some very distinguished artist in the dressmaking line who is known to dress some of the most elegant of the French women. To her you pour out your perplexities, certain of getting trustworthy answers. "Must I wear basques?" you ask. "The backs are full of them." With what a sigh of relief do you hear: "They really are not taking at all. They make the figure look stout." "Yes, they are wearing the skirts draped," to another question, "but don't have a draped skirt unless you are tall and slender. The straight ones are just as much worn."

Silver Novelties.

The new open faced watches of enameled silver are having great vogue. The favorite color is blue. If they have chatelaines to match, they are preferred.

Corsage pins of silver, either a sword or battleax, with heads oval or round, with knots like gherkins, are preferred.

Silver hearts are provided to clasp the fabric bow of silk ribbon.

Mr. Joseph W. Reinhart of Netherwood the Defendant in Two Suits Now Being Tried at Elizabeth.—The Plaintiffs Allege Carelessness of Defendant Caused Them to Receive Injuries.

The Union County Circuit Court, at at Elizabeth, is hearing two suits for damages brought against Mr. Joseph W. Reinhart, of Netherwood, Mrs. Caroline J. Ohl of this city and Andrew Raebe, a retired resident of Morristown, are the plaintiffs. Each wants $10,000 from Mr. Reinhart for injuries received when Reinhart ran a dog-cart in front of his property on the night of October 14, 1892.

They were returning from a drive, and they say they drove on a big pile of stones at Mr. Reinhart's place. The obstruction, they claim, was not guarded by a light. The dog-cart was upset and the occupants thrown on the stones. They claimed they were badly hurt.

The suits are tried simultaneously. The evidence in the case in each case, and Judge Van Syckel thought it would expedite matters to try them together. Messrs. C. A. Reed and C. A. Marsh represent Mrs. Ohl and Lindabury the defendant.

Mrs. J. W. Seabury of Newark is spending the Winter with her parents on Watson street.

Mr. James B. Joy will give a popular talk on "Napoleon," at the Y. M. C. A. rooms on Thursday evening January 18th, at eight p. m. The talk is free to all men.

Mr. J. C. Bates of Westervelt avenue, who is a silver mine owner at Aspen, Col., and also has gold mines in North Carolina, has specimens of what is called "fayalite sandstone," which is believed to be the only thing of its kind in the world. He showed the stones to-day to Mr. Townsend, of Somerset street, who is a stone cutter of long experience, but admitted he had never seen anything like them. The stone cut in slabs can be bent back and forth without breaking. Mr. Bates says it is very hard, and on that account will probably be prized by diamond cutters for matrices.

The Schepflin Failure.

Postmaster Pope, as assignee, for C. Schepflin & Co., the full account of whose failure appeared in yesterday's News, took possession of the assignor's property this morning, and began at once to make a second inventory, other than that filed by Mr. Schepflin as the firm's statement.

The result of the assignee's inventory as soon as completed will be made with his statement to the creditors, in whose interest he takes possession of the property.

The factory whistle blew at the usual hour this morning, and the employees were on hand and put to work. They have been on three-quarter time for some weeks past, and will so continue for the present filling orders. They were ordered last night to continue at work until further notice.

It seems to be the general opinion that the creditors will receive the full amount of their claims in full although there is nothing left for Mr. Schepflin after his years of labor.

Mr. Schepflin is said to be over sixty years of age, but he is still a man of most remarkable activity and except for his iron gray hair and beard, would be considered at least ten years younger.

A man of his prodigious energy is likely to rise above his misfortunes, at least that is the opinion as well as the hope of those who know him best, and feel deeply sympathy for him.

He has no children of his own, although Mr. Peter Schepflin, a young man who had a nominal interest in the clothing business, is known as an adopted son, and has lived with Mr. and Mrs. Schepflin at their home in Dunellen since childhood.

Mr. Schepflin's assignment was filed at New Brunswick, because of his residence in Middlesex county.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Bracing Weather.

In all the northern section of the Union there have been more fair days than ideal winter days. In some localities nearly the whole month of December was made up of such days. They were days to be remembered next summer when we are sweltering in August heat.

The air was full of electricity, ozone, life. The person who rose early and walked out soon after the sun peered above the horizon was in a mood for once to be thankful that he was alive. He turned his face toward the sun and drank in great draits of breeze and light. The microbes of malaria, influenza, rheumatism, bad temper, meanness and stinginess were all frozen out by that sweet, cold air and scared away by the sunlight. Then the right minded human being knew, if never before, what it was to live. The pure, kindly cold brushed the clean skin with its electric notes, brought the blood dancing, tingling to the surface and made it go singing with joy back through the arteries again. The complexion grows radiant; the eyes sparkle like diamonds.

An hour of such air and sunlight gives health for a day. Two hours a day for a month give one vitality and gladness for months to come. Man was made to live outdoors, going into houses to sleep, let be sure, and get temporary shelter from storms.

Half the diseases that afflict mankind in winter come from staying indoors and taking in installments of each member of your family in turn as you breathe the cast off atmosphere from their bodies. Add to this the flat, cooked air produced by your furnace or steam heater, and you have something appalling indeed in your lungs. Get out doors and fill yourself with the new wine of nature's free giving, midwinter air and midwinter sunshine. Those who incase themselves in heavy flannels and sit behind double glass windows and weather stripped doors lead a joyless existence. Throw off half your clumsy flannels and part of the bad covering that would make a bad fur rug of you. Most nature half way and see what she will do for you. Have your clothing warm indeed, but of light weight, the lightest possible, so that the air can tonoi the skin.

The children know how to extract the true health and gladness from the winter months. The heathenish ways of civilization have not yet spoiled them. They know that the mere physical sense of power and exhilaration is fed by a clear, sparkling, cold day as by nothing else in this universe.

About Brains.

A year ago the 10th of January General Benjamin F. Butler died at his home in Washington, stricken without a moment's warning. It is to be noted that many men who have achieved careers out of the ordinary die thus. W. H. Vanderbilt was an example. They are apt to have strong men with large heads and bodies.

At the autopsy held upon his body it was found that Butler's brain weighed 87 ounces. Up to that time the second heaviest brain on record was that of Daniel Webster, which weighed 28 ounces. Butler's brain weighed four ounces more than that of the great Websterian. Daniel's reputation for brain weight can, however, be saved at the expense of his reputation as a man. An examination of his brain showed it to be shrunken by disease and by the inordinate quantities of alcoholic drinks which Webster consumed to six ounces less than its normal weight. It is likely, therefore, that if Webster had not drunk so much brandy and whisky he would still have held the next heaviest brain known to history. The heaviest thus far known is that of Baryn Cuvier, the naturalist, which weighed 65 ounces. The average weight of the brain of a man is 49 ounces.

It is the general impression that, other things being equal, the man with the largest head and the greatest brain weight is the greatest man. But other things hardly ever are equal, and the small headed man who makes the best use of the brain he has every day reaches the top of the ladder, while his big headed brother sinks to the bottom and stays there.

The most adroit advertising dodge sprung upon a guileless public in many a day was that obtained by making Walker Weston foot it in midwinter from New York to Albany, a distance of 143 miles. Seventy and three-quarters hours was allowed for the walk. He accomplished it 12 hours ahead of time. Then the latest idea came out. Weston is a vegetarian and claims that his bran and apple diet sustains him yet in his prime, while all the other athletes that started in life when he did have long since dropped out. After the walk was concluded, it was trumpeted to the utmost parts of the earth that he owed the ease with which he made the journey to the fact that he lived on a certain article of food. Then the newspaper young men who had followed the walk with such interest and enthusiasm felt queer. For once even they had been caught. Weston is 54 years old.

The fashions of this winter appear to be for ever and for ever.

ASKS FOR A BOND ISSUE

Carlisle Wants Permission to Carry Out His Scheme.

BRILLIANT TALK ON THE TARIFF.

Tom Johnson Scores the Ohio Democrat With His Eloquence—Mr. Davis Raises the Senate With a Speech on Hawaiian Affairs—Mr. Holmes Will Ask For a Prosecutorin.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Secretary Carlisle has prepared a scheme of bonds to the senate committee on finance. It had been arranged that they were to have a further conference with the secretary of the treasury, which was to be of a more formal character than any of those yet held, and it was supposed that the secretary would have a proposition formulated to present. Such proved to be the case. Mr. Carlisle lost no time in coming to the point.

He wants authority to issue bonds, and he so stated to the committee in as few words. He thinks an issue of bonds the simplest way to meet the apparently rapidly approaching crisis in the treasury. The secretary occupied very little time in speaking of the condition of affairs which had made such an appeal on his part necessary, seeming evidently that the committee understood the situation.

He dwelt briefly upon the rapidly diminishing gold reserve in the treasury, and stated that instead of increasing, as he had hoped the government receipts would, they had continued to diminish until there was coming to be a monthly gap of about $10,000,000 between receipts and expenditures.

He thought, therefore, that it was expedient that congress should take steps to provide against the evil. He asked that the act of 1875 for the resumption of specie payments, which also authorizes a bond issue, should be so amended as to permit this issuance for shorter time and at a lower rate of interest than is provided for in that act. He thought it would be a very easy matter to sell enough bonds to tide over the present emergency—to meet the prospective deficiency of the present fiscal year—at 3 per cent interest and running for three, four or five years, and he believed it would be the part of wisdom for congress to authorize such a change in the present law as to give this authority.

There was a general interchange of opinion among members of the committee on the subject presented, and the meeting gradually drifted into a discussion of the outlook for tariff legislation, in which Mr. Carlisle participated very freely, but no conclusion was reached as to the bond recommendations made by the secretary. Enough was developed to show that it is going to be very difficult for the committee to agree upon a bill.

Brilliant Tariff Speeches.

The third day of the tariff debate in the house was enlivened by a sensational speech by Mr. Tom Johnson of Ohio, the free trade and single tax advocate, who claims, with Hon. Lawrence T. Neal, late Democratic candidate for governor of Ohio, the only democratic tariff plank in the Chicago platform. He boldly attacked the Democrats for the timid manner in which they had handled the tariff question and charged them with cowardice all along the line.

Mr. Johnson then had a sharp tilt with Mr. Walker of Massachusetts over the cost of manufacturing steel rails, in the course of which he declared that Carnegie had the finest mill in the world. "And protection made it!" interjected Mr. Walker.

"Oh, no," replied Mr. Johnson. "You don't believe a duty at the custom house builds it! Bill Jones built it!"

"You can say Bill Jones if you like" Democrat, replied Mr. Walker, "but protection made it possible."

"Bill Jones is my witness," answered Mr. Johnson. "Bill Jones stood with me during the Johnstown flood side by side, while rich men were shrinking—Bill Jones' brains and Carnegie's money—and the honors were easy." [Democratic applause.]

When Mr. Johnson finished, the most enthusiastic scene witnessed since the tariff debate began occurred. The Democrats cheered and crowded about to shake his hand and congratulate him. After order was restored Mr. Mitchell, one of the Republican members of the ways and means committee, took the floor.

Mr. Dalzell made a brilliant speech in defense of the tariff, dwelling particularly on the iron and steel interests. Messrs. Warner and Coombs of New York were the other speakers.

At the night session Mr. Snodgrass of Tennessee, Mr. Mahon of Pennsylvania and Mr. Curtis of Kansas were the speakers, and at 10:30 the house adjourned.

Still Talking of Hawaii.

The principal event in the senate was the speech of Senator Davis of Minnesota in which he discussed the policy of intervention in Hawaiian affairs. The senator plainly expressed himself as in favor of the annexation of Hawaii and declared that to be the manifest destiny of the Hawaiian Islands. For 50 years it had been recognized as inevitable by every American minister to Hawaii, and no foreign government objected to this plan when consummated under favorable circumstances and conditions. The main portion of the argument of the senator was to show that the revolution was the legitimate outcome of the usurpation of the queen and of the attempted proclamation of a new constitution, and that our ministers had no choice in proclaiming the provisional government and Minister Stevens no discretion in recognizing it as the government de facto after it had gained undisputed and peaceful possession of the government buildings and government archives.

In the regular part of the day, and on another subject, Senator Gorman created some surprise by declaring that during the past three years the total appropriations of congress had exceeded by $800,000,000 the total revenues of the government during that period. A large portion of this enormous aggregate is for public buildings and is in a great measure yet unexpended.

The senate committee on foreign relations had a meeting after the Hawaiian discussion had subsided. The committee added to the Hawaiian question under consideration, but it is understood that the committee took no action, subject was referred to hearing a verbal report of the subcommittee and to an informal discussion of the recent phases of the matter. The committee seems to be of the opinion that it will require some weeks for the consideration of the inquiry, and it is improbable that the committee will take up any of the various resolutions referred to it until the investigation can be completed.

Calls For an Hawaiian Protectorate.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—Mr. Holman of Indiana has prepared a resolution, which he will submit to the house today, declaring it to be the policy of the United States to conclude a treaty with Hawaii by which the country will exercise a protectorate over the islands.

STOLE FOR TWENTY YEARS.

Paying Teller Confesses to Having Taken Over $47,000.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 11.—Theodore F. Baker, for 20 years the paying teller of the Consolidation National bank of this city, was arrested to-day on a charge of having stolen during the past 20 years he has stolen more than $47,000. He was arrested and held in $15,000 bail for trial in February.

The man who is his own accuser had held the confidence of the bank officials for many years, and his defalcation could only be made possible by falsifying the individual accounts on the books and screen.

The first intimation the bank officials had that anything was wrong was Tuesday night, when a physician, whose name is kept secret, called upon President Watson at his home and told him that he had learned that a serious defalcation had taken place in the bank. He told the president that Mr Van Dusen, the individual ledger bookkeeper of the bank, was very ill as a consequence of a severe nervous strain, and that he had told his medical adviser that from certain occurrences in connection with the books at the bank he was certain that money was being stolen from the bank, and that Baker, the paying teller, was the thief.

Mr. Watson came to the bank early in the morning, a few minutes before the arrival of Baker. The latter, when he found he was called into the president's private office, where Mr. Watson related with much sorrow to Baker what he had been told by the physician. The paying teller changed countenance, and his face took on an ashen hue as he admitted that the story was true.

"How much have you taken?" he was asked.

"Forty-seven thousand dollars," he replied.

"Good God! What have you done with all the money?" exclaimed George Watson, one of the directors, who was also present.

"It went in dribblets for household expenses," said Baker.

He was celebrating the anniversary of his golden wed ding with his children and grandchildren, and grandchildren. He kissed one of the latter on the head, and a hair lodged in his throat, bringing on a severe coughing spell. He ruptured a blood vessel in his throat, and Mr. Harvey died in a few minutes. His wife was so shocked that she has been unconscious since her husband's death, and her life is despaired of.

I have done that and have my burial clothes underneath."

Defaulter Sperry Very Sick.

The judge accordingly postponed the case.

LILLIAN TO WED AGAIN.

Miss Russell Will Marry Her New Leading Man.

A REAL ROMANCE OF THE STAGE.

For Several Weeks Signor Perugini and the Singer Have Nightly Participated In a Mock Marriage, Which Is to Be Performed Once In Earnest.

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—Lillian Russell has decided to venture into matrimony for the third time. The prospective bridegroom is Signor Perugini, the baritone, who shares with Lillian the principal parts in the comic opera, "The Princess Nicotine." The story of the courtship, or as much as could be gleaned of it, makes it appear a veritable romance of the stage. Manager George Lederer said that he was authorized for both to announce the truth of the rumored engagements.

Signor Perugini, whose real name is John Chatterton, has been with the company for three weeks. He took the place of Perry Averill. Miss Russell knew Perugini but slightly before he joined the company. Perugini's part is that of Paul Chicos, the ardent lover of Miss Russell, who is Rose, the wealthy daughter of a tobacco planter.

They are married regularly every night on the stage, and the opera deals with the tribulations of the husband, who is finds the victim of a designing governor.

Lovers on and Off the Stage.

Chicos is represented as a very passionate lover, and for some weeks there was more realism than stage business in his lovemaking. Rumors began to circulate when it was noticed that Signor Perugini was escorting Miss Russell to and from the theater, and they were seen together at the Sunday night concerts in the Metropolitan Opera House.

Nobody groomed, however, that they contemplated matrimony, and the announcement was a genuine surprise. There are some persons who claim to say that Lillian Russell has been in search of a release to advertise Miss Russell and the opera, but the knowing ones scout at such a suggestion and declare that Miss Russell would not lend her name to anything of the sort.

The announcement also seems to set at rest all the talk about her prospective marriage to Sandow, the strong man, which has been exploded from time to time.

Lillian is now said to be in her thirty-fourth year. She was born in Clinton, Ia., and her mother is Mrs. Cynthia Leonard, the woman's rights advocate. Miss Russell began her stage career when she was 16 years old as a concert hall singer. She made her first appearance in this city in Tony Pastor's theater at 585 Broadway. She also was seen in Tony Pastor's Fourteenth Street theater. Her debut in comic opera was as a chorus girl in "Pinafore," and her first appearance as a star was as Mabel in "The Pirates of Penzance," but thought that she will recover. The judge accordingly postponed the case.

She was the prima donna in comic opera at the Casino in the height of that playhouse from 1880 to 1883, and she has appeared with success in the "Grand Duchess," "Nelly," "Olivette," "Patience," "Dorothy" "Polly," "Princess Trebizonde," "The Queen's Mate," "Poor Jonathan," "La Cigale," "The Mountebanks" and "Giroflo-Giroflla."

Her Former Ventures.

Miss Russell's first husband was Harry Braham, a musical director. They lived together for some time in Boston and then quarreled and separated. She afterward became enamored of Teddy Solomon, the composer of "Billee Taylor" and other operas in which she appeared, and one day she suddenly gave up her engagement at the Casino and sailed away to Europe with Solomon on a wedding trip.

She has a daughter now 9 years old, the result of her marriage to Solomon. A short time ago Miss Russell had her marriage with Solomon annulled on the ground that he had another wife living and that he had forgotten to go through the formality of a divorce. Miss Russell lives in a handsome furnished house with her mother and daughter at 318 West Seventy-seventh street.

Signor Perugini is 30 years old. He has a brother, Charles Chatterton, who is employed in the office of Alvey, Benedict & Gran. Perugini made his debut about 10 years ago in the comic opera "The Queen's Lace Handkerchief" with Lilly Post. He was afterward with the Boston Ideals and D. McCaull opera company and also sang with Patti's company in the "Barber of Seville." He has also sung at the Casino before.

He is a tall, good looking man, with a black mustache and dark hair. Before he sang at the Casino he played at the Columbus in Rice's "1492" company in Boston.

A reporter saw Miss Russell and Signor Perugini after the performance last evening. They both admitted the truth of the rumor of their approaching marriage, which they said would probably take place about Easter. The season at the Casino will probably end inside of a month, and the company will then go on the road. The company plays in Boston on May 17, and the marriage will probably take place then.

The ceremony will be performed at the Little Church Around the Corner or St. Timothy's Protestant Episcopal church, though Signor Perugini is a Catholic.

ROBBED THE "ELI."

A Train Held Up and the Express Safe Looted Near St. Joseph.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Jan. 11.—The Burlington "Eli" was held up about three miles out of here by five masked men. The train was stopped by torpedoes being placed on the track and several lanterns hung across the road in readiness custom. As soon as the train stopped three of the robbers boarded the engine with drawn revolvers and ordered the engineer and fireman to accompany them to the express car and order the express messenger to open the door. This they did, and upon being ordered to open the door the express messenger did so, when he was covered with a rifle in the hands of one of them.

Three others, with revolvers in each hand, had entered the car, and the messenger was ordered to open the safe. He did so. The robbers then took all there was in the safe, which amount is claimed by the railroad officials not to exceed $60.

This statement is not credited here, however. When the train stopped, a brakeman went back to flag the St. Louis train following, and when he was several hundred yards down the track he asserts that he heard shots fired, and, suddenly the train pulled out. He secured a horse and came to this city and gave the alarm. He says the robbers entered the mail and express cars and took all the registered mail in the former and all the packages in the safe of the latter.

CRISIS AT RIO.

Mello Re-enters the Bay and Prepares to Play a Trump Card.

BUENOS AYRES, Jan. 11.—Most important news has been received here from Rio de Janeiro. According to dispatches received here the Brazilian insurgents have recaptured the islands of Monsanto and Engadine and are preparing to make a landing in strong force at Nictheroy.

It is also reported that Admiral de Mello, on board the vessel bearing his name, succeeded in re-entering Rio bay in spite of the active lookout kept for him by the government forts at the entrance to the harbor, and it is added that Admiral de Mello is personally supervising the land operations which, it is said, are to be undertaken at Nictheroy.

Finally it is asserted that if the rebels are successful in making a landing at Nictheroy a ground attack upon the city of Rio de Janeiro will be immediately commenced, every available man on board of the insurgent warships being utilized in the attack. The dispatches received here also announce that President Peixoto is aware of the contemplated movement upon the part of the rebels and that he is taking vigorous measures to meet the attack, which, it is expected, will decide the fate of the rebellion one way or the other.

An Afflicted Family.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Jan. 11.—The family of Louis Garland, a miner who lives in Dorrance, has been afflicted by an extraordinary series of calamities during the past fortnight. Twelve days ago Garland met with an accident which crippled him for life. Two days later his wife died, and on the fifth day after the accident his infant child died. The youngest son, who was then the sole wage winner of the family, was killed in the mine in which he was employed. Another child, aged 11, died of typhoid fever on the day after the son was killed, and the daughter (Agnes) typhoid fell a victim to the same disease. The only remaining members of the unfortunate family are two daughters, both of whom are very ill with typhoid fever.

The Two Bodies Are Now Organized Separately and Are Holding Distinct Sessions—A Committee of Hostilities Until Monday—New York's Legislature.

TRENTON, Jan. 11.—Crowds of excited men were at the capitol before the time came for the meeting of the Republican senate. The doors of the senate chamber had been locked by the Democrats, and the Republican senators held a conference, after which President Rogers walked into Governor Werts, but the latter replied that he could do nothing. The janitor of the statehouse said the keys were gone. A locksmith was sent for, and when he could not open the doors they were forced, and the senators entered, followed by a crowd.

The senate at once proceeded to business. The committee on rules presented a report that the rules of last year's senate be adopted with the exception of rule 30. This rule requires a two-thirds vote in passing a bill through the senate without reference to the committee. This was done in order to pass the race track bills at once which were passed by the house in the morning. These bills were taken up and passed by a unanimous vote and will be sent to the governor.

A resolution was offered by Senator Kanehan that 20 more sergeants-at-arms be employed to maintain possession of and hold the senate chamber for the use of the senate of New Jersey. The resolution was lost. Officers of the senate were authorized to open their respective offices, and the sergeant-at-arms was directed to employ a locksmith for same purpose. The crowd in the galleries cried lustily at the resolutions.

Republican Officers In Charge.

Senator Voorhees took the floor and said the governor and the persons elected senators by majorities beyond question. They had presented their credentials to a body which it would be dignified to call McGregor and Werts' and in addition of all the precedents of years they had been told that the credentials would be refused or accepted as that body saw fit. Had they taken the chamber by force thousands would have hailed it with delight, but there might have been bloodshed. Now they had come peaceably and were in the right.

"We care not what opinions may be given or by what official," continued Mr. Voorhees. "Such an opinion must be given after hearing both sides of the question. We believe that a majority of the citizens of this state are with us. They recognize that those who organized yesterday a alleged senate fear to allow the legally elected senators to take their seats. We will bow to no opinions until the courts decide against us. We have entered this chamber peaceably, and we do not want to inaugurate force. We have been informed that the state chief of police and his minions have been ordered to come here and use force. If it comes to that, let it come to the disgrace of the disorganizers of yesterday."

Senators Kanehan and Skirm spoke in the same strain. Then the senate adjourned until Monday evening. The officers of the Republican senate were left in charge of the chamber and instructed to remain there unless force was employed. They are not to fight or offer any resistance, but to retain possession until violent hands are laid upon them. The Democratic senate will be in session today, but the contest will go over until Monday night."

New York's Legislature.

ALBANY, Jan. 11.—The feature of the senate session was the introduction of the closure rule by Mr. Saxton and the attempt to change the date of the constitutional convention to allow it to hold its sessions in any part of the state and to permit the members to fill vacancies. The closure rule provides that when a resolution has been under consideration for 3 hours it shall be in order to move that the debate shall be closed, and the president shall recognize the senator who wishes to make such a motion. The motion is not debatable or amendable, but shall immediately be put, and if it receives the affirmative votes of a majority of the senators present the pending measure shall take precedence over all other business.

In the assembly the features were the introduction of bills reducing telegraph rates to 15 cents for 10 words, providing for non-partisan boards of inspectors in the state, forbidding the sale of cigarettes to infants of less than 16 and fixing a license fee of $50 for dealing in the same. Both branches will adjourn from today until Monday night.

NORWICH, N. Y., Jan. 11.—A meeting of the town board was held to devise means for abating the tramp nuisance. More than 100 vagrants have been lodged in the county jail since Tuesday, and the cost to the town for constables' fees amounts to $600. Constables are reaping a harvest.

The WREN in Business

It is characteristic of the Wren that it will sneak in and occupy the nest made by another bird, in preference to building one of its own. This same trait is often seen in business. It is shown by the imitators of

COTTOLENE

No sooner has the wonderful merit of this new vegetable shortening, so much better than lard, created for it a remarkable sale and popularity, than the business wrens are ready to move upon the market with many worthless counterfeits. Any housekeeper can be easily and cheaply convinced of the value of COTTOLENE by simply giving it a trial. They will then be unwilling to go back to lard, or go down to fraudulent imitations.

A PISTOL DUEL.

Two Business Partners Quarrel and Fight at Arms' Length.

LOUISVILLE, Jan. 11.—The details of a shooting affray that occurred at French Lick, Ind., between two of the most prominent men of that section have just been learned. The participants were Samuel Morgan and William Mahan, who have been partners in the manufacture of whetstones.

The trouble between the two men began several days ago. They became the bitterest of enemies, and both armed themselves, threatening to kill each other on sight.

The men met on the highway two miles from French Lick. Morgan was on horseback and Mahan on foot. Morgan dismounted, and both men began firing. Both soon emptied their pistols, and as they stood almost in touch of each other each threw his weapon in the face of his opponent. Several men who had been attracted by the shooting came upon the scene, but before they could reach them both had fallen to the ground unconscious. Morgan was shot twice in the breast and once in the shoulder and died without regaining consciousness. Mahan was shot in the abdomen and once in the shoulder. His physicians say he cannot recover. Both men have been regarded as peaceable and law abiding citizens.

WOMAN'S WORLD.

A TIMELY WORD ABOUT THE BRINGING UP OF DAUGHTERS.

Chemistry For Girls—A Noted Horsewoman—Mothers and Daughters-in-law—Advertisements Women—Effect in Entertaining—Kitchen Comforts.

I am before you today pleading the cause of one whom the generality of mothers seem to neglect. It is that daughter of yours who is just entering womanhood. What have you done for her to the way of equipping her to meet this world? Can she hold her own against the men and women of the world? If you have not clothed her with the armor of enlightenment, you have neglected a duty, and you owe it to your child to make haste to correct the mistake.

"Oh," you say, "my daughter knows nothing of the wickedness of this world; her innocence is her shield. I am not afraid to trust her; she dresses of a long line of high toned, virtuous men and women, and have no fear that she will ever do anything to compromise her womanhood." My dear sister, you are very wrong; that is a poor argument, but an oft repeated makeshift. This world is do many wicked men and many more, jealous women who delight it is to lead astray themselves into the good graces and kindly feelings of young girls merely for the fun of ruining their victims.

It is all brought about so gradually that you are not taken into her confidence, and how sadly you are shocked some day when some guardian friend comes to you and advises you to stop your daughter from associating with Mr. Blank, and also to sever her intimacy with Miss So-and-so, because people are already beginning to say unpleasant things about her. Words fail to describe your heartache. All this may arise merely from appearances. She may not intentionally have committed a single indiscretion, and she is as terribly shocked when you reproach her for bringing such sorrow to you and shame to herself as it is possible for only a pure mind to be. Where is that shield of innocence? Call it rather the irradiment of ignorance.

But, sarely, does her innocence of heart and mind prevent the world from remembering that her name has once been handled roughly? No, you know and I know that this world never draws the veil of charity over a woman's mistake, be she innocent or guilty.

Indeed, I have not drawn too largely upon my own imagination. This is all true reality. I have seen those things, and I am yet even a middle aged woman. But I am one whose heart is full of love for my sisters. It has not been so long since my girlhood days, and I deeply love all young and innocent girls.

I have seen many girls suffer just as I have described it to you, and I beg of every mother when you see this to warn her young daughter against the evil snares of the world. Teach her that a kiss, a squeeze of the hand—a toe, a touch of the hand, save in courtship, may have most grievous consequences—be brought with no honorable intention and tell her how to resent any familiarity from the opposite sex in a quiet, dignified yet very positive manner.—Minneapolis Housekeeper.

Chemistry For Girls.

Knowing the chemical composition of [illegible] potatoes and the effect of various methods of preparation, a housewife can put her learning to economical use and do her cooking on such a basis as to produce palatable dishes with no loss of nutriment and at the least expense. It is a matter of fact, an uneducated cook, even though she enjoys the reputation of always "cooking things taste good," is seldom a saving cook—not because she intends to be wasteful, but because she has not the scientific knowledge regarding food materials and their management which would enable her to be saving. On the other hand, an intelligent cook has a scientific reason for every direction and every process. She is able not only to produce the most appetizing results, but to do so with the greatest economy of time, labor and money.

The same is true in other departments which come under the care of the house wife. A knowledge of chemistry and the ability to make a few simple tests would enable her to avoid the use of a great many frauds, useless and injurious articles—for example, washing compounds that are utterly worthless or that will rot the clothes; toilet powders containing bismuth, or arsenic for her own complexion or use in the nursery; expensive baking powders that contain alum or something worse; a wonderful furniture polish at 50 cents a pint that costs about 15 cents a gallon; poisonous hair dyes; dangerous ointments; quack medicines warranted to cure the most severe attack of something in half an hour, etc., ad infinitum.

Therefore, we say, let the girls study chemistry in the school, not merely for the culture and mental discipline to be derived from it, but for the practical knowledge of value, and not only "let" them do it, but insist that the school directors furnish the opportunity for them to study at least the elements of the subject.—Philadelphia Record.

A Noted Horsewoman.

The most widely known horsewoman in Kentucky, and probably of the wholesouth, is Mrs. John Clay of Lexington. A manifold great succession of horses she has had, she is the daughter-in-law of the great commoner, Henry Clay; that her home, "old Ashland," was built by him for his son, her husband, that it was here that Mrs. Henry Clay died, and that almost every article of furniture the house contains was bought and used by Henry Clay, in the days of his office. Besides that, however, she possesses the usual great personal attraction, and up to her majority was a noted beauty. She is a woman of literary ability, having written several well known novels.

But Mrs. Clay's principal point of interest lies in none of these things, but in the fact that throughout the whole length and breadth of her native state she is the only woman who practices entirely across a heavy grass stock farm. Since the death of her husband years ago she has taken complete charge of her estate of more than 200 acres, and on the whole of which hardly a weed is to be seen, and in no place can there be found a single plank missing from the 20 miles of fence upon it.

Mrs. Clay cares little for the society of her own kind, but she is on the most intimate and confidential terms with her mute friends. She knows their names, their histories and even their individual dispositions. Mrs. Clay's genuine love for her horses is shown in her methods of her future welfare. In her will she has bequeathed to every superannuated animal on the place a legacy of $30 per annum and no work.—Lexington Letter.

Mothers and Daughters-in-law.

With those mothers whose grown sons are contemplating matrimony we wish to have a little confidential chat. Of course we know that you think no one in the world is quite good enough for that boy of yours, but just the same let the tenderness and the gentle acts of consideration be for the youthful bride rather than for the new made husband.

It is a crucial period in a woman's life when she enters another family, and many an hour of sorrow can be avoided if at the outset John's mother puts her loving arms around the new daughter and makes her feel she is a welcome addition rather than an intruder in the new home. Love your boy all that you want to, but do not make your affection for your son show up in evident contrast to the lukewarm feeling you entertain for his wife.

Men are not so easily hurt. The masculine heart is not so easily wounded. Slights that would grieve the woman would never be noticed by the man. Therefore be hypocritical rather than too honest in your expression of feeling. Make the young girl feel at home. You never will know the awful longing she may experience for words of love and comfort. You perhaps deem her cold when she is only hurt or reserved, when she is doing her best to keep back the tears of loneliness.

Even though she does not live under your roof, you can show in many ways that you regard her as a daughter rather than that dignified individual, your son's wife. If she is far away from her own home, try to make up to her for its loss, and though at first your own heart may cry out against the division of an affection that has always been entirely yours, in time you will reap the reward of a greater love both from the son and the daughter-in-law.—Philadelphia Times.

Adventurous Women.

Miss Menie Muriel Dowie has sketched the life of a woman who went to Paris last week to seek fortune dressed in men's garments. The first in the list is Mme. Velasquez, who served all through the war of the rebellion in Louisiana under Henry Ingfield of the Independent Scouts, C. S. A.

The second is a much older character, no less than Hannah Snell, who, under the name of James Gray, served as a soldier and sailor in the British army and merchant marine from the 27th day of November, 1745, to the 5th day of June, 1750. She was at the siege of Pondicherry and all other sieges during that expedition and returned to England, none of them dangerous, but completed her career without the discovery of her sex, as was set forth in various narratives from which the present sketch is taken, which was published in 1750 by R. Walker, London.

The third is Mary Anne Talbot, who, under the name of John Taylor, ran a career of many years as foothey, drummer, cabin boy and sailor, and had her adventures published in London in 1809. The fourth is Mrs. Christian Davis, commonly called Mother Ross, who according to the title page of her biography, published in London in 1740, "in several campaigns under King William and the late Duke of Marlborough, in the quality of foot soldier and dragoon, gave many signal proofs of as unparalleled courage and bravery."

Effort In Entertaining.

Obvious effort in this way of entertaining is considered bad form in the best houses. Any eccentricity in table decoration or studied effects of any kind are, therefore, to be avoided. The finest of damask, the best of cutlery, the most brilliantly polished silver and glass and choice flowers in greater or less profusion, according to the character of the entertainment, are deemed all sufficient by those who are in the habit of receiving their guests constantly and as a matter of course. "New people," who are not only willing but eager to go to any amount of trouble and expense in the way of constructing new routine in society, not infrequently overreach themselves and begin all wrong (a fatal mistake, by the way, as to begin right is all important) through a want of knowledge and not too much effort.

"Mrs. Outereage will never get on," was the verdict pronounced by a social magnate on a recently published account of her acquaintance. "I knocked there, and everything was most offensively rich and studied—20 people at the table—gold threaded damask, forever-to-be-washed bunch of flowers—and even to the eatable, everything was a surprise. It was very wearisome, and all a mistake. I really felt like telling her so."—New York Tribune.

Kitchen Comforts.

The wise woman makes her kitchen comfortable. If she is her own maid of all work, she finds that time and strength thought she spends on that humble room are very wisely spent. If she has a servant, she will find that the comfort of the kitchen will often be the measure of the servant's stay and her willingness to work.

The floor should be painted. There should be neatly bound mats of carpet here and there, but no tacked or "put down" rug. The walls, when it is possible, should be covered with linoleum, tiles or something equally durable and easy to keep clean. There should be light colored holland shades at the windows and short sash curtains of white or tinted muslin.

There should be, if possible, a safe with glass doors through which the blue and yellow crockery, the tin and copper vessels, may be seen without gathering dust and smoke. There should be at least one shelf where cookbooks may repose, and another, where books, hardy, hearty plants or flowers may bloom. A kitchen clock should provide the element of accuracy for the culinary experiments, and a big splint bottomed rocker should be one of the prominent furnishings of the room.—New York World.

Hair and Hand Both Real.

The Buffalo Express tells the following story: A finely haired woman and a man were walking in the railway station when a young man nudged his companion and exclaimed, "I wonder if that hair's real." The woman walked up to him and asked, "What did you say, sir?"

The young man stammered and blushed, and finally managed to say, "I'm sure I meant no offense, but I was wondering if that hair was real."

The woman reached over and took his hand and lifted it to her hair. "Pull it," she said. The young man gave a gentle tug. He smiled sheepishly and said, "I guess it's real."

Then the woman squared her shoulders and hit him a resounding slap in the face. "That's a real hand, too," she said.

And as she walked back to her seat the young man slunk out of the door, and her companion said, "Pshaw, you hit me a good deal harder than that when we do our boxing lessons."

"Dressing Rooms" of the Italian Queen.

In Rome the exclusive English circle is called the "black" set. All English people desiring to enter this set need but manifest the commonest desire, and if they have been presented at the courts of St. James and attended a drawing room within the last few years they have no difficulty in being received by the queen of Italy. On the night for which they are invited they repair to the Quirinal palace [illegible] wearing low necked dresses and jewels, but no plumes, veils or court trains. Married people and fathers with daughters are shown into one room, but bachelors are relegated to another. When all the guests are ranged round the room in the order of precedence of their respective embassadors, the queen enters and says a few words to each person she or she is presented by the lady of honor. Then her majesty goes on to the bachelors, refreshments are handed round, and the ceremony of a drawing room is over.—Boston Letter.

Potent Elements In Home Life.

"Do you know what are the three most potent elements in home life?" said a snowy haired mother to us one day. "They are music, flowers and books, if she went on in answer to her own query before we had even a chance to hazard a reply. "The home that is bright with this strong trimvirate will be able to hold its own against the attractions of the outside world, and its brightness will live in memory long after the advancing years have wrought changes in the original circle that knew and recognized its charms."—Home Journal.

Be Impartial.

Parents should bear in mind that partiality in dealing with children never fails to bring discord into the family circle, creating jealousies that sometimes rankle as long as life lasts. The only claim that can be accepted as an excuse for favoring one more is in case of affliction or natural deficiencies. Then justice demands that we make a distinction in favor of the unfortunate. Discipline must according to the individual requirements, but have no pets or favorites unless justice demands it.—Philadelphia Times.

Equality In Spain.

In Spain little is heard of women's congresses, and so forth, because the sex competes on equal terms with the men, the culture of both being measured by equal standards. Women pursue their studies with the men, discuss scientific questions with the men later on and continue always to be their companions, without asking liberties which they do not need! Before the law woman is treated as the equal of man, and she is free to do many things debarred her in more "enlightened" America.—Madrid Journal.

Method and Regularity.

Many young housekeepers are discouraged and repining because they have not been taught before marriage to work methodically. Nothing can lighten labor like method and regularity. Let this lesson be well understood and faithfully practiced, and there are very few duties connected with nature for a little reading and some recreation, certainly all they need if in a position like Marion's, who has only one available supervision, be left to a servant.—Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher.

Princesses and Suitors.

Princesses Victoria and Maude of Wales improve rather than lose in appearance as years go by. Although, says The Gentlewoman, rumors are seldom true as to their probable engagement with reigning or pretty princes, it is a fact that both princesses have been sought in marriage on more than one occasion. Princess Maude not so very long ago once more refused to leave her father and mother's side for a home of her own.

Baby's Daily Bath.

When you give baby her daily bath, do not break your back by leaning over a small tub placed on the floor, and do not have the water stopped over carpets and hall with much carrying and emptying, but use a simple little contrivance in your bathroom. Place over your wash stand 6 inches wide across the regular tub and on that platform put baby's bath, using the rubber shower bath as a means of filling the tub.—New York Recorder.

Her Brother's Sister.

A very charming society girl says laughingly that she is sometimes tempted to wish that her brother was not so far famed as a football player. "I am always introduced," she complains, "as his sister. I never stand upon my own merits. The introducer invariably says, 'You know Miss So-and-so is related to the celebrated half back.' And then I must look becomingly modest as I listen to his praise."—New York Journal.

Complexion Nostrums.

An English analyst has spent much care in the examination of various face nostrums to prove their injury to the skin. Almost all alow more or less corrosive substance, and in some cases to a very large degree. He has exposed some of the frauds and begs women to use exercise, fresh air, good food, sound sleep and frequent bathing instead of lotions to give the bloom of health and freshness.

Normandy Maidens.

Quaint methods of encouraging matrimony are among the customs of Normandy and Allsatia. In Normandy marriageable maidens wear skirts with stripes that indicate the amount of the dowry they possess. Alsatian girls mount what money they have upon their caps, so that any one looking at the coins can tell the exact extent of the dowry.

Washing Feather Pillows.

Feather pillows should be washed on a bright, windy day. Fill the washtubs with hot suds and plunge the pillows (with the feathers) in it. Put them through several waters and then hang on the line in the open air. When perfectly dry, shake well, and they will be light, fresh and sweet.—New York News.

Chinese Widows.

Widows seldom remarry in China, and widowhood is esteemed as a condition of the highest respectability. When a widow attains her fiftieth year the government supplies her with a tablet on which her virtues are emblazoned. This is displayed over the door of her house.

Mrs. M. French-Sheldon, the traveler, argues well against so much killing of the natives by foreigners, yet she carried revolvers and threatened to use them.

The question whether a female claiming to be a "lady" was libeled by being called a "woman" has been decided by a British judge and jury in the negative.

In making lined garments let all the knots in the basting thread be on the outside, as it makes the bastings so much easier to pull out.

Put a little water in the bottom of a tin when baking apples. It will improve the apples, and the tin will be easier to wash.

An Honest One.

A very ragged tramp applied one day recently at a house on Howard street for some old clothes, and the charitable woman living there fitted him out to full attire from head to foot, and he went away in a cheerful mood. Next day he came back, quite as ragged as at first, and in short as to his coat, carrying the clothes the lady had given him.

"Well, if she asked in astonishment as he presented himself and his bundle, "what's the matter?"

"I've brought back the clothes, lady," he said simply.

"Why did you do that? Don't you need them in the cold weather?"

He laid them down on a chair deliberately. "No, lady," he replied, "I can't say as I do. You see, lady, I've been used to wearin' ventilated shoes and hats and clo's and I'm not used to 'em. I tried those you give me I felt so kind'er smothered I had to git back in the old ones; and bein' honest, of I am, poor, I thought I'd bring 'em back, so's you could give 'em to some of the boys that ain't been in the perfesh quite as long as me." And with a bow and thanks and a warm pile, he struck doubling out into the cold morning.—Detroit Free Press.

THE NEW CHURCH.

WHICH THE SEVENTH DAY BAPTISTS WILL OCCUPY.

Architect Teale's Description—The Church to be Opened for Service To-Morrow Morning.—A Souvenir Memorial Service in the Evening.

The Seventh Day Baptists will begin worship to-morrow in their splendid and beautiful new edifice on Central avenue, of which the following is the architect's description:

The style of the building is Gothic, a modified form of the type known as the "Decorative Style," which prevailed in England during the late and 15th centuries. It represents a type of Gothic which was a development of the Romanesque architecture at a period between the early Gothic, and the Transitional styles. This church is perhaps one of the best of this peculiar character, if not the only one in this country. The interior of the main room or auditorium of the church proper, partakes of the form most frequently employed in that adjunct to the cathedrals of the early ages, known as the "Baptistry," which generally partook of the circular or polygonal form, with a domed ceiling and often with a circular aisle next the outer wall. Such is the auditorium of the Seventh-day Baptist church. It is octagonal, a room with twelve sides, flanked "clustered" columns, with moulded bases and richly foliated capitals, surround the centre of the room at a distance of four or five feet from the outer walls, thus forming a circular aisle. These columns are the direct support of the conical roof under which the domed ceiling is formed. The dome springing from the shaft of the clustered columns by a series of lancet arches, is richly ornamented with heavy moulded ribs, twelve in number, one springing from the caps of each of the clustered columns, and one springing from the apex of the arch to the circular cast iron ornament. All these converge near the crown of the dome, or rather at a point in the crown of the dome where they unite with a large boss richly ornamented, and from the central figure of a perf-rated ornament of cast iron, which serves for ventilating purposes. The spandrels of the dome formed by the main ribs are filled with Gothic tracery in relief. The ceiling to the circular aisle, between the columns and outer walls, is vaulted, and here, as in the dome, moulded ribs are employed to decorate. Thus the entire ceiling of aisle and dome is covered with stellated and reticulated patterns. These ceiling ribs are embellished with carved ornaments consisting of ball flowers, and leaves profusely bestudding the covers, and overlapping the more prominent members. In Mediæval times "Christian symbolism was the handmaid of early Christian art," by it the early church preached sermons, and every detail was made to suggest a text. Such architecture is sadly neglected at the present time. Perhaps it is little appreciated by the average worshipper, but the absence of lack of understanding of its significance; and this may be the explanation why so many churches of the Gothic style of church architecture is falling into disuse.

It is impossible to reproduce gothic architecture without recalling the significance of church symbolism. The cross in the form of the Seventh-Day Baptist church building we have a combination of forms which present it a typical symbol of the Church of Christ. The twelve sided room representing the twelve apostles, the columns, the pillars of the church banded together in Christian unity, and converging to one common centre, Christ. The pulpit platform is a symbolism further than to say that the church builded upon foundation stone, an opportunity for study early Christian art.

The organ which is placed back of the pulpit platform, is a prominent feature of the main room, and is designed to effect covered with the pipes of the organ is of a character of beauty is such above the average, and its musical qualities are correspondingly high, if ever surpassed. In the case of oak, corresponding with the finish of the room, and the pipes "back up" in successive tiers, which are decorated with such modulation and gradation of color as to produce a very pleasing and appropriate foreground and setting for the exquisite memorial panel stained glass window that crowns the niche that constitutes the organ loft. The memorial panel panel, representing a "Heavenly Choir," is the gift of the late Geo. H. Babcock. It is in the form of a "Good Night," set sun set with glory, fading away into darkness as it recedes from a central point in the heavenly host in the uppermost angelic ois. Thus the picture, highly transparent at the centre, fades away to complete darkness at the edges. The design panels representation of clouds which every one entire ball dome of the main. Following the contour of the dome and the central and most prominent figure is the group representing the Heavenly Choir, are actual portraits.

The interior wood finishings of the Church are of oak, and the main auditorium are of as exceeding quiet nature; domed ceiling, side-walls, columns, stained glass windows and furniture all harmoniously blending, and uniting so as to produce a perfect whole.

The chapel adjoining the church proper and connected with it by large sliding doors, so that the two may be used conjointly; the proper parts of these sliding doors are of leaded glass, which lends much to the effect of the room. A spacious room has been provided as the pastor, and a "diocesan room" for the ladies' "Sewing Society." A commodious parlor adjoining the chapel, and a model kitchen furnish ample facilities for various phases of the Social life of Christ.

The exterior of the building is of stone from the Martinsville, Ind., quarries, finished and ornamented with red dog brera relief, together with brick of the same material which are of a peculiar golden green color. The roofs are covered with terra cotta tile of special design after patterns invented by the late Geo. H. Babcock. Taken as a whole the building is unique and beautiful, its contrasting colors or want of harmony, and its general effect to remain unimpaired for centuries.

"CAPT PETER" BOWLED 224.

But His Team was Badly Beaten by the Rosellas.

The Park Club bowlers returned from Roselle last night with the knowledge that the Rosellas had defeated them, but to do so had to roll the highest score of the league games so far. The Rosellas won by 179 pins. Capt Matthews of the Park Club made a score of 224. This is the highest score in the league, and also the highest ever rolled on the Roselle alleys.

The alleys were perfect leaving no excuse for the Parks poor bowling.

The following scores show how each bowler rolled.

A Scheme to Secure Money from the Benevolent.

Some one is deavoring to secure money from the benevolent by fraud. The plan adopted is to send a note, purporting to be written by a needy woman, asking for a loan or gift, to be sent by bearer, generally a boy or girl.

We advise our readers not to give money to any applicant unless known to them, otherwise they will probably be deceived.

One Rode on Coal Trains and the Other Stole Coal.

Yesterday afternoon George Kelloran and Thomas Mahoney, boys, were arrested and taken before Judge Coddington, the former on the charge of riding on coal trains and the latter with stealing coal. Both pleaded guilty. They were fined $2 each.

Stole a Boy Bi's Clothes.

It was reported this morning that some clothing belonging to a servant at Mr. Charles Potter's, on West Seventh street, had been stolen from the clothes line last night.

BERGEN AND HIS KNIFE.

ALL COTTAGE PLACE AROUSED YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

The Trouble Arose, it is Alleged, Over the Choking of a Boy. When Policeman Kiely Appeared Bergen Skipped.

An excited crowd thronged Cottage place late yesterday afternoon, and only dispersed at the arrival of Police Sergeant Kiely who had been informed that there was a row going on in that vicinity and that in all probability blood would be shed if some immediate action was not taken.

The excitement was caused by the report that Edward Bergen had choked a colored boy almost unconscious. When some one interfered Bergen, it is claimed, ran into the house, and securing a dirk knife, came out and made several attempts to cut two of the men in the crowd.

The women and children gathered in the street and cried and yelled as if some one was getting murdered.

Bergen escaped from Policeman Kiely by running into the house and sneaking out the back way.

A warrant was immediately issued for Bergen's arrest.

A COLD INSTALLATION.

Members of Central Lodge, A. O. U. W. Will Seek Other Quarters.

Senior Past Workman Salmon C. Baker, assisted by Past Master Workman L. B. Blackford and Mr E. D. Bielow installed the following officers of Central Lodge, No. 48, Ancient Order of United Workmen, last evening:

Master Workman—C. H. Randolph.
Foreman—E. Mosher.
Overseer—J. P. Thompson.
Recorder—N. C. Mazus.
Financier—W. Newsom.
Guide—J. G. Viegard.
Inside Watchman—W. Langer.
Outside Watchman—G. W. Clark.
Past Master Workman—F. G. Smith.

The Lodge met in Odd Fellows room in the Amphion Hall Building. The room was so cold that the members were compelled to sit with their overcoats on. The building is heated by steam, but it is claimed there was no fire in the furnace.

The trustees were authorized to procure another room for the lodge before the next meeting.

AN EVENING WITH WAGNER.

Delightful Organ Recital at Holy Cross Church Last Night.

Mr. F. H. Cha-wright, organist and choirmaster of Holy Cross church, gave an organ recital last evening.

The Christmas decorations of evergreens and holly were still in place and the church was filled with lovers of good music, including persons from all parts of the city, who came expecting the rare treat in store for them. They were not disappointed, for all the numbers rendered were delightfully rendered by the young organist, whose delicacy of touch and remarkable execution evoked much favorable comment from the favored listeners. It would be a difficult matter to decide which selection was the most pleasing as all were equally well rendered. The programme consisted exclusively of the compositions of Richard Wagner, the great master of grand opera.

PERSONAL.

Mr. George Radford of West Front street is ill with the grip.

Mrs. V. L. Frazee of West Front street is suffering with an attack of the grip.

Mrs. Frank Van Winkle of Central avenue, who has been visiting in Newark, has returned home.

Mrs. David R. Weaver of Manning avenue, East Plainfield, is confined to the house with the grip.

Mr. Bullman of Third place is securing data for a most complete and comprehensive illustrated account of the late Mr. Babcock and his inventions, to be published in a leading engineering paper.

At the advanced age of 91 years, Harriet Vail died at her home in Locust Grove, N. J. Wednesday, January 10. She was well-known in Plainfield. The funeral will be Saturday afternoon, at two o'clock, from her late residence.

It is said that it is John M. Bothield who is seeking the post office, not the ex-councilman. John is spoken of very highly and it is said that he is sure to get it. Each candidate seems to be sure he is going to get it. Some of them will be disappointed, of course, no doubt.

Mr Bernhardt B. Gray's illness has developed such serious symptoms that a consultation of doctors was held to-day, at which a specialist from Newark was present. Mr. Gray was first taken with the grip, from which he almost recovered only to be taken with something more serious.

Miss Kate Carty, of Orchard place, entertained a number of her young friends last night. A very pleasant evening was spent in dancing, games and refreshments. Among those present were discovered by Miss Katie Carty, Arthur Sherman, John Rodgers, and Wilbur Van Dyke on piano, banjo, violin and harmonica.

Grocers' Convention.

The State Grocers' Association held their annual convention at Paterson Wednesday. The attendance was large.

1887 AND 1893.

HOW THE CITY'S EXPENSES HAVE INCREASED.

Fully 100 per cent. More in Six Years Without Corresponding Benefits.—Some Revelations that will be Interesting to Remember.

The rate of taxation of the city of Plainfield in 1887—only six years ago—was $1.80. The computed revenue at that rate on the valuation was $905,582.

The rate for 1893, which was payable only a few days ago, was $2.20. The computed revenue at that rate on the valuation was $1,350,916.12.

This means an average tax on every family in Plainfield of nearly $4 per month, or $48.75 per year.

But the city received in addition for liquor licenses and from other sources over $30,000, making the total receipts, not including $18,000 cash in bank, over $1375,000.

This means that the city received an average of some $6.50 per month per family, or, if we include the cash in bank, the amount per family is over $5 per month, or $68 per year.

The Chairman of the Finance Committee in 1887 was Councilman J. B. Dumont. He stated in his report, also published at the same time that the Council of 1886 was "able for the first time in the history of the city to order a tax levy sufficient for all purposes," and then gave the following as the "estimate of the requirements for the year 1886," to which we add in parallel columns what it cost the city in 1893 as published yesterday, and again to-day on our third page:

S. Lights city officers and fuel	4,500	9,206.12
Street lights	6,300	9,464.00
Streets, repairs and crosswalks	7,500	17,403.02
Rent of Jail, Council room and repairs	800	1,085.99
Printing, stationery and advertising	800	2,273.81
Expenses of elections	600	1,044.20
Sundries	1,000	None given
	$28,000	$49,087.65

Remember, this was only six years ago.

In round numbers this means that the city government is costing the taxpayers 60 per cent. more than it cost in 1886-7, when Mr. Dumont as Chairman of the Finance Committee said that $25,000 was sufficient for all purposes, and proved it too.

There has been a general increase in expenses in every direction. The increase in the police force has made necessary some of the expenses for that department. The increase in the salaries of city officials it will be seen is over 100 per cent. Does any one who knows business think the city gets a fair return for this increase?

The street lighting is certainly done on a very generous scale, to say the least. Is it any more wisely done than it was only six years ago?

The city has both considerable money spent on the streets since Plainfield's charter was first granted—enough, one would think, to have made every street as it should be without other than a slight expenditure from time to time. Yet the money is demanded yearly in increasing sums. There seems to be something radically wrong here, especially when one compares the streets and conditions as present with what they were in 1877, when we had no good streets.

The increase in the printing, stationery and advertising account is easily accounted for.

The city clerk of last year was allowed to load the city with printed matter without any restraint. The regular official advertising cost the city only at the same legal rate it cost six years ago, but the city regularly paid for a double the amount or $1,800 worth in the regular papers—THE NEWS, Press and Courier. In 1887 it was THE EVENING NEWS, The Daily Press, and the Weekly Times the Courier not coming into existence until several years afterwards. The $600 additional expense under this head may be, therefore, almost entirely charged to the account of liberty allowed the City Clerk.

In 1887 the clerical work of the city was done and done properly—at a salary of $700, but Mr. Runyon made the city pay last year for the work no less than $1,425, made up as follows:

To Mr. Runyon	$700
To his brother-in-law	125
For an accountant to straighten out Runyon's accounts	600
Making a total of	$1,425

To which add his official advertising account of $225

And we have a total of $2,050

With this we think Mr. Runyon will stand on record as the most costly City Clerk by over $20 per cent. that Plainfield has ever had. Having done so much for the city, he ought to go with an air of grace for him to cover as he did in his paper a few days ago at last year's Council (many of whose members compose the present Council) for its extravagance.

THE NEWS tried to keep the public informed last year by publishing the monthly bills presented to Council, but was prevented until too late by the Clerk who had possession of them. It was only by the most persistent efforts on the part of Councilman Fisk, since which time they have been published by THE NEWS alone. We protested then and called attention at the Clerk's counter, and to the well understood objects, which has only resulted as we supposed it would.

The Council ought to use the pruning ing knife in the tax-payers' interests, but not to discriminate unjustly against the only paper in Plainfield that has done anything to prevent the shameful waste of public moneys during the nearly two years since it was made the first official daily newspaper Plainfield ever had, and at approximately no more cost than previously paid the then existing two weekly papers.

It is a small matter to any newspaper with such a constituency as THE NEWS, but such a paper as it has been in the public interest at all times ought not to be so discriminated against in a Council such as the present is considered. It is not right to make "flesh of one and fish of the other."

We hope to co-operate in restoring the city finances to where they would have been had the wise economy we have always urged been exercised, but it cannot be done while favoritism rather than public interest is the rule of conduct.

THE LINCOLN ASSOCIATION.

The Permanent Organization to be Effected.

At a meeting of the committee appointed to effect a permanent organization of a Lincoln Association in Union county, it was decided to have a meeting and banquet on 13th day of February next, at which time and place such permanent organization shall be completed, a constitution adopted, and the roll of members signed. Such all who might desire to belong to this association and join in the annual celebration of the birthday of the distinguished patriot should have opportunity to do so, it was further resolved that a general invitation be extended through the press to residents of Union county requesting such as may wish to join the association to communicate with the secretary or treasurer before the first day of February next, and their application will be promptly acted upon, and any information concerning the association and its objects will be furnished. Address M. W. Halsey, 61 Broad street, Elizabeth N. J.

STOLE THE CHIEF'S SHIRTS.

A Clothes-Line Thief's Work Last Night.

Five shirts were stolen from Chief Grant's clothes line last night. The line was full of clothes but the thief was lenient, only taking the shirts.

Chief Grant left the house at about twenty minutes to eight for his office. Mrs. Grant says she heard the gate slam about eight o'clock, but she thought it was the wind.

Going up stairs shortly afterwards she glanced out of the window and saw that some of the clothes were gone from the line.

A man was noticed walking to and fro in front of the house yesterday afternoon by Mrs. Grant.

Chief Grant says he knows the thief and that he will make it interesting for him shortly if the shirts are not returned.

Pen Sketches from Life.

It all happened early last evening on a side street in North Plainfield, where the small boys had been sliding until that particular spot on the slanting sidewalk was a glare of ice.

She was a short, fat, colored woman and had a large basket full of merchandise.

That little patch of icy walk did the mischief. Her feet and the basket flew up. The rest of her went down. The basket turned a complete somersault and landed right side up in the gutter without spilling a thing. The colored woman sat on a damp cushion for a moment, while her thoughts and skirts adjusted themselves.

Finally she remarked with great fervor, "Good Lawd, I'se dead." Then she grasped the picket fence beside her and endeavored to get on her feet.

Both she and the sidewalk were at such an angle, however, that as fast as she got her feet half under her there would be a slip and a gasp, and down she would go again.

After three attempts she stopped to recuperate.

The idea that it was a Divine infliction for some misdeed seemed to oppress her, for she had kept remarking at each slip: "Oh! Lawd!" and "Good Lawd! I'se mumsy." "I'se killed, I know I is," etc.

Having got her breath, or perhaps the cold of the sidewalk was striking through, or both, at any rate she made a desperate effort, grasped the top of a picket, gave a great pull and got half way up. Then the picket broke. There was an exclamation "Oh! La"—sharply broken, a show of feet, etc., and the unfortunate pedestrian had turned completely over, was inclined and was sitting in the gutter beside her basket. Her face was a study in black of surprise and indignation. When she found, however, that she could get up comfortably, a smile of broadened goodness beamed on her good natured and expansive countenance. With a long continued chuckle, which made her shake like jelly, and with a sly rub occasionally at her hip pocket, she picked up the basket and sobbed of up the roadway.

THE RAILWAY QUESTION

A SUGGESTION MADE BY THE "DUNELLEN CALL."

The Main Bone of Contention Seems to be the Using of That Village's Principal Thoroughfare.—A New Route Proposed.

THE Dunellen Call has the following to say in this week's issue on the question of the proposed railway between this city and that place:

"The electric railway question has probably caused as much comment as any other of the leading questions that have come before the people of this community. The materials seem to be present in this particular instance, but each view the project from a different standpoint. The objection of one being the inducement thrown out to our people to buy their goods in Plainfield, in order to ride over the line on our principal streets. The fact of taking our principal street for this purpose seems to be the main bone of contention. The Call has thought out another route which would be just as good for the company as Front street. That is, to extend the track from Grant avenue, coming to Dunellen on the south side of the Central railroad tracks. This would bring the street railway on the west side of the Central railroad, and as it is their intention to build to New Market ultimately, they could do so without crossing the railroad tracks. It is the opinion of the writer that the Central railroad would not allow the street railway to cross its tracks without considerable trouble, and even if they should it would be a dangerous crossing, whereas if the tracks are extended on the south side, it is the line of travel through Plainfield's principal street. The route above named would be of more convenience to the people of both places than the one now mapped out by the company, as it would pass through a district which will in time be a manufacturing location, thus providing means of transportation to the employees of these factories from both places."

City Court Cases.

Last night Policemen Cooney and Frederickson arrested George Servis and Dennis Kane for being disorderly at the depot. Servis was fined $5 or 20 days, and Kane was fined $3.

BLOUNT IS QUESTIONED

He Appears Before the Senate's Investigating Committee.

DEFENDED HIS HAWAIIAN REPORT

Senator Davis of Minnesota Caused the Senate to Laugh by Using Blackstone Maxims to Mr. Blount on Philippic—Morse Tariff Talk in the House.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—Interest in the Hawaiian question has centered in the dispatches from Minister Willis by the Corwin, which are now in the hands of the state department. All that could be learned of the dispatches was that the matter they contain is about 12,000 words. President Dole's letter in reply to Minister Will. ller demand concerning about how he got it was brought to the attention of the senate by the senate committee which is investigating the Hawaiian affair was a surprise. Blount was examined in regard to statements made by the Hawaiians to the effect that his examination had been partial and that his method of conducting it had been apparently in the direction of obtaining information against the provisional government and in favor of the royalists.

To this he replied that he took the testimony in his own way and acted upon his own judgment. He had been selected to make this examination and had been given entire authority to conduct it in any manner he saw fit and to obtain the most accurate and best information concerning the revolution.

When asked if there was any ground for the complaints, he referred to the fact that he had published in Hawaii that he d...ire to obtain all information possible.

Mr. Blount's Denials.

The examination of Mr. Blount also went into the various questions concerning the landing of the American troops during the revolution and his reasons for concluding that there had been a conspiracy to dethrone the queen and annex the Islands to the United States. It is understood that he was also reminded of the charge that his investigation had been partial and that his report showed upon its face that he had been prejudiced against annexation from the beginning.

This Mr. Blount said was untrue, and he contended that the report was impartial, and the investigation was without prejudice or favor. When asked by the chairman whether he had decided to make a statement concerning his report or upon any questions bearing upon Hawaiian affairs, Mr. Blount replied that he did not care to add anything to what he had said. He had not, he said, come before the committee to defend his report, but to answer any questions which might be put to him by the committee.

There was some conversation about the secret minutes which Mr. Blount employed in collecting the information by which some but himself and stenographer present and the witnesses not being prepared to make a complete statement, Mr. Blount again replied that it was a part of his authority to be exercised and that he completed the testimony in the manner he thought best.

It was evident that Mr. Blount was determined not to allow the committee to have any advantage over him, and he still held that his position as special commissioner did not give the senate the right to question his procedure while acting with authority conferred by the senate.

Throughout the whole examination there was this feeling, and while Mr. Blount was willing to give the committee all facts in his possession which had not been laid before them he resented any attempt to question his authority to act as he did or his method of procedure.

Very little new information was obtained. To many of the questions Mr. Blount courteously referred to his report, and showed that the fact was duly set forth in the papers submitted and in possession of the senate. At the conclusion of the examination of Mr. Blount he had a long conference in the committee room with Mr. Morgan.

Davis Makes the Senate Laugh.

The Hawaiian controversy monopolized almost the whole time in the senate. Senator Davis of Minnesota concluded his speech in opposition to the policy of the present administration, and was particularly emphatic in his opposition to the act of the president in commissioning Mr. Blount to Hawaii and clothing him with plenary powers, as to the extent of the use of the naval forces, without such an appointment having been confirmed by the senate. The defense with which he preceded to the senate the spectacle of the opera bouffe queen clamoring for her lost throne was too much for the grave and venerable senate, and the gallery gave expression to its appreciation by applause arbitrarily that it required the usual threat of the presiding officer to clear the galleries to still the enthusiasm.

Senator Turpie made an hour's speech that was full of surprises. It was a strong legal argument on international and diplomatic law, and it took the position that the provisional government, having been more recognized by the United States and the civilized world, it was a fact accomplished, and recognition could not be withdrawn.

While defending the actions of Minister Stevens and denouncing him as a conspirator through whose influences and by whose assistance the government to which he had been accredited was overthrown, he declared that it would be just as great a wrong and just as reprehensible in the eyes of the country and international law for this government now to step in and overthrow the provisional government and to send for Minister Stevens to aid in the destruction of the former government. Senator Turpie was attentively listened to throughout, as his legal arguments on any subject never fail to excite the deep interest of the senate.

Save for a recess of two hours there was no cessation in the debate of tariff matters in the house again from 11 a. m. until 10:30 p. m. Interest in the debate is beginning to drag a little. The principal speeches were those of Mr. Breckinridge of Kentucky, Mr. Sommer of Illinois, Mr. Dingley of Maine and Mr. Horter of Ohio.

Stanford Unfavorably Reported.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The senate committee on commerce, it is understood, agreed to report unfavorably the nomination of Scott Harrison, a brother of ex-President Harrison, to be surveyor of customs of the port of Kansas City. It is understood that Senator Vest and other prominent Democrats of Kansas City opposed Mr. Harrison's confirmation, claiming that he is not a Democrat and that he voted for Warner, the Republican candidate for congress, and for his brother for president. This, it is understood, Mr. Harrison acknowledges, saying that the warm friendship that has always existed between Warner and himself as well as their families caused him to vote for the gentleman, and that he could not vote against his brother.

No Yellow Jack at Rio.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The announcement published that yellow fever prevailed in Rio has precipitated a flood of inquiries upon the navy department from the friends of those on board the United States ships in the harbor. It is denied at the navy department that any fever exists in Rio. Reports received at the department of the condition of those on board our ships, and the officers in command are bound to report any such outbreak as that of yellow fever. It is said that no such report has been received.

Hawaiianer's Condemnation Goes Over.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The senate to executive session did not take up the Hornblower nomination, but postponed it until Monday next. The reason for the postponement is found in the fact that the speeches of Senators Davis and Turpie occupied more time than had been expected, so that there was not sufficient time for the consideration of so important a matter as will receive report upon the confirmation of a member of the supreme court.

The Diplomatic Reception.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The first of the series of three grand receptions that are given each year at the White House took place last night, when President and Mrs. Cleveland entertained the diplomatic corps.

LEWISTON, Me., Jan. 12.—Italian laborers employed at the Hackett's dressing, who have been displaced by French Canadian ...ers on the Rumford Falls railroad extension, are suffering from lack of food, owing to a delay in the settlement of their wages. The 150 Italians attacked the new ...ers, but the Frenchmen retreated, and no one was seriously hurt.

The city of Auburn has given the Italians food, but refuses to supply them any longer, declaring that the railroad should return them to Boston. The men say they will not go without their money and that if the city will not give them food they will get it where they can.

Norwegian Steamer Lost.

LONDON, Jan. 12.—The Norwegian steamer Nelson and the Norwegian bark Rena came in collision in the channel on last Wednesday during a fog. A portion of the Rena's crew, fearing that the bark would sink, boarded the Nelson. The latter vessel soon foundered, when her crew and the men from the Rena took to the boats. They drifted for 24 hours before they reached Sexton, on the Essex coast. In endeavoring to land one of the boats was capsized, and four of the occupants were drowned. The fate of the remainder of the crew is not known.

Illuminated a Patient's Stomach.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 12.—A most remarkable electrical experiment was successfully exhibited at the College of Physicians and Surgeons here. PEIXOTO REPORTED OUT Another Rumor That Brazil's President Has Resigned.

MELLO NOT TO BECOME DICTATOR.

The Cablegrams From Rio to the Buenos Ayres Herald of Montevideo—Urged by Friends to Stop the Unnecessary Bloodshed and Cessation.

MONTEVIDEO, Jan. 12.—Two important cablegrams were received here from Rio Janeiro via Montevideo and London by parties who have interests in Brazil and are eagerly watching the outcome of the revolution. The first read as follows: "Intimate friends of Peixoto have asked him to resign on account of so much unnecessary bloodshed. He has consented. Admiral Mello of his open fellowers will not become dictators pending the installation of the choice of the people as president. Peixoto will likely resign, as pressure is being brought to bear upon him. Nothing has been heard from Mello upon the subject."

Ex-Brazilian General Alves de Lima, who was recently dismissed for siding with the revolutionists, received a cablegram a few hours later from the same source announcing that Peixoto had resigned on the terms contained in the foregoing cablegram.

These cablegrams came from a private correspondent of the interested gentlemen and were consigned to Montevideo and from there cabled to London and thence to Montreal.

The correspondent was shown the cablegrams in cipher, and the gentlemen who read them vouched for their authenticity. They have no comment whatever with the rumors which have recently been current.

Battle at Bage Expected.

RIO JANEIRO, Jan. 12.—The two government cruisers under the command of Generals Bipolito and Sampayo, the former marching from Libramento and the latter from Cerro Chato, which were ordered to proceed to the relief of Bage, in Rio Grande do Sul, should arrive today at their destination. These two columns together number 3,000 men. A battle will probably be fought at Bage before the end of the week. Advices received from Rajahy via Rio Grande do Sul give details of the battle fought there on Dec. 8-10. The government forces completely routed the insurgents, killing General Vasco Martins, their leader, and many of the insurgent troops.

News From Rio.

BUENOS AYRES, Jan. 12.—Advices from Rio Janeiro say that an explosion of a cannon has occurred on board the Brazilian insurgent vessel Tamandare and that five men were killed. There has been another explosion at Fort Villegaignon. The crew of the Brazilian government's cruiser Nictheroy, which is at Pernambuco, refuses to go to sea and demanded their arrears of pay.

Valliant Weakens.

PARIS, Jan. 12.—Valliant has weakened, and it is now announced that he has thought better of his decision not to make an appeal against his sentence to the court of cassation, and accordingly he is understood to have signed the necessary document. But, it is added, he still refuses to petition President Carnot for a commutation of his sentence.

Receiving Teller Also Arrested.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 12.—Williams Pierce, the receiving teller of the Consolidation National bank, who was charged with aiding and abetting Theodore Baker in stealing $61,000 from the bank, was arrested and gave $7,500 bail for a hearing next Thursday.

CARLISLE MAY RESIGN.

He Has an Offer of a Big Salary From a Private Concern.

IS HELD BY POLITICAL AMBITIONS.

It Is Reported That He Has Until Feb. 1 In Which to Consider an Offer of $25,000 a Year—Mrs. Carlisle Wants to See Him In the White House.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—A morning paper publishes today the following from Washington: Secretary John G. Carlisle has until the 1st of next month to decide whether he will continue to earn $8,000 a year as secretary of the treasury or make $25,000 a year as president and legal adviser of a big financial institution which is now being organized by some of the leading capitalists of Ohio and the adjoining states.

Secretary Carlisle has consulted with a number of his friends, and nearly all of them have told him that he ought to accept the offer.

Mrs. Carlisle Ambitious.

Mr. Carlisle is not a millionaire, but he has never been very ambitious for wealth. Mrs. Carlisle is opposed to her husband's leaving public life, having ambitions for him politically. She believes that he will yet reach the White House.

Some of Mr. Carlisle's friends say that he could continue as secretary of the treasury until the financial difficulties and the tariff legislation are arranged, and then it would be a good time for him to retire temporarily from public life. He would retire at the height of his success, and the money he would earn in the meantime would be accumulating should he become a presidential candidate.

Mr. Carlisle says to his friends in congress that the condition of finances is alarming and that something must be done at once. He had the members of the senate finance committee with him nearly all day, and they went over the matter pretty carefully. He appealed to them to take prompt action to protect the credit of the government by authorizing him to sell 3 per cent bonds to the amount of from $50,000,000 if necessary.

Mr. Carlisle has always held that in an emergency the secretary of the treasury, under the law of 1870, has a right to sell $200,000,000 in bonds at 5 per cent interest.

His Bond Bill.

Senator Sherman, who is strongly in favor of issuing bonds in accordance with Mr. Carlisle's wish, framed the bill that gives the secretary of the treasury his present authority. The Ohio statesman claims that these bonds were to be used for redemption and that he doubts very much whether they can be used for any other purpose. He says that this would raise a doubt as to its legality, and with this a question it might be exceedingly difficult to sell 5 per cent bonds.

While it is likely that the bill authorizing the secretary of the treasury to sell bonds could pass the senate, it is extremely doubtful if it could pass the house at the present time. It's talk with Mr. Cockran about this bill was that he is very much afraid that the bond bill could not get through. The western and southern congressmen regard anything in the form of bonds as an iniquitous scheme of Wall street, and they will not vote for it.

Actors Fought Fire in a Burning Car.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Jan. 12.—The members of "The Ensign" company, en route from Washington to San Francisco in a special coach on the Santa Fe road, had a thrilling experience about 200 miles west of Kansas City. The rear end of their car, the last in the train, caught fire from defective heating apparatus. The actors fought the flames while the train sped on to Osage, 30 miles away, where water was procured and the fire extinguished.

Fatal Head Car Collision.

Taking No Chances.

Mr. Busy had a hard afternoon's work before him, and, as ill luck would have it, his friend Smithson had come into the office for an idle chat. Mr. Busy had given him one or two hints to go, but without avail.

"Dear me!" said Busy, who felt that something must be done, "I'm so overwhelmed with work that I scarcely have time to live. If this rush continues, I shall have to engage somebody else to eat my meals for me."

"Now, now," said Smithson, who, like most idle men, was a great eater, "that's just my chance. Hire me. I'll do it cheap."

"No, thinks Busy," anyway, "I don't think it would be safe. You know I'm subject to dyspepsia, and I'm afraid you'd have me sick."—Youth's Companion.

A VERY BUSY WOMAN.

She pronounced in sounding platitude
Her universal gratitude,
For men of every latitude,
From the tropics to the poles;
She felt a commonality,
A sisterly affinity,
A kind of kith-and-kinity,
For all those foreign souls.

For Caledonian highlanders,
For brutal South Sea islanders,
For wet and sodden and dry landers,
For Gentile, Greek and Jew;
For Finns and for Bohemians,
For Arabs and Americans,
For Terra del Fuegians,
She was in a constant stew.

Oh, it worried Miss Sophronia
Lest the men of Patagonia
Should die with the pneumonia,
With the phthisic or the chills.
Yes, indeed, she worried daily,
Lest a cramp or cold should waylay
Some poor Scandinavian or Malay,
Dying for the lack of pills.

And she toiled on without measure,
And with most unstinted pleasure,
For the good of central Asia
And the pagan people there.
But meanwhile her little sister
Died of a neglected blister,
But Sophronia hardly missed her,
For she had no time to spare.

THE SENATE FRACTIOUS.

Colorado Legislators Propose to Make the Extra Session Very Short.

DENVER, Jan. 12.—The senate was in session but a short time and only to receive the majority report of the special committee appointed to consider the governor's message. The report declared that there was no occasion for an extraordinary session and recommended an adjournment at some hour today. In regard to the proposition to have Colorado silver bullion coined into Mexican dollars, which should circulate within the state as a legal tender, the committee stated they were compelled to recognize the sovereign authority of the United States in the issuance of all coin and that the governor's suggestion was absolutely impracticable.

From present indications the house will not agree to an immediate adjournment, and the senate will refuse to transact any business there will be a deadlock until one gives up the fight. In the house a member from El Paso county introduced the following resolution:

It looks like the devil for the members of the 15th general assembly to be stopping at the Windsor hotel of Denver and drawing $7 per day from their impoverished constituency unless the people of these lovers better their condition by legislation; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the members of this assembly of the employers of the same will stay here without pay until hell freezes over and do all we can for the good of the state.

BOMBS IN NEW YORK.

An Attempt Made to Blow Up a Sweaters' Shop by Dynamite.

NEW YORK, Jan. 12.—The explosion by which a tailor shop at 54 Avenue D was wrecked is still a mystery. That an attempt to do further damage was meant was shown by the finding of a second dynamite bomb which failed to explode.

A large bomb, fully charged with gunpowder and fulled against the foundation walls directly beneath the location of a disconnected gas meter, was found on top of the meter in the basement. The fuse had been ignited, and the spark had burned to within an inch and a quarter of the gunpowder, when the explosion occurred on the floor above. This explosion was also caused by a bomb, and the premature discharge thwarted the fiendish attempt to blow up the house.

The concussion, accompanied as it was by a shower of plaster, had extinguished the spark in the fuse of the big bomb, and a horrible disaster was thus averted. The plan to destroy the building was not confined to the two bombs. An area of 10 square feet of the cellar flooring had been saturated with oil. Trains of oil soaked cotton batting made a perfect communication between the bundles of oil soaked excelsior and the bottom of the stairs.

A motive for the dastardly deed is difficult to find unless it can be traced to some workmen with whom Gans had trouble three years ago. Gans is known as a sweater. Pindus Gans, his wife, brother, two children and nurse live on the top floor. Pincus and his two children were at the theater when the explosion occurred. His shop has not been in operation for three weeks owing to labor troubles.

MYSTERIOUS TRAGEDY.

A Double Murder Which the St. Louis Police Are Trying to Solve.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 13.—The police of this city have suddenly been confronted by one of the most mysterious cases they ever tried to solve. A man named Steve K. Wilsko died at a boarding place, 1412 Olive street, for a room, finally engaging one for a week, paying therefor in advance. He then left the house, returning late in the afternoon and going, instead of to his own room, to one on the same floor occupied by Miss Josie Stevenson.

Late last night a man called at the house and asked to see Miss Stevenson. Going to her room to call her, the landlady found the door open. Miss Stevenson was lying on the floor dead with a bullet hole through her forehead. Wilsko was on the bed, some six feet distance, shot twice through the heart.

Between the two on the floor was a revolver, all five chambers of which were empty. The police say that neither of the dead persons could have fired the fatal shots. The two additional shots from the revolver were fired at the man, but missed.

Although there were several persons in the house on both the same floor and the floor above all afternoon, no one heard any shooting or unusual noise. The man who called for Miss Stevenson has disappeared and cannot be found. His name has been ascertained to be P. G. Mason. Nothing is known of Wilsko and but little of Miss Stevenson. The whole affair is shrouded in great mystery, and much of a sensational character is expected in its disentanglement.

Cooperation.

She was one of those tall, intellectual creatures who had never kept house before. She had been nurtured in luxury and protected from the rudeness of the world and the janitor.

Thus it happened that she contemplated her servant with a look of displeasure, not to say severity.

"You do not deny?"

The domestic shook her head.

"No," she answered with acerbity.

The mistress sighed.

"I don't know".

She mused.

"What to do with you."

The face of the menial lighted with pity.

"Poor thing," she murmured, "I will tell you. You turn the wringer while I rinse the clothes."

Aired Her Knowledge.

She was a Vassar graduate and didn't know a little bit about housekeeping when she married her last beau and settled down to domestic life.

Her first outlet at the grocer's was a crusher, but that good man was used to all sorts of people and could interpret Vassar as easily as plain English.

"I want 10 pounds of paralyzed sugar," she said, with a business air.

"Yes'm. Anything else?"

"Two cans of condemned milk."

"Yes'm." He set down "pulverized sug.," "condensed milk."

"Anything more, ma'am?"

"A bag of fresh salt—be sure that it is fresh."

"Yes'm. What next?"

"A pound of desiccated codfish."

"Yes'm." He wrote glibly "dedicated cod."

"Nothing more ma'am? Here's some nice horse radish just in."

"No," she said, with a sad wobble to her flexible voice; "it would be of no use, as we don't keep a horse."

Then the grocer sat down on a kit of mackerel and fanned himself with a patent washboard. Vassar had taken the cake.—Detroit Free Press.

He Knew Him.

Here is a little story against Chauncey Depew, the famous American raconteur: The genial gentleman had dropped in to see a friend at his private residence, and when he left an inquisitive lad, who had been playing in the next room, asked eagerly, "Who is that man, papa?" "He's the gentleman your mother and I were talking about this morning," was the reply.—"Mr. Depew, the greatest story teller I ever heard."

A few days later the visitor came again. The boy was standing on the front steps, and as Mr. Depew rang the bell he said to him:

"I know you."

Mr. Depew is fond of children, and patting the little fellow on the head observed encouragingly: "Do you indeed? Well, who am I?"

"You are the gentleman," said the little boy, "that tells the biggest whoppers my pa ever heard."—Tit-Bits.

CHURCH DEDICATION.

THE SEVENTH-DAY BAPTISTS IN THEIR NEW HOUSE OF WORSHIP.

Dr. Lewis's Sermon.—A Large Congregation Present.—The Bells Chime Out Before the Service.

The dedication service of the new Seventh Day Baptist Church, on Central avenue, this morning was attended by a large congregation called out by the beautiful chimes. The order of service was as follows:

Organ Voluntary.
Doxology.
Invocation.
Lord's prayer.
Anthem.
Responsive Reading.
Scripture lesson.
Prayer.
Anthem.
Sermon.
Hymn 726.
Anthem.
Dedicatory prayer.
Anthem.
Hymn.
Benediction.

The pastor, the Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, preached the sermon, taking his text from I. Kings, 8th Chapter and 5th verse:

"And behold I purpose to build an house unto the name of the Lord my God."

His sermon was as follows:

The necessity for more and better accomodations for Sabbath-school work and for the social features of our church life, has the basement of the old house for worship attended, led to the movement for a new building.

In December, 1888, a committee consisting of J. F. Hubbard, P. S. Wells and J. H. Titsworth was appointed to report upon the feasibility of building a church which would furnish the additional facilities above desired. On the 26th of February, 1889, this committee reported in favor of building such a church, and a Building Committee consisting of Trustees, Geo. H. Babcock, Charles Potter, Wm. M. Stillman, Wm. A. Rogers, Boyd and E. R. Pope, with J. F. Hubbard as Chairman of the committee, was appointed and instructed to raise funds and procure plans and estimates for the building. When the society of locality, the chapel came on, it was found that it could not be conveniently and successfully used for the purposes formerly had, and the plan of building it was abandoned on the day when the ground was to be broken for the foundations.

On the 28th of April, 1893, the Building Committee reported in favor of moving the old church to the back end of the lot on which it stood, and facing it on Fifth street, and the moving the present building on the old site. The discussion of this report developed the new plan of purchasing the lot on Fifth street, and removing the old church to its present position on Madison avenue; all of which was carried into effect by votes of the society unanimously by a large and enthusiastic meeting. It is cause for thankfulness that this unanimity has continued from that meeting of the work, until now. The Building Committee was instructed to procure plans and estimates for this building, and on the 11th of May 1893 the plans were reported, and the letting of the work was ordered forward. The laying of the old church was begun about May 15th, 1893, and the cleaning was completed in the Congressional Church until July 9th of that year. Plans were perfected, the work contracts made, and ground was broken for this building early in August, and the corner stone was laid on the 25th of November, and a supplemental service in which the Rev. Marion P. Kellogg assisted, was held on the following Sabbath, November 26th, 1893. We did not desire to build rapidly, so much as we desired to build well, for we realized that the work was for our children's children's children. The work of building has been delayed from time to time by causes beyond our control, and we do not here complain because of these delays. Now that it is completed we are devoutly thankful that we are able to consecrate a house to the Lord, and to the cause of Christian unity, more beautiful and more enduring than any of the homes in which we dwell. Our deepest satisfaction in this house is that we can give unto God and His service, for generations yet to come, our best.

The motive for this building has all been made during the Church and congregating and without borrowing in any way our associational Church work, or current obligations, so the Lord's work outside the local Church. There have been three subscriptions (18 subscribers) to meet the deficiencies that have appeared in the "estimates" from time to time; but all these have been promptly met without asking outside help, and the "Church Debt" bills are paid or fully provided for, and we dedicate this house without debt, and without incumbrance to Christ and each other for what we have thus been enabled to do.

The architect of the building is O. S. Teale, the contracting mason, I. W. Vaughan, the contracting carpenter, John Chandler; the doors, sashes, etc., were made by Spicer and Hubbard; the decorative and the ruled ornamentation are by Emil Bozard; the painting and color decorating by Woolson and Buckley, the glass work, including Memorial window, is by Arnold and Locke of Brooklyn, by Bolles by Mifflin of Brooklyn. The Memorial panel in the gift of G. H. Babcock; we little thought that this would be with the glorified ones before it could be unveiled.—The bells, four tubular ones, known as the "Westminster Chimes," are the gift of Charles Potter. The pulpit Bible is presented by the Women's Society for Christian Work, of the Church.

Our thanksgiving and joy are mingled with a deep sorrow that we can not express while we listen in vain for the voices that have grown silent on earth, and can not be heard in the sanctuary below. Eleven of our members have been "called up higher," since the building of this house was begun. Deacon Nathan Titsworth and Geo. H. Babcock, were members of several different committees of the Building Committee, and the deputy is here with the work which he has done and the counsel which he would be invaluable, and our grief is inconsolable, if we did not know that they, and all the departed ones, have entered into the mansions not made with hands, and into the temple filled with everlasting light and refreshment of love, given new of Him who is the first born of all the creation of God. It seems without a Heavenly home, peopled with our loved and glorified ones, would turn the thanksgiving of to-day into mourning, and make this dedication service the hollowest mockery. As it is, we hopefully wonder whether they do not witness this completion of their labor, and care, with an unsullied joy which none can know until they pass through the gates of gold into the City of everlasting rest and of light.

Turning from the history of the work, let us to quire what we express and attest in the dedicating of this house today.

1. We express and attest our unwavering faith in Christianity as the world's greatest blessing.

Religion is the most prominent and powerful element in the life of humanity. Christianity is the greatest factor in the history of the last eighteen centuries. Its power and permanency appear everywhere. The Church of Christ starting in obscurity, with no environments which men call favorable, opposed and encountered with unmeasured power and hostility, has become the product of divine love, inspiring and fashioning the lives of men. The course of all right-minded men sought to check the growth of Christ's kingdom in countless ways. Ignorance tried to benumb it; hatred persecution and bloodshed to dismember it; to break the bonds of love, and to embitter the fountain of faith; the intemperance of the flesh prayed, and the influence of paganism perverted it. Barbarism assailed it, and corrupted national life followed it. The Dark Ages enshrouded it, and dog a thousand pit falls for its feet, and fettering steps of the stricken Church. These things hindered, corrupted, perverted and nearly weakened Christ's kingdom; but it could not be destroyed. As the sun comes out after the storms have fought themselves into silence and calm, so wounded and battle-scarred verities rise to feet in victory, so Christianity refused to be overcome. We have built the church to attest our faith in such a Christianity, in its power to bless, and its permanency in spite of all enemies.

We hereby attest our faith in "Protestant" Christianity as distinct from either "Greek" or "Roman Catholic."

It is a fact which is too often recalled, and too lightly considered, that Protestant Christianity is a child as to years when compared with the ancient forms. Neither is the future permanence and greatness of Protestantism fully assured. There are many indications in England and the United States, the two strongholds of Protestantism, of a strong tendency on the part of Romanism to the overthrow of liberty, and to popular tendencies as well place Protestantism in the most serious danger in this nineteenth century. It must not be forgotten that the Roman Catholic church inherits the full advantage of its organic strength and unity from the Roman Empire, and that it is to day the most eminent organization, and the best equipped for the work applied power, in the world. On the contrary, so far as organic unity is concerned, Protestantism is in a state of sand. It has nothing but superior ideas and principles to rely upon for ultimate hope of victory. Whether it will be true enough to its ill, and to these higher ideals, to be the divine instrument of its deliverance yet. One thing is certain; if it does succeed, it will be after many severe battles, and painful defeats. The ideal development of protestantism is only begun. We hereby attest our faith in and love for the fundamental doctrines of the Protestant movement, and in so doing we do not "refuse to call it a name" other than "Greek" Christianity for all the truth they contain and for the good they have accomplished.

We have this abiding faith, because Protestantism in the beginning of its revival to the primitive Bible Christianity of the early times. If that return movement is to be successful, these same principles, final victory is assured. We confidently await the struggle and the final result.

2. In dedicating this house we attest our faith in Seventh-Day Baptist Christianity.

At various times since the work was begun, some three dozen and more letters have been received, or have been asked, who we should add such a house. The answer to the suggestion was stronger than assertion, that it will serve some other denominations better than it will us.

The answer to all such inquiries, is clear at hand. The various Christians and Seventh-Day Baptist Faith places this beyond question. The fundamental principle of Protestantism form the basis and standard of our faith. When we realize our faith in Seventh-Day Baptist principles, in the light of the Bible and the Bible alone is the rule of faith and practice (in thus saying, we include the Bible in the light of the observed principles, the ripest scholarship, and the most searching historic research, we do not claim perfection for our faith. We seek broader views, greater heights, and deeper foundations than we have yet found. The basis of our faith, is the Word of God, and the revelation of himself in Jesus Christ, and with these we have no fear of the out-tear. Therefore we have built this house. Therefore we await in calm confidence its future history.

4. I through the house we attest our consciousness of duty to the future. The New Jersey Law Journal has been added to the list of periodicals received regularly at the Free Public Library.

—Judge William A. Coddington has brought suit before Justice Crossley to recover the bonds of John R. Thomas against James R. Lynch over a protested check.

—Men at work putting the tin roof on the new Babcock building, on West Front street, were compelled to quit yesterday on account of the strong wind prevailing.

—On No. 4 ran off the track on West Front street, below Plainfield avenue, yesterday afternoon. After about ten minutes delay the car was again got back on the rails.

—The Young Ladies' Mission Circle of the M. E. church will hold a social Tuesday evening, January 16, 1894, at the residence of Mrs John McNaughton, 329 West Front street.

—A dance will be given in the Fanwood club house on Wednesday evening January 24. The committee in charge of the affair consists of Walter S. Harrison and Frederick Sperry.

—Harry Rogers, of Scotch Plains, was arrested for drunkenness yesterday by Constable Painter, and was kept in jail over night. This morning he was taken before Justice Crossley, and sentenced to pay a $5 fine, or five days' imprisonment.

—Most stores you visit in January have a deserted sort of a Rip Van Winkle appearance. Not so with White's. Makes no difference what time you drop in, there, all is life and activity. The aisles are always open to you, crowded with pressed harmonies, and fewer voices and others, when these shall have passed into the higher climate shall sound the notes of victory—when good trumpeter, the challenge of to-day shall be heard in assault, and the hope-born requiem when goodbye dies. Then let this day God's house, from this time forth, even forever more. Amen.

—To-night a song service will be held in the W. C. T. U. rooms.

THE EVIDENCE ALL IN.

IN THE "OHL-BACHE-REINHART CASE.

An Adjournment Taken Yesterday Afternoon Until Monday Morning.

When the Lawyers Will Sum up.

The case of Mrs. Percy Ohl of this city and Mr. Bache of Morristown against Mr. Joseph W. Reinhart of Netherwood, was resumed yesterday in the Chancery Court at Elizabeth. Each is suing for $50,000 damages.

The defense made progress yesterday and the effort was to show that the accident was due to negligence and that the plaintiffs were not injured.

The first witness called was Mrs. Reinhart, wife of the defendant, who swore that the accident occurred before dark. As she was sent in bed when the accident took place and was busily engaged in reading a book.

On the other hand the plaintiffs claim that it was dark when the accident occurred, that it was impossible to see the head of stones which was the cause of the carriage upsetting.

Several witnesses summoned by the defense corroborated the testimony given by Mrs. Reinhart as to the hour the accident occurred. It was also claimed that plaintiffs were driving recklessly.

Martin Kane, of this city, testified to having seen Mrs. Ohl since the accident riding in a ring about the stable on a rocking horse, and that the animal was unable to throw her. He had also seen Mrs. Ohl walk about the stable, and so far as he could recollect she did not limp.

Two witnesses was called by the defense to discredit the claims of the plaintiff that Mrs. Ohl had received serious injury.

Dr. Mosher was sworn as an expert and testified that he examined both plaintiffs. He found no injury about Mr. Bache. Mrs. Ohl has what he described as hysterical paralysis.

The testimony was all gotten in, and the case was adjourned to Monday, when the lawyers will sum up and the case be given to the jury.

A LAMP EXPLOSION.

The Fire Department Called Out Last Night.

At special night watchman Rockefellow was patrolling Park avenue, near Front street, about half-past eleven last night, he saw a lamp explode in the front of Windham & Crowley's saloon. The burning oil was thrown in every direction, and the building was in a blaze in a minute. He pulled the fire alarm box, he shouted "fire," and Policeman Geiss immediately pulled box 13. The fire apparatus responded very promptly, and 2 minutes and 10 seconds after the alarm had been sent to the department the fire was under control. The building was slightly damaged by the smoke which was stronger than expected, that it will serve some other merchandise will be held on Monday.

The answer to all such inquiries, is clear at hand. The various Christians and Seventh-Day Baptist Faith places this beyond question. The fundamental principle of Protestantism form the basis and standard of our faith. —Most stores you visit in January have a deserted sort of a Rip Van Winkle appearance. Not so with White's. Makes no difference what time you drop in, there, all is life and activity. The aisles are always open to you, crowded with pressed harmonies, and fewer voices and others, when these shall have passed into the higher climate shall sound the notes of victory—when good trumpeter, the challenge of to-day shall be heard in assault, and the hope-born requiem when goodbye dies. Then let this day God's house, from this time forth, even forever more. Amen.

—To-night a song service will be held in the W. C. T. U. rooms.

MADAME LEZEN'S RECEPTION.

Many Fancy Dances Executed by the Children.

Hulett's Hall was the scene of much gayety last evening when Madame Lezen gave her first quarterly reception of the season. Every seat in the hall was filled by the friends of the children who were to take part in the fancy dances. The first fancy dance by the children was the Japanese dance. After this came the Turkish drill, by four boys in red. Each boy carried a pair of cymbals and as he went through the evolutions of the dance, clapping them together keeping time with the music.

The next dance came next, after which there was a Zouave dance. This gave the most pleasing effect of any of the dances. Three little girls dressed in green, carry hoops across which was stretched green gauze, were the centre of the dance, while about them were formed in circles were the other girls, carrying large garlands of paper flowers of various tints and hues. While the small girls in the centre were going through the dance, those on the outside were weaving to and fro and waving the garlands in the air.

Between the fancy dances the guests amused themselves by dancing, but in these dances the children were the centre of attraction and many admiring eyes were turned toward them.

Arrested Because She Wouldn't Get Married.

Lizzie Lee, a colored girl, was in court this morning, because she refused to get married. It appears that Betty Jones, with whom Lizzie lived, decided that Lizzie was old enough to get married. Betty picked out for Lizzie's husband a young colored youth, Lizzie heard a "beau" or to Smith's pleadings and refused to become a bride. Betty and Smith then tried to scare her into matrimony. Finally threatening her with arrest Betty got Lizzie to go to the minister's where the expectant bridegroom and his relatives were assembled. Again did disappointment come to Smith. The minister, hearing that Lizzie was an unwilling bride, refused to tie the knot. Then Lizzie was arrested on complaint of Betty who charged her with calling her vile names. The judge discharged the case.

At the Theatres.

What a wonderful following the college boys have with local theatre-goers. Never before has this fact been more clearly demonstrated than in "Africa" at the Star Theatre, New York. In the first act of the piece a discussion is going on, touching a certain graduate of a certain college, when suddenly a well known college ditty is heard in the distance, and a moment later a quartette of collegians, dressed in outing suits, make their appearance. The effect is simply grand. It is a signal for tumultuous applause, which increases as they give the "cry" of the college they represent. The boys make a fine appearance and look as if they would be a credit to any institution of learning.

Pen Sketches From Life.

Hypnotism has been successfully used in surgery and medicine and a young specialist, who is well known to Plainfielders, and recently attended a lecture by a prominent man in the dental world on the subject of "Hypnotism," left the hall after the lecture determined to make use of the new feature to his business.

The next day his opportunity came. It was in the shape of a young man with a big tooth that was all ache.

The dentist seated his victim in the operating chair and said, with an innocent expression and a bland smile: "Now, my friend, I am inaugurating a new method in pulling teeth. There will be pain. Just make up your mind to that and assure-if comfortable."

"You don't say so," remarked the youth in the chair, "well, now, I vow, that's good."

"Yes," the dentist said, "we hypnotize now, and you almost enjoy getting teeth filled or pulled. There, is absolutely no pain."

Then he proceeded to smooth the victim's forehead and make the passes according to the rule illustrated by the lecturer. Then he pulled the tooth. After the operation the young man arose and looked at the dentist. His look was so expressive that the dentist got behind a chair.

"Say, I've spattered, 'did you say that it wouldn't hurt?"

"I-yes," was the answer.

"Well, you're a blankety-blank-liar, that's what you are. You hurt worse than ever," and he almost broke the bones when he wrist fist, he banged the door so.

Teeth are now being pulled in that shop in the regular old fashioned way and without any hypnotic frills.

Found an Infernal Machine.

A box with three fuses dangling from its cover was found Thursday morning by Martin Mahon, janitor of the Pennsylvania Railroad station in Rahway. The depot was crowded with the early morning commuters. At police headquarters the box was found to contain oiled sawdust, a bottle of gold and something that resembled dynamite. The police are trying to learn who placed the infernal machine in the station.

MR. SIMPSON'S DRAMATIC SPEECH.

The Kansas Populist Uses a Tattered Coat to Point a Moral and Adorn a Tale.—Income Tax Must Stand or Fall by Itself.

Mr. Frazier Confirmed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—The important tariff speeches of the day were made by Mr. Payne of New York, one of the leading Republican members of the ways and means committee; Mr. Everett, the Massachusetts mugwump, and Mr. Jerry Simpson, the Kansas Populist. Mr. Simpson created the sensation of the day by limning in the vernacular the deplorable condition of the agricultural classes by displaying a dilapidated overcoat which he got from a farmer on the market place.

It was in reply to the statements of Mr. Barrows the other day. Mr. Barrows had answered Mr. Wilson's criticisms of the heavy duty put on coal by placed on low priced cloth by declaring that the cloth was shoddy and cow hair, such as no manly American would wear. Mr. Simpson proceeded to show the house exactly what the poor people of the country did wear. A few days ago he found a poor farmer in the Washington market place. He inquired for his clothes, took the farmer to a neighboring clothing house, rigged him out in a brand new suit and carried his old rags to the capitol, that he might exhibit them.

"There it is!" he shouted, reaching down under his desk and lifting on high a tattered old overcoat, ragged at the edge and bespangled with great patches. The house and the galleries cheered.

"Look It at Barrows.

"I bought that of a farmer," said he, "who told me he had been out in the 12 at night and driven 25 miles to sell his product in your boasted home market. There, sir, Mr. Barrows, look at it and weep." [Laughter.] There is a sample of what men wear under the beneficent system of protection," he continued, holding the coat toward Mr. Barrows. "What a shade of shoddy and rags —see?" Here he ripped it up the back. "Yes," he added, "I can find its duplicate on the backs of a million men in this country."

"Where did he buy it?" asked Mr. Cannon of Illinois.

"He bought it a year ago in this city for $8, and I bought him another shoddy coat to take its place for $10.40." [Laughter.]

"Is it American or imported?" asked Mr. Cannon.

"I don't know," replied Mr. Simpson. "I don't care. But it is the product of American protection. No one can deny that." [Laughter and applause.]

Mr. Simpson concluded with an appeal to the people to ring out the old and ring in the new order of things. Many members tendered him their personal congratulations when he sat down. Mr. Daniels of New York arose against the bill. Mr. McDowall of Pennsylvania followed, and Mr. Meiklejohn of Nebraska closed in favor of the Wilson-Gorman scheme of taxation to the bill.

At the evening session of the house Mr. Waugh of Indiana and Mr. Hermann of Oregon antagonized the bill, while Mr. McKaig of Maryland and Mr. English of New Jersey supported it. The latter, who was accounted one of the kicking Democrats, announced that the scheme of the measure, and while he said he thought it bore down unjustly on some of the industries of New Jersey it would receive his vote and support.

In the Senate.

The greater part of the session of the senate was devoted to executive business. The nomination of Mr. Preston to be director of the mint was finally resurrected after many weeks of slumbering and confirmed by a vote of three-fifths of the senators present.

The chief event of the open session of the senate was the adoption of the resolution of Mr. Allen, the Populist senator of Nebraska, calling upon the secretary of the treasury to explain certain figures in his recent report in regard to the gold importations for 1893.

Senator Dolph of Oregon joined with the Populist senator in expressing an inability to comprehend the secretary's report, and the resolution of inquiry was adopted without any dissent.

The Hawaiian correspondence expected to be communicated by the president was not received, and as the senate adjourned until Monday it cannot now be transmitted until next week.

Income Tax a Separate Bill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—At the meeting of the ways and means committee the Democrats who are opposing the income tax proposition, led by White, forced a direct vote upon the question of submitting all the internal revenue features to the house as a separate measure. A motion to so report the internal revenue was agreed to by a vote of 6 to 5. Mr. Bynum voting in the affirmative. The question of a caucus has still to be met, owing to the various motions which have interfered since the Tarsney proposition had first carried, but it was finally agreed informally that if a caucus is necessary the income tax should be called by any members outside of the ways and means committee, and the caucus sentiment on a vote would be for the incorporation of the internal revenue features as part of the Wilson bill, any member of the committee so disposed could make the motion on the floor of the house to so include it.

Mr. Bynum's position is attracting much comment since the agreement. At the meeting at the treasury, when the income tax and other internal revenue features were agreed upon, Mr. Bynum's vote carried the income tax propositions. Mr. Bynum on Friday voted with Messrs. Wilson, Cockran, Breckinridge, Stevens and Montgomery on all the votes adverse to the proposition. This, more than the motions, has led to the feeling of confidence among the opponents of an income tax. They feel that with the caucus gained they are no longer on the defensive, but can now bother up their advantage and force the fighting until the income tax is beaten.

Hawaiian Information Delayed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 12.—There will be at least one more day of waiting for information on the Hawaiian question. The papers received are to be accompanied in the message to congress by the instructions sent by the Mariposa, which was to have sailed from San Francisco on Friday. These instructions were the subject of discussion by the cabinet, and in accordance with Secretary Gresham's announcement that all instructions to Minister Willis would be sent to congress immediately after being dispatched they will be transmitted to congress at an early day.

There is every reason to believe that the instructions to Minister Willis will be to take no further steps to secure the reinstatement of the provisional government and will inform him that the plan to restore the ex-queen has been in effect abandoned.

The adjournment of the senate until Monday without having received the papers will delay the publication of the news in the message until that time, though it is understood the papers are all copied for transmission, including copies for the use of the press.

Postmasters Appointed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—The fourth class postmasters appointed were:

New York—East Poston, E. K. Cole, Ellenville, Jay Gould, Greenwood, Thomas, Orchard, Hubbard, Manchester, John Rodney; Oneille, A. M. Pritchard; Scarsville, W. Paulter; White Plains, C. Cornish.

Pennsylvania—Collegeville, George W. Yost, Gladwyne, C. C. Morris; Ingleby, Abner L. Jones; McKee Gap, John Benner; State Line, J. W. Kinkaden; Thornhurst, J. J. Daller.

Crash at the Treasury.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Frederick Max Tuppert of New York gained access to the office of Register Hamlin of the treasury department and demanded immediate financial assistance, to be followed by a government appropriation. Absolutely refused at his demands to Major Kretz, the appointment clerk of the department. His manner indicated an unbalanced mind.

RIOT IN PERNAMBUCO.

Two Dreadful Sellers of the Nictheroy Killed in a Street Fight.

BUENOS AYRES, Jan. 13.—Advices from Rio Janeiro state that the bombardment of the city has recommenced. There is much dissatisfaction among the inhabitants both of the city of Rio Janeiro and of the provinces against President Peixoto. This has been contributed to by the action of Peixoto in enrolling many foreigners for service under the government.

A number of men from the cruiser Nictheroy have been killed in a serious disturbance at Pernambuco. They were ashore at that city, and after a heavy drinking bout they proceeded to make themselves obnoxious. Vigorous measures were resorted to to overpower them, and in the struggle two of the Nictheroy's men were killed. The other men of the party will be dealt with rigorously by the Nictheroy's commander.

Six anarchists have been placed under arrest at Rosario. Yellow fever is increasing at Rio Janeiro.

FELL THROUGH A BRIDGE

Sixty Men Went Down With a Flimsy Structure.

SEVERAL PEOPLE WERE DROWNED.

The Bridge Was Crowded With Workmen Who Were Waiting For the Draw to Be Closed When the Crash Came—Many Missing and Injured.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 13.—The new iron bridge over Newtown creek at Meeker avenue, Williamsburg, while crowded with laborers from the different factories, gave way. The draw was open to allow a tugboat to pass, and the crowd were waiting for it to close. They were on the Queens county side of the bridge. Suddenly the part of the bridge on which they were standing gave way, and a large number of them were precipitated into the water.

The employees of G. H. Nichol's chemical works, the Queens county oil works and Haberman's tin factory, on the Queens county side, had assembled at the entrance to the bridge on their way to their homes in Williamsburg from work. There are two draws in the bridge.

The draw on the Kings county side was open for the purpose of allowing several tugboats belonging to the Newtown Creek Towing company to pass out. One of these was the toughest Cloud. The workmen, with their dinner pails in their hands, crowded on the Queens county drawbridge awaiting the opening of the gate to pass over the temporary structure which has been erected pending the completion of the new iron bridge.

Suddenly 60 men and boys rushed out on the bridge. They had scarcely gone 30 feet from the Queens county side when the structure gave way, and every one of them was thrown headlong into the creek. The water at this point is about nine feet deep. Those on the bank were in a state of excitement, screamed and called to the captains of the tugboats to come to the rescue of those who were struggling in the water. Planks were thrown, and from the Queens county side, and the crews of the boats jumped into the creek and saved many of those who could not swim.

The Missing and Injured.

Many men are reported missing, and three more are in hospitals. Those reported missing are George Mills, Michael Smith and Patrick Berry, all of Meeker avenue; John Kerwin, 374 Lorimer street; Hugh Markey, Van Pelt avenue, near North Henry street; Bernard Boyle, 54 Herbert street; August Blum, 199 Hewes street; Patrick Kelly, 151 Meeker avenue; Nicholas Logan, Nassau avenue, near Meeker.

The injured are Timothy Gannon of 108 Kekford street, Greenpoint, perforated leg, taken to St. John's hospital, Long Island City; John Torney and John McAvoy of Williamsburg, bruised legs and contusions of scalp, taken to St. Catherine's hospital, Williamsburg.

A score or more of others were slightly injured, and after being dragged from the water were taken to their homes or were able to walk there. Of these no accurate list can be obtained.

It is estimated that between 2,000 and 2,500 persons collected on the two sides of the creek. Sergeant Coleman, who rescued the scene first of the police, thinks that not less than seven or eight persons lost their lives.

Besides those taken to the hospitals, as above stated, Andrew Burns of North Sixth street, Nicholas Lee of Driggs avenue and L. Drexel were removed from the water in a bruised and lacerated condition.

Steps to investigate those carelessness caused the disaster will be immediately taken. The Penny bridge, as it has long been called, is under the general supervision of the bridge trustees employed in common by the authorities of Kings and Queens counties, which it connects. For many years there have been annual discussions in the board of supervisors in the two counties concerning their respective rights regarding its management and maintenance.

Warning Had Been Given.

Most of the men were in the employ of Nichols & Co.'s chemical works and Reed's and Prentice's fertilizer factories, although among those who managed to escape from a watery death there were five who worked in Haberman's tin works and three in Fleischmann's distillery.

The men had been warned by Bridge Superintendent Daniel Hickey that the footbridge was not a substantial structure and that an accident might happen if they crowded upon it.

One of the assistant bridgekeepers had noticed that the structure was rickety and had called the attention of one of the foremen on the new bridge to the fact some time ago.

Among the first to run to the scene of the disaster was Annie Foley, the 20 year-old daughter of Owen Foley. She rescued a boy, Lindsted on the bridge and threw it to the drowning people. She succeeded in rescuing three.

ENTRANCED BY MUSIC.

Remarkable Effect of a Damrosch Concert on a Youth.

WANDERED A WEEK IN A TRANCE.

Dazzled With the Sudden Idea That He Was a Great Musician, He Went to Boston—He Finally Returns Home to Tell a Rambling Story.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Jan. 13.—Walter Perry Smith, the 16-year-old boy who disappeared after leaving the Damrosch concert in the Carnegie Music hall in New York on Friday of last week, has returned to his home at 9 South Second street, Elizabeth. He left the Elizabeth high school on Friday at noon alone, intending to celebrate his sixteenth birthday by attending the concert in the Carnegie Music hall. He was to take dinner in the evening with his uncle, C. D. Smith of the firm of Baker, Smith & Co., who lives in Fifty-seventh street near Ninth avenue, New York, but he never reached the house.

His disappearance was reported to Superintendent Byrnes, but all efforts to find any trace of the missing boy after he left the music hall proved fruitless. W. O. Smith, his father, who is cashier of the Elizabethport Banking company, had about given his son up for lost when Percy returned.

The Music Overcame Him.

The young man at first refused to say anything about his strange disappearance. He said that he had been advised not to talk of it. But he finally told how he had gone to the Carnegie hall and had been completely overcome by the music. It was music such as he had never heard before.

"I don't know how it was," said he, "but as I sat there and listened I seemed to forget everything but the music. I don't remember anything for a long time except listening to that music. I remember vaguely of getting up and going out when the crowd went. When I got on the street, with all the brilliant carriages around me, I came to my senses in a way, but in a very queer way. I was filled with a great longing to be a musician and lead an orchestra and make a name for myself.

"When I think of it, I must have been half crazy, for I believed that I was a great musician and that all I had to do was to begin for myself. I have given a good deal of time to music, as far as I could in this little town, and the great Symphony orchestra was a wonderful revelation. I understood that Boston was where all the great musicians came from, and I thought that all I had to do to be a great musician was to go to Boston. So, instead of going to my uncle's for dinner, I went down to the place where the boats leave and got on a Norwich boat. So I went to Boston."

Then the young man told a rambling story of how he tried to get a position in the orchestra at the Globe theater and at several other places before he found that he was not the great musician he thought he was. He had only 64 when he left New York. That was about enough to pay his way to Boston.

Went to Boston In a Dream.

He said he was in a sort of dream all the time, and remembers that he was hungry and out all night, and that he met some people who were very nice to him, and who finally put him on the Fall River line, by which he got into New York early yesterday morning. He had a faint idea that some one had gone to Boston with him, who kept urging him not to go back home, but to persevere in his attempt to become a great musician.

"I don't know what to think of it," said Cashier Smith. "I know the boy didn't have more than 64 with him when he left home. He has been studying hard and has never very strong. I think the trouble is all here"—pointing to his head. "In his extremely sensitive condition of mind he may have been led into a sort of dazedstate by the music, of which he is passionately fond. That is what the doctor thinks. I know of no other reason why he should have gone off in such a strange way. He had no trouble here. He says he didn't go away for any reason in particular, only that he took it into his head to do it. I have not pressed him to tell anything, nor will I do so."

The doctor who is attending Percy says that it is perfectly plausible that he was driven out of his proper mind by the ecstasy resulting from the music which so enraptured him and that he wandered off in a sort of dream. The church people and half the town besides were in the house of Cashier Smith last night, giving thanks for the return of the wandering son.

VAGARIES IN NATURE.

Departures From Normal Forms Occasionally Seen In Fruits and Flowers.

Few things are more instructive than the variations from normal forms occasionally seen in fruits and flowers. The departure from the original condition are supposed to illustrate the path by which changes in nature travel. Meehan, in his illustrated Monthly, tells that it has been known from vagaries of little plants growing out of a strawberry that there is practically little difference between the seed and the bud. This knowledge may easily be gained from our common species of garlic, in which, instead of flowers in the head, small bulblets appear.

A bulblet is nothing more than a bud. In the strawberry the receptacle becomes fleshy and the seeds are placed on the surface.

Measuring Humidity in the Atmosphere.

Hot or cold weather is more bearable when the atmosphere is dry, and in order to study the influence of humidity on the health a very good hygrometer is necessary. Cassell's Magazine tells of a simple device easily made.

It consists of a helical strip of bristol board 6½ inches long and one-quarter inch wide, made impervious to moisture on the outer side by two coats of shellac varnish. The upper end of the helix is rigidly fixed to a stout wire support planted in a baseboard, and the lower end is attached to a movable pointer, which is free to move over a scale marked on the baseboard as shown. The helix can be made by twining the card board round a pencil. The positions of the index when the card board is as dry as possible and when it is breathed upon are taken for zero and 100, and a scale is drawn between them.

The Lost Tail.

Professor Drummond is quoted as expressing the opinion that the end of the vertebral column, consisting of three, four and occasionally five vertebræ, called the coccyx, forms a true rudimentary tail. In the adult this is always concealed beneath the skin, but in the embryo, both in man and apes, in an early stage it is much longer than the limbs. What is decisive as to its true nature, however, is that even in the embryo of man the muscles for wagging a tail are still found.

In the ground up human being those muscles are represented by bands of fibrous tissue, but cases are known where the actual muscles persist through life. That a distinct external tail should be still found in man may seem disappointing to the evolutionists, but the want of a tail augurs well for evolution than its presence would have done. It would have been contrary to the theory of descent had he possessed a caudal appendage, for all the anthropoids must be said to man have long since parted with theirs.

The Monkey Language.

Professor Garner, after a residence of nearly six months in cages in the heart of Africa, where he went to study the simian language, is reported by the European World to have said that he is satisfied that the natives are right in their assertion that monkeys converse and use a language.

which is invariable and constant.

In his sojourn in the wilds of Africa he found out much that upset all pet scientific theories about gorillas. He also discovered that the gorilla and chimpanzee are not on speaking terms. This is due not to any imbibed feeling, but to the fact that the "language" of the one is different from the "language" of the other, and they have not yet gone so far in civilization as the making of grammars and dictionaries for the purposes of translation.

Luminous Fungi.

There are probably few who have not at some time or another met with cases of luminous fungi. The writer of this paragraph well remembers an old oak tree, hollow with age and exposing a large proportion of decayed wood, which glowed at night almost as brilliantly as if a light had been placed inside the hollow shell. In some parts of the world species with this characteristic are much more common than in others. In the islands of the Indian ocean a genus, known as pleurotus, furnishes a species, according to a French mycologist, which is so abundant and in which the phosphorescence is so startling that the native women use it for personal adornment in the hair and dress. It is said that the glow will continue occasionally for 24 hours.

The Loftiest Mountain.

The much disputed question of the loftiest mountain on the North American continent has at last been settled. John Parmidge, secretary of the Geographical Society of the Pacific, has received a letter from the chief of the United States coast and geodetic survey, Washington, stating the Mount Orizaba in Mexico is the highest Mount St. Elias, Alaska, has for many year past been considered the highest, but Orizaba has been proved to be the higher by 250 feet. The exact figures, as forwarded to Secretary Partridge, are: Mount Orizaba 18,314 feet. Mount St. Elias, 18,015.

Fish in Winter Time.

In reply to the query, "What becomes of the fish in winter?" The Farmers' Journal says: Trout and all that family first ascend the brooks to spawn, and, having done so drop down to the deep water of the main river or section themselves in recesses under the banks, holes, etc. The basses seek the deeper and warmer water and particularly like ponds. The sunfishes, bullhead cats, his cavern in the mud, as also does the eel. The perch and pickerel alone seem indifferent, and may be caught through the ice in the coldest weather.

Peculiarities of a Toad.

Force a toad's mouth open and hold it in that position, and he will suffocate. This is because he has no ribs and no way of dilating the chest. Therefore he must literally swallow air as though it were food. Possibly trapping the creature's mouth open causes the air to pass into the stomach instead of the lung. Another oddity is his tongue, which is hung in the mouth just the reverse of the human tongue, being attached at the front of the jaw, the loose end hanging back and down the throat.

The Cave Animals.

The cave animals of North America, according to Professor A. S. Packard of Brown university, comprise 172 species of blind creatures, nearly all of which are usually white in color. He described their anatomy and discussed their origin in an exhaustive paper read before the National Academy of Sciences.

A Giant Maniac Loose.

ERIE, Pa., Jan. 13.—News was received from the State insane asylum at Warren that Dr. Stainer had escaped and was probably on his way to Erie. Several months ago the doctor was arrested at the instigation of several of his neighbors and bound over to keep the peace. He expressed such vindictiveness and malice that it was thought he must be insane, and before a commission in lunacy he was found to be mentally disordered and sent to the State hospital for treatment. During the entire time of his incarceration he has raved about revenge on those who sought and obtained his imprisonment and uttered the most bloodthirsty threats. He is a giant in stature and possessed of great determination.

Money Coming Out of Hiding.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Mutilated paper money to the value of $980,000 was received for redemption in new bills at the United States subtreasury Friday. This is the largest amount ever presented for redemption in a single day. The average amount of mutilated money received during the four days immediately preceding was $745,000, which also was unprecedented. The subtreasury officials attribute this rush to the fact that during the panic people took to hoarding money.

An Old Salt Ended.

HAMILTON, O., Jan. 13.—In 1859 William Campbell, ex-state senator, used the late Colonel Lewis D. Campbell, for merly congressman and minister to Mexico, for $2,700 on a promissory note bearing 10 per cent. After nine hearings the plaintiff secured a favorable decision. The cost was $17,000 The defendant died years ago. Both parties were uncles of ex-Governor Campbell.

BUSINESS IMPROVING.

Cheering Reports of Industries That Are Starting Up.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Dunn's Weekly Review, published today, says of the state of trade: Business has distinctly improved since the new year came, and the gain is no longer visible only in speculative markets. It is the only kind of improvement that has in it possibilities of lasting, because it is based upon actual increase in the production by industries. As all rejoice to see it, there is perhaps a little disposition to reckon the gain greater than it is as yet, but several large establishments have started with part force, hoping to increase, and more smaller works have started than have stopped.

Orders from dealers whose stocks approach exhaustion form a prominent cause. Another is the widely prevalent impression that action at Washington will be more satisfactory than many have expected, and a belief that in any case the situation will not be changed until goods now in the works can be marketed has weight in some trades. Whatever the causes, even a moderate gain is most cheering.

The output of pig iron Jan. 1 is reckoned by The Iron Age 99,087 tons weekly, which is slightly less than on Dec. 1, though the Pittsburg authority makes it a little larger.

Sales of wool for the week ago 4,780,300 pounds at the three chief markets, against 5,805,500 last year, but there is more inquiry from worsted and carpet manufacturers, some having started machinery. Overcoatings are 10 to 15 per cent lower than a year ago, but the deliveries of dress goods are larger than of late, and the demand is more urgent. In cotton goods there is no definite change. Shipments of boots and shoes for the week were nearly a quarter smaller than a year ago, but there is a growing confidence that the business must soon increase.

Wilkesbarre's Baseball Club.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Jan. 13.—The report that the Wilkesbarre people are undecided as to whether they will have an Eastern league or a State league club is denied here. Wilkesbarre is a member of the Eastern league. It did well in that league last season financially and will place a first class team in the field for the opening of the Eastern league championship season on May 1, next. A meeting of those interested in the management and support of the club will be held early next week, at which time the question of a team will be settled, and the makeup of the team will be immediately decided upon. It is quite generally believed that Dan Shannon, of Bridgeport, Conn., will be selected as manager.

Priests Gave the Signal to Revolt.

ROME, Jan. 13.—Private advices from Sicily assert that the recent disorders were largely fomented by the priests at Barrafranca cathedral, the moment at which rung the bells summoning the people to revolt. According to the advices received the outbreaks were to have been the signal for a far wider movement, which would have ended in a general revolution throughout Italy.

Shortlidge Must Be Tried For Murder.

"JACK, THE FIRE ALARM SENDER."

Another False Alarm Early Yesterday Morning.

FALSE alarms of fire are now becoming frequent and it is suggested by the firemen that Plainfield has a "Jack, the Fire Alarm sender."

Between one and two o'clock Sunday morning Mr. Gallup, who lives at the corner of West Front street and Plainfield avenue, was awakened by a man shouting "Fire," and ringing his door bell. Mr. Gallup hastily arose and raising the window asked the man who he was. The man was all out of breath, and instead of giving his name he called out between his gasps for breath, that "Jack" Taylor's house, on Second street, was on fire. Mr. Gallup knew where Mr. Taylor's house was, so supposing it was all right he threw the key to the fire alarm box to the man, who sent in an alarm from box 43, located at the corner of Front street and Plainfield avenue.

The alarm brought out No. two's engine, No. one's hose wagon and the Hook and Ladder Company. When the firemen arrived at box 43 there was no one in sight and the key was found in the box. There was no fire and the firemen are of the opinion that the person who sent the alarm was the same one who sent in the alarm last Sunday morning with the Press key.

THE NEW CHURCH OF THE SEVENTH DAY BAPTISTS.

(The only view known to be in existence, supposed to have been taken by the late Mr. Babcock himself. The only church of its kind in the world.)

A MEMORIAL SERVICE.

IN MEMORY OF THE LATE MR. GEORGE H. BABCOCK.

At the Seventh Day Baptist Church. —The Seating Capacity of the Edifice Inadequate for the Large Congregation.

The George H. Babcock memorial service in the new Seventh Day Baptist church Saturday night was attended by a congregation that the seating capacity of the edifice proved inadequate for. The aisles were filled with camp stools and even then a few were compelled to stand.

A large bust portrait of him to whose memory the vast assemblage had gathered to pay tribute, hung in front of the pulpit.

The Rev. Dr. Lewis read several letters of regret from S. H. Thurston, of Cornell University; N. W. Platt, president of the Wilcox & Babcock Company of New York; and O. S. Teale, president of the Plainfield Camera Club.

Mr. Thurston, in his letter, said that he regretted exceedingly that a long standing engagement, prevented his attendance at the memorial service of his lifelong friend, George H. Babcock. "I have known our friend," the letter said, "who has just 'passed over,' for a full generation, our acquaintance beginning when I was a boy at college and he engaged in Providence, R. I., in some of his earliest and most famous inventions. Our friendship thus formed has never been interrupted by time, by separation or by the most intelligent disagreement. Time only strengthens such long standing friendships, and I will remember a remark of his partner, the late Mr. Wilcox, another mutual and life long friend: 'As the years go by the old friends grow nearer and dearer and rarer. It is to the old friends that we turn more and more now.' And we all agreed on that point. The old friends do indeed grow rarer and yet nearer and dearer; even though they stand in such increasing numbers on the other shore." Mr. Babcock was a peculiarly lovable and satisfying friend. His affectionate disposition; his sensitiveness to every slightest manifestation of appreciation or change of manner or speech; his intelligent self-adaptation to the mood of his friend; his stability; his steadfastness; these and any other of the loveliest of qualities, distinguished him above most men. Honest and earnest; conscientious and trusty; full of religious fervor and practically applying his principles to the best that offered in opportunity for good; he was good and did good and made his mark among men. As one of the non-resident lecturers in the Sibley College courses in mechanical engineering at Cornell University, Mr. Babcock came to the University when possible annually, to 'talk to the boys,' as he said, on subjects of professional interest and importance. His lectures were always very carefully planned, well executed as compositions, and admirable as summaries of the division which he desired to illustrate."

Mr. Teale, in his letter, said that having a cultured mind Mr. Babcock admired works of art. His greatest enjoyment seemed to be in giving pleasure to others. In his early life he loved photography and in his later days he naturally drifted back to it. His camera was his constant companion in his travels abroad. He had surprising genius, and his last invention was one of photography. He always took an interest in the Camera Club. Among his last slides was one of a group of vases.

Dr. Lewis said that a single incident in Mr. Babcock's early life showed his steadfastness to his religious belief. While learning the machinists' trade he would not break his Sabbath, but worked five days a week and then made up his lost time after he had learned his trade. Afterwards he was offered the superintendency of the shop on condition that he would work six days a week. Mr. Babcock said he would rather lose the place than break his Sabbath. He received his position nevertheless, agreeing to work five days for six days' pay.

The Rev. Mr. O. N. Whitford was next introduced by the Rev. Dr. Lewis. Mr. Whitford read a letter of regret from Mr. W. C. Whitford of Milton College, Wis., stating that his duties prevented him from being present, but that he mourned and lamented the loss of his friend, Mr. Babcock. He extended to the family and church his sympathy.

Mr. Whitford, as a representative of the American Tract Society, expressed the feeling of the society, which, he said, deplored Mr. Babcock's loss. They would miss him because of his keen insight into the mission work, for which he had a deep love, being a devout Christian. The society would also miss his generous gifts.

Dr. Hurlbut was the next speaker. He spoke for the Board of Education. He said that 25 years ago when he came to Plainfield Mr. Babcock was among the first of his friends. In the study of the Bible Mr. Babcock had been a great help to him by his interpretations of the word of God. In the Board of Education he had been left, by his death, a place hard to fill. No one can exactly take the place of another. In educational work he showed a marked public spirit. It would be naturally supposed that a man with the large business interests that he had would lend little time for public matters, but it was not so with Mr. Babcock. He found time for the smaller matters in educational work as well as the greater ones. It was remarkable that a man who took care of such large things should show such interest in the little things. Mr. Babcock was a self-made man. This is a striking lesson for the youth of to-day. He made himself.

Representing the trustees of Alfred University, the Rev. Mr. Livermore, spoke in part as follows:

"The trustees of Alfred University consider it an honor to mourn the loss of such a man as George H. Babcock, and we mingle our tears with yours in the bereavement of the hour. Mr. Babcock was peculiarly helpful and satisfying friend. His affectionate disposition; his sensitiveness to every slightest manifestation of appreciation or change of manner or speech; his intelligent self-adaptation to the mood of his friend; his stability; his steadfastness; these and any other of the loveliest of qualities, distinguished him above most men. Honest and earnest; conscientious and trusty; full of religious fervor and practically applying his principles to the best that offered in opportunity for good; he was good and did good and made his mark among men. As one of the non-resident lecturers in the Sibley College courses in mechanical engineering at Cornell University, Mr. Babcock came to the University when possible annually, to 'talk to the boys,' as he said, on subjects of professional interest and importance. His lectures were always very carefully planned, well executed as compositions, and admirable as summaries of the division which he desired to illustrate."

Mr. Livermore said that he had had my pleasure and privilege to be associated with Mr. Babcock for two years in the Board of Education and for 12 years in the Board of Directors in the Public Library. He was its first president, and was continuously re-elected until the Job Male Art Gallery was added. Mr. Babcock was always a faithful and efficient worker in the Board. He was always ready to do his full share of the work. This beautiful edifice is a monument to his public spirit. He wanted power but for no selfish interest. His plan was to build up and strengthen public institutions.

Mr. James McGee was the next speaker. He told of Mr. Babcock's connection with Bible study. "The Bible," he said, "was the frame work of Mr. Babcock's thoughts and actions. His thumb marked Bible shows how often he turned its leaves. He was so well acquainted with its contents that he could tell where certain passages were located by the edge of the leaves. Years ago the study of the Bible was begun on the trains by commuters, Mr. Babcock being one of them, and finally we were called Plainfield's Railroad Normal Class. In March, 1876, the first religious convention was held in Plainfield; and Mr. Babcock was chairman of the convention. He loved his Bible."

Mr. Babcock was the Superintendent of the Seventh-Day Baptist Sunday-school for nine years. The present superintendent, Mr. David E. Titsworth, spoke for the Sunday-school. He said Mr. Babcock was a model superintendent and made it a model school. He was a Sabbath worker not to be ashamed of.

The services were brought to a close by the Rev. Dr. Lewis, who said that if Mr. Babcock could send them a message it would be for them to take up the work where he had left off.

The services closed with an anthem by the choir.

A Chimney on Fire.

Chief Doane was notified by telephone at 6:45 Saturday evening that the chimney of Mr. C. P. Relli's house, at Nether wood, was afire. The Chief sent No. two's hose wagon to Mr. Relli's while he drove there in his rig.

It was found that it would be impossible to reach the top of the chimney, so a hole was cut through the bricks of the chimney in the third story and the hose from the chemical extinguisher inserted. The chemical extinguisher was used down stairs in the fire place. In this way the fire was soon put out.

A Fire at Mr. L. E. Howard's.

About 10:15 this morning the curtains in the bay window of the residence of Mr. L. E. Howard, corner of First place and West Front street, caught fire.

The prompt assistance saved the house from probably destruction. The cause of the fire is a mere matter of conjecture. It is supposed to have started from a lighted match.

DR. LOWRY AT LEWISBURGH, PA.

He Took Part in the Jubilee of the Baptists.

The Rev. Robert Lowry of Madison avenue, this city, attended, last week, the fiftieth anniversary of the Baptists at Lewisburgh, Pa. The Lewisburgh Saturday Post has the following concerning him:

SUNDAY MORNING.

This morning a crowded house greeted Dr. Robert Lowry, who preached one of his forcible and eloquent sermons. His argument was that insomuch as men and women of different powers and various natural endowments and gifts are necessary to the building up and carrying on the affairs and spiritual work of a church, so is it necessary for the complishment of its purposes, so in the development of the kingdom of God in the universal church of Christ, the various denominations with all their individuality, with the importance of their special and prominent ideas are necessary to the formation of a whole and for the fulfilment of the desires of the Redeemer. Any attempt at a systematic uniformity or sameness of faith would give an inadequate idea of Dr. Lowry's effort. His fetured vocabulary, his masterful command of language, and the psychologic influence of his presence would all be wasting influences were we not intelligently to look for and find the point of his discourse.

SUNDAY EVENING.

After Dr. Harris' address Dr. Lowry was called to the platform and to him was given the closing remarks of the jubilee exercises. The sermon of the afternoon had been preached by him and was tame compared to his utterances in the evening. Those who mind was left to rest upon the glorious theme which was near to his heart of the past and so less of the present, and every heart was stirred by something of Galilean light was his panegyric of the everyday and work of Dr. Lowry. Those who were present may be held much close relations. In honor of Dr. Lowry all the music of the last day's exercises was of his composition, and in many cases the hymns were also his, especially was this the case with the jubilee hymn written by him for this special occasion.

VOTED FOR COLD WATER

WESTFIELD WON'T SERVE WINE AT THE CENTENNIAL FESTIVITIES.

Some Citizens Wanted to, But the Pastors Said No. — The Question Decided at a Meeting Held Saturday Night.

A largely attended citizens' meeting was held in the Westfield Club Hall, at Westfield, Saturday evening, upon invitation of Mr. W. G. Peckham, for the purpose of discussing the propriety of having wine at the centennial banquet on Jan. 27. The clergy of all churches have taken a stand against the serving of liquor, and their conversations have by no means upheld their actions. Representatives from the churches and other organizations were present to protest against the use of wine.

Mr. Peckham, as Chairman of the Banquet Committee, merely stated to hear what the people had to say upon the subject. Chairman Peckham said: "Speaking for our committee I wish to say that our chief reason for having wine at the banquet is to avoid any seeming inhospitality. Many prominent men will be present from all parts of the State—men who are accustomed to having wine at public dinners as a matter of course. Do we want to put ourselves on record as being discourteous and inhospitable by letting them come and stand up at our board to drink toasts in water?" Personally, I do not care a snap either way, but as a member of the committee, I think it only fair to our guests that we have our banquet like any other stellar affair."

The speakers opposed to wine were Rev. Mr. Caldwell, Rev. Mr. Patton, J. H. Vail, Col. Starr, Mr. Camp, Martin Welles, Rev. J. G. Wyckoff, Mr. Moorhouse, and Mr. Decker. Among those who spoke in favor of wine were Assemblyman Codington, Mr. Jobes, J. B. Green and A. H. Clark.

A vote was taken resulting in favor of no wine. The committee held a meeting later, and decided to have a banquet on the cold water basis.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Three Cities.

A majority of the mayors, aldermen and councilmen of our American cities are honestly doing the best they know how to do. They wish to give their fellow citizens a government administered in the interests of public economy, good health, good morals and the good looks of their towns. But there is a growing conviction that with the rapid increase of population the old system of municipal government has been outgrown and that it is no longer able to cope successfully with certain evil tendencies that have developed within it. Taking this view of the case and in no spirit of antagonism to existing authorities, but with the aim of co-operating with them in securing good municipal government, organizations of private citizens are forming in various parts of the Union to take an active hand in city affairs and to cope with the evils that have grown out of the present system.

In New York, Boston and Philadelphia such organizations are already at work. The method of procedure is slightly different in each city, while the object is the same. In New York the body of citizens calls itself the City club, with membership of nearly a thousand. The dues are $50 a year, which would be a large sum to a poor man. But the dues are devoted to the work of the organization. Many clubs have been organized in several wards, and one main object is to secure the co-operation of all societies, whether philanthropic or political, the aim of which is to improve social conditions.

The Philadelphia society is called the Municipal league. It is not so much a federation of clubs as a single organization, though under its general management local branches work in some of the wards. Its object is practically to form a city political party devoted solely to perfecting municipal government. While the members may be widely apart on national political issues, they are expected to work as one man for honest and efficient local government.

Boston's citizens' organization is, like that of Philadelphia, called the Municipal league. It is composed mainly of delegates from all the religious, philanthropic and social reform unions of the city, and its membership is limited to 200. Its aims are set forth as follows:

The objects of this league shall be to keep before our citizens the necessity of their interest in public affairs; to discuss and shape public opinion upon all questions which relate to the proper government of our city; to separate municipal affairs from state and national politics; to secure the nomination and election of municipal officers who will administer affairs for the offices; to tolerate for these purposes the various moral forces of the city, and to encourage wise project for the promotion of the good order, prosperity and honor of Boston.

Women and Business.

If that esteemed periodical, The Outlook, were not as wise as a serpent, besides being, as is well known, harmless as a dove, one might suppose that a bad hen imposed on in a story it publishes as true about a woman and a bank. The Outlook tells us that the woman went to the bank to get association stock to the amount of $18 cashed. It was past noon when she reached the building, and the clerk told her the bank had closed as well as the association from which she desired to have her cash. The woman in all right took it for granted that both the bank and the association had failed, and spread the news as fast as feet could walk and tongue could talk. In a flash there began a run both on the bank and the association—two quite separate institutions. Everybody was scared. The bank would have been broken only that its directors from their private means supplied the funds to meet the run.

"No association would have been developed, too, only for a clause in its by laws which required that stockholders should give 30 days' notice before drawing their money out. All this financial storm burst upon the town because a woman did not understand that the hours for paying out money were over for the day both in the bank and the loan association. How would it do for ladies to have in their clubs a course of lessons on banking methods and general business and commercial terms and usages?

Those who are forced to accept old this winter should take it cheerfully and thankfully for just so long as they are absolutely forced to do so—no longer. Then after they get upon their feet they can make return for the kindness shown them in their hour of need by extending a helping hand to some other poor soul who is temporarily down. So the links in the golden human brotherhood will be built one after another and kept bright.

Two Spanish bacteriologists, Drs. Rossi and Acosta, have made a very unpleasant discovery. It is that old, greasy and crumbling bank notes weigh more than new ones do. It is the contemplation of the matter that goes to make up that additional weight which is not agreeable. The two doctors found eight different kinds of disease producing germs in the bank notes they examined microscopically.

REAL TARIFF WORK NOW

Chairman Wilson Says a Constant Quorum Is Necessary.

BILL UNDER FIRE OF AMENDMENTS

Today the Debate Is Removed Under the Five Minute Rule—The Committee Itself Split on the Income Tax and Free Sugar Questions—The Hornblower Nation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—The real work on the tariff bill will commence today, when the bill will be read by sections and be open to amendment under the five minute rule. From now on the bill will be in constant danger of amendment, and the house Democratic leaders have urged upon all their colleagues the absolute necessity of their constant presence until the final vote is taken.

Chairman Wilson said: "It will be necessary to maintain a quorum, as the absence at any time of a sufficient number for a vote might involve the loss of a day or two in the consideration of the bill. What is of more consequence is that the amendments of the bill should be made while the friends of the measure and the majority of the house are present to express their preferences. It would be most unfortunate if amendments were made from day to day through the absence of a sufficient number of Democratic members to prevent them. For this reason it is essential that the Democratic majority should attend the session from today until the debate closes, as it will be the only means of avoiding the distortion of the entire measure."

Concerning Amendments.

The committee has amendments necessary to correct imperfections discovered in the bill will, according to the rule of parliamentary procedure, have the right of way. The amendments which the committee offer are considered pending and take precedence over amendments offered by individual members. The bill will be read by sections under the special order and thereafter be open to amendment in any part.

The Democratic members of the ways and means committee had a meeting to decide upon the amendments to be offered. It will probably happen, as in the case of the McKinley bill, that the special order will expire with many individual amendments pending but not voted upon.

The decision of the Democratic members of the committee to report the income tax and other internal revenue features of the committee's revenue plan as a separate measure removes one of the main dangers to the bill, as the opposition to the income tax feature was formidable, especially in the east, and some of it was of such a character that had the proposition been placed in the bill it would have arrayed many Democratic members against the whole measure.

The fact that the proposition is not included in the bill will, it is thought, encourage those who desire to secure the sugar bounty and substitute in its stead a duty of 1 cent on sugar. Should this be done it would raise $35,000,000 of revenue, save $10,000,000 of sugar bounty and remove the necessity for and probably kill the income tax proposition, which it is how the purpose of the committee to present later with the internal revenue bill.

It is not believed that the attempts to remove a portion of the duty on coal, iron ore, lumber and other raw materials placed on the free list in the bill will be successful.

A Split on the Income Tax.

According to a careful canvass of the house made by the friends of the measure it would seem that this particular opposition lacks both cohesion and the numerical strength to carry the amendments through. The Democratic opposition to the bill has manifested itself during the general debate, and the Democratic members of the committee express confidence that the bill will go through practically in an unamended form, with the possible exception of the sugar schedule.

On this question the committee itself is divided, those favoring an individual income tax supporting the free sugar proposition and the opponents of the income tax, led by Chairman Wilson, favor the restoration of the sugar duty in order to do away with the necessity for an income tax.

The great difficulty in the way of the modification of the bill in this particular, however, even if it should develop great strength on the Democratic side, is that the Republicans will not vote to restore a duty on sugar, which was placed on the free list by the McKinley law.

The members have agreed, however, that the work on the bill shall be completed so as to go before the house on next Monday. It was also determined to report the bill as a separate measure, although caucus action may yet be taken in order to have the bill introduced as an amendment to the pending tariff bill.

The Hornblower Nomination.

According to the programme agreed upon by the senate last week the consideration of the federal elections bill should begin today. The indications, however, are very strong that the measure will go over for a day or two. Should Senator Gray persist in having the agreement adhered to, his action would probably be antagonized by some who are friendly to the bill, who will ask the senate to go into executive session for the consideration of the Hornblower nomination. If that question is taken up, there is little doubt that it will consume the entire day, as there will in all probability be a spirited discussion over it.

If Senator Hill, who is supposed to be leading the opposition to Judge Hornblower, could have his way, the vote would probably be taken without any speech-making whatever, but it is promised that the friends of Mr. Hornblower will wish to be heard.

Under existing circumstances an Hawaiian speech is always possible, although there is a disposition to allow the subject to rest until the committee on foreign affairs can conclude its investigation and make its report. Senator Gallinger has given notice of a tariff speech for today, but it is as well as the elections bill may be crowded over until later in the week.

LOOKS DARK FOR MELLO.

Brazilian Insurgents Reclaim Bedford and Abandon Rugo.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 15.—News was received in this city from the south of a character most encouraging to the Brazilian government and disheartening to the insurgents. Admiral da Gama was the effect that the long expected and much relied upon re-enforcements from Santa Catherina are unlikely to give anything like material assistance to their fellow insurgents who are now in the Rio harbor. In fact is now looks as if the revolutionary leaders in Santa Catherina would be unable to lend any aid to Admiral da Gama.

The serious illness of Admiral de Mello on board the Republica has had an apparently disastrous effect upon the insurgent forces in the southern part of the republic. In Rio Grande do Sul the insurgents have raised the siege of Bage and have left that city in triumphant possession of the government garrison. In a number of other engagements in the south the revolutionists have suffered defeat, and many of De Mello's men have been wounded or killed.

Unless De Mello rapidly recovers from his illness it is also said by his generals to reanimate his men the outlook for the insurgents is very dark indeed. Discontent with the war is said to be a large extent in their ranks, and desertions are said to be numerous. Fever is also thinning the insurgent army. Unless something be quickly done De Mello will lose fully one-half of his entire force in the south.

It is very probable that this news will be of a very reassuring character to the port of Pelxoto, and that a battle between his troops and the insurgent squadron and forts of a decisive character will be fought within a very short time. The inhabitants of Rio are heartily tired of the war, and the epidemics now raging here make the desire for restoration of peace all the stronger on the part of the citizens generally.

BROKE FAITH WITH DOLE.

His Messages Sent by the Corwin Alleged to Be Forgeries.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 15.—From the statement of The Examiner's Honolulu correspondent there is a prospect that United States officials either at Honolulu or in the United States may have to answer to the charge of breaking faith with President Dole. It is said that Minister Willis grew impatient at Dole's delay in formulating his reply to Willis' demand of abdication and urged greater haste, whereupon Dole called upon Willis and frankly admitted he did not propose to submit his reply until the arrival of a vessel on which it could be dispatched simultaneously with the departure of the Corwin.

Thereupon Willis agreed that the Corwin should carry the dispatches of the provisional government. Dole then hurried forward his reply and sent it to Willis who dispatched the Corwin early next morning. It transpires that no dispatches from Dole were taken by the Corwin, but it speils have come upon her with alarming frequency of late. Visitors are prohibited, every precaution is taken to prevent excitement. Threats against her life have greatly added to her trouble.

Three Hundred Died in the Temple.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 15.—The Pacific Mail steamship City of Peking brought details from China of one of the most terrible fires on record, which occurred in the big temple in that city on Dec. 8 and caused the death of nearly 800 women and children. The annual theatrical performance in honor of the gods was being given in the temple. A boy threw a lighted cigarette into a heap of straw, which ignited, and in a few minutes a conflagration prevailed that people from getting out. There was a general rush to escape. Some were trampled to death, others jumped out of the windows and were either killed or so badly injured they were unable to escape the flames and so perished, while others were drowned in the well. The scene was not long in overtaking them, and they were roasted alive or suffocated by the smoke.

ATTACK OUR CHAUNCEY

Mr. Depew Made Some Enemies While He Was In Rome.

HIS INTERVIEW IS CRITICISED.

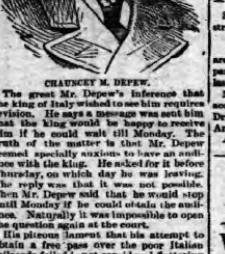
The Great New Yorker Says the Harsh Comments Concerning His Account of His Interview With the Pope Are Unjust—Refuses Railroad Passes In France.

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—The Herald today publishes the following attack on Mr. Depew as sent from Rome:

Mr. Chauncey M. Depew's extraordinary expressions of opinion on his visit to Rome in the form of an interview in a New York paper have just reached here, he having flooded the town with marked copies of the journal. It may interest Mr. Depew to know that his utterances, which he seems so proud of and so anxious to disseminate, have not made him popular. It is almost incomprehensible to the best classes of people here that an educated man should give vent to expressions so crude, puerile and inaccurate as he has done. His many buff-ossory fails flat.

That Audience With the Pope.

Mr. Depew's state ment that the pope gives no private audiences to laymen or to private persons, but made an exception in the case of the great Chauncey, is ridiculous. The pope receives private persons daily at private audiences. At the same time the pope had no idea that Mr. Depew was going to use the audience to puff himself. People here are still laughing at the elation of Mr. Chauncey M. Depew. After he was received by the pope he rushed round excitedly, buttonholed all he met and poured forth his tale into their ears. He became one of the jokes of the moment.



CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW.

The great Mr. Depew's inference that the king of Italy wished to ask him to require revision. He says a message was sent him that the king would be happy to receive him if he could wait till Saturday. The truth of the matter is that Mr. Depew seemed specially anxious to have an audience with the king. He asked for it before Thursday, on which day he had to leave. The reply was that it was not possible. Then Mr. Depew said that he would stop until Monday if he could obtain the audience. Naturally it was impossible to open the question again at the court.

His piteous lament that his attempt to obtain a free pass saved the poor Italian railroads failed is not considered flattering to a man in his position, while his absurd and insulting attack upon the people who hunt heads is regarded for him the resentment of the social and sporting element.

Mr. Depew's Reply.

In an interview Mr. Depew said in regard to the attack: "These charges are all false. I did not flood the city of Rome with papers containing my interview, nor did I go about the city distributing circulars in regard to the conference with the pope. I sent copies to three addresses. One was to the American minister, to whom I thought I owed some attention; one to the American family who intend stopping there some months and the other that of Rev. Dr. Nevin of the Protestant Episcopal church, with whom I became very friendly. These were the only persons I knew in the city and I think no one will believe that I hurried around from house to house for the purpose of inflating myself. The idea is ridiculous.

"The pope sent me a message of good wishes to the American people; hence the charge that I acted disourteously in freely according an interview about what he said to my self. That is all."

What Made Him Enemies.

"There was nothing said or done in regard to an arrangement for an audience with the king that could give rise to adverse criticism. The whole matter was just this: The American minister called and told me that I thought an interview could be arranged. This was on a Wednesday. I told the minister that I deemed the affair a great honor and asked him if he could not for that reason I could call the next day. He informed me to the contrary, and I then said that my plans were such that I would be prevented from seeing the king. My statement was to call shortly, and to be presented later than Thursday would be impossible. He then said he could arrange it for Saturday, but circumstances compelled me to refrain from waiting.

"I did not ask any railroad passes of Italians at all. I did request some from French officials and was refused. My only reason for seeking them was to gain knowledge of the idea those foreign railroaders entertain concerning reciprocity in the business.

"The only thing I treated lightly," he continued, "was my experience with the Italian guide and my observations on the Italian tax hunt. I now commence to believe that it was the reception I had that induced this gossip as much as anything else."

Here Mr. Depew laughed heartily as he recalled the incident. He was much surprised that what seems to be the bitterness of some enemy or enemies should be vented in this peculiar manner.

JOYCE HOLDS THE FORT.

With Two Revolvers the Principal Refuses to Give Up His School.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 15.—Martin Joyce, who for the past several years has been employed as principal of the public school in Lackawanna township, has turned the school into a fort, which he guards with the aid of two large sized revolvers. Principal Joyce had frequent complaints made against him to the school directors. It is alleged that he gave grave offense to the female portion of his school.

At the meeting of the school board last Monday it was decided to close the school on Thursday, and after that day Joyce was not to be an employee of the township. On Thursday, when Director Morgan went to the school after his keys, he was met at the door by Mr. Joyce, who pointed a brace of revolvers at him and ordered him away, refusing to hand over the keys.

Joyce staid in the building all night. On Friday morning Joyce refused the janitor admittance to the building. He opened the school at the regular hour. A few pupils came, and through them Joyce got provisions and oil for a lamp to burn at night. The schoolhouse was still in Joyce's possession, and when the constable demanded the keys of the building he was informed that he could use his name. It is customary to hold Sunday school in the public schoolhouse, but no services were held, as Joyce refused to grant admission to the building to any one. The school directors will appeal to Sheriff Fahey to have Joyce dislodged.

FOR A GREATER NEW YORK.

A Busy Week Begun by the Lawmakers at Albany.

ALBANY, Jan. 15.—For the third week in the legislature this will probably be the most important in many years. Contrary to the usual method of proceeding, a great many of the more important measures proposed this session were introduced during the first few days.

Perhaps the most important work of the week will be the hearing before the cities committees of the senate and assembly on Wednesday afternoon for the bill providing and submitting to the people of the territory sought to be consolidated the question of a greater New York. The hearing will be held in the senate chamber, and large delegations are expected to be present.

On Tuesday afternoon the same committee will meet to hear arguments upon the Buffalo charter amendments designed to restore the charter to the shape in which it was last year before the Sheehan bills were passed. It is expected that very large delegations in support both sides of the question will be present from Buffalo.

No date has as yet been set by the committee on judiciary of either house for hearings upon the proposed amendments to the election laws, and probably there will not be any this week. Neither has any day been set for a hearing upon Senator Lexow's bill providing for a nonpartisan police commission in New York city. This is a subject upon which other bills are liable to be introduced, a probable one being the measure to be prepared by Elihu Root, which will divorce the election bureau from the police commissioners. The board is composed of two Democrats and three Republicans, one Republican and one Democrat to be chosen by the governor from a list composed of two Democrats and three Republicans, one Republican and one Democrat to be chosen by the governor from a list submitted by the board of police commissioners in New York city. STIRRING TRAGEDIES.

In Kansas a Triple Lynching Takes Place.

DELIBERATE HANGING BY A MOB.

Desperate Fight For Life Made by Two Mountain Outlaws In West Virginia—A Texas Shooting Affair—Attempted Murder at a Wedding In Brooklyn.

RUSSELL, Kan., Jan. 15.—A mob of about 20 men entered the jail here, took out J. G. Burton, William Gay and his son, John Gay, and hanged the trio to a small railroad bridge a short distance east of the depot in this city.

About midnight the residents of the north part of town heard a party of 15 or 20 horsemen come in from the north, who left their horses at the stockyards, where plans were arranged, and the mob proceeded to the jail. A few citizens who happened to be out late noticed the suspicious actions of the mob, but were powerless to thwart the purpose of such a determined band of armed men and watched the proceedings from a safe distance. No officers were aroused or were aware of what was going on until early morning, so quiet were the actions of the men. Orders were given by signs and obeyed without a word being spoken.

Swung From a Bridge.

The jail is a small wooden building surrounded by an eight foot board fence. In the jail were the two steel cells in which the prisoners were confined. Guards were placed about the jail, and it was but the work of a moment for the remainder of the mob to gain entrance to the jail building. The mob had but to break off the padlocks of the jail with sledgehammers. Burton was the first one taken out and pinioned with ropes. A spot selected for the lynching and left under the guard, the rest of the party returning and joining the guards who were watching the jail. The two Gays were then taken and marched to the bridge where Burton had been left. Ropes were placed around their necks, and each was given a chance to speak.

Burton would not tell one word about his connection with stealing cattle, selling whisky and other things, but when asked to tell about the Dinning murder replied, "No, sir." Young Gay made a prayer and said Burton had killed Dinning with an ax. Old man Gay said, "We were led into this." The leader then clasped his hands three times, and quick as a flash all three were pushed off the, brid.. The Gays evidently died from strangulation, but the noose on Burton's neck slipped around up over his chin, and he was heard to breathe heavily for the moment, when several shots were fired into his body. Each of the others also had a bullet sent into him.

The mob then left as quietly as it came, going north. The presumption is that it was composed of men from the north ern part of the county, the home of the criminals and the scene of the murder of Dinning.

The crime for which the men were lynched was the killing of Fred Dinning in July last on the Burton place, about 20 miles northeast of this city. Inquiry regarding a draft payable to Dinning and his mysterious disappearance led to an investigation and the arrest of Burton, who implicated the two other men. Each made a confession which led to the finding of Dinning's body buried in a field near the scene of the murder.

Fought For Liberty.

WESTON, W. Va., Jan. 15.—Calvert and Hanson Fleming, two notorious outlaws, for whom the state of Virginia offers a reward of $2,000 and the county of Wise $800, have been captured. They are charged with having committed five different murders and several highway robberies. They successfully evaded the officers of the law and made their way overland to Boggs, this state, in the mountains. They believed themselves to be safe.

They stopped at the store of John Boggs, about nine miles from Govern, a station on the West Virginia and Pennsylvania railroad, in which store the postoffice for the village is kept. The outlaws had been traced to this neighborhood by four officers from Virginia who were seeking their arrest.

While the Flemings were engaged in making some purchases at the store the officers came in and readily identified them. They demanded an immediate surrender, but the desperadoes realized arrest and opened fire upon their pursuers. Shots were returned by the officers, and a fierce conflict for life ensued.

Calvert Fleming was killed outright, and his brother Hanson was mortally wounded with three shots in his left breast. He is still alive. One of the officers, John H. Branham and Doc Swannell, were seriously wounded. The injuries of the former are considered fatal. A clerk in the store was also shot in the struggle, but is not thought to be dangerously hurt.

Bridegroom Shot by a Rival.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 15.—There was murder attempted at a wedding at 81 Main street, where Andreas Santano, the bridegroom, was shot and probably fatally wounded by Domingo Figaro, a disappointed suitor for the hand of Marie de Sante, who was the bride of the groom. All the parties concerned are Spaniards. As the bride and groom came from the room Figaro appeared on the scene, and pulling out a revolver fired three shots. Two of them struck Santano in the head. Santano staggered back and fell, while the wedding guests and the inmates of the house rushed at the would be murderer and disarmed him. Intense excitement prevailed, and Sargeant McCarthy hurried his prisoner to jail. The bride was rendered unconscious by the shock.

Double Shooting In Texas.

CAMERON, Tex., Jan. 15.—A tragedy occurred at a resort in this city in which W. H. Brinkley of Columbus, Tex., lost his life, and A. H. Jones of Meridian, Miss., was mortally wounded. D. H. Meyers of this city, who is the senior member in the firm of D. H. & L. Meyers, is in jail charged with the shooting. A. H. Jones is still living, but is expected to die. Meyers wanted Brinkley to leave, but he said he would go when he got ready. Then Meyers began shooting. Brinkley was shot in the arm and through the thigh, from which he bled to death. When the shooting began, the light was put out, and Jones says he crawled down by a trunk, when Meyers struck a match and shot him through the lower bowels.

Schaefer and Ives Will Divide.

WAR ON A KIRMESS.

Ministers Denounce a Church Festival and Cause a Scare.

GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 15.—A church war has been inaugurated here, and it is now developing into a serious affair. The members of the Episcopal church, of which Rev. Dr. Fidler is the rector, will give a kirmess festival in the church next week, and elaborate preparations are being made for the affair. Some of the ministers of the other churches referred to it in their sermons and startled their congregations by roundly denouncing the proposed entertainment. The scandalous skirt dances and other questionable capers of the ancients, they said, should not be tolerated in civilized society, least of all in Christian church societies.

The pastor of the United Brethren church, Rev. Mr. Funk, stated to his flock that he did not approve of the entertainment, and he added that he hoped none of the members of his church would patronize or countenance the performance, and if any of them persisted in doing so their names would be promptly stricken from the membership rolls. The Methodist minister, Rev. Mr. Wilborn, was equally emphatic in his expression of the same sentiments on the subject.

Meantime the good folks in the Episcopal church are simply stunned by the stir that their proposed entertainment has made in religious circles, but as they insist that the exhibition will be perfectly pure and blameless they will doubtless be carried out of foregoing the festival for which they have been making elaborate preparations.

A SMALL INFERNO.

An Acre of Burning Cinders Which Sends Forth Deadly Gases.

POMEROY, O., Jan. 15.—The dead man found in a bed of burning cinders on Clifton No. 6 mine is thought to be Henry Wallenbrinck of Coal Valley, Alleghany county, Pa. He was suffocated by gas, having fallen into the fire while drunk, and burned to a crisp.

This bed of fire is on the site of the old Clifton mill works and is an acre in extent. It is 16 feet thick, with a thin crust through which the flames burst and light up the town at night. The gases from it make life a misery to the inhabitants. It has been burning since last April, having been started by a great conflagration then, and at times it has seriously impeded travel on the Ohio River railroad by undermining the track.

A second stranger narrowly escaped death there Saturday night. He was pulled out by a miner. The mineral region is in a most conscious condition. All efforts to extinguish the fire have been unavailing.

Santa Fe Staging Its Employees.

DENVER, Jan. 15.—A committee of Santa Fe railway employees from La Junta, Colo., has informed Governor Waite that the engineers, conductors, brakemen, switchmen and trackmen of all grades on the western division of the road have received no salary since last October, and many of the men and their families are on the verge of starvation.

State Naturalization Papers.

READING, Pa., Jan. 15.—A stranger who claimed to be a contractor from Philadelphia visited the naturalization room of about 50 Hungarians and Poles in this city on the pretense that he meant to employ the men if their papers were all right. He has not been seen since, and it is thought that he will sell the papers.

Inhuman Treatment of a Negro.

ROCHELLE, Fla., Jan. 15.—Charles Hill, a negro despatch, was shot and seriously injured by Thomas Pettygrew, a white man. The next night unknown parties went to the house where Willis was lying wounded, riddled him with buckshot and then fired the bed on which the negro was resting.

GOOD HEALTH

THE NECESSITY OF VENTILATION.

Why People Often Rise In the Morning With Depressed Headaches.

If we divide air into 10,000 parts, its composition would be as follows: Oxygen, 2,099; nitrogen, 7,960; carbonic acid, 4 parts. Therefore a room containing 1,000 cubic feet of air contains one cubic foot of carbonic acid. When by respiration, exhalations and other causes this amount is increased to 2½ cubic feet (or one part to 1,000), it becomes sensible to the nose, and the air in the room may be said to be close, or perhaps to some "musty."

According to some authorities, a full grown man at rest will exhale through the pores of his skin and from his lungs nearly three-fourths of a cubic foot of carbonic acid per hour.

Now, let us suppose the room above referred to to be a sleeping room, not ventilated, occupied by two persons eight hours each night. If the doors and windows of the room were closed during the eight hours, the air in a room of 1,000 cubic feet would be increased to about 18 cubic feet (or one part to 200), and the occupants would rise in the morning with depressing headaches. A person coming into the room from outside would declare the air to be "foul."

Now this, according to The Sanitary Plumber, is an extreme example, as people usually leave a door or window open to admit some fresh air, but while the need for ventilation in the day living rooms of a residence is not precisely exacting, there can be no question concerning the necessity for systematic and regular ventilation for sleeping apartments.

For six persons sleeping in as many average size sleeping apartments in one night will exhaust the vitality from and vitiate two or three times as much air as the whole average size house contains. The air may be freshened somewhat by raising the windows, but the greatest is damage done in health, is a prolific source of colds and sickness, and as a means for ventilation is totally unreliable—not to mention the morning's discomfort of arising in a cold room.

The Temperature of the Human Body.

The normal temperature of one's body is [illegible] degrees, and any variation from this, unless it is very slight, may be taken as a warning that disease has set in. Even then it is a strange fact that the variation from the normal point is still not very great. With high fever the temperature may reach 105 or even 106, though it seldom remains long at this point, but when 108 is attained, hope for recovery generally fades. A death is thought to be near. In such cases as cholera, the temperature may go several degrees below 98.4, but it seems that in certain great disturbances of the system it will continue to range far away from its normal point. As exceptions to this apparently [illegible] there are, however, some cases of recovery even after the temperature of 110 and 112 degrees.

One Thing and Another.

The fact that pneumonia so frequently follows exposure to cold or wet has given rise to the impression that pneumonia is caused by bad cold. But medical authorities [illegible] grip and pneumonia as germ [illegible]

Pure soft soap and ammonia applied to a lame back and rubbed in vigorously is almost certain to give relief.

It is stated that men attending the pans in salt works are never known to have cholera, smallpox, scarlet fever or influenza.

Inhaling the smoke from dried golden rod is said to give instant relief in asthma.

Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, who is trying by a most methodical mode of life to see how much health and how long keeping years, never rises in the morning until the temperature of his room is just right.

ART FOR AMATEURS

BENT IRON WORK.

Woman's Work In Decorative Articles of Hammered, Hand Wrought Iron.

Fireproofing has obtained a fresh stimulus in the increased demand for furnishings of ornamental iron work. Iron work of this type, such as grills, screens and other decorative articles, has become so much a fashion that architects have suggested the study of artistic designs to many of our art schools. In this direction the deft hand and artistic eye of the amateur have been found of special value, and women are now practically working in iron, intending to adopt the art as a means of livelihood.

Bent iron work by women was adopted in Great Britain as a fad. This required but a few simple tools and no forge, and what was a whim of wealthy amateurs has developed into a means of making money. Hanging lamps, lanterns and lamp receptacles for vases are now on the list of the lady blacksmith. In hammered hand wrought iron the woman blacksmith has a tiny forge and tools of equipment, not only in iron, but in brass and copper, is working out finished specimens of artistic vases, bowls, etc. There would seem to be a field for woman's work in this direction which may yet become an added industry to those in which the daughters of Eve have already found their way: says The Fire and Water.

Black and Its Substitute In Oil Painting.

In regard to the use of black in oil painting, which, it is said, some teachers will not allow pupils to employ, The Art Amateur says: Different teachers have different ideas on such matters. A little ivory black is considered valuable by many artists when mixed with other colors in oil painting. It should be very carefully introduced, however, as too much will give the color an inky or dirty look. If you wish to omit it from your palette in painting flesh, a fair substitute will be found as a qualifying color, in permanent blue or cobalt mixed with light red.

But shut it with much care,
Without a being, without a stem,
Just shut it fair and square.
When chilly winds are blowing,
And some one taking cold,
And the open door is creaking
And banging like a scold.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS

THE LAY OF AN EGG.

A Pretty White Egg and Wise Good Mrs. Biddy's Friends Said About It.

Good Mrs. Biddy has laid a white egg.
Cluck! cluck! cluck!
And she has proud as a hen can be,
And calls to her friends to come in and see,
Cluck! cluck! cluck!

The first to appear is old Mother Duck,
Quack! quack! quack!
"What have you got there, dear Mrs. Hen?
Only an egg? I'm sitting on ten!"
Quack! quack! quack!

The next one to come was the stable cat,
Miaow—ow—ow!
"A cat, my dear, may look at a king,
But what's to see in that round, white thing?"
Miaow—ow—ow!

Then a laugh was heard that was graff and hoarse,
Haw! haw! haw!
And Neddy looked over the orchard wall,
"What's that?" said he, "about nothing at all."
Haw! haw! haw!

CHEEP! CHEEP! CHEEP!

Poor Mrs. Biddy sat down to cry.
Cluck! cluck! cluck!
"I was proud of my pretty white egg," she said,
"But eggs seem common as common can be."
Cluck! cluck! cluck!

But Towser cried, as he picked his bone,
"Bow! wow! wow!
"You've done your duty, so don't you mind
If folks say things a little unkind."
Bow! wow! wow!

So good Mrs. Biddy took heart again,
Cluck! cluck! cluck!
"I won't care a button what some folk say!"
And she left a pearl in each egg each day.
Cluck! cluck! cluck!

After awhile these eggs were hatched,
Cheep! cheep! cheep!
The chicks were the dearest of dear little things,
With nice little heads and nice little wings!
Cheep! cheep! cheep!

The Wee Ones of Japan.

As if in recompense for the pathetic default that has left my Japanese wee ones without a stocking, the kindly approach of Christmas, of Santa Claus and of all their combined sugar plum festivities, be it given at the beginning of every year these gala days in which to make ready and to receive new kites, new flags, new dolls, new bins, new boxes, new kimonos, new table, new mats, and indeed everything new that can be afforded.

A tolerably fair substitute for Santa Claus is the kenchi man, a person of vast importance at the opening of a new year, who mysteriously arrives, no wee one knows whence, at some hour the day or night before the 1st of January, bringing with him an infectiously cheery confusion of earthen cooking stoves and curious vessels to hail the darling mochi in.

The much esteemed mochi, which is stirred, patted, stirred, crooned over and smiled directly before the excited eyes and under the agitated nostrils of the anguished wee ones, is when ready to be eaten a sweet, glutinous cake.

All during the feast of the new year the little kimona little maidens of this bittersome little land are seen arrayed in dazzlingly bright new kimonos, head well finally bedecked coiffures. Each street, each lane and bypath, produces its picturesque group of these little ones, who, with hand swaying with all the fascinating motions that tend to expand the long kimono sleeves to grateful advantage, when they become to the girlindescribable adjuncts to the favorite New Year's game for little girls of battledoor and shuttlecock, and everywhere new kites of all sizes and shapes, with little boys dressed in their gorgeous best at the end of their strings, are seen gaudily and gorgeously executed.

In making the friendly round of calls which the feast of the new year demands, parents invariably take their children with them, and frisk'ka after frisk'ka filled with the bright little kimono butterflies dashes along the crowded thoroughfares from morning until night. The little girls upon all occasions are most cheerily dressed than the little boys. Harper's Bazar adds to this pretty picture of the Japanese holidays the interesting information that from early morning until bedtime the children wear their prettiest clothes, in which they play without rebuke. If a child comes to grief and soils or tears some of the pretty things he or she is not neither scolded nor struck nor relegated to some dark attic, but is gently cautioned by the elders to be more careful, both even so mild a reproof comes upon so careless an occasion is good naturedly resented by the lookerson.

Nothing Like Kitty.

If you'd see something pretty,
Something dainty, something nice,
Take a look at my kitty
And tell me, if you've wise,
Is there anything cuter
Anywhere in town,
Anything softer
Than this ball of down?

Is there anything with silky hair
Of such a tawny shade?
Anything with two ears
Like pink shells laid?
Anything with two eyes
Round and bright and saucy?
Anything with two paws
To catch a thievish mouse?

Asparagus is rapidly taking the place of smilax for decorative purposes, it being generally recognized as a more fit companion of delicate flowers than smilax.

THE HOUSEHOLD

WINDOW DRAPERIES.

Not Too Fine For the Cottage Nor Too Simple For the More Pretentious Dwelling.

A lady seeking advice from an authority in such matters as to how she should entertain the windows of her new house (some 46 in all) received the unhesitating answer, "Use dotted swiss," and the charming effect resulting proved the wisdom of the selection.

This delicate material seems to be more popular for window curtains than ever before, and the reason undoubtedly lies in its adaptability, for it is suited alike to the cottage and the more pretentious dwelling, being not too fine for the one nor too simple for the other. The more sheer the goods the better the effect will be, however, and by far the best choice for curtains of this sort is a full ruffled trimming of plain swiss about three inches in width. By sewing a tiny cord in one edge of the ruffle and gathering up at the other end it may readily be secured to the selvage edge of the curtain either by hand or by machine.

Ruffled bands of the swiss are used and tassels of white cotton are the most suitable for draping. A new way of hanging swiss curtains is particularly adapted to low windows. For a window 4½ or 5 feet high a full valance 11 inches deep, when finished, is used, the goods taken lengthwise to avoid a seam. This should be trimmed on the edge with ruffles or lace. The lower curtains are supplied with small brass curtain rings, which slip easily on a brass rod not [illegible] the valance, the effect gained by this arrangement being, aside from its picturesqueness, that the curtains may be drawn at will to act as a screen. They are not draped, and look best when pushed to one side into a space of about 10 or 12 inches. For a six foot window the valance may be 13 inches deep, and its better choice of goods should come just to the window frame.

The fine, inexpensive cheesecloth, which is within the means of every one, is very suitable for bedroom curtains. It may be prettily trimmed at the edge either with tassel fringe or lace. An odd way to finish them is to fold a 2½ inch band and sew them between before stitching a strip of colored cambric or any soft cotton stuff. Pink or yellow, red or blue—in fact, any bright color which harmonizes with the other furnishings—may be used, as it is considerably toned down by being placed between the folds of the cloth. Harper's Bazar, the source of the very practical suggestions here made, advises that the valance and edge of the curtain be trimmed with a ruffle of the cheesecloth which has been carefully twisted after it is made, to take away the wiry effect.

Some New Wall Papers.

Among the newer styles of paper hangings noted by The Decorator and Furnisher are the pressed papers that supply the demand for a low priced decorative material in relief, such as the "cameo reliefs" and the "Venetian leathers." The former, as the name indicates, gives in relief, or raised work, cameolike effects decidedly pleasing and novel. The Venetian leathers afford reproductions of the old illuminated leathers of the Moors, Spaniards and Venetians, and are especially adapted to halls, dining rooms and libraries.

In the new Japanese wall papers there is a marked tendency to depart from the gold lacquer treatment that has hitherto almost universally prevailed in Japanese wall hangings. New and beautiful effects are obtained by the use of illuminated lacquers in rich colored metallic lusters, by means of which the papers appear solid sheets of metal richly embossed with artistic designs.

A notable feature in the new wall papers is the great variety of empire treatments. The empire style, being founded upon classic ornaments, is naturally capable of a greater variation of treatment without wearing into the ugly and stagy effects that we know of. There is a healthy restraint, a crisp individuality about the decorative motives, such as torches, wreaths and garlandings, that are in themselves emblematic of love, glory and victory—principles that the world will never grow weary of while human life exists. Quite a number of the designs are of a geometrical character; then there are papers showing floral effects, such as the Japanese lily, stencil effects in the Louis XVI style, pleasing arabesques and neat little empire effects that will form tasteful and beautiful interiors.

English Recipe For Mince Meat.

Take 3 pounds of stoned and chopped raisins, 3 pounds of well washed and dried currants, 3 pounds of finely chopped apples, 3 pounds of well picked and finely minced suet, a pound of sugar, one-quarter of a pound of grated Naples biscuit (sponge cake), 2 ounces each of finely minced candied orange, lemon and citron peel, an ounce of grated nutmeg, a small quantity of powdered cloves, half a pint of brandy and a cupful of port wine, 4 ounces of blanched almonds and the juice and finely grated peel of a lemon are a great addition. This mince meat should be kept some time before using it.

Orange Pudding.

Peel and cut 5 sweet oranges into thin slices, taking out the seeds. Pour over them a coffee cup of white sugar, let a pint of milk get boiling hot by setting it in a pot of water, add the yolks of 2 eggs, well beaten, a tablespoonful of cornstarch made smooth with a little cold milk, stirring all the time. As soon as thickened, pour over the fruit. Beat the whites to a stiff froth, adding a tablespoonful of sugar, and spread over the top for frosting. Set in the oven for a few minutes to harden. Eat cold or hot for dinner or supper. Peaches or other fruit can be substituted in their season for the oranges.

Paper For Wrapping Articles of Silk.

Articles made of silk should not be kept folded in white paper, as the chloride of lime which is frequently used in bleaching the paper will sometimes destroy the color of the silk. Blue, brown or a glossy kind of yellowish paper is the best selection for this purpose. A white satin dress or cloak should always be wrapped up in blue paper, with an outer covering of brown paper sewed together at the edges.

A Pleasant Game.

A pleasant game for young and old is called anagrams. It is played as follows: Select the names of 20 well known flowers or of 20 well known authors. Transpose the letters—for instance, peters red might be written deroldgen; or heaters, white chrysanthemum, turyachenhumase, etc.

Write out a list of the transposed words for each one present, and the person who has guessed the greatest number of flowers at the end of a half hour should receive for a prize a bouquet of flowers. If authors' names are chosen, the prize should be a book written by one of the 20.

$4,300 FOR MRS. OHL.

VERDICT IN THE OHL—BACHE—REINHART CASE.

After Being Out All Night the Jury Came in this Morning with a Verdict of $4,300 for Mrs. Ohl and $300 for Mr. Bache.

The summing up in the case of Andrew Bache of Morristown, and Caroline J. W. Ohl, of this city, against Joseph W. Reinhart commenced in the Circuit Court yesterday morning. Mr. Reed began the arguments for the plaintiffs, and Mr. Lindabury spoke for the defendant until the noon adjournment. In the afternoon Mr. Orris A. Marsh finished the address for the plaintiffs.

The case was given to the jury at 3.30 o'clock. The jurors remained out all night. A verdict was rendered to-day awarding Mrs. Ohl $4,300 and Mr. Bache $300 damages.

The sworn testimony given in this case has placed Mrs Ohl, without doubt, at the head of the profession in question, as witnesses were produced from Plainfield who swore that they saw her riding in all conceivable styles and ways ever thought of by the most daring circus rider. Wild horses, mustangs, and broncbos has once ridden at random through their streets. This was done to prove she was not injured as she claimed.

Mr C. A. Reed and Mr. C. A. Marsh were counsel for Mrs. Ohl.

The suits were brought against Mr. Reinhart, by Mrs. Ohl, of this city and Mr. Bache, a retired resident of Morristown, for $10,000 each for injuries received when thrown out of a dog-cart in front of Mr Reinhart's home on the night of October 14, 1892.

They were returning from a drive, and they say they drove on a big pile of stones at Mr. Reinhart's place. The obstruction, they claim, was not guarded by a light. The dog-cart was upset and the occupants thrown on the stones.

The suits were tried simultaneously. The evidence being the same in each case. Judge Van Syckel thought it would expedite matters to try them together.

FATHER KELLY NAMED.

HE WILL SUCCEED THE LATE FATHER CORRIGAN, OF HOBOKEN.

For Years Attached to St. Mary's Church, Jersey City.—The Bishop's Choice Praised.—He Was Born in Plainfield.

Rev. Charles J. Kelly, assistant pastor of St. Mary's Church, Jersey City, will be Father Corrigan's successor as pastor of the Church of Our Lady of Grace, of Hoboken.

The announcement that Bishop Wigger had induced Father Kelly to accept the appointment when made last night caused sorrow among the parishioners of St. Mary's Church.

Father Kelly has been assistant to the venerable Father Senez for a number of years, and the people of the parish are so much attached to him that they are loath to part with him. Father Senez, too, regrets the parting, though he is pleased that Bishop Wigger has shown his appreciation of Father Kelly's ability.

The Church of Our Lady of Grace is one of the largest in the Newark diocese, and the appointment of Father Kelly, (though it no were allowed to have his own way he would remain in Jersey City) is regarded as the highest compliment that the bishop could bestow upon the popular young clergyman.

Father Kelly is a native of New Jersey, having been born in Plainfield in 1856. He was graduated from Seton Hall. All clear the State is recognized as one of the most eloquent speakers in the diocese.

At the death of Father Corr, pastor of St. Bridget's Church, Jersey City, several months ago, Father Kelly was offered the pastorate, but he preferred to remain with Father Senez, and Bishop Wigger did not press the appointment.

PERSONAL.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Haven of East Third street last night.

Mr. Jacob Higgins of Duer street, North Plainfield is confined to his bed with the grippe.

Miss Fanny MacCready of Newark is the guest of Miss Jessie Coddington of Somerset street.

Mrs. Edward Devine, of West Fourth street, who has been dangerously ill with pneumonia has so far recovered that she is able to sit up.

Mr. Henry Van Middlesworth of Dunellen is dangerously ill. He was taken at his home on Saturday night of typhoid fever with a complication of diseases.

Mr. Wm. Haven, of Watchung avenue, will entertain a few of his friends at his home this evening. The invited ones anticipate a pleasant time, to be spent chiefly in dancing.

Mr. Herman Dany of New Market, who, after a serious illness of several weeks went to South Jersey to be away from business until he entirely recovered, is reported as very much improved.

The condition of Mr. Joseph S. Cutter of West Front street, who has been ill for the past few days with pneumonia and pluerisy, remains unchanged to-day. A consultation of doctors was held yesterday afternoon and his recovery is doubtful. Dr. Zigler is the attending physician.

The tribulations of a busy man, were, in a manner, illustrated in the Ohl-Bache Reinhart case. Mr. Reinhart probably does more actual work than nine-tenths of his employees. He is engrossed in business early and late and is frequently compelled to be absent from home weeks at a time. Whatever the merits or demerits of the case mentioned, it seems hard, when a man supposes he has competent and trustworthy help, that an accident should happen, probably when he was hundreds of miles away, and supposedly because of an oversight of servants, which cost their employer not only a loss in money, but considerable annoyance and waste of time. The case is one of much interest and has attracted considerable attention.

MR. AUGUSTUS G. RICHEY DEAD.

He was the Father of Mrs. Charles J. Fisk of this City.

Mr. Augustus G. Richey, one of the most eminent lawyers in the State, and father of Mrs. Charles J. Fisk of this city, died at Trenton yesterday morning. About two months ago he was taken with the grip, but he partly recovered and left his office work, although he was not physically able to be around. On Friday, the 5th inst., he became ill at the office of his son-in-law, Hon. Charles J. Fisk, in New York, and was compelled to return to his home. He improved somewhat, but on Friday night last he suffered from a rush of blood to the head, and became much worse. Early on Saturday morning consciousness left the brain set in and finally caused death.

He was New Jersey counsel for the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad; was vice President of the Delaware and Bound Brook Railroad; Vice President and oldest Director of the Mechanics National Bank; was also Vice President of the Trenton Savings Fund Society, and the Trenton Gas Company. He was president of the Enterprise Land Company; a Director of the Penn Gas Company, of Philadelphia, a Trustee of Lafayette College, and of the American Sunday school Union, and was connected with other corporations.

Mr. Richey held but one political office. In 1865 he was elected by the Republicans as State Senator from Mercer county. He served three years, his term beginning in 1866. He filled the position with honor and ability. It was in this campaign that Marcus L. Ward defeated General Runyon for Governor. Mayor E. T. F. Applegate of Hightstown, was Mr. Richey's opponent and was defeated by a large majority.

Mr. Richey was the oldest practicing lawyer in Trenton.

MARRIED ON THE SLY.

George W. Frear and Miss Edith Crouse Surprise Plainfield Society People.

Under the above head the following story was printed in the New York Recorder of to-day. As no such names appear in the directory, the story is probably a "fake."

Plainfield is excited over the secret marriage of George W. Frear and Edith Crouse. The former is lawyer and, while only 21 years old, is considered, by some, quite a catch. The wedding occurred in New York early in December, and Edith came home to her parents the following. Since that time her conduct has been strange. She was frequently found in tears, and refused to tell the cause. The wedding certificate to her mother.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Crouse, the parents, are nearly crazed by the affair. For some time Frear and his mother-in-law have been at swords' points. Mrs. Crouse and Edith would ride to the centre of the town with him. Frear neared the girl to go to various places with him, but her parents put a stop to it, telling him that he was too old for her.

After the marriage was made known the girl was sent to an aunt in Brooklyn. She called at the old schools, and is now living with her in Brooklyn. The couple will try to have the marriage annulled.

In Justice Sodtyne's Court.

The case of Brown vs. Rose Jackson, landlord and tenant, was tried before Justice Sodtyne yesterday. A decision was rendered in favor of the plaintiff and a warrant issued for the defendant's dispossession of the premises.

To-morrow the case of Conviercler vs. Saltzman will come up for trial.

The case of Montanye vs. Wormser, in tort, will be tried on the 19th, and on the 20th the case of Schmidt vs. Vanness, on contract, is set down for trial.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

Won't Travel in the Rear Cars.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 16.—One effect of the accident yesterday was manifested this morning in the fear which the public seems to feel to trust themselves on the trains of the Morris and Essex branch road, which is the main outlet to the city from all these suburban villages.

Not more than half the usual number of passengers was observed on the early trains from Orange to day, and it was noticed that they seemed to avoid travelling in the forward and rear cars as if by common consent, while the centre cars were crowded.

Both Senates Met To-day.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 16.—The Democratic and Republican Senates met here this morning and adjourned till to-morrow. The Democratic Senate received favorably the opinion of Attorney General Stockton.

The "Shriners" Reception and Carnival.

Among those from this city at the grand reception and annual carnival of the Masonic Order known as "Mecca Temple of the Order of the Mystic Shrine," were Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Leggett, and Miss Van Winkle, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Asa Collier, and daughter, Mr. Brttindale, Mr. and Mrs. Mason, Charles Taylor (son of Philadelphia) and niece. The reception fully justified the adjective grand. It was superb. To see nearly a thousand people on the floor at one time, with plenty of space, and from 8,000 to 10,000 in the boxes and seats, all brilliant in jewels and costumes, were in themselves an extremely rare sight, but when these are surrounded by the most lavish of decorations illuminated by myriads of electric lights, the scene was supernatural itself. The brains, wealth and fashion of New York and vicinity were well represented. The carnival represented realistic scenes in Arabian life, including a pageant composed of 200 Syrians, and others in their costumes of various tribes, marching, dancing and performing. All was animation and splendor, which occupied an hour of the five hours of dancing. To get an idea of the social affairs which these attendance gotton up one has only to look at the cost to the "Shriners" last year, when they are said to have expended $20,000 on the affair, and received $28,000. For the boxes which have cost $60 each last night cost "only" $40 in deference to the times, it is presumed that the revenue will not be so large, although the attendance was by some considered greater in number.

The object seems to be the bringing together at least once a year of Masons and their families and friends, and as such the affair was undoubtedly a grand success.

No Ice Crop so Far.

Good crops of ice have occasionally been gathered in New Jersey after the middle of January, but the ice men are now beginning to be alarmed about the prospect for this year.

The United Ice lines have 40,000 tons of last Winter's ice stored at Greenwood Lake and other places in the State, and there is much holdover ice at various points owned by independent dealers, but this does not give employment to the hundreds of men who eke out an existence in Winter by working upon the ice fields or in the houses. It is said that the syndicate spends at least $100,000 in wages in northern New Jersey every Winter when there is a good ice crop. This year it will apparently spend little or nothing.

Transferred to Somerset County.

Edward Gousel, civil engineer of Morristown who has for some time past been engaged in surveying a new boundary line between Morris and Somerset counties, has nearly completed his labors. Somerset gets a fair share of benefit, as several properties heretofore in Morris county will be placed in Somerset. The survey of one of the farms, Mr. Garabrant, has voted and paid taxes in Morris for twenty half a century.

Mr. A. M. Runyon Suing the Railroad.

The case of Mr. A. M. Runyon of this city against the Central Railroad is being tried at Elizabeth to-day. Mr. C. A. Marsh is counsel for Mr. Runyon. The suit was brought for damages for injuries claimed to have been received in the Greenville accident in December 1892, by which several Plainfielders had narrow escapes.

EDITORIAL NOTES

How Old Is Man?

The real time that has elapsed since the human race began, according to the latest conclusions of science, about 50,000 years. The first trace of man is found in western Europe in the drift period. The drift preceded the glacial period and gets its name from a series of gravel beds found in the valleys of three rivers—namely, the Somme in France, the Manzanares in Spain and the Thames in England. Thus on the very site perhaps of London, the greatest city of the world, primitive man first found himself. Wherever traces of the use of fire and of implements made by human hand are found together, there it is safe to say man existed. In the localities named ashes, embers, cracked bones and chipped stones have been found in caves.

A curious fact is that the traces of man in the places mentioned are in close proximity to the bones of animals that now exist only in warm climates, such as elephants, lions and large apes. This shows that the regions named enjoyed at the time of primitive man a tropical climate. Then the tremendous glacial period descended on the northern hemisphere, and the tropical animals, were frozen out. Man, however, by reason of his superiority, took refuge in caves and holes in the ground and managed to exist somehow till there was over—a period of 50,000 years. Then an ice tongue warmer developed and threw and in the course of 20,000 more years grew into the exalted being we know now.

But how did he start in the first place? Dr. D. G. Brinton, writing in The Forum, inclines to the belief that man is a so called "sport" from some of the larger apes in the tropical region of Europe before the glacial period. The remains of tailless apes having 32 teeth are found in the drift in western Europe. "In southern Asia, in southern Europe or in northern Africa we may confidently say man first opened his eyes on the world about him," says Dr. Brinton. In plants and in animals it is the experience that suddenly there appears at times an individual very unlike its ancestors. This individual propagates other individuals not like its ancestors, but like itself, and thus founds a race. Dr. Brinton suggests that in such a "sport" from the higher apes of the drift period the human race as we know it now took its rise.

Hypnotism In Medicine.

Can hypnotism ever take the place of opium, chloral and ether in subjuing pain and controlling violent mental manifestations? Dr. J. R. Cocke, who writes in The Arena, declares that it can. He says he has used this agency with success both in private and in hospital practice.

He does not tell us how he hypnotized his subject, except that in one case he called the patient, a man delirious from typhoid fever, sharply by name, held his right hand firmly and bade him look at a coin held in the doctor's left hand. Then the doctor told him to repeat the words "thirty-six." Then he was told he could not stop saying "thirty-six." After repeating "thirty-six" for two minutes the doctor peremptorily commanded him to sleep, which he presently did. The same patient was hypnotized eight times to control delirium. Each treatment held him calm and in sleep four hours, and he finally recovered.

In another instance Dr. Cocke cured a case of delirium tremens in a man who had been a hard drinker since the age of 16, and not only that, but he cured him of drunkenness altogether. Tried with 13 insane patients, the doctor's hypnotic power brought about the cure of seven. He is certain that this agency could be of wide usefulness in painful surgical cases, and he wishes the medical profession generally would cultivate it more.

The Duty of First Importance

this winter, after supplying one's own need for food and shelter, is to help provide it for others not so fortunate. This is at present done in various ways, and it will be a pleasing recollection in years to come that the American people met the great pinch nobly and generously. In many places the members of a particular trade or calling agree to give one day's wages each to the needy. At one time it will be all the policemen of a city; at another, all the carpenters or clerks or musicians. Teachers meet the call in a similar way. Farmers can help more almost than any of the others by donating some of the grain or root crops they have on hand so long before this winter. If all who are not in need will help, then all who are in need will be helped.

Leadville, Colo., announces that the mill now be able to take care of all her unemployed men, in consequence of the starting up of the Arkansas Valley Smelting works. With the 30 square miles of goldfields lately discovered in Colorado, mining enterprises will be steadily opened on also. The mines, though not equal to the richest, still yield gold in such quantity that it can be produced at a profit.

If this stage of civilization 43 is too young for a man to be laid off from his employment because of age. A man of ordinary good constitution who has taken fair care of his health is as good a man physically even at 50 as he ever was.

THE HOBOKEN HORROR.

List of Victims of the Railroad Accident Increases.

A FEARFUL CRASH IN THE FOG.

The Express Train Had Stopped Up For the Bridge, and the Local Train Crashed Into It—Smoking Car Cut In Two—Many Injured.

HOBOKEN, N. J., Jan. 16.—At a point about two miles from Hoboken and a few hundred feet from the drawbridge across the Hackensack river the Orange accommodation crashed into the rear of the Delaware express of the Morris and Essex branch of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad. The scene of the accident was on the long trestlework which forms the bed of the Hackensack river and away from the possibilities of any quick assistance. Ten or more lives paid the penalty and scores of others were injured, and the list of known injured is 37, some of whom will probably die.

So far as can be learned the cause of the accident was due to the heavy fog, and many claim the carelessness of the engineer of the Orange accommodation caused it. As usual, in the morning both trains were well filled, and it would seem a miracle that the death list was not increased many fold.

The Dover express had slowed up to make sure that the drawbridge was all right and that they could go ahead. The engineer of the Orange express, who should have done likewise, failed to take this precaution and crashed into the rear of the preceding train.

The last car on the express was a combination baggage and smoker, and into this plunged the huge engine, cutting through the woodwork like a knife and sending splinters in all directions with a force that showed the tremendous speed at which the train was traveling. The coach ahead of the smoker was telescoped, the roof lifted out and the seats torn and twisted as though they were made of paper. The roof was thrown ahead and partly telescoped the third car.

A Terrible Moment.

For a moment the passengers did not realize the awful situation, but soon the shrieks of the wounded and dying and the noise of escaping steam told them that an awful calamity had occurred. Those who were not injured were quickly at work rescuing their less fortunate fellow passengers. Along the tracks the dead, dying and wounded lay strewn, some of them having rolled to the bottom of the 15 foot embankment on which the accident occurred. A short distance from the scene was a railroad telegraph office, and to this there was a rush and a call sent for assistance.

Relief trains were immediately started from Hoboken, and almost before these on the trains had realized the situation a crowd had commenced to gather from the city. Ambulances and physicians were sent by the police from both Jersey City and Hoboken. The work was done and men from the neighborhood of the accident grabbed crowbars and axes and helped to get out the dead and remove the dying and injured. Six dead bodies were recovered within half an hour, all of whom were men.

The rear car of the Orange local, which was known as No. 23, was hard and fast in the debris of the rear car and had pinned down some of the victims in such a fashion as to be nearly fatal. Among a big engine and coming toward him at a terrible speed. Quickly jumping to the side door, he opened it and leaped out just as the crash came. In speaking of the wreck he said:

"I think the accident was due in part to the recklessness of the engineer on the Dutch Gap accommodation. Our train was moving at the rate of about five miles an hour and was pushed 300 feet before it came to a stop. The engine of the accommodation, the W. H. Lewis, crashed into the rear car of the Dover express about 26 feet. This last car, the combination baggage and sleeper, telescoped into the next and car from the rear and split the roof of that car completely from the sides and ends. Four men were playing cards at the last table of the smoker and three of these were among the killed. I saw some men rushing through the aisle of the car. I was just looking up when the crash came. The side of the car heaved in at an angle of about 45 degrees, and the men who were forward on the left caught the worst of it. The side of the car plowed right through them."

After a few minutes something like order was restored. The work of rescue, and the victims were rapidly taken out from the twisted iron and splintered timbers. Of the dead were so covered with dust and blood that it was impossible for them to identify them. The cries and moans of the injured were terrible, and it seemed as if no one could do enough to relieve the wreckage. As soon as the wrecking trains arrived such heavy parts as could be easily moved were lifted from the track, and the work of rescue was then soon completed. The wounded and dead were placed on the train and taken into Jersey City, where many of them were met by friends and relatives who had already heard of the accident. Ambulances were there in readiness, and those of the wounded who were unable to go home were taken to the hospitals. The dead were taken to the morgue, there to await identification. There seems to be some dispute in regard to the number of dead killed, but the most authentic account shows but nine, while the injured number 37.

He said the engineer of the Orange accommodation was so badly injured that it was impossible for him to give any account of the accident.

An Engineer's Frightful Plunge.

SAN RAFAEL, Cal., Jan. 16.—A frightful railroad accident occurred at Austin creek bridge on the North Pacific Coast railroad. A freight engine, eight cars on board was crossing the bridge when it gave way. The engine crashed down a distance of 40 feet into the stream below. All the men were drowned with the exception of Conductor Brown.

MAY ARREST THE GOVERNOR

Jacksonville's City Ordinance Prevents Him From Stopping the Fight.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 16.—The serious part of the Corbett-Mitchell dilemma seems to be passing away, and the comical side is beginning to make itself felt. A number of attorneys were discussing the question in one of the hotel corridors when one remarked in a joking manner, "The governor of the state could step in and interfere with this contest, because either would be liable to imprisonment and fine and perhaps both."

This was laughed at, and the attorney, procuring a copy of the city ordinances, turned to where it stated that any person found guilty of interfering with or preventing the operation of any of the ordinances of the State is a fineof $100 or imprisonment for 30 days.

Judge Gibbons of the municipal court was asked if the law had been rightly interpreted. "It is true," said Judge Gibbons. "By interfering with the Corbett-Mitchell contest the governor, sheriff or mayor would be liable to fine and imprisonment. The ordinances allowing such a contest cannot be interfered with even by the governor."

"What would you do if the executive should be brought before you on such a charge?"

"Well," replied the judge, "I should be governed by circumstances. At any rate I should do my duty."

When this new phase of the question becomes noised about, lawyers and sports are highly amused. They thought it would be a huge joke should Governor Mitchell be locked up for a month in jail for preventing a glove contest.

Pardon Came Too Late.

WHEELING, Jan. 16.—A dispatch was received here announcing that President Cleveland had pardoned J. D. T. Meredith of Lewis county, convicted of passing counterfeit money. Meredith was confined in the Wheeling jail, and a week ago last Sunday he committed suicide in his cell by hanging himself with a rope made of his bedclothes. The pardon came a week too late.

SIGHTED A BIG METEOR

Captain McKee Treated to a Remarkable Scene at Sea.

SAYS IT BLAZED LIKE A BIG SUN.

It Was as Big as Five or Six Full Moons, and For Half an Hour It Was In Sight, When It Ended Its Career by Going to Pieces In Mistake.

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Landlubbers may fancy that queer things have had something to do with the wonderful meteor which Captain McKee and Chief Officer Catherine of the steamship Yumuneca reported having seen at sea on their arrival here from Charleston.

They are both willing to swear that they saw it, though, as the time then this great meteor may be mentioned about the heavens in a manner to make them fancy that judgment day had come and that the earth was about to be turned into smithereens by this awful ball of fire. The captain declared that the meteor was as big as five full moons, while the chief officer declared it was as large as six full moons.

Both agree as to everything else concerning the meteor, which, if all they tell about it be true, is the most extraordinary matter ever let loose on the astonished mortals.

Like a Big Sun.

It must not be inferred from the fact that these men saw it in its size by saying it was as big as so many "full" moons that the meteor was "full." Though it took a zigzag course, there is no reason for believing that it stopped long enough a meteor as the sober man who saw it. It was just about dawn, when the Yumuneca was 15 miles south of Charleston bar, that the meteor was seen. Captain McKee and Chief Officer Catherine were the only two men on deck at the time.

"I saw it first ahead and far up in the heavens when we first saw it," said Chief Officer Catherine, "and seemed to be coming straight for the ship. I thought judging from its appearance and that some planet was about to strike the earth. It was as big as six full moons and burned like the sun.

"Suddenly it shot off to the east, followed by a great streak of fire. When I saw it was not going to strike the ship, I felt relieved. It frightened me pretty badly, I admit. After going about 50 degrees to the east it began to take a zigzag course. It darted about the heavens at great speed, just as a ball of lightning would. It continued to go about in that way for a long time.

"At last it burst into more than 100 pieces like a skyrocket. The small fireballs were shot all over the heavens in every direction and gradually died away as the fire does from an exploded rocket.

In Sight Half an Hour.

"I pulled out my watch when the meteor, or whatever it was, began its zigzag course, and I think it was in sight more than half an hour. The captain and I both watched the thing from the time it started until it went out of fire it left in its wake gradually died out."

Captain McKee is a man of few words, and after telling of the size of the meteor and the time it was observed together to Chief Officer Catherine for full particulars. The mate of the ship wanted to know why he was not called to witness the exhibition of the meteor when he was first told about it. Chief Officer Catherine told him that he and the captain were "transfixed with astonishment" at first and did not want to lose sight of it for a moment. Scientists or skeptics can get full information about this meteor from either Captain McKee or Chief Officer Catherine.

HORNBLOWER REFUSED

The Senate Fails to Confirm His Nomination.

BRILLIANT TARIFF DEBATES.

Mr. Reed and Mr. Cockran Have an Interesting Tilt In the House Which Stirs Up the Gutterbut—Curtain Again Urged a Head Issue.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The senate after a contest of more than six hours rejected the nomination of W. B. Hornblower of New York as associate justice of the supreme court by a vote of 30 to 24. A great deal of interest was manifested in this case because of the fight which Senator Hill of New York made against the confirmation.

The principal speeches of the afternoon were made by Senator Hill against and by Senator Vilas of Wisconsin in favor of confirmation. Senator Hill talked for over an hour and a half and Senator Vilas for two hours. Both were powerful speeches from their respective standpoints and were spoken of highly by those who heard them.

Senator Hill began immediately after the doors were closed in support of the adverse report of the judiciary committee. He maintained that the committee had carefully and deliberately weighed all the evidence before it; that the conclusion had been reached only after the most painstaking examination of all the facts and that the determination reached was based upon all the facts presented.

Hill on Hornblower.

Mr. Hill dwelt at some length upon the importance of a position on the supreme bench and then turned to the legal qualifications which Mr. Hornblower possessed. He said that among the many men who adorned the bar of New York state and who were Democrats stanch and true there were hundreds more capable of filling the position than Mr. Hornblower. In a state abounding in able lawyers it was not necessary to select to occupy an exalted position on the supreme bench men of mediocre ability. The office was of so much importance that it required for its proper command and heretofore had commanded the most eminent legal talent of the country, but in the present instance men of greater experience and of more general renown, if not greater personal integrity, could have been found for the office to which the president had appointed Mr. Hornblower.

Mr. Hill did not attack the personal character of the nominee, but reviewed the history of his practice in New York, and he claimed that the record was enough to convince him and a majority of the senate judiciary committee of the unfitness of Mr. Hornblower for the place to which he had been appointed.

While he did not charge that the practice of Mr. Hornblower was not entirely respectable, he asserted that it was not of a character to justify the president in selecting him for this office in the face of the fact that there were so many lawyers of established reputation to whom the position might have been tendered.

He also asserted that while the appointment had been made from New York neither of the New York senators had been consulted in the matter, and he evidently desired that it should be understood that he regarded it as a personal selection of the president. To this he had no objection, but such a selection should have been a man who was entitled to the confidence and respect of his associates in the legal professions of his state.

The moderation which Senator Hill displayed was commended by several of the senators, as it was expected by some that he might make the occasion one for an attack upon the administration.

Vilas Defends Hornblower.

Senator Gray of Delaware made a brief speech in favor of confirmation. Senator Vilas of Wisconsin made the argument for the minority members of the judiciary committee who spoke for more than two hours. His statement was an emphatic and vigorous presentation of the case. He said that the minority as well as the majority had weighed the evidence for and against the confirmation. No pains had been spared by those who were opposed to Mr. Hornblower to gather up every shred of evidence which could be found against him. The nomination had been held in abeyance for many weeks while the friends the enemies of Mr. Hornblower had been seeking in every direction for something to present against him. During that time nothing had been presented to the senate of single shadow against his personal character, and his integrity was acknowledged even by opponents to be without blemish.

The solid ground upon which any opposition could be based was his legal attainments. The fact which had been brought out before the judiciary committee and which he intended to place before the senate was a sufficient refutation of those charges.

Senator Vilas then read many letters from prominent attorneys of New York city and other places throughout the country setting forth the high personal character and the ability of Mr. Hornblower.

Some discussion was had by other senators, but the large number of points presented by Senators Hill and Vilas left little to be said on either side. The senate manifested a great deal of interest in the discussion, and the large attendance filling in the chamber during the entire controversy. There was a quorum when the vote was taken just before 7 o'clock. An effort to reconsider the judges no of secret by the detailed vote failed, and only the announcement of the result was made.

The legislative session of the senate was short and uneventful. The morning hour was consumed by the introduction of petitions and bills, and one or two unimportant measures were taken up from the calendar and passed by unanimous consent.

Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire was to have spoken on the tariff question, but he gave way to the executive session after an agreement had been effected postponing his speech until today.

A Spirited Tariff Debate.

The consideration of the tariff debate under the five minute rule was begun in the house. A stirring debate occurred over the question of procedure, the Republicans insisting in their right to offer amendments alternately with the Democrats, but the chairman ruled that Mr. Wilson, introducing the committee, had the right first to offer amendments looking to the perfection of the bill.

Only three amendments were disposed of—none of material moment. The attempt of Messrs. De Forest and Sperry of Connecticut to secure the adoption of an amendment increasing the duty on Sumatra cigar wrappers to the present rates was defeated.

The debate consisted with a brilliant tilt between Mr. Cockran and Mr. Reed. These two leaders crossed swords in one of the most interesting word duels of the debate, and when they finished each side claimed the victory.

Mr. Reed began by following a speech by Mr. Cockran with: "It is strange that with all the eloquence displayed by the gentleman from New York he should resort to that which is merely physical. [Republican laughter and applause.] The gentleman wants to know why the wages played are wandering about the streets when the McKinley bill is in operation"—

Mr. Cockran here stopped to say that he referred not to the McKinley law, but to the long years during which the protective system had been in operation. At this period of that time, when the suspension did come, he said it was extraordinary that employers should have all the profits and labor should be making its wages.

"That is precisely what I was calling attention to," continued Mr. Reed. "You give a reason, and I state a fact. By a similar process we might charge up the bad condition of affairs to the unfaithfulness of the Democratic party. Prosperity has been destroyed by the action of another agency—not by the continuance of the present one."

The applause on the Republican side and in the galleries was deafening when Mr. Reed sat down.

"The conclusion of the gentleman's argument," replied Mr. Cockran when order was restored, "illustrates the forgiving. The beginning of too much tariff reform is physical; the conclusion of the protective argument is purely spiritual." (Laughter and applause.)

Lilliokalani Cannot Sue.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The rumor that ex-Queen Lilliokalani is about to bring suit against the United States for a very large sum of money, and her claim is based in damages on the president's recent Hawaiian message and Secretary Gresham's letter, has created a good deal of interest in official circles. Suit cannot be brought by an individual against the government, and there is no method of procedure through the courts whereby the ex-queen could take to prosecute her claim.

The only course which Lilliokalani can pursue is to submit her claim against the United States Congress would have to approve this before the claim could be adjudged by the court of claims. In fact the only remedy which the ex-queen is to congress, where, in view of her present unpopularity, she could hardly expect to meet with satisfaction or success.

Carlisle Urges a Bond Issue.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—Secretary Carlisle has written a letter to Senator Voorhees in which he makes a statement of the condition of the treasury and of the necessity for relief being taken for such relief. He says that the time of the house has been assigned to the tariff bill until Jan. 20, and for this reason he appeals to the senators to take the initiative in a measure to replenish the treasury. He adds that if prompt action is not taken by congress it will be necessary for him to issue bonds under existing laws.

WHAT IS A PELISSE?

A Sort of Glorified Cut of Door Garment and the Height of Distinction.

Pelisses are the height of fashion for outdoor garments. The question is, What is a pelisse? It is a garment which thoroughly envelopes the figure, resembling a dress and yet unlike one. A model that answers the question is made in black moire, with a large, bold watering, and is trimmed with jet and black fur, which appears on the handsome cape that falls over the large, sweeping sleeves. There is a jet belt, and the pelisse is carried up high in the neck. It is certainly one of the most stylish outdoor garments of the season, and there is nothing more difficult to select than an out of door garment. In its time it is wanted to play a variety of parts, and it is difficult to obtain anything which will fill the wants of town and country wear, of walking and driving, and indeed all the other demands on such a garment.

For traveling nothing could be more delightful than a thick black cloth, bordered with Thibet goat, the figure hidden beneath a deep cape and the sleeves coming to the waist, cut after what used to be called the "elephant" shape; the voluminous skirt a suggestive of great warmth.

Prune is a favorite color, and a prune pelisse of fine ladies' cloth is made with a cape edged with black gimp and feathers and the throat.

A pelisse that might head the list of pelisses is in dark satin with velvet capes pointed on the shoulders, each edged with jet and meeting a corselet. The skirt, lined with pale satin, flares most gracefully, and the sleeves are, of course, large.

Some black, worn by our grandmothers, has descended to their grandchildren in the form of brocaded pelisses, completely enveloping the figure, and trimmed with black satin rosettes carried down the front and fastening the cape, which reaches to the waist.

centrates a good deal of attention upon the overcoat. From London, the Mecca of men's fashions, a New York Herald correspondent writes in regard to it: "On this garment the long tailed, slanting pocketed racing coat has had an obvious influence. The most fashionable coat this winter is it to one which, without being shaped so closely to the figure as the so called racing coat, yet somewhat suggests its lines. It is not quite so long, reaching only about midway between the knee and ankle, is cut with a single tail behind, which opens almost to the waist line, and is, as regards its front, a sort of compromise between a single and double breasted coat. It buttons well over, like a double breasted coat, and yet shows no buttons after the fashion of the single breasted variety. The sleeves are turned up at the cuff, and if the material is especially rough this turned up cuff will often be faced with velvet. If the silk lining to the coat is carried out to the edge of the lapels, as it now often times is, and turned down, the collar is then of plain cloth. If the facing of the lapel is of cloth itself, then the collar is of velvet. The pockets are cut with flaps and slightly on the slant."

For driving and extremely cold weather the fur lined coat is provided, long, loose, with wide cuffs and shawl collar of fur. The authority already quoted says that for the same purpose a new material has been introduced, which has obvious advantages. It is called by the tailors "Scotch frieze," and is in appearance something like the regulation Irish frieze, but is very much softer and free from the harsh feeling of the latter material. Its advantages are that it is both extremely warm and very light in weight. These driving coats are made with a special fullness below the waist line, so as to allow of their being drawn well over the knees without discomfort, and have of course the turned up cuffs, so that they may on occasion be so lengthened in the sleeve as to cover the hand.

A Novelty In Ostrich Feathers.

Until recently the shaded ostrich feather, with darker or lighter tips, was considered quite a novelty, and now it is mostly beginning to be supplanted by a new sort of shading. The novelty consists in the entire feather showing several similar tones of different colors, or else different shades of one color, as arranged as to have the effect of shot silk.

THE HANDKERCHIEF.

Of Ancient Honor and Renown—A Gift For Queens and a Token of Love.

No linen article can be held so humble an origin. Beginning as a rough piece of cloth, the "clout" or rag changed at last into the most delicate lace begirt article of the toilet. Then it became a gift for queens or a token of love. The corner of an apron still suffices the workyday woman for tears and furtive sniffs of the nose, while a very dingy and unsavory article is the sole joy of the schoolboy. Careful matrons in Scotland show a decided pride in the folded handkerchief around their Bibles, which they unwrap and shake out of its folds in church with an air of perforning a religious rite.

The handkerchief attained to honor and renown in the east long before its humblest manifestation, the "swat cloth," was in use in England. In Egypt it was considered as an amulet and among the Moors a love token. The Greeks have left no written record of it. But on vases and other pictured history there are Greek women tossing pensively, with a rather large cloth in the right hand. The Romans seem to have been accounted to handkerchiefs as a strictly utilitarian kind, for Juvenal makes fis rose frequent use a kind of reproach.

The Anglo-Saxons used their "swat clothes" openly, but the Normans hid their napkins about their persons. Pockets there were none, and it could not conveniently be attached to their girdles. Nevertheless by Edward IV's day a certain lardy latterand in the handkerchief had arisen for that monarch had his made of "Hollands cloth," and ordered no less than four dozen to be made by a certain Alice Shapstone, to whom he paid twopence apiece for making them, equal to about two shillings. It is said that the empress of Russia paid £300 for a single handkerchief. The embroideries who made it wrought seven years and lost her eyesight over it. It will be seen from this how much the handkerchief has grown in importance.

In the sixteenth century the handkerchief began to be in more general use at court for men as well as women. Henry VIII was particular about handkerchiefs and expected the lords of his chamber to be provided with them. His himself paid Mistress Argenser £5 for 11 dozen handkerchiefs in 1531, equal to about 3 shillings apiece at present, to be given out to those who served his person. And now it was that the handkerchief began to assume its rightful place as a thing of particular importance.

With Elizabeth the handkerchief, like all articles of the toilet, was made to be considered. It was trimmed with lace and decked with embroidery. But in her youth she was not yet well provided for. Lady Brian, Elizabeth's governess, is forced to complain to the king that her royal charge had "no handkerchers" to her nose. If her reign they handkerchiefs, finely worked, edged with gold lace and folded neatly, were made on purpose for tokens of love and were given by gentlewomen to their lovers, who wore these dainty tokens in their hats.

Where the Turkey Came From.

The secretary of the Turkey club of England says in The Feathered World that the turkey appears to have been bred in England for over 300 years, but where it originally is a matter of doubt. "Many suppose it to come from the east, as its name implies; others that Mexico was its native place. At the time Hernando Cortes subdued the Mexicans in 1521 the turkey was found in a domesticated state and very probably had been bred there several centuries before that time. Domestic turkeys were introduced into England from America in 1585, and accounts are given of their being served at banquets in 1553; a few years later they appear to have become sufficiently abundant to adorn the farmer his Christmas dinner, and from that time the turkey has held premier place on such festive occasions.

He That Was Born to Be Hanged.

"He that was born to be hanged will never be drowned" is an old English proverb which has its equivalent in most other modern languages. The Danes say, "He that is to be hanged will never be drowned unless the water goes over the gallows." The Italians say, "He that is to die by the gallows may dance on the river," and the Dutch, "What belongs to the raven does not drown." Shakespeare alludes to the proverb in "The Tempest" when he makes Gonzalo say of the boatswain, "I have great comfort from this fellow; methinks he has no drowning mark upon him; his complexion is perfect gallows."

Average Depth of Oceans.

The average depth of all the oceans, according to figures given by Thorne, is from 2,000 to 2,600 fathoms. Soundings have been made in the Atlantic ocean, 30 miles of the island of St. Thomas, in the West Indies, which showed a depth of 28,250 feet, or about four and one-half miles. In 1873-4 the ship Challenger made a voyage around the world for the purpose of taking deep sea soundings, and the results showed that the greatest depth in the Pacific ocean was between four and one-half and five miles, while that of the Atlantic was probably as given above.

A Surprising Performance.

Strike a cut glass goblet with your finger so as to make it ring. It will give a prolonged sound, generally of a grave nature. Then, while it is still sounding, take the glass, put it close to your mouth and shout into it as strongly as possible a similar sound. Nearly always the glass, whose vibrations are thus doubled, will break, in pieces. This was a favorite experiment of a celebrated bass singer, who, in whatever friendly circles he found himself, used to break in this way, one after another, all the glasses that were offered to him.

The Cotton Gin.

The cotton gin invented by Whitney in 1793 consists of a large shaft or cylinder, on which are placed from 80 to 60 circular saws about one-half an inch apart, with a similar number of smaller ones in the cylinder. These revolve between steel bars so close that the seed cannot pass through. The teeth of the rapidly revolving saws draw the lint and pull it from the seed, while a brush revolving in an opposite direction cleans the teeth as fast as the fiber is drawn through the bars.

Vowed to Marry Thirty Wives.

At Nagoya, in China, a merchant who is in his sixtieth year has just divorced his twenty-sixth wife and is about to marry the twenty-seventh. He had received when he was young a vow to marry 30 wives, and is delighted that he has now only three more to marry to keep his vow.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS

A FROG'S ADVENTURE.

The Experience of a Sprightly Young Bachelor Who Wished Excitement.

Once in a marsh there lived a colony of frogs, and the oldest inhabitant of the place was an old bullfrog who sat beneath a large rockleaf and every evening hoarsely croaked out his song. There was also a very sprightly young frog in the colony. He wore a bright spotted coat and thought himself very fine. He was a gay young frog and liked to enjoy himself.

One day he became restless and declared that he meant to leave his old home and seek excitement in another marsh.

"Be advised, my young friend," croaked the old bullfrog, "be advised by me and do not go. You will come to harm."

But the young frog laughed in scorn and set off at once, with a number of young friends, for a distant marsh.

When they arrived there they were welcomed by the frogs of the place and had a fine time. The water seemed so much cooler, the plants so much greener, the little flies so much more delicious than at home, and, best of all, the young frog made friends with a pretty little frog in emerald green, and she went along with him everywhere and joined in all his games.

But one morning a cry of alarm was raised, and all the frogs leaped about in confusion. A great white duck had found them out and was bearing down upon them.

The young frog sprang to the side of his pretty little friend to protect her, but at the last moment she deserted him to dive beneath the water with another young frog in a brighter coat than himself.

In terror and despair he looked around. The duck was upon him. Splash! came her great foot among the weeds, her voice sounded loud and harsh in his ear. She had caught him by the leg! He made a desperate plunge, and just managed to escape her and reach a great clump of weeds, beneath which he hid himself, and all that day he stayed there with his wounded leg, nor dared to stir.

When night came on, there was nothing for it but to limp home as best he could, the only one left to tell the tale—sadder and wiser than when he started.

The old bullfrog was sitting beneath his rockleaf.

"Ah, my young friend," croaked he, "if you had but taken my advice you would not have come to this."

Two Little Kittens.

Two little kittens, one stormy night,
Began to quarrel and then to fight.
One had a mouse, the other had none,
And that was the way the quarrel began.

"I'll have that mouse," said the bigger cat.
"You'll have that mouse! We'll see about that."
"I will have that mouse," said the elder son.
"You shan't have that mouse!" said the little one.

I told you before 'twas a stormy night
When these two kittens began to fight.
The old woman seized her sweeping broom
And swept the two kittens right out of the room.

The ground was covered with frost and snow,
And the two little kittens had nowhere to go.
So they laid them down on the mat at the door,
While the old woman finished sweeping the floor.

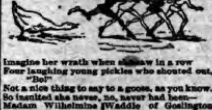
Then they crept in as quiet as mice,
All wet with snow and as cold as ice,
For they found it was better that stormy night
To lie down and sleep than to quarrel and fight.

The Ring of Hunky Bunky.

A game that sounds very simple, but never fails to create fun. Select two persons, place them at opposite ends of the room—the farther apart the better. Give each a lighted candle and tell them they must not laugh, or even smile. They are to advance very slowly, looking each other directly in the eye. When they meet in the center of the room, with hands uplifted in great anxiety, one says, "The King of Hunky Bunky is defunct and dead;" the other responding, "Alas! alas! how died he?" The first person, with increased sorrow, says, "Just so—just so—so." Then comes the response, "How sad—how sad—how sad!" The couple rarely ever get much farther than to announce that the "king is dead" before they are off in fits of laughter, and try it over and over again. Grown people often laugh until the tears come at this listless game, says Good Housekeeping.

Mother Goose and the Boys.

She was walking along, with a dignified mien,
Madam Wilhelmine Waddle of Goslington Green,
As stately a dame as you ever have seen.
But peculiar, too, for she could not bear noise,
Thought railways absurd and objected to boys.



Imagine her wrath when one day in a row
Four laughing young pickles who shouted out, Bo!
Not a nice thing to say to a goose, as you know.
So insulted she never, no, never had been—
Madam Wilhelmine Waddle of Goslington Green.

She put down her head, and she made such a face
That the boys all decamped with more hurry
Than ever
While the old lady hissed as she joined in the PACE,
"Let one more bite your ankles, and then you will see
If you'll ever again dare to say 'Bo!' to me."

At the Camera Club meeting last night Mr. Bostwick of New York was present and fully explained to the members the manner in which solio paper, the sensitive albumen paper, is used. He showed how the paper is used to secure the best results. It was very interesting and beneficial to the members, and those who failed to attend missed a rare treat.

Ready For a Fire in 17 2-5 Seconds.

Plainfield's engine horses are well trained and remarkably quick time is made in the hitching up. Every evening as the fire gong blows at five o'clock Gamble's horses are "rung up" and hitched to the hose wagon to keep them in practice. Last evening the horses were tried, and from the giving of the signal at which the horses started from their stalls and the instant they were ready to go out of the house, took just 17 2-5 seconds. Quicker time could be made but the horses have quite a distance to run from the stalls to the carriage.

WESTFIELD'S CENTENNIAL BANQUET.

The Wine Question Causes a Split, and two Dinners may be Given.

From present indications there will be two banquets held at Westfield on the evening of January 27 to celebrate its centennial. Saturday evening a large meeting was held at the clubhouse, and some spirited remarks were made on both sides of the wine question, but those who favored wine at the coming banquet were in a hopeless minority, and the compact made between W. G. Peckham and Rev. N. W. Caldwell, that there should be no wine, was ratified. At the close of the meeting Assemblyman Codding, who is chairman of the Celebration Committee, resigned, but was finally persuaded to resume the chairmanship. All of the Reception Committee resigned except two members, and the dissenters could not be persuaded to enter the fold again.

Monday evening several men who are in favor of having wine at the banquet held a meeting and as a result subscription papers are being circulated for the signatures of those who will attend a wine dinner. The wine party claim that they have a sufficient number pledged who think as they do to make a wine dinner a success.

After having the wine question settled to their satisfaction, the temperance party struck a rock in the question as to whether ladies shall be admitted to the dinner. This point has not been settled yet, and may prove as hard a nut to crack as the wine question.

Soak a lump of sugar in camphor and eat it as soon as you feel the cold coming on. The camphor must be taken before the cough has fastened itself upon you.

Mr. Townsend to Leave Evona.

Mr John E. Townsend has sold his place at Evona and has leased the house No. 8 Craig place to which he will remove his family to-morrow. Mr. Townsend leaves Evona from necessity not from choice. He makes this change, as that is one of the desires his marble works on Somerset street, his business there demanding closer attention. Mr. Townsend speaks very highly of Evona as a place of residence, and says he regrets that his business interests compel him to take this step. By this change Evona loses a resident who always and at all times was its champion, and took a delight in telling of its beauty as a place of residence.

It is said he has a daughter living at Hackensack.

BOUGHT "GOLD" BRICKS

FARMER WORTMAN OF NEW DOVER CLEVERLY SWINDLED.

Proved his Story by an Indian.—A Red Man was a Shareholder in a Colorado Mine and Aided in Duping the Victim.

New Dover is not mentioned in any of the guide books nor is it given a place on the railroad maps. It is a small collection of houses four miles from here. One of its citizens is Farmer Wortman, noted for his shrewdness in business transactions with his neighbors.

It is two weeks ago since a mild mannered and suave stranger drove into the yard of Farmer Wortman and inquired if there was a widow Wortman in the neighborhood. There was no such person there, and Farmer Wortman stopped working long enough to say so and inquire what the stranger meant.

The stranger said he was looking for a widow named Wortman, who had once lived in the neighborhood of Jamaica, L. I., whose husband had died in the West. He said he had been in Jamica looking up the Wortmans and he was told that they had removed to New Dover, N. J.

These disinterested facts fetched Farmer Wortman's case, as his mother had died since removing to New Dover and his father had gone West twenty years ago and was never heard from afterward.

Just one week ago to-day the stranger reappeared. He told Farmer Wortman that he had been on Long Island looking up his family, and felt convinced that S. W. Wortman was the son of the widow for whom he was searching. The stranger, who gave his name as Joseph Carson, of Leadville, Col., confided to Farmer Wortman and his family a tale of untold wealth that was within their grasp, and which would make them wealthy beyond their fondest hopes. The father, mother and two daughters listened with astonishment.

Years ago, Carson said, a man named John Wortman sought wealth in prospecting and wandered from place to place and finally settled on a claim near Leadville. Wortman became partially demented and had associated with an old Arapahoe Indian. Together they lived upon the claim. Carson was employed as an expert in one of the smelters in Leadville and his business necessitated his travelling extensively through the mining regions, and consequently became acquainted with the miners. Two months ago Carson had made a trip through the Arkansas Valley, and coming to the Wortman claim found that the Indian was alone and Wortman was dead.

Carson learned from the Indian that the latter had come with the dead man, exhibited some papers left by the dead man by which he (Carson) was able to locate the heirs as living on Long Island. This was his mission East, and he had brought with him the Indian who wished to sell his share.

Carson said that the Indian had jumped out of the buggy a mile below, and in spite of all he could do the red man persisted in taking up his residence in a deserted house on the road. Carson had finished his business. On Tuesday morning Farmer Wortman and Carson started to see the Indian and the gold bricks which had been brought also.

When they reached the woods Carson entered the deserted house and brought out with him an Indian dressed in a buckskin suit, with war paint enough to have decorated a whole tribe and with long hair streaming down his back.

After some talk with the Indian, an unknown language the Indian produced three "gold" bricks and Carson brought forth from a satchel a brace and bit and sprinkled acids and told Wortman to bore a hole into the bricks and they would take the borings to Rahway and have a jeweller estimate their value. Farmer Wortman got out of his wagon, and down on his knees he bored from the three bricks, the borings from each being put in a separate paper.

The "sharper" and Wortman went to Rahway with the borings, the Indian seeing his retreat in the woods. Leaving Wortman outside of Hommertelt's jewelry store in Cherry street, Carson entered and after a few moments came out with a card in his hand, saying the gold was all right, but that the jeweler had given him a card of introduction to a United States assayer who would report on the Rahway Mines. This third person had registered as "C. A. Coulter, United States Mint, Philadelphia," and had room No. 66.

Coulter pronounced the gold to be of 23 carats fine. Carson remained two days more at Wortman's and was the most affable guest Wortman ever had. Finally on Friday last, after several visits to the Indian and a secret visit to the assayer, Wortman was conquered, and the Indian turned over the three gold bricks weighing thirty, thirty-one and thirty-two pounds each, together with deeds, maps and charts representing the Wortman "claim." In return the farmer gave the Indian $2,250 in cash. The Indian got the money in his satchel and disappeared in the woods.

Carson remained with the Wortman family until Saturday, when he made arrangements to meet Wortman in New York and prepare for a visit to the "claim" in the West. On Sunday it dawned on Wortman he had been duped. He took his bricks to a local jeweller and found them to be worthless. When he went to New York to meet Carson he found that person had disappeared. Then he and his family learned that he was a victim of a cleverly planned swindle.

Pen Sketches From Life.

He was a very little fellow, not over eleven, or well dressed and with several holes in his shoes.

He was coming down the steps of an elevated station in New York just as a train came in. As the hurrying passengers almost reached him he slipped and fell on the protruding steps to the ground. Several of the passengers, mostly women, for it was about shopping time in the afternoon, stopped with exclamations of pity. The little boy was whimpering softly and rubbing the shoulder of his knickerbockers. Suddenly he set up a loud wail of woe and commenced an eager hunt about the sidewalk; in the gutter; up the steps, and then ransacked his pockets. His face, all dirt begrimmed, had channels made early during the day by his tears and as he went through his pockets, in a remarkably rapid manner, sobbing all the time. Finally he ceased, and, rubbing his eyes with chubby fists, wailed and howled. Then he was surrounded and plied him with questions. His answers were almost unintelligible because of his grief, but sounded like:

"Lost—my—boo! boo! O-o-oo—lor' m' chee—chee—chee—chee! O-o-oo—boo! 'an' I'll-no-boo-hoo-o-o-oh-o-o-h I'll git o-o-o-oh-h I'll-nst-hoh-hoo-hoo-hoo-hoo licked, when I go 'ome, boo'—hoo-o-o-o-o-o h!"

"Oh, you poor thing," said one of the ladies, who is very well known in Plainfield and, will, doubtless, be surprised when reading this), "and how much did you lose?"

"B'wful lot, 'n' I'll-hoo-hoo-o-o-o—hoo-o-o-o-h I'll git the stuffin licked outen me—hoo-o-o-o-hoo-hoo-o-o-o when I go 'ome."

"Well, how much was it you lost? Was it twenty-five cents."

"Ho'm," lost ten cents." The gamin's tears ceased to flow.

Benevolent Miss ——, opened her pocket-book and gave him a dime, and, with a howl of delight the youngster scampered off.

A rather skeptical young lady spoke to Miss ——, and they followed the urchin and came upon him just around the corner. He was talking to a boy that looked like his twin.

"How much did y' git?" queried the new one.

For answer the gamin opened his hand and showed the glistening dime.

"Bully goo!" exclaimed his companion "say, you did work on for fair, didn't ye?" sly-like.

"Divvy, what'll I'll do that for?—Holy smoke! Sneak, Pete, there she is" he gasped, suddenly catching sight of the watchers, and there was a quick patter of flying feet and the boys had disappeared, and the public philanthropist had become a doubter.

In the City Courts.

Jeremiah Scull was arrested last night for being drunk on Park avenue. He was adjudged guilty and sentence was suspended.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

Another Accident.

MANY PEOPLE KILLED AND INJURED.

Two Trains Collide at Night and Prominent Persons are Crushed to Death.

CHESTER, S. C., Jan. 17.—The limited train No. 35, from New York to Florida, on the Richmond and Danville, was run into by a Georgia, Carolina and Northern train at the crossing here at one o'clock this morning.

Twenty-five people were either killed or injured.

The sleeper was full of people and was struck in the centre and crushed. Not a person escaped unhurt. The day coaches were turned upside down on the side of the track. They were nearly full of passengers and few on board escaped some injury.

The passengers in the sleeper comprised chiefly prominent people of Washington and New York. Those in the day coaches were persons who, taking a short trip, had retired before midnight, and when the crash came, few except the trainmen were awake.

The sleeping car presented a ghastly spectacle. Pressed against the broken fragments of the car were almost shapeless masses, with life and identity crushed out. Scattered about were others in whom life still remained, and whose piteous cries were hard to endure.

Two Killed and Twenty-Eight Injured.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—A construction train used on a temporary railroad in connection with the building of the new tunnel at Fairview fell through the trestle at about 10.30 this morning, and killed two men and injured twenty-eight others.

Those men were Italian laborers. They were at work under the trestle.

Meeting of the Auxiliary of the Salvation Army.

A meeting of the Auxiliary of the Salvation Army was held at the Y. M. C. A. rooms last night. The meeting was in charge of Adjutant E. Marshall of New York, who is in charge of the Auxiliary Department. She was accompanied by her brother, Staff-Captain Marshall; editor of the Cosquerer, her private secretary, Lieut. Jennie Newcomb; Capt. Purdy of the Slum Brigade the Capt. of the Harbor Boat and others.

Adj. Marshall said that she had just returned from a very encouraging trip through the large cities, holding auxiliary meetings. She spoke with great earnestness of the work being done and made possible by the aid of the auxiliaries and of the greater work that might be done if more such aid were available.

Capt. Purdy was the next speaker. He told of the case of a family consisting of father, mother and five children, the mother in the hospital with diptheria; two of the children down with the same disease and the other three with whooping cough, all housed in a little attic room containing but one bed. The Slum officer was able to greatly lessen the discomfort of this family and the father was led to give up drink, to which he had taken through sorrow.

The rescue officer gave a very vivid account of the work among the fallen women of New York and of their visits to the dives and gambling dens of the city.

Other remarks were made by Lieut. Newcomb and and Staff Captain Marshall.

A Dog Ran Over by a Carriage.

A two months old Newfoundland dog, belonging to Mr. Dunster, proprietor of the Metropolitan Livery Stable on North avenue, was run over by a carriage this noon and its hind leg broken.

The pup rolled over upon its back after the accident and yelped piteously until it was picked up and carried into the stable. It had to be killed to end its suffering. Mr. Dunster says he wouldn't have taken $20 for the dog.

The animal was the pet of the stable.

Forty Bills of Indictment.

The Union County Grand Jury returned into court yesterday morning at 11.30 o'clock and presented a batch of forty true bills of indictments, but whether any of the bills are against the Linden Township Committee in relation to the part it took with the Linden Park Blood Horse Association is unknown.

The Sunday Question from the Roman Catholic Standpoint.

The American Sabbath Trust Society has just issued a booklet of 48 pages made up mainly of the editorials taken from the Catholic Mirror of Baltimore, together with an "Introduction" by Dr. Lewis of this city and some quotations from Nicholas Bound, the first author who put forth the modern Protestant theory concerning Sunday; in 1595 A. EDITORIAL NOTES

What They Would Do.

A reporter of the Chicago Tribune has been asking a number of rich business men of that city what they would do if they found themselves suddenly stranded without a cent and with no work. Phil Armour replied that he did not care to be interviewed. It is rather surprising how many of the others speak up pretty stantly and affirm that first of all they would get out of Chicago. Others remark with the same emphasis that they would not come to Chicago. On the whole, the Windy City seems a poor place for a man to wrestle with poverty.

Lyman J. Gage, president of the First National bank, said in reply to the question: "The Lord only knows! I would try to get work. If that failed, I would beg; but I don't know. I think, though, I would get out of town. When a man begins to beg, it breaks his spirit." A "big wholesale concern's head man" said:

I would ask for work from door to door and tell the people I didn't want anything unless I could get it by working. I would make that plain. If I tried all day and was still hungry, I would apply to my minister in the city, tell him who I was and what I had tried to do and then put his religion to a test. I think I could get out of town by that time. I wouldn't be like the man who came in here this morning one after another asking for money. I told them if they wanted to get out of town to walk from the sidewalk. I would not beg them. They refused, and they all met in front of my window, and you should have seen how they cursed me. The idea of their working was an insult!

Melville E. Stone, general manager of the Associated Press, said:

That is the way I came to Chicago, stranded. I began by asking. I didn't beg for money, but I kept moving. I know, however, that a combination of circumstances will often confront an honest and capable man which will seem senseless. For such, I think, there should be a home provided by the state or city until they could get work. I would make such people the wards of the state. The others should be turned over to organized charity or public security. I do not take much stock in that beautiful sentiment, "Thou shalt go hungry, but thou shalt not steal." But, understand me, hunger is no excuse for crime. I think the majority of unemployed men in this city are so on their own account. The others should be taken care of.

Charles T. Yerkes declared he would get work at any cost. "What if you couldn't?" asked the reporter, to which Yerkes answered, "There should be no such word in any man's dictionary," especially a poor man's, as couldn't." A banker, however, has hit upon the true plan for a man of pluck and grit to adopt when he says he would make his case known to the public through the newspapers. The newspaper can do more than almost any other agency to help everybody. The banker says:

If I came to Chicago penniless, I would try the charitable organizations for work. If they couldn't give it to me, I would go from preacher to preacher and present my case, failing in that, I would go to the mayor. If he couldn't do anything, I would go to a newspaper and tell my story in detail. I would call the names of those on whom I called and what they said. A man with that sort of pride and grit won't go without work very long. With a majority of the unemployed their condition is their own fault.

The answer of C. B. Farwell, the millionaire, to the question will be read with as much interest as any, because he himself struck Chicago in almost the condition pictured by the reporter. It will be news to most people that Mr. Farwell began his career as poor as the poorest. His answer was as follows:

I cannot here virtually in that condition in February, 1844. I came in here with 50c in my pocket and a load of wheat. I had $50 and nothing to sight. I gave it to a woman who gave me a room and board until I could get work. I walked the streets of the city until June 1 in search of work. There were not many business houses then. I went to all of them. I walked miles to the factories. Nowhere could I get a promise. I stuck to it, however, and finally went to work in the county clerk's office at a salary of $8 a month and board. But I realize as much as any man here who are not in that state as I was. I had $50. They haven't a cent. If I were in that condition, I would go to the county agent, and I would tell him, which is a fact, that the people of Chicago and Cook county are taxed to keep people from starving. I would demand work in the brickyard or on the poor farm, and that would keep me from begging until I could do better. If the poor farms were not overcrowded, I would demand of the agent bread and a place to sleep, and he would have to see to it that I got both as long as I showed by my acts I was deserving and trying to get work.

The G. O. M. of the Republican party of Pennsylvania is evidently Galusha A. Grow, who floated into a vacant candidacy for the Fifty-third congress by the unanimous vote of his constituents after he had been out of politics for 18 years. In 1876 Mr. Grow refused the Russian mission, which of itself was an uncommonly strong-minded act. Standing tall, erect and with flashing eye, without a sign of physical weakness or failing about him, as he appeared in the convention that recently nominated him, it was hard to believe that this man had been speaker of the house of representatives at the memorable session of congress which met July 4, 1861, suddenly summoned to take measures for the preservation of the Union. Yet such was the fact. Mr. Grow is 70 years old. He began political life very early, which makes him seem to the younger generation about 90 years old. But he is only 70 and remarkably vigorous and well preserved. He was elected first to the Thirty-second congress in 1850 and was the youngest member of that body. From the Thirty-second congress in 1851 to the Fifty-third in 1893-4 is a long stretch. This will make the seventh congress of which Mr. Grow has been a member.

A tax of 2 cents a pack on playing cards, an additional tax of 10 cents a gallon on whisky and a tax of 2 per cent on incomes above $4,000, say the Democratic members of the house ways and means committee. Which will be the more unpopular—the tax on whisky or the tax on incomes?

ITALIAN ANARCHISTS.

An Organized Band of Strikers Terrorizes a Town.

PITCHED BATTLE WITH TROOPS.

In a Fight Near Carrara, Fifty Are Reported to Have Been Killed—Driven From the Town, the Anarchists Fortify Themselves Among the Rocks.

ROME, Jan. 17.—A thousand workmen employed in the marble quarries at Massa struck work and threatened to invade the town. As it was known that marshalled agitators had been at work for some time past among the quarrymen, who are a desperate class of men and thoroughly familiar with the use of explosives, the strike caused the greatest alarm at Massa, and there is no doubt that serious disorder would have resulted had not the troops, in the presence of the troops, who fixed bayonets and charged upon the disorderly portions of the mob, forcing them to retreat to the woods.

Several of these bands who were thus compelled to seek refuge outside of the city were thoroughly armed, and it is reported that they had made preparations to give the soldiers a warm reception should they be pursued to the hills.

This display of force, however, did not prevent other mobs from storming the bar racks of the troops and of the gendarmes, from hooting the soldiers and from hurling rotten eggs and fruit at them. Finally the soldiers became so enraged that their officers were compelled to calm them by the express order that volleys should be fired in the air. This had the necessary effect, for at the first volley the riotous quarrymen and their friends ran pell-mell, and the troops started in pursuit of the armed bands who had been previously driven out of the city.

Threaten to Blow Up the Town.

This pursuit was rendered all the more necessary as the rioters quarrymen and their friends had repeatedly threatened to return with a supply of dynamite with which to blow up the palace of the prefect, barracks, the municipal buildings and the residences of all those who supported the government and the local authorities.

In addition the rioters threatened to blow up the Fassola bridge, which, with all the railroad stations and the railroad tracks to the neighborhood of the disturbance, were strictly guarded by police and soldiers, who had orders to shoot to kill upon the slightest evidence of an attempt to cause a dynamite explosion.

At Massa as well as at Carrara there was a period of terror for the inhabitants from nightfall until daylight, and the vigilance of the authorities was not relaxed for a moment.

All the inhabitants who had valuables secreted them, and a number of them plan aged to obtain carriages and fled from the disturbed district with all their portable belongings.

The government is taking every possible step to suppress the disorder, but the somewhat conciliatory action of the authorities seems to encourage rather than disheartten the rioters.

The anarchists are said to have taken up strong positions behind rocks and other points of vantage in the hills and to have made a desperate resistance to the troops, but it is reported that they were finally defeated and fled, leaving a number of dead and wounded upon the field.

Pitched Battle Fought.

The most sensational news is being wired here from Carrara. The greatest excitement is said to prevail among the inhabitants who are terrified by the sounds of long and fierce firing in the hills near Torrana, where a band of from 600 to 1,000 anarchists are reported to be fighting a pitched battle with a force of infantry and gendarmes sent to hunt them down.

As a result of the repeated disorder at Massa, Carrara and in the neighborhood of the latter place it is judged that the loss of life must have been great, as the infantry, according to reports, has been firing volley after volley at the anarchists.

Later dispatches say that the number of killed during the fight between the military and the armed band of anarchists which assembled in the hills near Massa is not so great as the people of Massa at first reported. The official advices state that only eight of the anarchists were killed, and that only from 15 to 30 were wounded. These figures, however, it should be stated, are the figures given out by the government authorities, and the people of Massa claim that at least 50 of the quarrymen were shot during the engagement. During the fighting the garrison barred the highways in order to prevent the entry of the anarchists into the town.

It now transpires that an armed band of anarchists assembled early in the morning at Torrana and awoke the inhabitants by sounding the tocsin. When the alarmed inhabitants rushed from their houses, fearing a terrible conflagration or something of that description, the anarchists overran the village mentioned and compelled the people to deliver up all the arms and ammunition which they had in their possession.

The anarchists then secured all the wine and spirits procurable and prepared to march upon Carrara.

The government officials announce that they control the situation and that they have sufficient force at their command to suppress any rising which the anarchists may be able to organize.

NEGROES WARNED OUT.

Lawless Characters Driving Colored Laborers Out of Black Rock.

LITTLE ROCK, Jan. 17.—Governor Fishback has received information of a reign of terror which exists among the colored population of the town of Black Rock. According to the governor's information a serious condition of affairs exists there which may result in bloodshed.

Black Rock is the center of a large manufacturing and lumber district, and owing to the present financial stringency a large number of men are thrown out of employment. Among them are many lawless characters who have organized for the purpose of driving all the negroes out of town. They have succeeded in intimidating many factory owners so much that they have discharged all negroes in their employ in fear of the possible consequences which might follow their refusing to accede to the demands of the white cusp.

The following notice was posted in a publicplace:

All negroes must leave this town inside of 10 days or take what follows, and all who have employed or talked to them, or given them work will fire the homes inside of 10 days. Negroes, don't let this slip your mind.

This was followed by verbal and written notices to the mill and factory men that they must discharge every negro in their employ, or their property would be burned. The mills and factories are guarded, and the streets are patrolled by men armed with winchesters. The other side claims that they have promise of outside help, and serious trouble seems imminent. The colored people number about 300. About one-third of them have left.

Six Lives Imperiled in Attempting to Rescue a Sister Who Was Drowned.

ALBANY, Jan. 17.—Dewitt Springstein, 12 years old, was drowned in the river here while skating. His father, his brother Arthur, Lieutenant of Police Lonergan, Patrolman Dunn and two citizens, Edward Hurley and Thomas Mullessey, went to the rescue, and the entire party broke through the ice.

For half an hour the men and boys struggled in the water. A great crowd gathered on the dock and bridge and excitement was intense. In their efforts to climb upon the ice they made an open space of 20 yards square. Dunn was rescued in an almost frozen condition, but will recover. The rest were rescued except young Springstein, whose body is still under the ice.

Jersey's Senate Tangle.

TRENTON, Jan. 17.—The house after a short session adjourned until Monday night. The conference committees will meet here today. It is believed that they will not be able to arrive at any conclusion by the senate deadlock, as both sides are very firm. Governor Werts is anxious for a settlement of the trouble. The Republicans claim that they are right and refuse to make any concessions. Governor Werts refused to receive the race track appeal bill from the house committee on passed bills on the ground that the bill had not been passed by the senate, which, under the advice of the attorney general, he could recognize.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 17.—Tony Fairar, a crazy Italian, stood on the most crowded thoroughfares in the city and deliberately fired the contents of a revolver at a passing horse car. Two others struck Timothy Burke, a wealthy citizen, slightly wounding him in the hand. The man was caught. He is supposed to have shot at Burke by whom employ he was until a week ago.

Ten others were burned so badly that they will die.

DOINGS AT WASHINGTON

Hawaiian Matters Persistently Bob Up In the Senate.

PROGRESS OF THE TARIFF DEBATE.

The Republicans Make Another Vain Attempt to Have Their Amendments Considered—Senator Gray Mentioned For the Supreme Bench.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—The Hawaiian controversy was again brought to the attention of the senate, and there was a half hour's spirited discussion between Senators Hoar, Gray and Daniels. The president's message communicating the recent diplomatic correspondence afforded Senator Hoar an opportunity to speak on the matter, and he showed by quoting from the Hawaiian constitution that the queen, in her recent protest that she could not promise amnesty to the members of the provisional government, was only following herself to the limitations of the constitution, which does not confer on the crown such absolute right of granting amnesty, but requires that pardon can be granted only by the concurrence of the cabinet and other constitutional officers.

Senators Gray of Delaware and Daniels of Virginia made some pertinent interruptions and threw sops to Senator Stevens and his initiative actions all the responsibility for whatever irregular methods of procedure had necessarily grown out of the Hawaiian imbroglio.

The speech of Senator Gallinger of New Hampshire on the tariff question was attentively listened to by the entire senate. The bill to repeal the federal elections law coming up in regular order, Senator Palmer of Illinois made the discussion to an argument in favor of the bill.

Slow Work on the Tariff Bill.

Very little progress was made with the amendments to the tariff bill. The Republicans, under the leadership of Mr. Burrows, made another struggle to secure the right to offer amendments alternately with Mr. Wilson, but as on Monday the chairman declined to allow of the precedent of procedure when the McKinley bill was under consideration, that Mr. Wilson, on behalf of the majority of the committee, was entitled to the floor. The bill, however, was thrown open to miscellaneous amendment.

Several minor amendments were agreed to, the most important being that to increase the duty on condensed milk to 2 cents a pound.

Almost the entire afternoon was spent in discussing the date upon which free wool and the corresponding reduction on wool should go into effect. No conclusion was reached.

The closing day of the tariff debate promises to witness a brilliant display of oratory. Speaker Crisp has decided to take part and with Mr. Wilson will close the debate for the Democrats. Speaker Reed will close the debate for the Republicans.

Supreme Bench Vacancy.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—When Senator Gray's attention was called to the fact that his name was being canvassed to some extent in connection with the appointment to the supreme bench to fill the seat for which Mr. Hornblower was rejected by the senate, he merely smiled and said it had been several years since he had entertained any ambition in that direction. Notwithstanding this attitude on the part of Senator Gray, his name is also mentioned in connection with the office in the talk heard upon the subject about the capitol during the day much more frequently than that of any other person available for the office.

The fact was recalled that President Cleveland had seriously and very favorably considered Senator Gray's name for the chief justiceship when Judge Fuller was appointed. The fact that the governor and the legislature of Delaware were both Democratic is cited when the question of political expediency is raised.

It is suggested that the president may go outside of New York in view of the opposition of the senators from that state, and that in going outside of the state he might also go a few miles out of the circuit and take Senator Gray. If the choice should not fall upon him and the president should still desire to fill the vacancy from some other state than New York, it is suggested that he might appoint Judge Simeon E. Baldwin of the supreme court of Connecticut, whose name was presented to the president in connection with the office before Judge Hornblower's appointment was made.

JACKSONVILLE PROTESTS.

Does Not Want Governor Mitchell to Stop the Fight With Troops.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 17.—A great crowd of citizens thronged Metropolitan hall, called there to protest against the intended action of Governor Mitchell in calling out the militia to prevent the Corbett-Mitchell contest. The meeting was made of a fiery nature, some of the most prominent men in the city responding to calls from the audience. The following resolutions were introduced and adopted:

First—We earnestly protest against the threatened mustering of troops in our city, having confidence in the ability of the civil local authorities and their ability to fully preserve the peace and maintain the dignity of this city and county.

Second—We individually and collectively pledge ourselves to aid the sheriff in all lawful efforts to discharge his duties and to maintain and preserve the peace and fully enforce the law.

Third—We earnestly protest against such rumored action on the part of the governor and most respectfully request that he desist therefrom and leave the conduct and guidance thereof to the civil local authorities.

After more speeches the meeting adjourned. From sentiments expressed by prominent citizens after the meeting it seems that should the militia be ordered out serious trouble will surely follow. The crowd was worked up to a high pitch of excitement, and threats were frequently heard that the first attempt by the militia would result in bloodshed. This is the general opinion throughout the city.

AN ATTEMPTED LYNCHING.

Friends of a White Laborer Tried to Hang a Negro Workman.

CAMDEN, N. J., Jan. 17.—An attempt to lynch a colored man was made at Segal's mills. The trouble at the mills created considerable excitement and at one time threatened to end in the death of the negro and a wholesale riot.

John Taylor, a white laborer at the mills, was discharged by Philip Henderson, the foreman. James I. Young, a colored man, was put in the position made vacant by the discharge of Taylor. The reason given for the discharge was no work, and when the negro appeared to take the place Taylor's friends became angry. They went to Henderson in a body and demanded that Taylor be reinstated. Henderson refused to do this, and the men retired.

The crowd then began to nag Young. He tried to avoid them, but they would not desist. Finally they attacked him. They procured a rope and placed it around Young's neck. A number of men interfered and prevented the carrying out of the threats of the men. Young at once left the mills. When the men who had rescued Young were fighting off his persecutors, there were some lively times.

It was learned that Thomas Cox, of New York, lost $1,600 worth of diamonds through the same party. All told, he secured eight packages by the different express companies, which it is believed will aggregate $40,000.

THE NATIONAL FINANCES

Mr. Voorhees Makes a Statement Full of Import.

LEGISLATION IS TOO UNCERTAIN.

He Says the Secretary of the Treasury Has Authority to Strengthen the Gold Reserve and Must Every Demand—Public Credit Will Not Suffer.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—A second meeting of the senate finance committee was held for the purpose of considering Secretary Carlisle's letter and bond bill. After the conclusion of the meeting Senator Voorhees, as chairman of the committee, gave out the statement given below. In making it, he said, he did not assume to represent the views of the entire committee, and yet he knew of no opposition in the committee to the opinions expressed. He submitted his statement to the full committee before giving it to the public. It is as follows:

Senator Voorhees' Statement.

"The embarrassed condition of the treasury and the necessity for prompt action for its relief are fully realized. There is not the slightest ground, however, for apprehension that the public credit will suffer or be endangered for the reason that ample authority already exists by law for the secretary of the treasury to strengthen his coin reserve to any extent required and to meet every demand that can be legitimate.

"The power of the secretary for the issue of bonds needs nothing beyond which is given by the act of Jan. 14, 1877. The only desirable object to be attained by new legislation at this time on that subject is to make a shorter time bond with a lower rate of interest, and yet the secretary feels assured that he can negotiate bonds issued under the act of 1875, running only 10 years on practically a 3 per cent basis.

"It seems, therefore, that it will be wiser, safer and better for the financial and business interests of the country to rely upon existing laws with which to meet the present emergency rather than to encounter the delays and uncertainties always incident to protracted discussion in the two houses of congress. In view of the condition of the treasury admits of but little if any delay and of no uncertainty at all in the final action to be taken.

"It would be trifling with a very grave affair to pretend that new legislation concerning the issue of bonds can be accomplished at this time and in the midst of present elements and parties in public life without elaborate, extensive and practically indefinite debate. It is also obvious to every one that the consideration and discussion of the tariff now going on in congress will render any financial legislation at this time far more difficult and complicated than it might be under other and different circumstances.

How Considered the Bill.

"It is proper to say in this connection that the senate finance committee for several weeks past has had this subject under almost constant consideration and that the bill submitted by Mr. Carlisle has been examined and discussed with the greatest care.

"The interest of the committee will by no means be allayed from this time forward. The fact that much remains to be done is fully recognized. Whatever deficiency in the revenues may exist during the current fiscal year will be promptly provided for by appropriate and efficient legislation at the earliest practicable moment."

Science Progress.

A PRETTY EXPERIMENT.

Showing In a Striking Way That Glass Is Electrified by Rubbing.

Cut from a four-fold piece of paper an arrow shaped like that in our illustration; then place on the point of a needle, vertically situated, this arrow at its central part, which will be at the meeting of the two folds), but without causing the needle to pierce the paper. The head of the needle should be driven into a cork, and the whole covered (as in illustration) by a common glass, well dried before the fire.

Then announce that, without moving the glass and consequently without touching the paper arrow, you will make it turn on its pivot, and that in a few will stop opposite the person who may be indicated to you.

To do this nothing more is required than to rub the side of the glass facing this person with a piece of woolen cloth, which will cause the arrow to turn round till its point stops opposite the part that is rubbed. This is a striking way of impressing the mind with the fact that glass is electrified by rubbing, which causes it to attract light bodies, and this by the very point of the paper arrow is drawn toward it.

Now, if in turning constantly the piece of woolen cloth in the same direction you rub regularly the top of the glass, you will see the arrow begin to turn with constantly increasing rapidity, like the needle of a compass around which a piece of iron is borne.

Now replace the arrow by a paper cross with four equal branches and suspended on it, as by him of thread, some little paper boxes. Rub the top of the glass as above described and your riding academy of paper horses will begin their march, to the great joy of the younger spectators of the scene.

Besides glass, the ladies which are most easily electrified by rubbing are those which are poor conductors, as wax, resin, sulphur) and wood. These bodies which are bad conductors are called by physicists isolating bodies, for we may isolate a body which is a good conductor by placing it on glass feet, by hanging it up with silk thread or by placing it on cakes of resin.

The Harvest and Hunter's Moons.

The time of moonrise on any day is on the average about 51 minutes later than it was on the preceding day. This retardation, however, by no means is constant in amount, being at times very much less than the average, and at times very much greater. A very marked diminution in the time of retardation occurs about the time

THE HOUSEHOLD

GOOD FORM IN CHINA.

Elegant Simplicity Is the Keynote of All Table Appointments There.

Never have good taste and good form been in closer accord than in the prevailing styles of china and glass which the best shops stock this spring. Simple as and forms are always the most pleasing and graceful, stel The Decorator and Furnisher affirms that fashion for once has consented to follow the dictates of artistic teaching. According to this authority there is an entire absence of grotesques or eccentric lines in the making of the varied dishes of the complete services. The colorings are, for the most part, very delicate, and the designs in the decorations are characterized by reserve of ornamentation rather than by the lavish abundance which has been so prevalent in past years.

For regular family use or for use on state occasions, where the means are moderate, there can be nothing more correct than a set of white English china with a decoration in tinted monotones. Dull blue is the most effective coloring in such a design, which merely borders each dish, leaving the centers and sides untouched. No monograms or initials are admissible.

White and gold is quite as popular and equally as tasteful as the days of our grandmothers' best gold banded set. But the gilding is not put on in plain bands and burnished brightly. It is applied in all sorts of delicate small patterns and tracery and in embossed designs of great richness. In the elaborate patterns the finish of the gilding is generally dull in tone. Sometimes the decoration in dull gold is daintily picked out with delicate tracery in black, and less frequently other colors are sparingly used in the borders, giving a touch like that of jewels.

But, however elaborate the designs in gilding may be, they are rarely allowed anywhere except as borders upon the dishes and in ornamentation of the handles. Indeed few dishes which have for decorations printed monograms, gilded edges or color bands have any decorations in the centers of the plates or platter or sides of covered dishes. Overdecoration has been recognized as inartistic and has had its day.

How to Clean Gilt Ware.

The Jewelers' Circular points out the fact that in cleaning gilt ware there is a difference to be observed between articles gilt by fire or by the galvanic process and articles gilt with imitation gold. For cleaning articles gilt by the fire two ounces of muriatic acid, one part of borax dissolved in sixteen parts of water may be employed. With this solution the article is to be carefully rubbed by means of a soft sponge or brush, then rinsed with water and finally dried with a linen rag. If consistent, the article should be warmed previously to being rubbed to insure brilliancy.

Cooked Pommels.

Shell the nuts and blanch by pouring over them some boiling water. After standing a few minutes the skins can be easily rubbed off. Add to a pint of the blanched nuts about 2 quarts of water. Put them into a bean pot, heat to boiling, then place in a slow oven and cook for nine or ten hours. When done, they should be soft, mealy and rich with juice. No seasoning other than a little salt will be required. A nice puree is made by adding to 3 cupfuls of the peanuts one of strained stewed tomato.

Children's Nightclothes.

AN UNGRATEFUL LISTENER.

He Wore a Wig Himself, but He Wasn't Interested in Wigs.

A cheerful looking citizen who had a firm grip on astrap in a State street cable car the other morning leaned down to speak to a seated but restless passenger wedged in between two larger ones.

"That's a pretty good wig you're wearing, mister," he said, in a confidential tone, but my body can see that it's a wig"——

"Sir!"

"I say it's a pretty good wig, as wigs go, and I'm a judge of wigs. I've tried at least a dozen of them"——

"Sir, when I need any of your"——

"Not on my own head, of course". I never had occasion to use anything of the kind. But my grandmother"——

"Confound your grandmother, sir!"

"That's what I always used to say. She was rather hard to get along with. Nobody could please her. She didn't seem to appreciate kindness. You'd never get any thanks from her. She took everything as a matter of course. When she was about 60 years old, she took a notion her hair was too thin and she must have a wig. I argued with her, but it didn't do any good. She must have her hair trimmed short, and I must get her a wig".

"I'd like to know, sir, what difference all this makes"——

"What difference? Bless your soul, it made a difference to me of $20, first and last. I had to buy her over so many wigs in trying to suit her, and when you've worn a wig awhile it's dead stock. Wigs ain't necessities, you know. Finally she took a notion she'd be more comfortable if the hair that grew on her head was cut clear off. To humor her, I bathered her head all over and shaved it as clean and slick as a billiard ball. She seemed to like the feeling of it, and I had to shave her head regularly once a week for a month or two and then twice a week. It only made the hair grow faster and thicker. I had to keep buying new wigs for her all the time, too, mind you. This went on for a year or two.

"One day I had a fall and broke my right arm. I couldn't shave her head for six weeks, and she wouldn't let anybody else do it. At the end of that time she had a crop of hair as thick and abundant as Paderewski's, only it wasn't as long, you know, and it stuck straight up as stiff as a prize fighter's. She couldn't wear any of her wigs. The bristles stuck up through them like a porcupine's quills. I only mention this to show what we can be done with scissors and a razor. If you would just throw that wig of yours into the back alley and get some fresh air, you'd look a lot better."

With a snort of rage the other passenger tore himself loose from his environment and rushed from the car.

"There's all the thanks a man gets for trying to do some fellow being a good turn," said the cheerful looking citizen, straightening himself up and grabbing another strap.—Chicago Tribune.

THE YALE-HARVARD DEBATE

Interest Increased by a Preliminary Row Over the Arrangements.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 17.—There promises to be a lively tilt between the Yale and Harvard committees who have in charge the debate that is to take place here on Friday. The row began by a notice in a New Haven paper to the effect that the Yale speakers would have a chance to rebut their opponents' arguments. This would allow the first Yale speaker to speak twice and terminate the debate. Harvard did not understand that this contract to have been made, and as soon as they learned of this Yale was telegraphed that no rebuttal would be allowed. Yale replied by insisting on her rights, and now the matter is being hotly disputed by mail.

The matter will undoubtedly be settled before Friday and will lend zest to the debate. Nearly every seat in Sanders' theater has been sold for the debate, and a fashionable audience is expected. After the debate a banquet will be given at the Colonial club to the speakers and judges. Colonel Thomas Wentworth Higginson has consented to preside, and the judges chosen are Hon. Charles E. Hughes, A. T. Walker of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Professor James Fuvy of Pennsylvania.

FOUND $180 IN A BED.

A ROBBERY ON PLAINFIELD AVENUE YESTERDAY AFTERNOON.

Nothing but Hard Cash Taken—Rings and Other Valuables not Noticed.—Mrs. Quass Loses Altogether $223 75.—Mattresses not as Safe as Banks.

There was a bold daylight robbery in this city yesterday. Sometime during yesterday afternoon the house No 311 Plainfield avenue, occupied by Mrs. Quass, an old lady, her daughter, Mrs. Risberg and her husband, and Mason Quass.

Just what time the robbery took place is not known, Mrs. Quass and Mrs. Risberg were at home but they remained in the kitchen all the afternoon. Mrs. Risberg's sister-in-law spent the afternoon with the women. When she left for home at about 4:30 o'clock Mrs. Risberg went upstairs to make the beds. In all the bed rooms the quilts had been taken from the beds and placed on chairs in the morning by the occupants before coming downstairs.

Mrs. Risberg found that some one had thrown the feather bed off of the bedstead in her brother's room.

Going in her mother's room Mrs. Risberg found things in still greater disorder. The feather ticks had been taken from the bedstead and the straw mattress ripped open from top to bottom and the straw searched for valuables. In one corner of the mattress Mrs. Quass had placed a small chamois bag containing $180, $20 of which was in gold. The thief finding the bag of money probably thought there might be some more hidden in the straw, so he ripped the straw from one end of the mattress to the other.

In the room occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Risberg the mattress act was again gone through with, but without result. Fortunately for Mr. Risberg he had taken $20 from the mattress and that morning and placed it in his pocket. The clothes closets in all three rooms bore evidence of the thief's search. In Mrs. Risberg's closet her clothes were thrown upon the floor and some of her dresses had been carried as far as the middle of the room and then thrown upon the floor. A small case on the bureau containing five gold rings and an onyx pin was left undisturbed.

In the closet in Mrs. Quass's room the thief again made a haul. A toy bureau containing $63 75 was opened by means of prying off the top and the money taken.

A cloth bag in which Mrs. Quass for safe keeping put her money and which was hanging on a nail in the closet was taken down and its contents, receipts and other papers, were scattered over the floor.

Several breadths of carpet in each of the rooms were torn up and left in a pile.

Bureau drawers were opened and their contents thrown upon the floor.

Several pieces of spoons were unwrapped and left lying in the room, the thief evidently wanting nothing but hard cash.

The thief gained entrance through the front door, as it was found unlocked after the robbery. Although she was sure the door was locked in the morning.

Mrs. Risberg says the robbery must have been committed about two o'clock, as it was about that time that her neighbor across the street says she saw the window shades drawn down in Mrs. Risberg's bedroom. Mrs. Risberg always left the shades up until late in the afternoon, and this is the reason the change was noticed by the neighbor.

Clothes Pin Sociable.

A clothes pin sociable will be held at the Warren Mission chapel, on Thursday evening. It is under the auspices of the Y P S C E. A very interesting programme has been arranged. Two of the principal features will be a Dialogue in three acts, entitled, "Only A Working Girl," and the playing on the concertina and organ by Mr. Jones and his son Harry. A good supper has been provided and the proceeds will go to the society.

There will also be social a on February 1st.

To-night the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum bowling team will go to Newark and roll two games in the Duck-pin League with the Institutes of that place. As both teams are tie for first place the games will be hotly contested and exciting. If the Plainfielders win both games they will win the championship of the League.

Skating on Wilson's Pond.

A number of boys last evening went skating on "Wilson's pond," which is located on the mountain slope of first mountain, just back of North Plainfield. They report that the ice is "out of sight." Taken literally, that would mean that there was no ice, but "out of sight" is a slang phrase for excellence, so it is presumed that the ice is fine and smooth for skating.

Bicycles Fined $1.

A bicyclist named Manning was arrested on Seventh street yesterday afternoon for riding on the sidewalk. Policeman McCue made the arrest. Manning was arraigned before City Judge Coddington this morning, and fined $1.

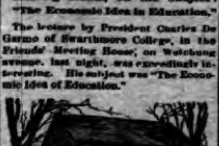
COMMERCIAL SCHOOLS.

FAVORED BY PRESIDENT DE GARMO OF SWARTHMORE COLLEGE.

Lecture Last Evening in the Friends' Meeting House, on the Subject: "The Economic Idea in Education."

The lecture by President Charles De Garmo of Swarthmore College, in the Friends' Meeting House, on Watchung avenue, last night, was exceedingly interesting. His subject was "The Economic Idea of Education."



THE FRIENDS' MEETING HOUSE.

The main point demonstrated by Mr. De Garmo was that there should be in cities like Plainfield a commercial school where the tendencies should be those upon clear ideas of mathematical and physical geography, the commercial geography of European and other States by taking in the geographical and topographical situation of the different countries.

Alongside manual training and literary schools, Mr. De Garmo favors the erection of a commercial school with courses fitting students to become leaders in business instead of being merely fitted to take a clerkship.

This question is one of vast importance, the speaker held, to cities like Plainfield. In the old country a great work is going on in this line. The function of this school is to do a great deal of business work. The most our schools teach is practical arithmetic, book-keeping, etc., which only serves to fit a student for a secondary place in business. Young men should be fitted for leadership, for masters. Most people would prefer to send their sons to such schools, but there being none they send them to literary schools, a few of these become good business men but more of them fail.

The speaker said that Prof. Jones, of the University of Pennsylvania, gave a good idea, in his report of the scope of this commercial work in the Old Country, in which he warns that in a few years there were 15,000 students in these schools.

In conclusion President De Garmo said: "Is there any reason why Plainfield, if it is to have a new school, should not have the best in the new line. Instead of having a literary school, once a commercial school and have Plainfield young men enter the business world ready to start as the leader in business. It cannot be done without study, and without undergoing the economic-ideal factor."

The Economic Idea of Education, Mr. De Garmo maintained, was the missing of commercial studies with science.

PERSONAL.

Cashier Wm. F. Arnold, of the City National Bank, has had the former wooden counter upon which money was received, counted and served, replaced by a marble slab. The wooden counter was not only wearing, but also giving out under the strain. The change is a decided improvement.

A concert of chamber music will be given on Saturday evening, Jan 27th, by the Christian pianist Dyas Bottcher and the Beethoven String quartette. Mr. Craig A. Marsh, being a friend of the pianiste, has placed his house at the disposal of the artists Tickets for the concert may be had from any one of the following patronesses: Mrs. Richard Cox, Mrs. George Wharton Edwards, Mrs. O. T. Wurtzig, Mrs. Craig A. Marsh, Mrs. J. Evarts Tracy, Mrs. J. H. Ackerman, Mrs. David Titsworth, Mrs. Joseph Bunford, Miss E. E. Kenyon, Mrs. John Dunn Miller, Mrs. Mason Tyler, Mrs. William Rouse, Mrs. James Taylor, Mrs. Stephen Gunns, Mrs. John Erskine.

The teachers and officers of Holy Cross Sunday school were entertained at the residence of the rector, Rev. T. Logan Murray last evening. The evening was pleasantly spent in determining who among those present had the keenest perception of the senses, viz: Seeing, tasting, smelling, hearing and feeling. Each one was given a set of cards with the letters written thereon and after looking at a table which contains many different articles, tasting a concoction of different ingredients, smelling a variety of different liquids, hearing a noisy cacophony, feeling of numbed fingers set off at one time and feeling of queer shaped articles while blindfolded, they endeavored to remember and write the same on their blank cards. When the cards were opened it was found that Miss Bertha Warman had won the ladies prize and Spencer Platt the prize for gentlemen. Then refreshments were served and a delightful evening was enjoyed by all present.

WALLACE AND ADAMS ARRESTED.

Two Scotch Plains Men Again in the Toils.

Last night Constable Hand of Scotch Plains arrested Wallace and Adams, for threatening an Italian peddler. The men were taken before Judge Moore, and sentenced to pay $10 each or 30 days in jail.

Neither of them had any money. Constable Hand released them until Saturday morning to get the money. If the money isn't forthcoming then they will be sent to jail.

Wallace was recently released from jail by Judge Van Syckel, who decided that he was illegally committed.

Only 10 days ago Adams was discharged from Muhlenberg Hospital after being treated for injuries received in a fight at Fanwood. He was at the hospital about a month.

All Give Different Reasons.

Mayor Gilbert considers that the Board of Education spends more than it ought to, and that Common Council should have control of the Board's expenditure to some extent.

Ex-City Clerk Runyon in his paper impeaches the Mayor's figures, and charges that Common Council is extravagant.

THE NEWS showed that as the ex-City Clerk was the cause of much of the extravagance of last year it came with ill grace for him to criticise, especially as he was by 200 per cent. the most costly clerk the city ever had.

Ex-Councilman F. E. Marsh thinks our criticism is apt to give a false impression and that it is unfair to the Clerk to charge any of the blame for the $4,000 made up the 200 per cent. without that item at all. The Clerk made a $700 office yield him fully twice as much without that. Mr. Marsh considers the increase of over 100 per cent. justified, and also the increase of the expense of the streets from $7,500 six years ago to $17,603.09, or nearly 130 per cent., in 1893, while the population increased only about 50 per cent., and taxable valuations from $4,651,550 in 1888 to $6,898,851 in 1893, or barely 40 per cent.

President Dee says that the largely increased expenditures on the streets was due largely to the ruts wrought on every street through which the trolley rail was passed. The city has had to macadamize these streets a second time, and they have had to be macadamized from curb to curb. This expense he considers should be borne by the railway company and not by the city, but the proviso was overlooked in the ordinance, and cannot be remedied now until the company wants further privileges.

Councilman Dee thinks that the cause of many expenditures which have swelled the total year by year is due to a habit of previous councils in referring matters involving expending of public money to one man to look into.

Incidentally, it might be well to note that the 27 miles of macadamized streets in Plainfield have cost the taxpayers about $900,000, or, (allowing $20,000 for the 23 miles of dirt roads, on which the city only puts crosswalks and occasionally scrapes,) the average is about $10,000 per mile for the macadamized roads. As the city has been in existence 25 years, it means that we have averaged a fraction over one mile of macadamized roads per year.

Suing for $5,000 Damages.

The case of Mr. A. M. Runyon of this city vs. the Central Railroad Company is now being tried at Circuit Court, Elizabeth, before Judge Van Syckel.

The plaintiff was in the railroad collision which occurred at Greenville a year ago. He sues for $5,000 damages. Mr. Runyon's counsel is Mr. Craig A. Marsh.

Some of the testimony given by the plaintiff, Mr. A. M. Runyon, yesterday, would not look well in print, but it is the talk and laughter of the town, especially the witty suggestion of condolence made by a person who heard of it. No newspaper is required to spread the news: it is on everybody's lips.

About the Grip.

"The Cause of the Grip Epidemic," says the Sun, "is a subject that was recently given to the Imperial Health Bureau of Germany for investigation. The investigation will, without doubt, be characterized by that thoroughness which appertains to all the researches of German men of science; and the whole world must hope that light will be thrown upon the subject. The cause of many of the maladies by which mankind are afflicted is perfectly well known, but science has thus far failed to discover the secret of the grip. The disease has been epidemic in many countries of Europe this year, as it was in other recent years; but no satisfactory means of treating it, or of averting it, have yet been brought into service. In each visitation of it, it has travelled from eastern Europe to western; but whether the fountain of it is in Asia has not yet been determined. The German official scientists are patiently striving to find the place of its origin, if there be such a place; to get at the cause of it, if that be possible; to overtake the microbe of it, if that enemy can be overtaken; and to discover a way of killing that microbe, if there be any way. They have already done good service against sundry species of these life destroying microbes.

The latest reports from various parts of the country are of the less agreeable intelligence that the grip has been less prevalent during the past ten days than it was in the first fortnight of the month. In Connecticut, especially, there has been a large reduction in the number of cases of it. Our own city has been singularly fortunate in respect to it this Winter. The type of it here has been mild, and the deaths from it have as yet been very few, perhaps not any more than twelve or thirteen, all told." Plainfield has had a number of cases this year.

Securing Charity by Fraud.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—A short time ago Mr. McKelvy, pastor of Warren Street M. E. church, was waited upon by a letter signed "Charles Dennis" asking for $5 for charitable purposes. There is no Charles Dennis in Plainfield and the letter was a fraud.

Breaking of an Axle Throws a Train Down a Steep Embankment.

A broken axle on a coal car caused a bad wreck on the New Jersey Central near Springtown yesterday. Thirty-one coal cars were thrown down a bank and smashed into kindling wood. The road was completely blocked for four hours.

The cars were nearly all torn to pieces and the track was wrenched out of shape so as to be unsafe. No one was injured, as the trainmen were all back in the caboose, which did not leave the track.

A New Phase of Journalism.

[Elizabeth Journal.]

A bright young man of this city, of the genius known as "hustlers," was recently asked by the Journal publishers to recommend a man to fill a certain position in a town in Union county not many miles from either Plainfield or Elizabeth. His reply is good enough and characteristic enough to bear printing:

"The young man I wrote you about has secured a situation. Saw several others, but none that I could recommend. Most of them are too lazy to achieve anything in this world, and it is very doubtful if they will in the world to come. The good Book says we are to "work and pray," and work is antagonistic to their natures. Saw one man who was chewing tobacco, and he was actually too lazy to spit. He swallowed the juice. This is a fact."

It is no wonder that that place has the reputation of being a "little slow."

[Why don't the Journal say Westfield instead of "a place near Elizabeth?]

EDITORIAL NOTES

Rapid Transit Far Underground.

A rapid transit system has just been inaugurated in Brussels which shows the Belgian engineers to be ahead of any in either America or Great Britain in the matter of boldness of design. An underground rapid transit street railway has been commenced and will be completed in two years which throws into the shade all previous undertakings in that line anywhere. The road is to be an electric one, thus doing away with the smoke, cinders and coal gas that are so serious an annoyance on the London underground road.

Another feature is that the under ground part of it is to be thoroughly beneath the surface. Tunnels are to be constructed under the streets so far down that no sewers or gas pipes can possibly be interfered with. So far as any interruption to street traffic, any roar or rumbling sound above the trains, go, it will be the same as if no road were there. Shafts and air pumps will be employed at intervals, as in mines, for ventilation, and the whole tunnel will be brilliantly lighted by electricity.

Two tunnels will be constructed, either side by side or one above the other, two story fashion. The great depth will easily justify the latter mode of building. Elevators will shoot passengers quickly down into the stations and as quickly bring them up into daylight again at the end of the journey. The only wonder is that, since it is as easy almost to dig down 40 feet as 20, nobody ever thought of the deep underground railway for rapid transit in cities before. Trains will pass at intervals of two or three minutes and travel 25 miles an hour.

Disappointed Greatness.

It is not likely that anybody, however famous and successful, was ever quite satisfied with his lot. This is known to be true of many of those whom their fellowmen called great. Gustave Dore, the artist, whose stupendous imagination and power of execution all the world still wonders at, died broken hearted because he had not won fame in another field to which he aspired. Emile Zola, with all the wealth a man needs at his command—won, too, by his own daring, tireless pen—with a fame enjoyed in an equal degree by scarcely another living writer, will yet go down to his grave sad and disappointed because they will not elect him a member of the French academy.

So will Jules Verne, who has been trying for 30 years to become a member. Verne, whose dazzling, breathless flights to the moon and elsewhere readers young and old have followed till their thoughts were dazed and their heads whirled, has his one rankling thorn in the flesh in the reflection that his literary work is not thought good enough by his countrymen to entitle him to a seat in the academy. George Eliot was accounted the greatest novelist of the time in England and America and one whose writings will live through all times. Yet George Eliot's life was secretly saddened and embittered because her poetry was not classed as greater than her prose. She wished to be a poet, not a novelist.

So it goes.

Mr. Osborn, Populist secretary of state of Kansas, has a plan which, he believes, will relieve the world from poverty, and he describes the plan in a circular letter to the public. In brief, he would pass laws limiting the hours of a day's work to two. We would all like to work only two hours a day, and that far our hearts are with Secretary of State Osborn. But most of us will wait till we see how somebody else makes the plan go before venturing to adopt it ourselves. Secretary Osborn holds that overproduction is the cause of distress. He says that one man can do with modern machinery as much labor as 20 could do 75 years ago. All the 20 keep working on as hard as they can, however, producing manufactured articles and crops. Then when all the world is overstocked it must wait till the articles are worn out and the demand catches up to the supply. To obviate this he would reduce the hours of labor, giving two hours' work a day to all mankind all their lives. Well, as soon as people can earn enough money to support themselves as they desire to be supported by working two hours a day they will gladly consent to these hours of labor—not before.

A new life saving fender has been invented for electric and cable cars. It strikes an obstacle on the track about 12 inches above the ground. The obstacle, whether man, child, dog or inanimate object, is thereby thrown upon the fender and carried along till the brakeman can stop the car. This fender has been adopted in Brooklyn, where the trolley cars have been veritable engines of destruction.

The new electric light which will be placed in the Fire Island tower will be the most powerful one in the world, having an illumination of 240,000,000 candle power. In clear weather the reflection from this lighthouse can be seen in the sky 100 miles away.

Sovereign, the new general master workman of the Knights of Labor, says it is the transaction of business on the basis of debt and credit that robs labor of its just dues in order to pay interest.

ISSUE OF BONDS MADE.

Carlisle Invites Proposals For $50,000,000 of 5 Per Cents.

THE BONDS PAYABLE IN TEN YEARS

This Was the Only Immediate Step That Could Be Taken—No Sale Today—Wilson's Lame as a Statement—Effect Said Will Not Rise.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Secretary Carlisle issued a circular inviting proposals for $50,000,000 5 per cent bonds redeemable after 10 years, the bonds to bear interest at 5 per cent per annum. Allotments of bonds will be made to the highest bidders therefor, but no proposal will be considered at a lower price than $117,223, which is the equivalent of a 3 per cent bond at par. The bonds will be in denominations of $50 and upward.

Secretary Carlisle was forced to this to meet by the apparent improbability of securing immediately any action by congress authorizing a shorter term and lower rate of interest.

The statement of Senator Voorhees, the chairman of the finance committee, was the potent factor in inducing Secretary Carlisle to take the action he did. It seemed to be a matter of regret among treasury officials that some other step could not be taken by which shorter term obligations could have been issued, but the 10 year bonds are the shortest he can issue under the act of 1875. Anticipatory of this action by the secretary preparations have been made by the bureau of engraving and printing to prepare the bonds. There will be no delay in turning out the blanks as soon as may be necessary.

Fifteen offers, aggregating in value $60,000,000, have been awaiting the secretary's pleasure. One of these was for $25,000,000.

Owing to the time in which the bonds were printed, it was impossible for a sufficient number to be run off to send them to the various subtreasuries throughout the country. They will be sent out today, so that they may be posted and furnished to persons interested.

A Wilson Amendment Rejected.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—The ways and means committee suffered its first defeat when, by a vote of 112 to 102, the committee of the whole rejected Mr. Wilson's amendment fixing the date on which the free wool clause should go into effect as Aug. 1 and adopted the substitute of Mr. Johnson, the Ohio free trader and sinale taxer, making it go into effect immediately on the passage of the bill. Many of the Republicans voted with the radical Democrats for the substitute.

It was Mr. Wilson's intention, had his amendment prevailed, to have offered an amendment making the woolen schedule go into effect Dec 1, but when the compilation ortered that he decided to let the latter schedule stand and go into effect with the rest of the Bill on June 1. Just before the vote was taken Mr. Wilson stated that the jobbers were now hesitating whether to place their orders for fall goods here or abroad, and if the committee amendment carried the manufacturers would make next fall's goods.

Only one amendment was acted on—that to allow the free entry in bond of machinery as well as the materials used in the construction of ships built for foreign account. The rest of the day was spent in discussing a substitute offered by Mr. Barrows to substitute the present wool schedule for that proposed by the Wilson bill.

At the night session Mr. Sperry of Connecticut made a vicious assault on the Wilson bill on the ground that in the face of a certain deficit in the treasury of $70,000,000 June 30 next, in the face of the appeal of the secretary of the treasury for a bond issue, the Democratic ways and means committee had brought in a bill, ostensibly for raise revenue, which, if passed, would increase the present estimated deficit to $145,000,000. It was a free trade bill, and if the latter was the object of the tariff reformers it was certainly a success.

BOLD DIAMOND THIEF.

Broke a Window on a Busy Boston Street and Escaped With Trinkets.

BOSTON, Jan. 18.—One of the most daring robberies known in this city for years was committed on Court street while hundreds were passing. The clerks in Hannigan & Freeman's jewelry store were startled by a crash of glass and seeing a man's hand clutch a case of diamonds worth $1,000.

Two of the clerks hurried to the door, but the thief had rushed into the crowd, and to clear the way he drew a revolver and fired toward the ground. In the tumult which followed the robber made his escape, and all trace of him has been lost. A brick wrapped up in paper was used to break the window. It is not known whether the thief had a confederate or not. The case taken was the most valuable in the window.

Then he turned and killed a negro and tried to kill another one, but failed. The sheriff is in pursuit of the murderer with dogs.

TOWN AFTER ROBBERS.

Five Burglars Were Discovered In the Postoffice.

A LIVELY PISTOL FIGHT ENSUED.

The Burglars Retreated and Escaped to the Mountains With the Whole Male Population in Pursuit—Hundreds of Shots, but Only Three Hit.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Jan 18.—Five masked outlaws made a raid on the Danville postoffice, but before they shoved a big pile of greenbacks into a canvas bag the police made their appearance. A desperate running battle ensued, during which Oldcorn Van Gilder was mortally shot through the lungs, while two of the outlaws dropped from the firing, but were picked up by their companions and bundled into a row boat, after which a race across the Susquehanna river ensued, the entire band managing to escape into the mountains of Northumberland county.

Danville is the county seat of Montour, and the population of 4,000 is guarded by four policemen and a constable.

At 2 a. m. Officer Lewis Byerly was passing the postoffice when he saw a masked man crouching in the doorway. He drew his revolver, but before he could fire the stranger slipped around the corner.

A Fusillade Began.

The policemen rushed to the homes of Officers Dave Rissel and John Van Gilger, which were close by, and told them that he thought a band of outlaws was robbing the postoffice. In a few minutes the three men ran to the postoffice in time to meet the mysterious stranger emerging from the door, followed by a fusillade. They blew a loud, piercing whistle and commenced firing revolvers at the police, who dodged behind the lamp posts and returned the fire.

Ten shots were exchanged, when the robbers were re-enforced by three more men. Every one was well armed, and a continuous round of fire commenced. The bandits formed a square and hugged the stone steps leading to the massive building. While they were able to escape the policemen's bullets, numerous citizens appeared armed with weapons of every description. The firing became so warm that the robbers concluded to retreat to the river bank.

They discharged three volleys at the excited townsmen and ran eastward, each side exchanging shots. Van Gilger, who led the pursuers, suddenly threw up his hands and fell, shot through the lungs.

The Burglars Escape.

About the same time two of the robbers fell. Their comrades grabbed them, and during a momentary halt of the pursuers they managed to reach the Susquehanna river. A rowboat was secured, and three outlaws, after leaving their wounded companions at the bottom of the boat, commenced rowing in the direction of the Northumberland side.

The pursuers, now a force of 100 infuriated men, secured as many boats as possible, and, armed with shotguns, converged, revolvers and rifles cracking at every turn, but no person was hit. Owing to their good start the bandits were in reaching the opposite side before the foremost boat containing the police was half way across, and when the pursuers touched land the darling men were in the mountains, which are now being scoured on all sides by the sheriff's posse.

It is thought that the bandits will seek a cave in order to hide their wounded companions and to throw the police off the scent. In the event of their being surprised another fight to the death will ensue. The sheriff says he will bring back the slayers of Van Gilger dead or alive.

The latter had been lighted, but had failed to burn. There is no clew to the dynamiters.

COUGHLIN'S DEFENSE.

Nearly Six Weeks Have Now Been Consumed by the Prosecution.

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—The prosecution in the Coughlin case has rested, and it is estimated that it will take as much time to introduce all the evidence for the defense as was required by the state. It took about six weeks, or from Dec. 8 until the present time, to introduce the state witnesses, and should the defense consume an equal period the verdict of the jury may not be looked for until March 1. The state examined 86 witnesses, 28 benches were presented at the former trial. This decrease in number of witnesses for the state was due to the exclusion of all the testimony relating to Camp 20 of the Clan-na-Gael.

The defense, it is said, will introduce some sensational testimony. There is a story that Political Lieutenant Stiff would, when called to the stand by the defense, make a serious charge against Captain Schuettler. Stiff testified at the last trial that he saw Coughlin at the Chicago Avenue station at 10:30 o'clock on the night of May 4—the same hour that Niemann swore to having seen him in the Lake View station near the Carlson cottage. Stiff also said that certain records in the station showed that Coughlin was there, but the document could not be found. It is now said that Stiff charges that Schuettler destroyed the papers to prevent their being used by Coughlin's defense and that he will so state on the stand.

SAMPSON'S WONDERFUL RUN

How He Counted 343 With Schaefer's Favorite Anchor Nurse.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 18.—Tom Foley of this city, for many years champion billiardist of Illinois, who was about the pluckiest real run of 342 made at Minneapolis by Henry J. Sampson of this city, said there could be no possible doubt of the accuracy of the report and of the accuracy of the count. Billiardist Thayer and half a dozen others who witnessed the run have made affidavits to that effect.

Sampson anchored the balls on the lower rail in Schaefer's favorite position, and with a marvelously light stroke he made the counts without touching the red ball a hair, merely rubbing the balls and playing with remarkable rapidity. When he passed the world's record made by Schaefer, a wild cheer went up from the people present, which was instantly hushed as the score continued to roll up. At the eight hundred forty-second shot both balls were frozen to the cushion, and Sampson quit on an out and in misses.

Sampson has been well known throughout the west as an expert of medium ability, and the run surprised even his friends. Within the last three weeks Sampson has frequently made runs ranging from 150 to 200.

The Earth Caved In.

Three houses were partially tipped over.

GOOD HEALTH

PERFUMED ANTISEPTICS.

The Powers of Chios Cinnamon as Purifier as Corrosive Sublimate.

Antiseptics have generally a disagreeable odor. Commenting on researches made by French scientists, the New York Herald says they have shown that many essences are endowed with strong antiseptic qualities that appear in two ways—by direct contact, and even at a distance, on account of their vapor tension. The most powerful of these essences is certainly the essence of Chios cinnamon, which has almost the same strength as corrosive sublimate, one of the most powerful antiseptics. But these essences in their natural form are very often irritating to the skin, so that M. Lucas-Championniere of Paris has been trying to find a way to take the difficulty. With the idea that they are irritating because they are insoluble in the different liquids of the body and in water, he dissolved them by means of retinol and obtained in this way preparations that are not at all irritating. Rectified essence of cinnamon is called cinnamol, and 1 per cent solutions or 1 per cent ointments of cinnamol have been tested by the above mentioned surgeon. Dressings are made with the ointment, which fades away with all odor, even in infected wounds. He has also found the essences of geranium and verbena.

It is very desirable that this use of essences should become a common one, as nothing is more disagreeable in a sick chamber than the odor of the antiseptics which we now use. To introduce perfumery into surgery and medicine is by no means to entirely not displease the patients, and in the use of epidemics the regular use of certain forms of perfumery—lavender, cinnamon, verbena and geranium—is to be recommended.

Open Air Treatment of Consumption.

Consumption is a disease often engendered and certainly developed by impure air. This is a conclusion to which Dr. Benj Thorne Cone in a paper read before the Royal British Nurses' Association upon the "Open Air Treatment of Consumption" at Falkenham. Winter and summer the patients at the German health resort are encouraged to spend the greater part of the day in the open air. Even when unable to take exercise sufferers are placed out of doors, care being taken that they should be sufficiently roused up. At night the windows of the rooms are partially opened. Baths, especially douche baths, are freely administered, and with favorable results. Many of a most scientific kind are taken to prevent the dissemination of the tubercular bacilli, and Dr. Thorne mentioned that the proportion of deaths from consumption in Falkenham entire, is 36 per cent.

A Curious Effect of Electricity.

An exchange tells that when the current was turned on the circuits for the first time at the insane asylum the insane persons were much affected. They tossed their heads about, fell into each other's embraces, danced with glee and displayed an exaltation such as fractious animals sometimes show when stirred by emotional music. Improvement in many of the patients has been noted, due to the buoyant effect on the system through the surprise.

A Note For Vegetarians.

It is a noticeable fact that, with all other great advances they have made during recent years, the stature and physique of the Japanese people have remained remarkably deficient. A parliamentary commission appointed by the mikado's government to investigate the causes of this lack of stamina has after prolonged investigation ascribed it to the vegetable diet to which the Japanese mainly confine themselves.

ETIQUETTE

NOT AT HOME.

The Conventional Little Phrase Which Rules the Wheels of Society.

The little phrase "not at home," used in the conventional sense, simply means that one is not at liberty to receive her friends or acquaintances. It does not mean that she is out of the house, and it is not so understood by people accustomed to society. When the maid bars the door to a caller with the information that the lady is "engaged" and cannot be seen, the caller, unless she is a very sensible woman indeed, is apt to feel that she has had a rebuff. She will not take the trouble to go to the house again very soon," she thinks, and probably says, as she walks disappointedly away.

One use of politeness is to ease the wheels of society and do away with needless friction. When everybody in a community adopts a certain formula, and its meaning is generally understood and accepted, there is no violation of truth in availing one's self of it, simply as a convenience. When we send out cards saying that on a certain day we will be "at home," we signify to our friends that then we will be free to enjoy their society. We may seem too formal to be done in a little village where old acquaintances run in upon one another on their way to or from the market or the postoffice, and where the demands of life are not very insistent. But in town, with its multiform and pressing engagements, a day at home is almost a necessity to those who would see their friends and still have time left for anything else.

Of course if the phrase "not at home" is crudely taken and regarded as a falsehood by the utterer and by the person who hears it, it lowers the moral tone of both. But this is not what is intended when it is used. The gentlewoman who is "not at home" is understood simply to be "not at home to visitors," and she has thus her own spa fantification for the day around the poem she is writing or the picture she is painting, the child she is nursing, the gown she is making, or the book she is enjoying. "Mrs. — will not be at home until after 3 or 4 or 7 p. m." is merely a variation of the form, signifying at what hour Mrs. — will be disengaged.

In conclusion, Harper's Bazar expresses the opinion that the only really needful thing in the matter is to have everybody understand and adopt what a few have adopted and found convenient and courteous, a conventional phrase to indicate that day occupations of the household cannot be thrown over for the pleasure of a conversation with friends who may find another occasion for calling. To a multitude of overwearied women, interrupted until serious pursuits become impossible, and nerves and health break down, this little phrase would prove a boon.

THE SCHEME OF COLOR

WHY SO MANY WOMEN PRESENT AN UNATTRACTIVE APPEARANCE.

A Proper Respect For Contour Is Not Shown In the Selection of Raiment—Colors For the Fleshy Woman, Others For the Thin One—White Suits All.

One sees so many women presenting an unattractive appearance, which inspection shows to be unnecessary, that the wish comes involuntarily that some one would instruct them as to their good points and, ignoring their vanities, as to their bad points too. For instance, a woman whose 200 pounds of avoirdupois ought to be out of sight as much as may be will be found putting every ounce of her weight in evidence in a big plaid which has taken her fancy, or which she has an idea diminishes distance, but every line of which is in reality like a chalk mark to fix the glance and rest there. Let us begin again. And if she has not arrayed herself in plaid she has encircled and magnified her form with ruffles that increase her circumference like holes round the moon.

Yet such a woman should preferably wear black or the darkest shade of invisible green, blue or prune color, and should always remember that the cut of her clothes which allows long lines of slow curves is that which will make her seem less unwieldy, if not other. Let strange contradiction, few things are more becoming to a large woman than a white tamboric or plastic or tulle silk. It acknowledges at once that she is stout, but it gives her almost an air of wholesomeness and sweetness that overbalances any disadvantage of superfluous flesh.

White indeed is one of the colors that are becoming to almost all women, especially with ribbons or flowers of the colors that suit them. Black and red are both a fair and rosy woman seldom looks so well in anything as in pale pink; she may be almost plain, and a white dress and pink ribbons will make her seem lovely. Pink, the delicate pink with a yellow cast in it, is peculiarly suitable to the red haired woman of a fair skin and light complexion; yet such a woman should avoid scarlet and crimson as she would fire. Pale blue suits her, but she will look delicate and perhaps a little pinched in it; in pale green she will be as fresh as Galatea—other things being equal; in dark green as blooming as a wood nymph; and there are tints of terra cotta and brown, tones that will shade up to her hair and mingle with it as if she were a picture.

But all women should bear in mind that the brightest and most striking colors, like yellow and scarlet, are seldom to be used in a mass except for very striking effects when they

—The heavy winds a few days ago have so loosened the roots of one of the large and handsome pine trees in front of Mr. Allen's home, on Somerset street, as to make its destruction necessary. Thursday men were at work cutting it down in sections. Old Mr. Allen was very proud of these balmy pines and it, no doubt, grieves him to see one of them go.

—Mrs. Quass, of Plainfield avenue, whose home was robbed by a burglar as stated correctly in yesterday's News, is indignant at the perverted reports published in the other Plainfield papers. One had that she lived on two streets, and was a poor woman, the other had the wrong sum of money stolen. Only THE NEWS had it correct.

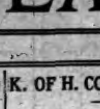
Charged with Throwing Oil in a Stove.

Richard Enstice was before the court at Westfield Wednesday evening on complaint of Michael Dorn for throwing oil in the stove at the storeroom, which exploded and set Dorn's clothing on fire, burning him severely. Justice Dowlen said he had anything to do with throwing the oil in the stove, but that when Dorn ran past him with his clothing in a blaze he wrapped his overcoat about him and smothered the flames, thereby spoiling his coat. Enstice made application for a hearing, which was set down for next Monday.

K. OF H. CONSOLIDATION

TO BE KNOWN AS EASTER LODGE AT PRESENT.

The Organization has 99 Members. —Visitors Present from Brooklyn. —The New Officers Elected.



A the new name had not been confirmed by the Supreme Dictator the consolidation of Wetumpka and Easter Lodges, Knights of Honor, was effected last night under the name of Easter Lodge. It is proposed to call the new organization Senate Lodge.

By the consolidation the Knights of Honor have a strong organization, as to members among its members true and tried men who will stick to the new organization and work with renewed effort to place the order in this city among the leading societies. Although in point of members, it starts with a membership of 99, it is not at the head of the secret societies, but what it lacks in quantity it makes up in quality. It is more than probable that when the members get to work the new lodge will climb to where Wetumpka once was, at the head.

The officers elected were as follows:

Dictator—E. C. Pease.
Vice Dictator—Ed. B. Ryder.
Assistant Dictator—Robert I. Fenno.
Reporter—A. A. Thorne.
Financial Reporter—C. H. Doane.
Treasurer—T. H. Bartindale.
Chaplain—Rev. Robert Clark.
Guide—J. M. Duck.
Guardian—S. B. Joseph.
Sentinel—J. M. Gulick.
Trustee—E. L. Safford, Geo. H. Neal, J. V. Berkaw.

Visitors were present from Senate Lodge of Brooklyn and Tuscarora Lodge of New Market.

After the election of officers a collation was served.

Grand Dictator Schert was present and made an address. He said he was pleased at the action the two lodges had taken and that in his opinion the new lodge had material in it to increase its membership to 150 in a short time, so that the new lodge would be entitled to three representatives in the Grand Lodge.

Grand Secretary Mayhew was next introduced as the old "war horse" in the Knights of Honor. He said he hoped the consolidation of the two lodges would bring forth plenty of Knights of Honor.

Mr. Pratt, of Senate Lodge of Brooklyn, was next introduced. A few years ago Mr. Pratt said he was proud of the fact that the new lodge was to be named after Senate of Brooklyn. He suggested that the lodge start a contingent fund for the benefit of the members. It had been tried in Brooklyn and found to work admirably.

Mr. Weston formerly of Brooklyn, on behalf of the citizens of Plainfield, welcomed the members from Senate Lodge. Mr. Weston said he expected to become a member of the new Senate Lodge in this city.

Mr. Bartindale, who did much to bring about the consolidation of the two lodges, said he hoped the new lodge would be beneficial to the Knights of Honor.

As the visitors from Brooklyn were compelled to leave to catch a train for home, they thanked the Plainfield Knights for the manner in which they had been received. Before leaving three cheers were given by them for the new Plainfield Lodge.

Distinct Praise extended to the visitors an invitation to visit them at any time.

A RARE OLD CANE.

ONCE PART OF A WAR-SHIP WHICH WAS SUNK BY THE BRITISH IN 1781.

The Last of a Hundred.—The Rest Were Given by Mr. Simpson, Jr., of Grove Street to the President and Personal Friends.—The Timbers of the Vessel were Brought up by a Dredge Used by the Dry Dock Firm of J. E. Simpson and Co., in the Construction of one of Their Dry Docks at New Foundland.—A History of the Matter.

Mr. James E. Simpson, Jr., of Grove street, North Plainfield, is a leading member of the great dry-dock building firm of J. E. Simpson & Co., whose offices are in New York. This firm was organized by Mr. J. E. Simpson, Sr., and has made most of the government and private dry docks in this country.

In building one of their numerous dry docks, as detailed below, the dredge brought up portions of a vessel, which turned out to have been an American privateer, which had been captured and destroyed by sinking, by an English warship, one hundred and twelve years ago.

Portions of the sold oak keel were forwarded by Mr. Simpson to New York, and, after being dried in various ways, were, eventually, made into canes. About one hundred of these canes were made. They sell at high prices, and were quite weighty. Because of the peculiar color age and submersion in the water had given the wood, these walking sticks were exceptionally handsome. The cost to make them was about $5 each.

Mr. Simpson sent one of these canes to the President then, and now, Grover Cleveland, and also to other prominent officials at Washington, including personal friends in the Senate, members of the Cabinet, etc.

A copy of the following letter accompanied each cane. That the unique gift was appreciated is evidenced by the many personal and cordial letters of thanks Mr. Simpson received and which he prizes highly.

"My Dear Sir:—While prosecuting the dredging in connection with the construction of one of our dry docks for the government of the Colony of Newfoundland, in the harbor of St. Johns, we came in contact with and removed the frames and keel of a sunken vessel. Upon inquiry, we learned the following particulars as to the history of said vessel:

"On July 15, 1781, the report was brought into St. Johns, Newfoundland, that the American privateer, Jersey, while lying in the harbor getting her rigging repaired, which the captains of the privateers had to do from time to time, was brought in and His Majesty's Ship 'Pluto' began to get ready for sea. In short time she was ready for sea, and she sailed at nine o'clock a. m., and at twelve o'clock the same day got alongside with the two privateers in tow, one called the "Avenger" and the other the Jersey, which vessels were under orders of Vice-Admiral John Campbell, who was also Governor at the time, were disengaged from the vessels and were lying side of Captain Dambrell's wharf.

The preceding history was obtained from Mr. Thomas Whitcomb and was taken from an old journal kept by his grandfather, Captain John Dambrell, who was Port Captain in St. Johns at the time of the capture. The hull of the "George" remained sunken where cut down until November, 1892, when the timbers of said vessel were lifted by our dredge.

Thinking it will be pleasing to some of our friends, we have had manufactured from the oak keel of said vessel a few canes, one of which we take the liberty of forwarding to you to-day by express. Trusting it may prove acceptable from the fact of its historic associations, we are,

Yours very truly,

Mr. Simpson has but one cane left of the many made, and as duplicates can be procured, he rightly regards it as invaluable.

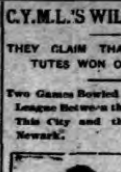
THEY CLAIM THAT THE INSTITUTES WON ON A FOUL.

Two Games Bowled in the Diocesan League Between the C. Y. M. L.'s of This City and the Institutes of Newark.



TWO games were bowled in the Diocesan League at Newark last night. The contesting clubs being the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum of this city and the Institutes of Newark. On the result of the game hinged the championship of the League, and consequently both teams were hotly contested. The first game was won by the Institutes by 28 pins, but the second contest was closer and was won by the Institutes by only six pins, and this small margin the Plainfielders claim was secured by a foul.

Curtin made a spare on a foul and secured nine pins.

As the umpire did not see the foul it was not allowed. Had the foul been allowed Curtin would not have scored, consequently the Lyceums would have won by three pins, thereby winning the championship.

The game is to be protested by the Lyceums.

MR. RUNYON GETS $1,625.

Verdict of the Jury in His Case Against the Central.

The trial of the suit of Alexander M. Runyon, against the Central Railroad of New Jersey for $5,000 damages for injuries in the Greenville collision in December, 1892, was finished yesterday in the Union County Court. Judge Van Syckel charged against the railroad company and the jury awarded the plaintiff $1,625.

Mr. Runyon, the plaintiff, was represented by Cyrus A. Mosher. The lawyers for the Railroad Company were E. V. Lindabury and Mr. Barkalew. This makes the third case in succession in which Marsh and Lindabury have been pitted against each other and Marsh was the victor in all three. People wond'er why these two men can be constantly fighting each other in heated arguments and yet remain firm friends. We suppose that it is because each man knows the other's worth.

Boys of Holy Cross Choir Entertained.

The boys of Holy Cross Choir were entertained at the residence of Mr. J. Edward Turrill, 81 Grove street, last night. The evening was pleasantly spent in playing various games, and, after refreshments were served, the young choristers endeavored to pin a caudal appendage upon a tailless donkey, in the proper place for the same. Master Arthur Morpeth was the successful and received the prize, while Master Ford proved the most unsuccessful and was awarded the booby prize. The boys all enjoyed themselves thoroughly and look forward to their next meeting anticipating another such good time.

L. E. HOWARD'S DEVICE.

TO CATCH SPARKS FROM ARC LIGHTS.

The Board of Underwriters of Hartford, Conn Demand an Extra Rate of Insurance from Users of Arc Lights and the Invention of a Plainfield Man Gets a Boom.

[From the Hartford Conn. Courant.]

The Hartford Board of Fire Underwriters met yesterday and a resolution offered by the rate committee was adopted. At the annual meeting the rate committee was instructed to make a report upon the matter of increased rates for users of arc electric lights in stores and other business places. The committee state that the use of the lights is attended by constantly increasing danger by reason of imperfect installations, open lamps without spark arresters, or having arresters inadequate for the purpose, as well as by poor electrical defects. This condition has been productive of numerous fires, occurring especially at night, when the premises were without proper personal supervision. With but rare exceptions some or all of these undesirable conditions exist in this city where arc lights are being used. These conditions can be e sily diminished if not entirely removed by the electric light companies and property owners. The resolution passed by the committee is as follows:—

"Resolved by this board, That the use of arc electric lights in factories or manufacturing establishments during other than working hours, and when said establishments are closed, is hereby prohibited, but arc lights during business or working hours will be permitted without extra charge in rate of insurance premium, provided the same are carefully arranged, as to wiring, spark arresters, and external cut-out switches and otherwise in accordance with the requirements of this board and the New England Insurance Exchange. On and after February 15, 1894, an extra charge of one-half per cent. shall be made wherever arc lights are used which are not arranged in accordance with said requirements."

Several firms have already taken steps to protect their stocks of goods from fire from sparks by ordering their arc lamps equipped with the Howard incandescent are device. The device is made by the Connecticut Royal Arc Company on Haynes street and a company to embrace New England is to be formed. The device is highly indorsed by the Underwriters' International Electric Association, the inspection department of the Boston Board of Fire Underwriters and the New England Insurance Exchange of Boston. The device is the same as has been recently adopted by Hartford Electric Light Company, and is being placed on the street lamps. It is the invention of Louis E. Howard of Plainfield, N. J.

Harrison on Military Training.

Ex-President Harrison writes to The Century Magazine that he heartily approves the movement to make the military drill an exercise in the common schools. Besides its value as a method of physical training he believes it would be the making of our state militia. He says the military taste and training acquired by boys at school would cling to them when they reached manhood and carry our best young men into the national guard organizations, making of those organizations "reliable conservators of public order and ready and competent defenders of the national honor."

One point touched by Mr. Harrison is well worth noting. It is that since our civil war "war's pace has greatly quickened," and the arms now in use demand a trained soldier. We would be much more helpless as to the rank and file of our armies now than we were in 1861, because so much more is demanded of the soldier. Mr. Harrison says of the military drill:

It is good in every aspect of it—good for the boys, good for the schools and good for the country. A true, erect, graceful carriage of the body is an acquisition and a delight. It has a value in commerce as well as in war. Arms and legs are distressing appendages to a boy under desultory action but he has been taught the use of them to repose. The chin is too neighborly with the neck, and the eyes find the floor too soon. They need to have the ill paces marked off. The slingshot need to be quickened and the pistol taught to stand. The willful to have no will and all to observe fast. The disputatious need to learn that there are conditions where silence is indefensible, the power and beauty there are in a company—how to keep the step and one time.

A military drill develops the whole man—head, chest, arms and legs proportionately; it removes awkwardness and corrects the excesses of other forms of exercise. It teaches quickness of eye and ear, hand and foot; qualities that seem inseparable from habits of order and ordination; and, best of all, qualities a man to serve his country. The flag now generally floats above the schoolhouse, and what more appropriate than that the boys should be instructed in the defense of it? Under our system we shall never have a large standing army, and our strength and safety are in a general dissemination of military knowledge and training among the people. What the man and citizen ought to know in order to the full discharge of his duty to his country should be imparted to the boy.

To Make Money Plentiful.

Mr. James H. Eckels, comptroller of the currency, says in The North American Review that what is now needed in this country is a booming campaign of education on the money question. Only by cultivating the intelligence of the people can we as a nation be saved from financial fallacies and consequent disaster. Perhaps a year or two ago Mr. Eckels's view abroad in the land, in Mr. Eckels's judgment. One is that what is most wanted is a greater volume of currency; the other is that congress can afford financial relief. Instead of looking to congress the people everywhere "must become more self reliant, more self helpful and learn to employ to a greater extent the means locally at hand."

A thoroughly sound currency that circulates briskly is what people need, says Mr. Eckels. To this end there should be in all the local centers plenty of well conducted banks of deposit and discount, not banks of issue. Ready money payments would make cash more abundant. A dollar that circulates briskly is worth a hundred that are hoarded away. Cash payments on the spot and an avoidance of going into debt will make money more abundant, therefore. The Scotch people have a habit of depositing their money in banks at all times. This gives the banks a constant supply of currency with which to meet demands on them. The American people should realize the aid that good banks can afford them, says Mr. Eckels.

Nicaragua and Honduras are fighting because Zelaya, the dictator president of Nicaragua, harbored and encouraged last summer the fugitive rebels who had tried to overthrow the government of President Vasquez of Honduras. If Zelaya had merely given refuge to the revolutionists, that would have been no more than England does to political refugees from all the countries of continental Europe. But Zelaya not only gave a home to the rebels; he also endeavored to bolster up their cause and help them overturn the government of Honduras, his neighbor and a friendly power. Therefore Honduras is at outs with Zelaya and Nicaragua. Nicaragua has all the disaffected exiles from Honduras to help her against their own country. In fact it is the cause of the revolutionists that the government of Zelaya is championing, and it is the Honduras rebels, with the Nicaraguan army at their back, who are opening the war against Honduras. Meantime the powerful and unscrupulous Barrios, dictator president of Guatemala, has promised to aid Vasquez of Honduras, while the republic of Salvador, with its dictator president, Ezeta, is expected to back Nicaragua and the Honduras rebels.

A strange movement on the part of a number of free religious families is recorded from Berlin. These families are dissenters from the Lutheran church. But the school regulations demand that their children shall be instructed in the Lutheran dogma and ritual. In order to avoid this, which they refuse to submit to at any hazard, the families indicated are going over to Judaism, turning Jew to get rid of having their children trained in theology. In Judaism they hope to enjoy greater religious freedom and to be left unmolested.

CHOKED ITSELF TO DEATH.

Edward Sarson, of Westwood, had a valuable black Lorbe that had a bad habit of pulling back and trying to break loose when tied with a halter. To overcome the habit this horse's tail was soon tied around the neck with a rope. Tuesday night Mr. Sarson tied the horse to a post in front of an oyster saloon and went into the place. In about half an hour he heard a peculiar noise outside and saw the horse lying in the gutter, dead to the past. He found the horse gasping its last. Mr. Sarson had made a mistake and tied a slip knot. The horse choked himself to death.

A HOT TARIFF DEBATE.

Mr. Johnson of Ohio Stirs Up a Hornet's Nest.

THE INCOME TAX IS ALL READY.

Mr. Vest Entertains the Senate With a Witty Dialogue and Denounces the Federal Elections Law—The Wilson Bill Denounced by Mr. Sibley.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—Almost the entire day in the house was spent in the continuation of the debate on Mr. Burrows' amendment to restore the existing duties on wool, with the result of its defeat by a strict party vote.

About an hour before the recess Mr. Johnson of Ohio offered his amendment to place nails on the free list. This led to what will probably prove to be one of the most interesting discussions of the present tariff debate.

Mr. Springer asked Mr. Johnson, who is himself a steel rail producer, whether placing rails on the free list would drive rail manufacturers out of the business, to which the latter replied that it would not. Its only effect would be to reduce the profits of the mill owners.

"That is what you're here for, I suppose," interposed Mr. Boutelle sarcastically—"to reduce your profits."

"I am here voting money into the pockets of my stockholders," replied Mr. Johnson emphatically amid applause.

Johnson Is Hot Water.

"Your patriotism is on a par with your impossibility about it," retorted Mr. Boutelle.

In further reply to Mr. Springer, Mr. Johnson declared his bill will not bear unfavorably situated than others and that it was in about the center of steel rail production.

Mr. Tawney, one of the Democratic members of the ways and means committee, wanted to know, if the existing duty was reduced from $11 to about $6 per ton which reduced quotation revived, if he did not think it would produce revenue.

Mr. Johnson replied that he did not think it would produce a dollar of revenue; that 20, 10 or even 5 per cent was, with the present close margins, almost prohibitive. In proof of the statement he offered the testimony of the ways and means report. [Laughter.]

"In other words," interrupted Mr. Hiard, "this duty will enable the trust to put up prices and get all the benefit."

Mr. Johnson assented to this proposition. Besides, he said, it would enable the trust to pay $1,000 a day to close up other mills.

"Would the railmen lower wages?" asked Mr. Stone of Pennsylvania.

"No," replied Mr. Johnson. "They would get their labor in the free trade market of the world, where they always have, and pay as little as possible." [Democratic applause.]

Mr. Cannon of Illinois asked if Mr. Johnson thought that it was quite fair, knowing as he did that his attempt to put rails on the free list would be unsuccessful, to get the benefit of a display of philanthropy and sentiment afterward to pocket the proceeds of protection.

Mr. Johnson met the question by asking if Mr. Cannon would vote with him. To this there was no reply.

Mr. Dalzell, the Republican representative from the Pittsburg district, then got the floor and proceeded to defend the Wilson bill. Steel rail production, he said, was an important industry in 11 states. This production was to place steel rails on the free list and leave billets and blooms, out of which they were manufactured, dutiable at 45 per cent. Was that just? The steel rail industry was the very basis of development of protection. Under its beneficent operation the price of rails had gone down from $100 to $28.

Sibley Attacks the Wilson Bill.

At the night session Mr. Sibley of Pennsylvania, a Democrat, created something of a sensation by a bitter speech against the Wilson bill. He said he did not believe that tariffs made or unmade prosperity. The trouble was much deeper. In his opinion the difficulties were due to the position of the Kilkenny cats. The politicians, he said, had tied their tails together over the line and were now shaking it to see the fur fly. The cause of the present condition was the monetary policy of the government. He did not believe the ways and means committee was competent, or, if competent, that it would undertake to tear down in a few weeks the temple of our industries created through 100 years of growth and development and protected only the bad features of the McKinley law and allowed the rest to stand.

Prosperity was promised by Mr. Wilson when the silver repeal bill was passed, but only paupers and princes and graves had followed it. Why should he now follow Mr. Wilson? Why would he not, as declared, a revenue tariff bill, such as was demanded by the Chicago platform, but he would never vote for this bill, which was a hybrid—half free trade and half protection, with the vices of both and the virtues of neither.

The other speakers were Messrs. McKeighan of Nebraska, DeForest of Connecticut and Russell of Connecticut.

Senator Walthall's Resignation.

The most significant event in the senate was the announcement of the resignation of Senator Walthall of Mississippi. It is betaking effect before the governor of the senate announcing that he had tendered his resignation to the governor of Mississippi. The greatest surprise was expressed on all sides. Senator Walthall is 62 years old and succeeded the late L. Q. C. Lamar 10 years ago. His retirement causes general regret among his colleagues, as Senator Walthall is very popular in the senate.

The legislative session of the day was short, but it gave opportunity for the introduction of two resolutions from Populist senators, the one denouncing the policy of the administration, and later in the day in the discussion of the Stark monument appropriation, Senator Morgan of Alabama and Senator Peffer of Kansas took occasion to express their disapproval of the proposed bond issue.

The remarks of Senator Vest of Missouri on the elections bill were entertaining to the senate and were in his usual pointed style.

Senator Hoar of Massachusetts attempted to interrupt the Missouri senator with a question, but Senator Vest turned upon him and said his friend had enough to do to attend to the pure of Massachusetts. Not a question could come up, whether it was astronomy, philosophy, religion or anything else, but that the senator from Massachusetts was not ready to start up with "Paramount Blouse" or "Lilinokalani." [Laughter.] Senator Vest reviewed the history of the question of the federal elections law, directing his arguments quite pointedly to Senator Chandler, the leader in the elections law fight for the Republicans. The latter interrupted with the hope that the senator from Missouri would not "terrify" him. [Laughter.]

"The idea of terrifying the senator from New Hampshire," retorted Senator Vest, "after all he has been through and after who he has been in Florida!" [Laughter.] "Why, he could shake hands with the ghosts of Reconstruction and then eat a hearty meal." [Great laughter.]

After a general summary of the outrages which Senator Vest alleged had been committed under the federal elections law he concluded his remarks, and on motion of Senator Cockrell the senate went into executive session. Ten minutes later the doors were reopened, and the senate adjourned until Monday next.

Details of the Income Tax.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The full text of the internal revenue bill, including the income tax, has been agreed upon by the Democratic members of the ways and means committee. Printed copies of the completed bill have been made, and it is generally understood that it will be submitted to the house today. The bill provides that the income tax is to go into effect Jan. 1, 1895, and that the first collection on incomes is to be made on July 1, 1895. All classes of incomes are included in the measure, and the uniform rate of 2 per cent tax on incomes over $4,000 is fixed.

The most important detail of the bill is the method provided for the levy and collection of taxes. It is made obligatory on all persons having incomes subject to tax over $2,500 to make a return to the local collector of internal revenue.

Those returns are gone over by the revenue officers, and in case they find returns up of those whose incomes exceed $4,000. No tax is levied on those making a return of about $3,500. In every $4,000, but the committee deemed it expedient to have this margin of $500 below the exemption point in order that the returns might be sure to show all who are subject to the tax.

About the Bond Issue.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—It was announced at the treasury department today that Secretary Carlisle would decline to make public the names of the persons offering to take bonds. The amount they subscribed for and the figure they offered for them. It was said unofficially, however, that the $50,000,000 offer was at the minimum premium of $117,324. There is said to be a likelihood of the acceptance of this or any similar offer.

It is proposed to encourage offers for small lots from all sections of the country rather than to have the entire loan taken by a few dealers in large blocks. The idea fundamentally is to have it so that small denominations will be taken in preference to larger ones. This of course would involve the issue of a great many more bonds. It is believed at the treasury department from orders already received that the total offering will aggregate nearly $300,000,000 and that if the price of the new 1904 bonds, the bonds practically bear but 2½ per cent interest.

Postmasters Appointed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—The fourth class postmasters appointed were:

Pennsylvania—Harold, J. E. Pierce.

New York—Hopewell Junction, Cyrus Tompkins; Keenan, F. W. Hotout Thompson's Mills, H. N. Tifford.

Pennsylvania—Gravity, B. F. Box; Lawrenceville, R. W. Stewart.

THURSTON RETURNING.

Minister From Hawaii on His Way Back to Washington.

WILLIS IS REPORTED OSTRACIZED.

He Has Not Been Given His Passports, but It Was Thought He Would Ask For Them—The Ex-Queen's Life Is Constant Danger—Ready to Fire on Any Flag.

OMAHA, Jan. 19.—Hawaiian Minister Lorrin A. Thurston went through Omaha en route to Washington. To a reporter Minister Thurston said that when he left Honolulu everything was quiet. Minister Willis has not been given his papers nor has such action been contemplated by the provisional government.

"The members of the government," said he, "are not alarmed at the streets of Lilinokalani, as she is powerless, and whatever she says is treated as the ravings of an angry woman. Her threats, however, have lost her the allegiance of a number of loyal monarchists, who denounce the queen for rejecting the privileges to grant amnesty in case she was restored. She cannot be restored except by force, and there is little probability of her securing sufficient forces to bring about this.

Still Favor Annexation.

"The talk of her securing an army in Canada is treated as a good joke. I know nothing of a secret treaty with Canada. The present government is amply able to take care of itself. I do not anticipate any trouble with the United States. The annexation question has been lost sight of in the restoration hubbub, but it will come up again. In the islands the feeling is as strong as ever for annexation. Nothing in fact, among the natives it is growing. I go direct to Washington to resume my official position."

Minister Thurston was much averse to discussing the effect of Mr. Willis' demand that President Dole and the provisional government abdicate, fearing anything he might say would be taken as a criticism of President Cleveland's policy.

William Waterhouse of Cedar Rapids, Ia., brother of Mrs. Thurston, one of the provisional governments, who returned from Honolulu with Minister Thurston, was not quite this restricted, and talked freely on the situation in the islands at the time of the arrival of the Corwin and up to the time of his departure.

According to Mr. Waterhouse the spirit of the provisional government is one of defiance to the United States in particular and all governments in general. He said that all arrangements had been made to fire on the American flag.

"The greatest excitement prevailed in Honolulu at," said Mr. Waterhouse, "when the Corwin arrived and it seemed probable that the restoration of the queen would be undertaken, the provisional government was ready to receive her, and there is no question but there would have been a conflict if any attempt had been made to land marines.

"The provisional government has a fighting force of 1,100 men under arms and can quickly increase it to 2,000. The animosity is not confined to the United States government and extends to any government that expects to undertake restoration. Dole is fixed to fight to a finish for what he now holds."

Willis Ostracized.

"Minister Willis has not been given his passports, but the impression in the island is that he will soon be recalled. He is ostracized socially and is generally disliked, the sentiment among the white inhabitants amounting to almost a boycott. His wife is not included in the invitations left to herself by the ladies of the island.

"This action is explained on the ground that when Willis arrived in the islands he invited society people to his home and then asked questions and made use of the answers received. It is not intended that people in the islands shall again be subjected to this sort of espionage on the part of any American connected with the Cleveland administration."

Mr. Waterhouse further said: "If any attempt had been made to restore the queen, she would have been assassinated. The feeling is bitter, and she knows it, though it is not given official recognition or encouragement."

Police Do Not Want Him.

TOPEKA, Jan. 19.—Charles Loeb, a well dressed young man, claiming to be of a wealthy family, was arrested in this city while approaching a certainty. Mrs. Stanford asserts that "she is proceeding with due diligence to collect the portion of over $9,000,000 worth of stocks and bonds."

THE WELLS' CREW SAVED.

Rescued by Another Steamer After the Amsterdam's Disastrous Attempt.

HALIFAX, Jan. 19.—The Gloucester schooner Magnolia, Captain Day, arrived here with the crew of the Maggie E. Wells. They were taken off that vessel Monday morning 500 miles east-southeast of Sable Island, and she was then set on fire. It was in trying to get aboard of the Maggie E. Wells that Captain Mayer and five of the crew of the Dutch schooner Amsterdam were lost.

The report made at New York by the Amsterdam seemed to indicate that the crew of the Wells, numbering 14, had all perished on the sea. It was 17 o'clock of Sunday when the Dutch bark steamer Amsterdam bore down to within a quarter of a mile of the lee of the schooner. The crew of the Maggie E. Wells were exhausted by pumping and exposure and living on food that for 10 hours had been saturated with salt water. They signaled that they were sinking and wanted to be taken off. The steamer backed around to the schooner's weather bow and launched a lifeboat, with which to rescue the Maggie E. Wells, and from that position had to steer across sea.

The coxswain was that before the lifeboat had gotten 50 yards from the steamer a big sea broke over it, and in the Maggie E. Wells' rigging saw one man floating in the water and distinctly made out three others clinging to the overturned boat. The lifeboat was picked up and the Amsterdam afterward rescued those three their were on top of the boat.

Captain Mayer's opinion is that had the captain of the steamer laid off to windward from the Maggie E. Wells the accident to the brave fellows who manned the lifeboat would not have occurred. After picking up the men from the boat the Amsterdam circled around the sinking vessel two or three times, but could not find it without making any signals or a further attempt to save the men on the schooner's deck.

Sunday night the weather moderated, but the Maggie E. Wells drifted 40 miles further to southeast off Sable Island, the wind having shifted on Friday night to west-northwest. On Monday the Gloucester schooner Magnolia hove in sight and rescued Captain Davidson and his men without much difficulty.

The assailants, five in number, discharged a rifled load of buckshot upon them. Nine of the negroes were shot, some of them being dangerously wounded. CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

The Shattered Bottle.

As up town women had just bought a bottle of delicious perfume. She was hurrying the store when some one brushed rudely against her and knocked the package from her grasp. It fell to the pavement with a crash, and in a moment the air was filled with a sweet odor. She looked at the shattered fragments a moment, and then seeing that nothing could be saved out of the wreck she walked away, leaving several people who had witnessed the accident to smile at the loss and enjoy the odor of the perfume.

"Come here, Patsy," shouted one street urchin to another. "Some one's lost her umbrella bottle."

"Umph!" said Patsy. "It's just like some folks' luck" and the two stood sniffing the odor like dogs after a rabbit. The sweet scented liquid flowed across the pavement and formed a little pool. Attracted by the crowd, a little flower girl came skipping up. The odor of the perfume greeted her.

"Oh, it's sweeter than my posies," she said, and kneeling down she dipped her little bouquets in the liquid and then held them up to those who laughingly watched her. She sold them all.—Philadelphia Press.

The Elephants Laughed.

"A young friend asked me once to show him some elephants, and I took him with me, having first borrowed an apron and filled it with oranges. This he was to carry while accompanying me in the stable, but the moment we reached the door the head ran such a trumpeting"—they had smelled the fruit—that he dropped the apron and the contents and scuttled off like a jack rabbit. There were eight elephants, when I picked up the oranges I found I had 38.

"I walked deliberately along the line, giving one orange to each elephant. When I got to the end of the narrow stable, I turned and was about to begin again when I suddenly reflected that, if elephant No. 7 in the row saw me give two oranges in succession to No. 8, he might imagine that he was cheated and give me a smack with his proboscis—that is where the elephant calls short of the human being—so I went to the door and began again from the beginning.

"Twice I went along the line, and then I was at a fix. I had one orange left, and I had to go back to the front. Every elephant in the herd had his greedy gaze fastened on that orange. It was as much as my life was worth to give it to any one of them. What was I to do? I held it up conspicuously, coolly peeled it and sucked it myself. It was most amusing to notice the way those elephants nudged each other and shook their ponderous sides. They thoroughly entered into the humor of the thing."—London Million.

A French Game.

A French game called "genteel lady" affords much excitement for children. It is really quite difficult to play; but, as the fun arises from the mistakes, it is worth trying. Some twisted papers, to represent horns, must be provided, and the company are seated in a semicircle, when the game is begun by one of the party (arising to her full height) saying: "Good morning, genteel lady, always genteel, I, a genteel lady, always genteel, come from that town burned lady, always two horned. I have a pair of muscles—that is where the elephant calls short of the human being—so I went to the door and began again from the beginning.

A Gymnasium at Home.

The advantages of gymnasium practice for young children and its direct bearing on their future can hardly be reckoned, writes Ellen Le Garde in The Ladies' Home Journal. Strange to say, the most common defect in the physical status of children is a most grievous one—namely, lateral curvature of the spine. The majority of curvatures may occur between the ages of 5 and 14 and need not happen at all if the matter is properly understood and attended to. These tender little bodies will bend and, if persistently so, like young plants, in whatever way their growth is directed.

If your child is carelessly permitted to assume one position for any lengthened period you may expect as a result a one sided development. If, by more frequent use, either side is put to greater action than the other, it will become so much stronger that all muscular movements will be performed from it, and it will in time obtain complete mastery over the deficient development, the latter finally being rendered unable to perform its natural functions. If this be taken in time all or curved spine results. The proverbial ounce of prevention is always better than the pound of cure, particularly in this case.

Mrs. Robert Louis Stevenson.

From The Antipodean, a faroff Australian periodical, this pleasant sketch of Mrs Robert Louis Stevenson is quoted: "She is the most charming of women. There are beauty and character in that dark complexion. And in her eyes, when she can be so stern. "With a fanciful imagination and a mind rich in observation, she is a blessedthing who disowns blue stockingism. She prefers her Samoan flower garden to the paths of literature and professes to write only when she wants money to spend foolishly. I am tempted to suggest that there is a trifle of exaggeration in all this. The popularity which she has won is seldom gained without the burning of midnight oil, and women who can waste much elbow grease, strike many attitudes and give themselves various airs of importance in finishing off the manner of stories and sketches which appear in the English and American magazines under the name of Fanny de G. Stevenson."

Mrs. Stevenson is an American of Dutch descent and was the wife of Samuel Osborne, a Californian, from whom she obtained a divorce. Stevenson's collaborator, Lloyd Osborne, is his stepson.

Domestic Servants in France.

Although French women's heads and civil rights are extremely circumscribed, it has always been advanced in their favor that they are the absolute mistresses in their own domestic circle, therefore it is with a feeling almost amounting to consternation that they learn that, in the matter of dismissing servants, it is the husband alone who has the power. In Paris a Mme. G. asked for a separation from her husband because he would not allow her to engage and discharge servants at her will. In a fit of temper she discharged a cook and housemaid, and they were ordered by the master to remain. M. Bervequin Mane, G. declared that she would not live with her husband if he interfered in domestic affairs and applied for a separation. The judge refused it. "A wife," said he, "has the right to demand civility and absolute obedience from her servants, but a husband has an equal right to retain servants in his house who have merely been dismissed for a caprice, which from the evidence given is clearly the case in the matter in question, so that the [illegible] for applying for a separation must be considered quite inadequate."—Paris Letter.

Women Should Learn to Converse.

There seems to me to be too little attention given to teaching children to talk. They are taught to read and write, but they "pick up" talking. If a child reads "chamber" of a paragraph he is rebuked; if he writes disjointedly, he is corrected, but he is allowed to express himself orally in fragmentary phrases, and if we catch his meaning for him and feel that he has gone astray. Were in such haste that we do not attend to forms of expression. The telegraph has encouraged condensation, and thoughtlessness has engendered exaggeration. Between the two conversation has suffered. But the real difficulty is want of thought to express, not lack of power to express it. A current topics class, meeting once a week and talking over the news of the day or the questions which are perplexing wise men and women, would be helpful.—Mrs. Lyman Abbott in Ladies' Home Journal.

Plants In the House.

There are some homes which distinctively impress themselves on the minds of the visitor as being abodes of artistic refinement and comfortable elegance. They need not be extravagantly furnished, and yet there is something about them that appeals to the nicest sense as soon as the front door is opened. When called upon to analyze this peculiar beauty, it resolves itself into the conclusion that such a place is simply just better than others because at every turn one meets with bits of living green that serve to make its peculiarly attractive. Though rigid economy must needs be practiced, the introduction of a single plant will give a touch of luxury, and if to this is added a blithe little canary in its cage there will come that "homy" feeling that cannot be defined, but which makes itself so keenly felt.—Chicago Tribune.

The World of Workers

The single woman who chooses her occupation wisely, or who, compelled for a time to engage in something that is not congenial, gradually wins her way to one that suits her tastes, has one of the best possible pressents of a happy life. She knows nothing about killing time. Every hour dies a natural death, and she hardly has leisure to remember that it existed. Her occupation becomes her inspiration. She loves it and delights in growing with it and making it and herself honored factors in the life of the city or town where she dwells. Success commands respect. Whether she be a wise physician, gifted writer or experienced dressmaker, she finds herself sought out and her friends increasing. The world of workers, if they be honest, whole souled, faithful workers, is always a happy world. —Boston Herald.

Weather Bracelets.

The well known effect in lessening or increasing the temperature of the body by cooling or warming the wrists has been applied by a Philadelphia woman in an ornamental and at the same time efficacious way. In winter she wears an inch wide strip of asbestos, a doted nonconductor of heat, folded in gold embossed velvet and backed with a jeweled loop. For summer use her pulse coolers are spheroids of rose quartz about an inch in diameter, linked together with fine silver, these possessing to a remarkable degree the quality of absorbing cold. The woman claims proof against suffering from weather variations while thus bejewelled.—Her Point of View in New York Times.

THE "PEASANT CZAR."

The Ambition of Russia's Ruler Is to Be Known by This Title.

PARIS, Jan. 19.—Reports have been received here from St. Petersburg that at a recent dinner between the czar and his courtiers on the matter of a distinctive title for the emperor a courtier proposed that as the czar was known as the Liberator the czar should be named "Alexander the Just."

"Oh, no!" exclaimed the czar. "I am and shall remain the Peasant Emperor. Some of my nobility style me so in derision, scoffing at my affection for the moujik, but I accept the title as an honor. I have tried to procure for the humble a means of livelihood, and this, I think, is the best and only means of keeping the world going.

"After all, I believe that only two men have really known what socialism is—Henry IV, who dreamed of giving every peasant is poule au pot, and perhaps myself, whose greatest ambition is to save the Russian peasant from dying of hunger. When the people understand that they run no danger of starvation, they begin to bless God and end by loving their sovereign, who represents him on earth. I am not among those who believe that the only way of ruling easily is to render people powerless by privation and fear of the morrow, and my greatest ambition is to deserve to hear to the last the title of the Peasant Czar."

The Schoonmaker "Surprise."

There was a jolly gathering of young people at the attractive home of Mr. and Mrs. F. X. Schoonmaker on Putnam avenue last evening. It was intended as a "surprise" to the family, but the welcome was so cordial and characteristic, that it looked very much as if all had been expected.

Recovering the Use of His Eye.

Mr. John G. Stryker, of West Sixth street, who, about the first of December last, seriously injured his left eye by running into one of the handles of a pair of skids, is gradually recovering his sight. It was feared at first that he would lose the use of the eye. Mr. Stryker is employed by Mr. George W. Rockhill, the grocer, and was delivering goods when the accident happened. He expects to be able to return to work by the first of next month.

THE TREE FELL ON HIM.

Bernard Gallagher, aged about 40 years, living near Mount Hope, was severely injured Thursday afternoon. He and his son Chauncey were cutting down a large tree which, when falling swayed around and before Gallagher could get out of the way he was caught by the limbs and the body of the tree struck him on the shoulders, bearing him to the ground. He crawled out but found he could not get up. Dr. A. Condict, of Dover, examined him and found that his spine was fractured. His recovery is doubtful.

WHAT SOME FARM LAND IS WORTH.

The work of extending Beach avenue at Cape May, at a cost of $6,600, authorized at a special election, for the purpose of giving work to the unemployed poor, has been blocked by the fact that only Council has been voted within $6,600 of the amount allowed by law.

It is computed that between 200 and 400 men who generally get employment cutting ice on the ponds and lakes around Newark, are idle this year. They usually earn $1.50 per day for six weeks. The wholesalers think that there will be no local crop.

Thread-workers of Newark and Kearny are securing signatures to a monster petition for use in preparation against the passage of the Wilson tariff bill. The petition sets forth that not less than 7,000 persons in Newark would be paralyzed by a reduction in the McKinley rate, and the New Jersey representatives in Congress are strongly urged to oppose it. Over 5,000 signatures have already been secured outside the ranks of the operatives.

WATCHING THE ICE.

If it Gets Two Inches Thicker it will be Cut.

The ice on Tier's lake measured four inches in thickness yesterday. The prospects for an ice crop begin to look stiff. Mr. Tier has employed Mr. Charles Ulcentzer to watch the ice. Not that he is afraid the ice will skip out and leave him, although with many such days as yesterday the sun would soon cause it to disappear, but Mr. Ulcentzer is to keep close watch of the boys in that vicinity to see that they do not throw stones upon the ice. Stones when once they become imbedded in the ice play the old nick with the ice saw. Last year it is said stones by causing the breaking of saws cost Mr. Tier about $25.

As soon as the ice becomes six inches thick the work of cutting is to be begun. At that thickness it can be used to freeze cream.

Fell through the Ice.

George Summers of North Plainfield went skating, with several companions, on Wilson's pond this morning. Summers broke through the ice and sank in water up to his neck. Fortunately he was near the edge of the pond and easily walked to land.

Taken to the Somerville Jail.

Last night Marshal Pangborn took "Ned" Kenney and Kate Brogan of the borough to the Somerville jail. Both were arrested for being drunk and disorderly. "Ned" was sentenced to 10 days and Kate to 20 days.

CALLED HIM FRANK SMITH.

Conklin's Pronounce His Name so They Gave Him a New One.

Stanislaw Gramuszky, alias Frank Smith, has been put to considerable trouble by the action of the Board Books spelling Gramuszky in a Pole. When he came to this country he began work at Bound Brook. The people he came in contact with couldn't pronounce his name so they called him Frank Smith. Last Summer he went to work for John E. Van Ness, of South Plains. Gramuszky went by the name of Smith while he worked for Mr. Van Ness. He and Mr. Van Ness had a row over wages, it is alleged. Gramuszky brought suit before Justice Nodyce for money he claimed Van Ness owed him.

The suit was brought under the name of Smith, as he is now going by that name. In the Justice Board that Smith was only an assumed name so he was compelled to dismiss the case. The suit will now be brought by the Pole in his own name.

Boys Playing at Firemen Come to Grief.

Some half grown boys were out last evening playing firemen.

They had an amateur hook and ladder truck on wheels attached to a horse. They drove the animal on a trot along East Fifth street easterly into Watchung avenue.

The truck contained an extension ladder about 15 feet long, which is raised with a crank, and two smaller ladders. These were bells and lanterns in abundance on the vehicle, the noise of the bells attracting attention half a block away, and the boys were having a happy time of it until they arrived near the railroad bridge, when the forward wheels broke down. The wheels were evidently taken off of some child's play wagon, and were not strong enough to hold so much weight.

The boys, who though quite large were evidently very young, were in great distress as to how they were to get their truck home. Soon a train came puffing into the depot, and one of the boys excitedly called to the others, "why don't you hold the horse so he won't run away?" There wasn't any danger. The horse was unusually calm, but a citizen stepped out from the sidewalk and held the horse's head to ease the boys' minds, and gave them a little kindly advice to relieve their distress and help them get home. The boys will probably soon tire of such playthings after a few more such mishaps. Painted on the ladder were the words "Majestic Hook and Ladder Co., No. 3."

EDITORIAL NOTES

Your Nerve Atmosphere.

The eminent physician, Sir Benjamin Ward Richardson of London, has been making investigations that warrant him in promulgating a theory in regard to the atmosphere or aura which is thought by many to surround every living creature. It is certain that dogs and other animals trace by not only their masters but one another by the scent. Bloodhounds are used in southern penitentiaries to track escaped convicts. Now, what are the physical conditions that could create and cause to emanate from living beings such its own personal nerve aura?

Dr. Richardson begins with the blood that circulates through all the network of threadlike arteries in the body, carrying nourishment to bones, muscles, nerves and membranes and replacing worn-out cells with new cell stuff. As it reaches the termination of the arteries, where the new food for all the parts is taken up and absorbed by each, the blood must necessarily be in very fine diffusion — literally decomposed. This decomposition or disintegration gives rise to a gaseous substance, or aura. Dr. Richardson believes the nervous atmosphere of the body is constantly surrounded by this gas or aura, and that it is the connecting link between mind and matter. The mind wills. This sets the nerve aura of the brain to vibrating. The vibrations run through the enveloping aura of other parts of the body to the muscle that the brain wills shall move. The vibrations run from the nerve aura to the nerves themselves, thence to the muscle, and it obeys the will.

It was the late Orlando B. Potter, the New York millionaire who died suddenly of apoplexy, that really devised our system of national banking during the war. He was the president of a sewing machine company. Following the Battle of Bull Run, the disturbance in the minds of the northern people affected the country's currency disastrously. Mr. Potter's firm had to pay 15 per cent exchange for drafts between New York and St. Louis and Chicago. Immediately he saw the necessity for a currency whose notes should be taken at par all through the country. A system of national banking and currency would be effective to this end, and he proposed the plan to President Lincoln and Secretary Chase of the treasury. In three weeks' time the perfected scheme was before the nation, and it has been in operation ever since. Orlando B. Potter, a poor boy on a Massachusetts hillside farm, one of 10 children, later the law clerk sleeping in an attic room and cooking his own meals while he studied for admission to the bar, becoming a millionaire and carving out an honorable and distinguished career by thorough hard work and indomitable pluck and clear grit, will be a fascinating figure for the biographer who writes books for American boys and girls.

There are signs that in the course of the next year or two this country will know how to prevent the disastrous railroad strikes that periodically paralyze the business of transportation. One sign is the formation of a great railway brotherhood, so called, composed of railroad men of all classes, including conductors, firemen, engineers, telegraphers and trainmen. These will stand by one another and form a body so compact that they will command attention at any time. One of their objects is declared to be to prevent strikes by arbitration. Another sign is the investigation now going on before the commerce committee in the house of representatives. Delegates from all the classes named have been summoned to appear before the house committee and lay before it their ideas as to how railway strikes may be prevented in future. Doubtless the committee will also get the views of railway corporations on the same subject. All good things are a compromise, it is said. Arbitration would settle very quickly any trouble between employers and employed if each side would put its vanity and stubbornness into its pocket and listen patiently to what the other side considered its grievance.

The medieval discussion among the churchmen about how many souls of the wicked could rattle in a grain of mustard seed has been quite equaled by that of the modern scientists over the size of one of the ultimate molecules of matter. They have calculated that if a drop of water could be magnified to the size of the earth, then the molecules composing it would be as large as billiard balls. Really, this is getting things down fine.

Mr. Holman, the great congressional objector, has been objected to himself, and now knows how it goes. His attempt to introduce for immediate consideration by the house a resolution declaring that over $1,000,000 had been wrongfully paid out in premiums for extra speed to the builders of the new war vessels was not upon unanimity.

Because he advocated free silver in downright earnest in congress last summer, Senator Dubois of Idaho has been complimented by having a new Colorado town named for him.

Eleven million dollars will be required to pay the sugar bounty for 1893.

Clippings of Interest of the Happenings in Various Cities and Counties—Brief But Newsy.

INFLATED ON A WALL.

William C. Stryker, of Bluewaters, Somerset county, in a try to with injuries received in a runaway accident a few days ago. He was getting a load of grain as Stryker and his team of mules came along. Mr. Stryker ran out in front of the team and grabbed each mule by the bean in an endeavor to stop them. The mules ran wildly on, Mr. Stryker looking on for dear life, and soon they turned and headed for a stone wall. The mules ran against the wall. Mr. Stryker was sandwiched by the force of the concern, and the pole of the wagon pounded him to the wall and on the other side. He fell to the ground and the team turned. He was nearly to drive through his body. Mr. Stryker has relatives in Plainfield.

SO GOOD TO A DOWE.

There are nine classes of people who are to good to a town. First, those who go out of town to go to their business; second, those opposing improvements; third, those who prefer a quiet town to one of push and business; fourth, those who imagine that they own the town; fifth, those who think taxation can be done without advertising; sixth, those who deride public spirited men; seventh, those who oppose everything but that does not originate with themselves; ninth, those who seek to injure the credit of a fellow townsman.

HE SELLS SPOOKS.

The West Jersey Railroad will have to grapple with the question of receiving the resignation of Jere Ribsom, the keeper of the station house at Cape May. It all the reports are true. He declares, it is alleged, that he sees and hears "spooks" every night just after midnight. "Jere" is a steady man, a former volunteer, who one time lost a leg in an accident, and to prevent him the company gave him the position of watchman, which he has held for many years, and he is a trusted employe.

A horse and wagon stolen from the premises of G. L. Eger, a few miles south of Lambertville, one night recently, were found next morning in a woods near the Trenton Asylum. The horse was an old one and had probably been driven until exhausted and then deserted.

It is reported that "milk fever" has appeared in several herds of cows in the Glen Gardner vicinity, and one fatal case has occurred. A cow belonging to Isaac Apgar dying one day last week.

KILLED HIS BROTHER.

The Blotherings of Twenty Years Ended In a Murder.

Morristown, N. J., Jan. 20.—Murder was committed a few miles from this city. The murdered man and his slayer were brothers. The murderer is now in the county jail here. The murdered man was Julius Bateman. His brother's name is Charles. They lived in Sterling, Morris county, not far apart, but for years there has been more or less friction between the families. The trouble arose from a dispute between the men. Some say it was 20 years ago and that both loved the same woman.

The trouble smoldered for years, with frequent little outbreaks. The brothers lived in farm houses, which shows plainly the fierceness of the battle waged between the brothers. It must have been fast and hard, for neither escaped without bruises, and the murderer bears marks of the encounter he had with his brother.

Chairs and household utensils seem to have been used. When the fight was over, Charles left the house, ran to his own, secured his revolver, walked back and shot his brother three times. Charles turned, walked away. He hastened to the telegraph office and asked the operator to send for a physician, as his brother was badly hurt. The doctor arrived within a few minutes at the house, but it was the coroner that was needed—not the doctor. The dead man's wife was notified at once and arrested Charles. He took his prisoner to the county jail in this city at once.

REBEL YELL AGAIN.

It Accompanied Colonel Marshall's Story of General Lee's Surrender.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 20.—Friends of the "lost cause" crowded the Academy of Music to-night hall to listen to a detailed description by Colonel Charles Marshall, chief aid to General Lee, of the surrender at Appomattox Court House. Colonel Marshall, who arranged the details of the memorable meeting between Generals Grant and Lee, made public for the first time the exact details of the surrender from a southern standpoint. On the stage was a gathering of Confederate officers such as may never again assemble.

Several ex-governors were there Colonel Charles Marshall, General Bradley T. Johnson, Lieutenant Crisp, speaker of the United States house of representatives; General Berry of the United States senate, General Hanton, General John Catchings, General Hooker, senator from Mississippi; Senator Manifee, General Patterson, Hon. Fred Talbott, United States senator from Maryland; Dr. Markland, Cardinal Gibbons, Captain S. M. Hamilton, U. S. A.; Colonel James R. Howard, Hon. S. M. Mallory of Florida and others.

General Bradley Johnson introduced Colonel Marshall, the band played "Dixie," and thunderous applause resulted. Could the din could be heard the old Confederate wharehoops of the southern soldiers and sisters from the same throats that bade defiance to the northern troops over 35 years ago.

THE BIG FIGHT.

The Betting Is 100 to 60 on Corbett Just Now.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 20.—Governor Mitchell is so bitterly opposed to the fight that it is entirely possible that he may have Corbett and Mitchell arrested at their training quarters and locked up on the eve of the day set for the battle.

The outlook at present for a good crowd is rather encouraging. Every train from the north brings in a goodly number of sports, and those arriving report more en route. The betting so far has been very slow. The odds are still 100 to 60 on Corbett, with few takers. It is said that the Mitchell people are waiting for better odds —100 to 50 or 100 to 40.

But Masterson says he has straight information that while Corbett is in good condition he is awfully slow. Masterson says this disposes of Corbett's chances.

THE TARIFF DEBATE DRAGS ALONG.

Johnson's Free Steel Rail Amendment Defeated—Discussion on an Amendment to Restore Existing Agricultural Rates, Hawaii Not at the Banquet.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The house is making slow progress with the amendments to the tariff bill. Only one week more remains, and less than 30 amendments to about 1,600 paragraphs have been disposed of. The argument between Mr. Johnson and Mr. Dalzell over the proposition to put steel rails on the free list was continued. When the vote came, the amendment was defeated, but only about 40 Democrats voted with their colleagues of the committee, while 72 voted with Johnson and the radicals.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent in the discussion of an amendment offered by General Henderson of Iowa to restore the existing rates on agricultural products.

Mr. Lockwood of New York maintained against the vigorous denials of Messrs. Tawney, Pickler and others that no state in this country was able to produce barley equal to the Canadian barley. The enormous increase in the production of barley in the northwest under the McKinley law, continued Mr. Tawney, ought to be sufficient reason for retaining the duty.

The Effect on Agriculture.

Mr. Bryan defended the agricultural schedule on the ground that the farmer received little if any benefit from the protection accorded him. If that were reduced, he would be the gainer in the purchase of cheaper clothing, free agricultural implements and a thousand and one articles used by the agriculturists.

His remarks precipitated a three cornered colloquy between himself, Mr. Dolliver and Mr. Walker over the effect of the bill on agriculture. Mr. Byrns maintained that the protectionist constantly claimed with reference to manufactured articles that protection lowered the price and with reference to farm products that it increased prices.

Several other members, including Messrs. Boutelle and Shaw of Wisconsin, joined in the discussion, which continued briskly with an occasional sharp word, for almost an hour. Mr. Bryan closed the discussion with an animated criticism of the robbery, as he termed it, practiced on the people by denying them free salt in order to enrich the saltmakers.

At the night session set apart for general debate Mr. Bell of Colorado spoke in favor of the bill, although it did not go far enough to suit him. Mr. Shaw of Wisconsin opposed it, especially the proposed reduction of duty on barley. Mr. Morgan of Missouri, while he indorsed the provisions of the bill generally, considered it as strong terms the proposition to place lead ore on the free list. The last schedule, he charged, as a fact within his own knowledge, had been discussed in the senate with a view to exclusion he appealed to the house to remove from this bill any suspicion of jobbery. Mr. Childs of Illinois closed the debate in opposition to the bill.

The Bond Injunction Story.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The Baltimore dispatch announcing a threatened injunction by the Knights of Labor against Secretary Carlisle to restrain him from issuing $50,000,000 in bonds, as contemplated by him, was taken to the treasury department and shown to the secretary. Mr. Carlisle merely read the dispatch, but declined to say anything whatever on the subject for publication.

Other officials of the department to whom the dispatch was shown were surprised on learning its contents. The feeling of the Knights of Labor and of labor unions generally on the bond question was known to be unfavorable, as had been shown by the passage of resolutions against it. The officials were at sea in the opinion that the secretary would nothing more than a temporary delay to fear from injunction proceedings, and even this they did not think in the least degree possible. The secretary consulted the attorney general, the law officer of the government, and the president before issuing the bond call. Applications for writs of injunction or mandamus against department officials are usually made in one of the justices of the supreme court of the District of Columbia.

The Populists of the house know nothing about the injunction against the bond issue. Jerry Simpson of Kansas says he will have no hand in it, but would be glad if it were true. Representative Culberson of Texas, chairman of the judiciary committee, says there is no doubt of the power of Secretary Carlisle to issue bonds for the purposes of the resumption act.

Why Hawaii Did Not Dine.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Some comment has been made on the fact that no Hawaiian representative was present at the diplomatic dinner at the White House. Minister Thurston had not yet arrived in Washington. It is explained that had Frank P. Hastings, secretary of the Hawaiian legation, been charge d'affaires ad interim he would have been invited, but it seems the state department regards him as charge des affaires, and a charge des affaires is not recognized as a full diplomatic representative in this country.

COTTOLENE

Is the new vegetable shortening, recognized as far superior to lard for every cooking use. The other "lenes," and "ets," and "oles," are imitations—made to sell on the merits of COTTOLENE, and to be "worked off" by sleight of hand, or the "just as good" game.

If you want good cooking and good health, get COTTOLENE—it's the only "lene" worth having.

STRANGE INFATUATION.

Mrs. Alma Schriber Falls In Love With a Woman.

SHE WASTED TO MARRY A WIDOW.

Mrs. Gehling Stamped by the Letters of a Former Servant, Has Her Arrested and Sent to an Insane Asylum on a Peculiar Charge.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 20.—A case of the Alice Mitchell description, without any bleeding features, was discovered here. The story came out through the commitment of Mrs. Alma Schriber, a divorced woman of 40 Kelly court, to the Essex County lunatic asylum. She was sent away, owing to her uncontrollable love for Mrs. Charlotte Gehling, a widow of 101 South First street, Hoseville.

The latter visited Captain McManus a few days ago and declared that she was in deadly fear of injury at the hands of a former lover, Mrs. Schriber. This servant, Mr. Gehling declared, was very peculiar and developed traits that did not please her, so that she was compelled to discharge the woman. Two days after her discharge the domestic wrote to her former mistress declaring her undying love for her and saying she felt grieved that their former relations had been discontinued.

Wrote Her Love Letters.

Mrs. Gehling did not reply to this epistle, and a second followed soon after, in which the servant wrote that her love had only been increased by the enforced estrangement. She went on to declare that her love was so deep that she had decided to ask Mrs. Gehling to name the day when a marriage ceremony might be performed. Both letter and parcel remained unnoticed, but Mrs. Gehling's persistent lover, in pertinacious way, got to be sickened or deterred by the silence. A third letter was received, in which the writer declared that life without her former mistress was a wilderness and that they must be married without delay.

Then the continued silence upon the part of her beloved incensed Mrs. Schriber. Her love turned to hatred, and she thirsted for revenge. This was indicated in a fourth letter which was signed by Mrs. Gehling. It was a last appeal to her heart and a warning to beware if the writer's proposals were overlooked or refused. Then came a bill of threatening letters, which aroused Hoseville woman's fears, and she reported the matter to the police, and Mrs. Schriber's arrest followed.

Sent to an Asylum.

Mrs. Schriber has been living with Mrs. Elizabeth Martin at 19 Kelly court. When the latter gave Mrs. Schriber's life story. According to Mrs Martin, Alma Schriber's first name, came to this country from Germany 5 years ago.

Her home was Earlsville. Soon after her arrival here she met Mrs. Gehling in Brooklyn and conceived a violent passion for her. The object of Mrs. Schriber, but the marriage was a failure, and the couple separated, having no children. Then the woman became a tramp and eventually wound up in Mrs. Gehling's employ.

"She came early last month," said Mrs. Martin. "Alma has been sitting up nights until early daylight writing love letters. At different times she told me that she dearly loved Lottie, as she called Mrs. Gehling."

Dr. Surgeon Clark passed upon the woman's condition and declared that she was undoubtedly insane, and it was at his suggestion that she was sent to the asylum.

Saved by a Boy.

A lusty young man with a fur cap drawn down over his ears and a pair of bright red mittens on his hands accosted a boy at the corner of Grand River avenue and Griswold street the other afternoon to ask the way to the city hall. The lad waited a minute to size him up and then replied:

"Gimme a quarter, and I'll put you through as slick as grease."

"Put me through!"

"Yes. I know what you want. You want to go to the county clerk's office for a marriage license."

"S'pose I do?"

"Well, you'll have to ask three or four times before you find it, and by the time you do in there the hall crowd will be onto you bigger'n a house."

"I don't care."

"No, maybe you don't care if 20 different fellers laugh and giggle and wink around, but when the reporters come out with their articles about a knee sprung bayseed lolly poppin around for half a day to git a license to marry Jerusha Josh, who wears No. 10 shoes and spits on her hands to chop, it won't be so mighty funny."

"Will we do that?" asked the young man in alarm.

"They'll do that and worse if you give 'em a chance. Four dollars—I've been on afore, and you foller. I steer you into the city hall. I skip you into the county clerk's office. While you are gittin a license I stand the reporters off, and they don't git a word onto that catskin cap. It's worth a dollar, and that's my reg'lar charge, but bein it's you, and bein"—

The police court reporter, who had been called upon in the absence of the regular society reporter to go to a wedding and describe it to the best of his ability, had just returned and was struggling with his notes pertaining to the bride's toilet.

"She was attired," he wrote, "in a dress that had a business running in a gorgeous loop down in front, then up around the waist, over the shoulders, and had big white gloved elbows made of cloth that looked as if it had been ground out of some rich material of a bright cream color, dappled with iron grey."

"Is that the way you are going to do it up?" inquired the sporting editor, looking over his shoulders at the manuscript.

"Why not?" demurely retorted the police court reporter. "I'm doing this on space rates!"—Chicago Tribune.

WITH TOOTH AND NAIL.

TWO MEN BITE AND SCRATCH EACH OTHER.

All the Participants Bring Up in Court.—"Sam." Allen, Alleged to Have Attacked James Mair.—Thos. Mair Also Takes a Hand.

There was a rumpus at the Jacob Cole homestead, on Mountain avenue, Saturday night, which ended in one man having a finger and thumb bitten to the bone and in another being all bruised and scratched.

According to the story told by Thomas Mair it appears that "Sam" Allen, who claims to have a lease of the Cole property, and who has been living there for some time, came home about eleven o'clock and went up to Mr. Mair's room. The old gentleman was sick in bed and was being attended by Thomas Mair.

Allen knocked at the bed room door, and when Mair, who had been told by the sick man not to let anyone in the room, opened the door on a crack, Allen burst it wide open and walked in. He sat down and insisted upon reading from a slip of paper something for the old man to hear.

Thomas Mair then left the room and started for home. After going a short distance he met his brother James. They returned to the Coles house together. Thomas again went to the old man's room and James began to rake the fire in the kitchen stove.

While James was busily engaged attending to the fire, he was attacked, so he says, by "Sam." The men grappled with each other, until "Sam" finally caught his adversary's finger in his teeth and bit clean through to the bone.

He still had Mair's finger in his mouth when Thomas, hearing the rumpus, came down stairs. His brother called to him to make "Sam" let go his finger. Thomas caught hold of "Sam" and pushed him over on the floor, at the same time giving him a kick.

Thomas says he had nothing but a rubber overshoe on his foot so that the kick couldn't have hurt him much. "Sam" then declared his ribs were broken and asked one of the Mairs to go for a doctor. So it was agreed that Thomas should go for a doctor while James remained with "Sam."

Thomas walked to Scotch Plains and called "Sam's" father, who, after telling him that Sam was hurt, he went for Dr. Wescott. As the doctor and Mr. Mair were nearing the Cole's house they met "Sam" on foot. Mr. Mair got out of the wagon and "Same" jumped in with the doctor and returned to his office with him.

After Thomas left the house to go for a doctor, "Sam" and James had another fight. James says "Sam" hit him with a club and "Sam" says James threw a cup at him.

"Sam" went before Justice Crossley and swore out a warrant for the arrest of the two Mairs. Constable Taynor was given the warrants to serve. He succeeded in arresting Thomas. James gave himself up this morning.

Meanwhile a warrant had been issued by Justice Sperry for the arrest of Allen.

The cases were set down for ten o'clock this morning. At that hour both the plaintiffs and defendants in both cases were present with their counsel.

The Mairs were represented by Lawyer Angleman of the firm of Jackson & Angleman. Allen's counsel was George De Mezz.

In the case of the State against Thomas and James Mair, on motion of Mr. Angleman, they were each held under $250 bonds to await the action of the Grand Jury. Mr. Alexander Mair and Mr. George Coles became their bondsmen.

In the case against Allen his counsel asked for time to secure witnesses.

Justice Sperry fixed this afternoon at three o'clock for a hearing, pending the defendant until that time under a marshal's care.

At three o'clock the case of Mair against Allen was tried before Justice Sperry. Allen was held for the Grand Jury under $400 bail.

The bad feeling between Mair and Allen seems to have been engendered by the transfer by Mr. Coles of his property to James Mair. The transfer, it is alleged, was made last week and the warranty deed filed at Somerville.

This "Sam" Allen is the same fellow who a few years ago secured the forgiven of an old maid after death, by a remarkable will, the particulars of which were published in THE NEWS at the time and made a sensation here. One half of the homestead farm thus become "Sam's" property, while Jacob Cole owned the other half. About five years ago "Sam" sold his half to Jacob Cole, but has since continued to live on the place, claiming to have a lease on the premises. This is the property supposed to be referred to above. Allen was said to have got $2,000 from the old maid, but has meanwhile gone through it all.

SPONTANEOUS COMBUSTION.

"Wax Pistes" and Rags Fill a Store with Smoke.

Saturday night, Mr. J. Augustus Smith, the grocer of West Front street, had his counters rubbed over with a "wax fluish." The finish was put on with rags. When the work was done the rags were thrown into a wooden box and the box left within about ten feet of the stove.

Between twelve and one o'clock yesterday, Mr. Kenny, who lives over the store, discovered smoke coming up into his kitchen. He concluded that "where there's smoke there's fire," so he went out to investigate. He saw that Mr. Smith's store was filled with smoke.

The alarm was sent in from box 13, at the corner of Front and Somerset streets, by Mr. R. J. Shaw.

When the firemen arrived at the store they were met by Mr. George Voehl carrying a burning box. Mr. Voehl had broken in the side door and finding that the smoke was coming from a box he caught it up and carried it outdoors.

It is supposed that the oily rags packed into the box caused spontaneous combustion.

Mr. Smith was in the store at 11:30 and fixed the fire in the stove. He says there wasn't any other smoke then.

EXCITING SPORT ENJOYED BY NUMEROUS SPORTSMEN.

Two Raccoons Set at Liberty, One in the Afternoon and the Other in the Evening.—Both Were Killed.

HALF the country and their dogs were out on the raccoon chases which took place Saturday afternoon and evening at Campbell's Club House, Park avenue. The coons furnished lots of exciting chases. The raccoon turned loose in the afternoon was run from two o'clock until five, and after three long chases was finally shot near South Plainfield, in a large tree which no one could climb.

In fact there were two runs before the "coon" was killed near Marcouaier. Everybody seemed to think that "coon" hunting, especially at night, is very exciting sport. Seven dogs took part in the chases and worked well together. Mr. H. Bennett's little yellow dog "Bander" was always with the leading hounds, but it would not work.

Yesterday Dr. Ard very skillfully removed a piece of steel from one of Mr. Horace Martin's eyes. The steel was removed in three sections. Mr. Martin first felt the steel in his eye Friday night. Several trials were made to get it out but each attempt only served to irritate the eye. Yesterday morning, after passing a sleepless night Mr. Martin determined to go to a physician.

The eye will be all right in a few days.

"INDIA AND ITS PECULIARITIES"

Miss Glauck's Talk at the Congregational Church.

At the Congregational church last evening Miss Glauck gave a talk on "India and its Peculiarities." The service was conducted by the Y. P. S. C. E. of the church and some of its members aided the speaker by giving short descriptive talks. Mr. John Whiting gave a subscription Church of the country in a very brief but plain manner. Mr. Sutton gave the history of the country, after which Miss Belknap gave the history of the religion.

Miss Glauck then began her address and told of the millions of natives who were laboring under every difficulty in not having the Gospel of Jesus Christ to enlighten them. The speaker also gave examples of how the natives, who were anxious to lead a Christian life overcame difficulties put down for them in their Bible. In one instance the public commissioners had introduced pure water for the first time into Calcutta. The high caste natives had at first refused to drink the water because a low caste native could also drink of it. They searched their book and found the following law. "That which is unholy can be made holy by paying the full value thereof." The natives said, "Do we not pay the commissioners our water tax, which is considered the full value? After that everyone drank of the water freely.

"The speaker also gave examples of how in many cases she knew "of natives who had forsaken their own religion to follow Christ," The address was closed by a very urgent appeal to those who were unconverted that they might be made to believe. Miss Glauck has been preparing for the last year for the missionary work.

FATHER KELLY WITH HIS NEW FLOCK

Hope that He Can Carry Out the Plans Made by Father Corrigan.

Rev. Father Charles Kelly, successor of the late Father Corrigan as pastor of the Church of Our Lady of Grace, Elizabeth, was present at all the services yesterday. In his remarks to the congregation on the deceased Father, eulogizing him and the good work which he had done for the parish, he told the people he hoped he would be allowed to carry out the plans made by Father Corrigan. He promised, if the parishioners would do their share, to do everything in his power to make St. Mary's parish one of the best in the Newark diocese.

After the services a large number of the parishioners were introduced to their new rector. It is the opinion throughout the parish that Bishop Wigger has appointed an excellent successor to Father Corrigan.

After wandering around awhile Reiskotzky says he became so drowsy from the effects of the medicine that he could walk no further, and fell asleep in a clump of bushes. He does not remember how long he slept, but when he awoke both of his feet were frozen.

THE INDIAN EVANGELIST.

Meetings at the First Presbyterian Church.

THE first of a series of meetings to be conducted by Mr. Wright, the Indian evangelist, was held in the First Presbyterian church last night. His sermon was preceded by a 15 minute song service.

Mr. Wright took his text from Matthew 9th chapter and 5th verse.

He is a very earnest speaker and talks in a very convincing manner. He spoke of the work of a church is expected to do and held that it is responsible in a great measure for the people in its community. Church members who boast that they would not be such church members as so-and-so are not imbued with the spirit of God, but are trusting in their own strength. There is no energy in the flesh to save souls.

He said he believed in excitement. For if a person gives his heart to Christ he must get excited and get warmed up all through.

"Some churches," said the speaker, "never prosper and grow, although the pastor preaches eloquent sermons and brings himself to his utmost, works and prays day after day, and night after night. All to no purpose. The church doesn't prosper. All because there is sin at the bottom of the church. Some in the congregation are sinning and the church cannot succeed unless there is concentration between pastor and people."

Cut the Wood and Carried it Away.

Four Italians applied to a man who lives on the mountain near Westfield one day last week for employment, telling him as best they could that they were out of work and starving. They were hired at $1 a day to cut and stack cord wood. For the first day or two the men were watched and they worked well. Then, as the scene of operation was a considerable distance from their employer's house, they were not visited for four days. Saturday it was found that the Italians had not only cut considerable wood, as shown by brush and stumps, but they had taken it away. The humane and philanthropic gentleman is now looking for four Italians and about fifteen cords of wood.

It Pays.

It pays to take and read the papers, especially your own home daily. Often in this way good business opportunities are brought to your attention. For instance, if you wish to secure a good paying situation, then you had better look at the advertisement of D. F. Johnson & Co., Richmond, Va., in another column. EDITORIAL NOTES

American Newspapers.

Some figures compiled from Rowell's Newspaper Directory show the marvelous growth in periodical literature in this country since 1871. An idea of the relative rapidity with which the newspaper has gained on the population may be gathered by a comparison of the population's increase with that of newspapers in the last decade. Comparing the figures of the population for 1880 and 1890, we find that the population of the United States increased in that time some 30 per cent. The figures in the Newspaper Directory show that in the same period the number of newspapers in the country increased more than 74 per cent. Back in 1871—Jan. 1—there were in the states and territories only 854 daily papers, all told. Jan. 1, 1890, there were 1,867.

Still 20 years further back, in 1851, Horace Greeley, on his trip to visit the Crystal Palace exhibition in London, gave testimony before a parliamentary committee on the state of the daily press of America. He said there were at that time about 250 daily papers in the United States, and that they circulated 1,000,000 copies a day in the aggregate. This astonished the English, for in all London at that time, owing to the stamp duty on paper, the circulation daily of all the journals together was only 60,000. What would Horace Greeley say today if he could suddenly come to life and find that one or two dailies in our large cities alone issue each 1,000,000 copies a week?

For Jan. 1, 1894, the figures are not at hand, yet even during the past year of disaster and panic it is certain that the number of newspapers has not fallen off any, though the individual circulation may have in some cases. The indications are that the number has increased somewhat. The table below will be examined with interest. It shows the increase in newspapers since 1871. It will be seen that although in 1873 the dailies fell off a little in number, even the hard times of 1873 could not stop the upward tendency. The list swelled moderately but steadily till 1879, when the daily paper took a bound forward. Previous to that the increase was in no case equal to 100 in one year. That was a phenomenal year, for the increase was 111. Then the rate dropped a little till 1883. Then it swelled rapidly. In 1883 the number of dailies added to the list was 116. The gain of 1891 over 1890 was 164.

It is to be said that the annual increase in the number of daily papers has been chiefly in the smaller cities of the country. The number of dailies in the large cities has not increased in proportion so much as the circulation of the individual papers already in existence.

One thing more is to be said too. It is that the character of the journal of the country and smaller city has improved incalculably in the last decade. The paper of the small city has at its command resources in the way of procuring news, literature, correspondence and miscellany unsurpassed by those of the great daily. These advantages the small daily and weekly have not been slow to avail themselves of to their own great profit.

The table showing the increase of the periodicals is given below. The last column includes monthlies and all periodical publications. It will be seen from the table that the triweekly newspaper is a rapidly vanishing quantity. The daily in the small city has probably killed it:

So far as human judgment can perceive, the great career of John Tyndall, the physicist, was determined from a few words said to him by an older man when Tyndall was about 20 years old. He had shown at school remarkable mathematical talent and advanced rapidly in that study. His attainments in geometry and trigonometry secured him employment in the Irish survey department of the British government. After he had been at this work some time, one of the chief engineers asked him one day what he did with his leisure time. Tyndall had to confess it was mostly frittered away. Then the other man said: "You have five hours a day at your disposal. You ought to devote this time to systematic study. If I had had a friend advise me when I was your age, as I now advise you, instead of having been a subordinate place, I might have been at the head of the survey." It wasn't young Tyndall up completely. From that day on he began to use his five hours a day to such purpose that for many years before his death he was honored the world over as the greatest physicist of his generation.

FOR THE PROTECTION OF GAME.

A number of Cape May sportsmen have organized themselves into a Society for the Prevention and Propagation of Game at that end of the State. Mayor Hildreth, of Cape May, is the president. This society is in no way related to the New Jersey Game Protective Society.

AFTER THE CHINAMEN'S PICTURES.

Deputy Collector of International Revenue B. H. Lowy, of Morris county, has notified all the Chinamen in the county to call on him with their photographs and be registered according to the provisions of the Geary law. The Chinamen in Morriston, as soon as notified, held a consultation and then visited a lawyer. They were at first loath to comply with the order, but, after the interview with counsel, concluded to obey.

ATTACKED BY ITALIANS.

A number of Italian laborers Friday afternoon went to Contractor Tenbrook, Newman's house, at Asbury Park, armed with clubs, and attacked him in his barnyard. He called for help, and his wife opened a window and fired several shots at her husband's assailants. The Italians ran away, muttering threats against Mr. Newman and his family. Mr. Newman secured warrants for the arrest of two of his assailants.

BROKE HER LEG TWICE.

Mrs. Abijah D. Reeves, of Cold Springs, Cape May County, is suffering with a leg which was broken Wednesday afternoon for the second time in eleven weeks. Ten weeks ago Tuesday she broke her right leg below the thigh and was bedridden for seven weeks. Lately she had been able to hobble about the room by the aid of crutches or chair backs. Wednesday her strength gave way and she fell to the floor, breaking it in the same place. She is over sixty years of age.

THIS IS LOCUST YEAR.

The State Experiment Bureau has issued a bulletin, showing that there four broods of cicada, or seventeen year locusts that appear in New Jersey. The bulletin says:

"It is not generally known that there exists within the limits of the United States no less than twenty-two broods, each of which appears at definite intervals, but coming from different years as a point of beginning. These broods do not all cover the entire United States, nor are they of anything like equal extent. In the more southern part of our country the period of development of the insect is shortened, and instead of requiring seventeen years to complete its transformation, thirteen years are only necessary.

"In some of the border States the thirteen and the seventeen year races overlap. In the State of New Jersey, four broods have been recorded and these are, according to Dr. Riley's enumeration: VIII., XIII., XVII., and XXII. Brood XIII., which last appeared in 1877, is due again in 1894, and this is one that occurs in almost all portions of the State, in very large numbers. This year therefore, will be 'locust year' in the greater part of New Jersey, and the insects will appear in great abundance, but more numerously north of Monmouth county."

To Insure Against Lions.

Manager Hoffheimer of Hagenbeck's trained animals now playing to such enormous success at Tattersall's, 52d street and 7th avenue, New York city, says that there are more advertising in Gotham than were ever dreamed of at the World's Fair. He was been interviewed with plans and schemes and the latest is certainly one of the most novel promulgated in a long time. It is an example of the coups in insurance business.

A determined agent got the manager into a conference the other day with him and tried to show him how he could make a fortune. His plan was to attach an insurance coupon to each ticket for the performance and charge ten cents extra for it. The coupon guaranteed that if one of the lions got out and ate up the holder of the coupon, his widow or next of kin would receive $10,000, cash. Mr. Hoffheimer when he could get in a word edgeways declined the ground that the best possible insurance was the massive iron cage in which the lions were shown. He explained that it was fifty feet in diameter, weighed 35 tons and that one hundred lions, struggle as they would could not get out of the place no matter how hard they tried. This squelched the agent.

The Hagenbeck trained animals have become a great fad in New York and Brooklyn. Witness the performance every day, nothing like it has ever been seen in this country and probably never will again. Matinees are given every afternoon and the wonderful acts performed by the wild beasts attract great attention.

The Fatal Progress of Suicide on American Young Men.

[From Symonds in the National Review of America," McClure's Magazine for February.]

The American male stands the racket of the schools much better than the female. He takes more exercise, and he has not the troubles of puberty to contend against. He goes to business far too young and he studies or consumes his vital energy till nothing is left but dust and ashes. It is often pointed out with pride that America is the country of young men; and so it is. We quite usually see here labors and responsibilities borne by mere boys, which nowhere else would be undertaken by many under middle age. That is very striking and interesting to the casual observer.

But what it means to such observers as Doctor Weir Mitchell is, that America is the country of young invalids, young wrecks, young drug victims, young inebriates, young maniacs, young suicides!

The precautionary of business responsibility, the frantic haste to be rich and powerful, produces in plain sight what is nothing short of a frightful general social evil. The most appalling cases of nervous disease that the doctor meets with are those of young men, in the highest posts, who come to business life too early, and suddenly encountered periods of excessive anxiety and grave responsibility. It would have been a mercy to them if they had been street-sweepers or coal porters instead of railroad presidents or bank managers.

Thieves at Flemington.

Burglars entered Kinsey's restaurant on Main street, Flemington, Saturday night, taking cigars and tobacco. They gained entrance by springing a lock on the back door. After leaving they broke into the millinery establishment of Mrs. Williamson, in the same block, but failed to secure any plunder.

The Swine and the Flower.

I strayed to meet a mud-encrusted swine,
And then he paused to grunt, in accents rude,
"Hush! be not proud, for in this lot of mine,
Behold the source of fairness for your food!"

I fled, and saw a field that seemed, at first,
One giant mass of roses pure and white,
Wine downy buds and dark green foliage formed,
In all, a perfect type both sight and smell.
The summer breeze, that cooled that southern field,
Whispered "Behold the source of Cottolene!"

NO FOR LIBERIA!

The International Migration Society Will Not Take Colored Emigrants There.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 22.—The International Migration society has been incorporated here under the laws of Alabama, with a capital stock of $100,000, by J. L. Dalton and associates. The company purposes to send negroes from the southern states to Africa. It will operate a line of steamers between America and Monrovia, Liberia. A uniform fare of $20 per head will be charged, which is to pay for passage and board en route.

The society claims to be prepared to furnish homes and employment for the negroes in Liberia. The promoters expect contributions from all over the south and from Canada now starting to raise enormous sums. Nothing has been received for an appropriation. Negroes all over the south, it is said, are already engaging passage.

General Sabinsky Disconsolated.

HARLEYVILLE, Pa., Jan. 22.—General Sabinsky of Oneida was found in a dying condition on a mountain road between Shoppton and Oneida. He was literally disemboweled. He has since died. Wm. WEEK MORE OF TARIFF.

The Last Period of the Debate Begun Today.

FIGHT OVER THE SUGAR SCHEDULE

According to the Present Programme For the Tariff Discussion Many Proposed Amendments Will Be Introduced From the Senate and the Election Bill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22.—This week will see the conclusion of the tariff debate in the house. According to the special order the voting on the bill and pending amendments will begin a week from today at noon.

During the past week no amendments of substantial importance have been voted on with any chance of adoption except that fixing the date upon which free wool would go into effect, which was carried by the radical Democrats, with the aid of some Republicans, over the protest of the Democratic members of the ways and means committee. This week, however, will witness the fight over the big amendments to be offered from the Democratic side. The full measure of the Democratic opposition to the bill will then develop, and considerable bad blood will doubtless be manifested.

The first fight will come on the sugar schedule today. Three hours have been set apart for the consideration of the propositions to be offered by eight years until it is wiped out. To this Mr. Price of Louisiana will offer an amendment to substitute in place of a bounty a duty of 2 cents per pound on raw sugar. A substitute for this —to retain the McKinley bounty of 2 cents —will be offered by Mr. Meyer of Louisiana. Mr. Boatner will offer an amendment to the substitute to place a 1¼ cent duty on sugars. This will exhaust the amendments that can be pending. The votes will be taken in the reverse order.

Will Fight For the Sugar Tax.

The sugar men will make a strong fight on the ground that sugar is a revenue article, and in accordance with the dictates of the Chicago platform it should be made dutiable to supply the deficit which, it is estimated, the customs schedules of the Wilson bill will cause. They will have the support of all the Democrats who are opposed to the income tax, including Mr. Cockran, Mr. Wilson and others of the ways and means committee.

While it is generally admitted that they will probably be able to muster a majority of the Democrats, the Republicans, who are pledged to the free sugar feature of the McKinley law, will give them no aid. The chances of the adoption of a sugar duty for the above reasons are slim.

Tuesday has been set apart for the consideration of the amendments to the free coal and free iron ore schedules. The present duty on both these articles is 75 cents per ton. The coal men, especially of Virginia, West Virginia and Alabama, are at the back of the opposition and have the support pretty generally of the Democratic representatives from those states. The iron interests of the south—Alabama and Tennessee—and of the Lake Superior district, including the vessel interests of the lakes, are fighting against free iron ore. Both are willing to yield a portion of the duty, and amendments ranging from 25 to 50 cents per ton will be offered. Free raw materials are made the backbone of the Wilson bill, and the strenuous effort will be made to prevent defeat here.

The Republicans, if they join with the coal and iron men, as they probably will, may make the vote close, but the Democrats of the ways and means committee manifest no alarm.

Later in the week the internal revenue bill, including the income tax, will probably be offered as an amendment to the bill, probably by Mr. McMillin, although this has not been decided upon fully.

Amendments relating to the tobacco schedule, lead ore, etc., and other minor amendments as the committee may offer, will consume the rest of the week. When the vote is taken, it is probable that a great number of amendments will not have received consideration. Mr. Richardson, the chairman of the committee of the whole, already has in his possession 77 amendments.

Elections Bill In the Senate.

The present indications are that the senate will divide its attention in the main between the tariff bill and the elections bill and the policy of a bond issue as decided upon by the secretary of the treasury.

There has now been a positive agreement upon the part of the Republican senators to continue the discussion of the elections bill and to take it up with a view to its final disposition. Many of the Republican senators have given public assurance that they would not seek to delay the final vote upon this bill beyond a reasonable time for debate, and the fact that the Republican caucus took no action looking to deciding upon a policy concerning this measure would seem to indicate that no such course will be pursued. On the other hand, the continued postponement of the uninterrupted discussion of the subject would seem to baffle it, and there may be some design of quietly brushing the subject aside by pleading for delay until the tariff bill shall reach the senate and absorb its entire time.

It is evident that the Democratic leaders have some apprehension of a policy of this kind and are determined that if such a purpose is entertained it shall not succeed. They will have a double reason for insisting on proceeding with the elections bill during the next few days. They are quite determined to dispose of the subject before the tariff bill is reached, and, second, that they wish as far as possible to divert the public thinking in the meantime from the bond question; hence it may be reasonably inferred that the programme as agreed to in caucus on Thursday last with respect to this bill will be observed.

It will be impossible to keep the bond question entirely out of the senate, and there is a possibility that it may be made the subject of a number of speeches, if not of considerable debate.

MOB RULES BRIDGEPORT

Police Defied by Striking Street Car Employees.

MILITIA MAY BE ORDERED OUT.

Sixteen Shots the Trouble, Mob Workmen Brought From Other Cities and Wreck a Car Which the Company Tried to Run. Stolen Dynamite Feared.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Jan. 22.—A most exciting day in the history of the city of Bridgeport has just passed. Not since 1861, when marching volunteers on their way to the front filled the streets, have the residents been so aroused. All day excited crowds thronged the streets, and mob law has prevailed. The police have been set at defiance, and a crowd of angry men have ruled the town.

The rioting was one of the results of the discharge of five employees of the Bridgeport Traction company and the strike which followed. About 100 employees of the company stopped work Saturday afternoon, completely tying up the road. They held numerous meetings and sent a committee to the manager, but the latter refused to see or bring about a settlement. In this they were unsuccessful.

Fifty men came up from Jersey City to take the places of the strikers, and it was announced that the company intended to run its cars. The men then held a long consultation and decided that they would not allow the company to run the cars. They concluded, however, to give the company another chance for settlement and agreed to send a committee to Colonel Hoft, the owner of the road, and to the managers.

Refused to Treat With the Committee.

Accordingly the representatives of the strikers sought the railroad officials, but they would not see them. The managers refusing to meet them as a committee or to give reasons for the discharge of the men. They announced that they would meet the dissatisfied ones individually, but would not recognize them as an organization.

The men withdrew, and the strikers held a brief session, at which it was decided that they would not return to work and would prevent the company from running cars if possible. Meanwhile the company was preparing to start the service, and at 9 o'clock Sunday morning nine cars were run out of the sheds. They were in charge of the new men from New Jersey, the stable hands and about a dozen of the old men who reported for work. The report that the company was to start cars and that the strikers would try to prevent it spread rapidly through the city, and in a short time all of the strikers and hundreds of sympathizers gathered at the corner of Main street and along the streets through which the road runs.

As soon as all of the strikers were informed of the refusal of the owners of the road to arbitrate they proceeded to block the tracks on every street. The yards of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad were loaded, and the manager's office, coupling pins, boxes and barrels were taken and piled on the tracks at various points. Then the cars were moved out of the sheds, but were unable to proceed but a short distance. They were surrounded by the strikers and their friends, and the crews were compelled to leave the cars in the streets. Police were summoned from headquarters, and several cars were started with three railroad employees and a guard of three policemen.

The crowds quickly drove the policemen from the cars, together with the conductors and drivers. Sticks and stones were thrown and the police were set upon by the mob. The policemen and railroad employees were slightly injured, but the crowd showed no disposition to injure them if the attempt to run the cars was abandoned.

Entire Police Force Out.

Main street in the vicinity of the stables was the center of the trouble. Here a crowd of nearly 5,000 gathered and encouraged the strikers. The men themselves did not take such an active part in the rioting as the young coupns in the crowd.

The disturbance of the crowd became so threatening that an alarm was sent out from police headquarters, and all of the officers and specials who could be summoned were brought in. This force was stationed along the tracks, at the stables and on the cars. The crowds near the stables and along the line could not be dispersed until nearly 10,000 people were in the street. The presence of the police did not, however, deter the mob, and obstructions of all kinds were put on the tracks as rapidly as they were removed.

At intervals attempts were made to move the cars, and about noon several proceeded a short distance from the sheds. At 2 o'clock a car in charge of five policemen and several railroad employees was attacked at the corner of Congress and Main streets. Here a mob of about 3,000 men and boys was gathered.

Set a Car on Fire.

They bombarded the cars with stones, breaking all of the windows and injuring several of those in charge. The crowd then swooped down on the car, and after unfastening the horses and driving their occupants out they set fire to it in the street. Some of the more excited cried, "Set it on fire!" and in a few minutes straw, boxes and shavings were ignited inside. An alarm was sent to the fire station in East Bridgeport, and a large squad of officers arrived in time to extinguish the flames and save the car.

At William street, in East Bridgeport, 200 men and boys raided the yard of Jones & Hoffman, contractors, and piled lumber, trucks and other material on the car tracks. At 5 o'clock the company succeeded in getting one car, strongly guarded by police, over the entire line, but this was the only one to make the circuit during the day.

At 6 o'clock a patrol-wagon filled with policemen and three wagons with railroad employees left the stables on Main street. At the wrecked car at the corner of Congress and Main streets. On arriving there they were surrounded by a mob, and a lively row ensued, in which a number employed by the company had his nose broken, and another employee was badly bruised about the body. No one was seriously hurt. The police and railroad men retreated and abandoned the car.

Meanwhile the mayor summoned the police commissioners, the chief of police, and a conference lasting three hours was held with the owners of the road. At the conclusion of the meeting it was announced that the company had agreed to re-employ the strikers with the exception of nine men and that they would give good reasons for the discharge of these.

Fear Stolen Dynamite.

There was another exciting scene at the depot. Thirty men arrived from New York to take the places of the strikers. A mob of nearly 2,000 was expecting them and surrounded the newcomers, who, realizing their danger, attempted to escape through the crowd. Some got off with nothing worse than a few kicks, but others had their clothing torn and were seriously injured by being kicked. Only four succeeded in reaching the Traction company's depot. Nine of the latter were furnished with money by the strikers and sent back to New York. The rest are to be safely housed to put in an appearance.

The car which was upset and set on fire at the corner of Main and Congress streets still lies on its side under a police guard. It is considered unsafe to move.

President Hatch, Superintendent Rafel, Director Volker and other Traction company officials are occupying the main offices under a strong police guard, and in addition they have a supply of winchester repeating rifles.

Every regular policeman who can be spared is guarding the company's property, and it was the report has spread that a quantity of dynamite, which was stolen from the Metallic Cartridge company, is to be used to blow up the stables and depot of the Traction company. About a dozen men arrested after Mayor Bostwick read the riot act are held at the Second precinct station. The militia are under orders to be ready on short notice to stand by the mayor, as it is feared more blood-shed will certainly follow the proposed attempt to run the cars.

WEDDED IN JERSEY.

Lillian Russell Becomes Mrs. John Chatterton.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Lillian Russell and Signor Giovanni Perugini, or, more properly speaking, Helen Leonard and John Chatterton, were married in Hoboken, N. J., by a justice of the peace. Miss Russell had wanted to have the ceremony take place in this city at her home, 316 West Seventy-seventh street, but to marry in this state it was requisite that a justice of the supreme court give permission, and this permission she failed to get.

Miss Russell certainly looked very handsome. She was dressed in a peach blossom seeded silk gown, a creation of Felix. It was made with a tight fitting skirt, with small platings around the bottom. The bodice was cut square across the front, and she sleeves between the shoulder and the elbow were simply gigantic. She wore the charming big bit of bonnet that harmonized perfectly with her gown. She carried a small seal cape. Diamond studded buckles fastened the straps of the bodice, which rose in a shoulder knot. Around the point of the bodice she wore a magnificent girdle of diamonds and turquoises.

In her hair was a filigree comb, studded with 50 diamonds and turquoises. Around her neck was a triple string of pearls. This had a clasp of diamonds and turquoises.

Perugini was dressed in a frock coat of great length, gray trousers creased to an edge and wore a high hat.

The ceremony took place in the parlor of Justice Gilhooly. The justice got a fine new $100 bill for his services, but did not avail himself of the common privilege of marriages performing justices of the peace to kiss the bride.

MITCHELL GOES LAME.

The English Pugilist Is Not Anxious to Fight.

THE BIG MATCH MAY NOT COME OFF

A Sprained Ankle and a Dislike to Sleeping In the Woods Is a Palace Car Given as Reasons For Backing Out—He Has Stock at Stake.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 22.—A report has come up from the Mitchell training quarters to the effect that the English champion had sprained and wrenched his ankle during his exercises. The story went in commissioner to Anastasia island to notify Mitchell that a special car would be in readiness for him at 10 o'clock this morning. According to the commissioner when he returned, Mitchell was in a very unpleasant state of mind when he learned what was required of him. It is said that he declared he would not fight under the auspices of such a club and that he had put up with too many of their bluffs already.

The commissioner was then told of the injury which the English champion had sustained. How serious that may be is not learned. Al Smith, however, came out with a statement to the effect that he had put $5,000 against $1,000 that, sprained ankle or not, Mitchell would get into the ring with Corbett on Thursday.

Mitchell has declared an edict in response to the assertions which Mitchell is said to have made, in which the Englishman is served with a formal warning that the club would claim his forfeit of $5,000 if he did not appear at the point indicated in the original summons Wednesday at 9 a. m. The addition to this is understood to be stated that the referee will award the $5,000 side bet to Corbett in that event.

Loses Like a Backdown.

Another account says that Mitchell is hardly a chance now that the Corbett-Mitchell fight will take place. If Mitchell has not backed down, he has come close to it. Today he gave out the following letter:

CHARLES MITCHELL—In answer to your telegram of even date will say that we had provided at our expense a ring-plan by which you could have reached the battleground in safety from arrest or interference and which you rejected. You will please post a like club, $5,000 Bay street, on the morning of Jan. 25, at 6 o'clock. Yours very truly,

HARRY MASON.
President Duval Athletic Club.

Mitchell declared to the reporters that he would pay no attention to the letter. "I'm not going to go there and be followed by a mob. That will give the whole bleeding thing away. Why, that club will be watched all night. Those Duval people are a lot of champs. They wanted me to go on a car to Georgia the day before the contest and fight there after sleeping in the woods all night. I told them that I'd be bloody first, and this is what they give me in return. What do you think of them?"

This is not Mitchell real reason. He sprained his ankle a couple days ago, and it is now in bandages. He wrenched a tendon while running up and down the steps of the lighthouse.

The injury was not serious, but it was evident to the Englishman that he would get lame in the ring if the battle was fought, and so he thought he saw a way to escape. The fact of this injury to his tendon has been kept very quiet. When the news of Mitchell's action reached the Duval Athletic club there was astonishment.

A man close to the club declared that if Mitchell backed down completely it would prove costly for him, as Referee Kelly would be entitled to the $5,000 side bet Mitchell has with Brady that he will be at the ringside and the $5,000 side bet now in the hands of Dave Blanchard of Boston.

TALMAGE TO RESIGN.

Announces That He Will Leave the Tabernacle Pulpit.

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—The Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, at the close of his sermon at the Brooklyn Tabernacle last evening, made the announcement that he intended to resign from the pastorage of the church, the resignation to go into effect on the completion of the twenty-fifth anniversary of his taking charge of the Tabernacle. No intimation of this had been given by Dr. Talmage, and the announcement was a surprise to the congregation.

Dr. Talmage said at the close of his sermon: "I have an announcement to make which may be of interest to this congregation. The coming spring I shall have been pastor of this church 25 years. A quarter of a century is long enough for any minister to preach in one place. At that anniversary I will resign the pulpit, and it will be occupied by such persons as you may select.

"My plans after resignation have not been decreed, but I shall preach both by voice and through the newspaper press as long as my life and health are continued by the grace of God. After such a long pastorate it is a fearful thing to break the ties of affection, but I hope our friendship will be renewed in heaven."

As the conclusion of his remarks Dr. Talmage nearly broke down. After tremulously pronouncing the benediction he hurriedly left the church for home. When seen later at his residence he refused to discuss the cause of his resignation. Dr. Talmage has recently shown opposition to the action of the board of trustees to have the congregation pay 10 cents admission to his church.

BELGRADE, Jan. 22.—Ex-King Milan arrived here in answer to the summons from King Alexander, who met him at the railroad station with a large number of generals and other officers. Premier Gruitch immediately tendered his resignation to Alexander, giving as a reason for his action Milan's arrival. King Alexander accepted the resignation.

VIENNA, Jan. 22.—The Servian cabinet resigned because of the presence of ex-King Milan in Belgrade. Thus they declared to be illegal, but they did not care to commence an open conflict with the crown by Milan's arrest and expulsion.

The real reason for Milan's arrival at Belgrade was the difference between King Alexander and his Radical ministers. The king appealed to his father, who advised him not to break with the Radicals unless he wanted to suspend the constitution and institute a military regime, which Milan strongly deprecated. King Alexander replied that if he could not have his own way he would abdicate and leave Servia, whereupon Milan started immediately for Belgrade.

WOMAN AND HOME.

THE IMPORTANCE OF PROPERLY TRAINING CHILDREN.

A Tasteful Empress—British Complacence—Home of Rank—The "Betweenities"—Susan B. Anthony and Her Silks and Laces—The Power of Xpress.

"Oh, dear, I am completely discouraged about that child! He really is getting quite beyond my control," said a harrowed and foolish mother of a 3-year-old boy. And it was not at all difficult from the way in which she said it and the expression and tone of voice to conclude that she rather thought the speech an extremely bright one and the situation a sort of serio-comic bit of domestic bric-a-brac. To be sure, the child paid no attention to what she said and followed his own sweet will, kicking and screaming whenever he wanted anything that was denied him and making the neighborhood hideous until, by hook or crook, he got it.

There is not the least bit of sweetness in a speech of that kind. It simply shows a conspicuous lack of capacity on the part of the parent who makes it. A child under the age of 15 years who refuses to obey the commands of its parents is in need of most wholesome discipline, and it might be said in the same connection that the parents are quite as badly in need of training as the child. People who bring up their children in this way have a very grave responsibility on their doors.

The children under 15 years of age who cannot be made to mind belong to the class from which paupers and criminals in a respectable. One of the most necessary parts of education is to learn to recognize and laws. Failing to do this in infancy, who child continues to grow more and more intractable and less likely to yield all of allies of any sort. Such children develop very restive natures, never satisfied with what they have and continually straining after the unattainable. With no habits of industry they lay no foundation for material prosperity, and as a consequence are more than likely to come to want. They have nothing and are in want of everything. Therefore those who possess the good things of life are to them objects of hatred and envy and all mankind its bitterest foes.

From the time a child begins to notice objects of any sort whatever a decided course of education should begin. First of all things, it should learn to respect authority and obey orders promptly. To this lesson there is not the least necessity to bring in any cruelty of any description whatever. The properly trained child always knows that there is such a thing as disobedience.

It is held as a fact by many persons that the training of children were begun in proper season such a thing as punishment would be entirely unnecessary. All the bitterness and struggles now so common in families might be avoided. To do this, however, requires a great deal of firmness and a thoughtfulness of purpose rarely found, especially in young mothers.

It is so nice to let the little one do all sorts of pretty and smart things, and it seems so dreadful to hurt it by any punishment. Misdirected affection is responsible for nine-tenths of the bad children in this world. It is, to be sure, very pretty to watch the pranks and mischief of a baby, but it is a source of endless amusement to note the development of its intellect in various ways; but, like a great many other things in this life, the consequences are quite likely to be disastrous.

It may be questioned whether love, like a great many other of the good gifts of this world, is not a bad teacher. Certainly fondness, firmness and a clear headed recognition of authority are much the safer for the after life of the pupil. One of the important lessons to be impressed upon the mind of a child is that under no circumstances must it inflict pain upon its fellows or upon helpless creatures. Many a child hurts insects and domestic animals merely because it has not been taught any better. It does not realize what such pain means and should be taught by the only possible method, that of actual experience. It seems hard to inflict pain upon little children who know nothing of the causes or consequences of it, but it is the only way to cure them of various mischievous tricks.

A mistaken idea of tenderness and a too firm belief in moral suasion have sent many a child on the road that ended in the penitentiary or the hangmen's noose.

It is by no means difficult to impress the little ones with proper ideas. Their minds are full of inquiry, and their curiosity leads them to endless experiment. Satisfy their interest in a legitimate way and teach them in proper bounds of right, and one of the ground principles of success and a comfortable career is established. To refrain from correcting evils because the child may be made unhappy is like refusing to pull a thorn out of its flesh lest it may cause pain. It is much easier to have the whole thing over, and all the events impressed on the mind, than to allow mischievous disobedience to grow until it dominates the entire nature. The mother who would have her child a credit to herself and to society must be training must under no circumstances admit to it or herself the idea that she cannot do anything with it or that it has grown out of her control.—New York Ledger.

A Tactful Empress.

The empress of Japan—being that sweetest of all sweet creatures, a womanly woman—has upon many occasions openly evinced her deep interest in the welfare of Japan, giving freely to all institutions that exist to benefit them in any way, even practicing all sorts of touching little economies that she may be able to swell her contributions to certain charities that most interest her.

The conduct of this ideal woman upon a certain sad occasion her devoted subjects are never weary of describing. Prince Iwakura, a fearless Japanese leader in the momentous days of the crisis, from which the lovely archipelago is still trembling in the satisfaction to what seems assured stability, lay dying in his pavilion. The empress announced her intention of paying Iwakura a visit in person. The poor prince, weak and, as I have said, about to die, was thrown into a dangerous state of excitement upon receiving the news, but he managed to borrow from some hidden nervous force sufficient strength to grasp his writing brush with trembles and to paint her an urgent but most respectful request not to think of coming to him. He forced upon her majesty a declining with regard to her the fact of his rapidly approaching death and his consequent inability to acknowledge her visit with even a sixteenth part of the honors it demanded. He begged her to deign to kindly consider how ill he was, so when it remained an impossibility to throw off the unlucky error for her entertainment. In reply, winged with speed, came a dear little missive whose import was as follows:

"I come not as your empress, but as the daughter of your fond well wisher and counselor and as your own anxious friend."

Shorn of all ostentation and display, the empress arrived and remained beside her grateful subject until his final summons.—Harper's Bazar.

British Complacence of Rank.

A duke's daughter, even though the wife of a plain "Mr.," takes precedence of a countess, while a duke's younger son's wife comes below a countess. Then a countess takes precedence of the daughter of a marquis, too, but the latter precedes the duke's daughter-in-law. It is worse than algebra, and the only possible method, that of actual experience. It seems hard to inflict pain upon little children who know nothing of the causes or consequences of it, but it is the only way to cure them of various mischievous tricks.

A mistaken idea of tenderness and a too firm belief in moral suasion have sent many a child on the road that ended in the penitentiary or the hangmen's noose.

The "Betweenities."

It is astonishing how much can be accomplished in the "between times." Marion Harland, in one of her household books, quotes a correspondent who pointed to a set of embroidered chair backs which she, although a very busy woman, said that she did in the "betweens." And George Eliot, in "Daniel Deronda," speaks of the lack of leisure for anything found in the day that isn't marked off into fixed hours for work. It is once more to be advised a girl who did not suppose she had any superfluous hours at her disposal that she should try to secure a few moments, at any rate, each day for solid reading. She was not deeply intellectual, but she happened to be fond of Macauley's sonorous sentences, and she had the "complete works" on her bookshelves, into which she had scarcely looked as yet. So she took one volume down to the basement dining room and left it on the shelf there, at hand when she should have a few moments of leisure in waiting for the family to assemble for the meals, which it was her place to prepare. They were not more dilatory than many people, but it was surprising how many pages of Macauley she read in those cold minutes. Before the third winter was over she had finished everything he had written.

Susan B. Anthony's Silks and Laces.

If Susan B. Anthony has a weakness, it is black silk with point lace. The memory of this generation runs not as far back as the time when this famous lady took to wearing these costly, elegant textures. Although a very busy woman, she is quiet and restful. Her clothes never wear out, and as she scorns to follow the fashion her dresses and ruffles and lace capes and scarfs last forever. None of her gowns is trimmed, for expense nor trust runs pretty in the material. As a result, some of the straight, second skirts are made of satin and silk thick enough and stiff enough to stand alone. She wears nothing but black. When she wishes to change the color of her toilet, she changes the lace at her wrists and throat and the little shawl that drapes her shoulders. Miss Anthony reads no current literature, but is constantly read to her by friends. She alleges that newspaper reading is a great waste of time and a great detriment to the mind, making a slave of the mind and preventing the literary taste. She depends on gossip for the news and upon her friends for the advancement of thought. All her life, outside of life, and her time is passed in the company of books and friends about which and to whom she writes a great many letters.—New York World.

The Power of Xpress.

"It was after long and serious thought," said Millicent, who is to be married soon and who was showing her belongings to an admiring coterie, "that I decided to have all these aprons."

"But why?" demanded one of the girls, looking at the bewildering collection.

"Because I have discovered that nothing appeals to the masculine mind so much as an apron," answered Millicent. "I have observed that when I wore my painting rig Henry found me irresistible. Those two high necked, long sleeved, pale blue things are artists' aprons, girls. When we have come into the studio from a walk, and I have put on a long white apron and devoted myself to mixing dish cooking, he has sat breathless with admiration. That's the reason for those big white aprons there. When I wore one of those silly, ruffled, white silk things and was behind the tea table, he was filled with adoration. And it was when I was wearing one of those fancy work aprons and making Christmas presents that he offered me his very large heart and hand and very diminutive fortune. Hence these aprons!"

And every member of the coterie promptly went out and invested in aprons.—Philadelphia Times.

Exercise For the Children.

Boys generally get their due quota of exercise. At the same time, they can never get too much, if not of a too severe nature and taken with moderation. Of modern tion, writes Ellen Le Garde, in The Ladies' Home Journal. Burdette says in reply to the interrogation regarding his acts: "If a boy again, I would spend a great deal of time in the gymnasium. I am a strong believer in athletic scholarships and gymnastic training. The ventilation in my gymnasium was perfect. The air came in with a free sweep from sunrise to set. There was nowhere all the way from heaven in the clearings and grated sind owns under the trees. I don't know so much about gymnastums hedged in with walls and roof and ventilated by machinery, but I know they are better than dens. Live out of doors all you can, my boy. Walk a heap. The open air, the free air and the open air are good as the best exercise—better." This advice should apply to our girls as well.

An English View of Woman's Love.

The following estimate of women's love for her husband appeared in an English periodical of a quarter of a century ago: "A Frenchwoman will love her husband if he is either witty or chivalrous; a German woman, if he is constant and faithful; a Dutchwoman, if he does not distress her ease and comfort too much; a Spanish woman, if he wreaks a vengeance upon those who incur her displeasure; an Italian woman, if he is dreamy and poetical; a Danish woman, if he thinks that her native country is the brightest and happiest on earth; a Russian woman, if he despises all westerners as miserable barbarians; an English woman, if he succeeds in ingratiating himself with the court and aristocracy; an American woman, if he has plenty of money."

Extravagant Girls.

Young girls are prone to buy fancy sticks-pins, hair ornaments, candy and soda water and to have their blooming young faces reproduced by the camera, all these small vanities run away with more money than the girl finds it easy to realize unless she keeps an account and balances it regularly. Every girl ought to have a fixed allowance and be required to confine her expenditure strictly within its limits, for in no better way can she be taught the necessary lesson, for ignorance of which many a woman whose girlhood was one of unlimited indulgence has been unjustly blamed—the lesson of wise and practical expenditure—and before all else of keeping one's outgo within one's income.—Philadelphia Press.

"Keep Home With You."

The real center of the world is the middle room of our lives. We may come home to live. We may roam over mountain and sea, but there is joy when we get back. More out of the house if it is too small for you and your family, but always take home with you. As we should make our own home on earth, so we should make for ourselves a home in the heart. Homes of our religious life should always be kept safe and strong and unmolested. The eternal home awaits you beyond. Cultivate your home. Always keep home with you. Money does not make it; social position does not make it—only love, pure, faithful love. Love at home will save many a man from ruin.—California Christian Advocate.

Lucy Stone at Oberlin.

It is interesting to read of Lucy Stone's experience in college during her four years' study at Oberlin. She never lost a day from ill health, and she took the college course with the men and held fair rank in her class. Nearly all the girls in the college did "their time poor and worked to earn their way through. They did their own cooking, their own washing and ironing, and some of them paid their way by doing washing for the men.—New York Sun.

Mrs. Ballington Booth.

Sarony, the New York photographer, says of Mrs. Ballington Booth: "She has a beautiful face. If any one can wear an old poke bonnet and Salvation Army dress and look beautiful, nature is simply defying costume. But in 20 years her photographs taken now will represent her as more lovely than her beauties who are photographed in the present fashion. I do not admire the styles now in vogue, but I suppose the eye gets used to it."

They Wear an Ax.

One of the leading clubs for women in London is the Pioneer, the members of which are supposed to take an active interest in any of the "woman" movements. The badge is a small silver ax, significant of the warlike and revolutionary spirit of the wearer. Along the central beam in the ceiling of the drawing room is inscribed the thrilling sentiment: "They Say. Why Say They? Let Them Say."—London Million.

Mrs. Custer.

Mrs. Elizabeth G. Custer, the widow of the famous soldier, is an accomplished billiard player. She grew skillful at that game during her long camp residence on the plains. It is rare to find a woman an adept with the billiard cue, yet there are few more graceful games and few, too, where the accepted characteristics of women—delicate accuracy rather than strength—are more called in requisition.

Woman and Love.

Mrs. Frank Leslie has been making a few remarks concerning woman and love. "A woman with no one to love her," she says, "is the most miserable of creatures. She loses half her value in her own eyes. She is unable by her love to do the best of her nature. She either hardens and becomes cold, defiant, bitter and narrow, or she withers and languishes like spring flowers in an east wind."

The Piecebag.

A useful "piecebag" is made of any chosen size and with an interlining. The outer one is stitched into divisions which have on the outside attached flap such a hint of their contents as a loop of black braid, another of white tape, several pieces of garment to be made over, and whole larger scraps are inside and other indications that will tell at a glance what is to be found and where.

Jane Hading's Eyes.

Mme. Jane Hading is a great woman. She has a pair of greenish red brown eyes that can be as eloquent as love one moment and burn holes in an offender the next. If she didn't have a tongue in her head, she could talk every note, woe, supplicate, command, conquer—with those eyes.—Stageland.

Sprinkling Carpets.

It is sometimes recommended that one sprinkle one's carpets with salt water in order to freshen them and bring out the original coloring. This plan has its drawbacks. In damp weather the brine is sure to work out and cling to the surface of the floor covering in the most candid and obtrusive manner.

Minnie Cleghorn, a teacher in the Wellington (O.) schools, is a second cousin of ex-Queen Liliuokalani. The relationship comes about through the marriage of an American missionary in the family of the ancestors of the ex-queen.

If a woman understands either music, painting or embroidery well enough to teach it successfully, these are all very good ways to earn money, but better be a first class washerwoman than a poor music or painting teacher.

The simplest way to keep an oiled table "nice and new" is to wipe it over thoroughly once a week with a flannel cloth well wet in good kerosene oil.

The youngest queen consort of Europe, the queen of Portugal, was born at Twickenham, in England. She was the favorite child of the Comte de Paris.

How Vaccination Works.

She was a pretty girl and his fate, and he was telling her so. She listened angelically, and, by watching her left eyelid he knew he was successful.

The left eyelid is always a true indicator of a girl's feelings.

Finally he ventured to slip his arm about her, and it was all right for a minute, when she sprung to her feet with anguish on her face.

"How can you?" she sobbed. "Brute!"

"My own," he protested.

"No!" she wept. "I can never love you! You have no heart, no tenderness! You are inhuman!"

"What have I done?" cried the miserable young man, and then she lifted her streaming eyes.

"You have no regard for my vaccination at all," she said. "Oh, how it hurts!" So he was obliged to finish his proposal minus the encircling arm act. He isn't the only man in a like plight just now.—Boston Traveller.

PARK CLUB WON.

BOARD OF TRADE TEAM DEFEATED BY THE BOROUGHITES.

The First Game of a Series.—One Game was Very Close at the Window, the Park Club Only Winning by 11 Pins.

Last night the Board of Trade bowling team bowled its first games on strange alleys. The team visited the Park Club and bowled the first of a series of games. In the first game the Board of Trade started off with a flourish, and at the end of the first frame they had two pins the best of it. They were allowed that little enjoyment by the Parks only that once, and it must have been a put up job to let the Board of Trade lead just for one frame, for they never once headed off the Parks after that. In the second frame the Parks took the lead and for a few frames that lead kept constantly growing. But toward the last the Board of Trade again aspired to reach first place, but their hopes were shattered, for, after securing strikes and spares in profusion, it was found as the finish they were just 11 pins in the lurch. The second game was like unto the first with the exception that the Parks maintained more of a lead and finally won by 86 pins. A number of friends of the Board of Trade bowlers accompanied them and watched their favorites bite the dust. The score:

Aged 80 Years Yet Goes to Business Regularly.

Some people commence to complain of old age when they scrib in their prime. It seems to be a sort of excuse for "that tired feeling." There is occasionally, a shining example for such folks, however, as in the case of Mr. Alfred Bonnell, of Manning avenue, North Plainfield. Mr. Bonnell is aged 80 years, but the older he gets in years, the younger he seems to get in feeling. He goes to business at his lumber mills in Cranford, N. J., every day and seems to enjoy active work as much as when he was only half as old as he is now.

Mr. Bonnell's grandfather lived to the great age of 100 years, and his father had 95 years to his credit when he died. Mr. Bonnell has a young daughter aged only sixty years.

In the matter of the oft quoted "lusty old age," Mr. Bonnell is a sort of Kingpin.

Last night the Men's Club of the Church of the Heavenly Rest of Evona gave an entertainment in the Parish building. The room was crowded to the doors many being unable to find seats. The guests delighted as the village post office was very amusing and the singing which followed this, the Men's Club, was of an excellent quality. The Houses That Grow in the Spring.

Mr. Albert, or as he is better known, "Chic," Demarest, is one of Plainfield's provident young men who intends to have a comfortable house of his own, and in his determination has bought of A. D. Thompson two handsome building lots in Watchung Park, the pretty new neighborhood for homes situated in North Plainfield. During the last few weeks ground has been broken for several handsome homes in different parts of the Park, and sometime this week it is said a half dozen more dwellings will be begun. Mr. A. D. Thompson certainly knows how to build up a first-class neighborhood. He has a splendid array of building sites, and by allowing no one to purchase his land but those who engage themselves to erect high-grade houses he has restricted the neighborhood, and made it a pleasant one to house-seekers, and a profitable one to investors. On Wednesdays and Saturdays Tax News publishes Mr. Thompson's map and advertised particulars of this property.

Joseph Pike Pleads not Guilty.

TO SUE FOR HIS SALARY.

RECTOR JENNINGS WANTS PAY FOR HIS YEAR'S WORK.

It is Alleged That the Church is Going to Ruin.—A Congregation of 300 Has Dwindled Down to Seven.

According to the Newark Evening News the case of the Rev. Joseph Jennings, who has run Grace Episcopal Church at Westfield pretty much to suit himself for the past year, is again brought to public notice by his threatened suit for salary. Mr. Jennings has presided since last March to an average congregation of seven, and it is said that he performs the duties of sexton as well as pastor. The church edifice, which is well located and was one of the prettiest in town, is going to ruin. It needs painting and the roof leaks. Yet the pastor holds on and shows no sign of surrender, and each Sabbath the chimes ring out, as they did when they called together 300 worshipers.

Mr. Jennings had received no pay from the regular vestry for over a year. Last March they offered him $700 if he would go. This he refused. Those who consider themselves the regular vestry of the church feel confident that the church property is beyond the reach of any judgment Mr. Jennings may get for salary, on account of the peculiar wording of the deed conveying the land to the church vestry, a part of which is as follows: "To have and to hold until the time of the dissolution of the Church (vestry) and their successors forever, with this express condition and limitation, that neither the said party of the second part nor their successors shall at any time sell, mortgage or in any way convey the said land and premises or any part thereof, and that no building shall be kept, maintained or erected thereon except for the purpose of public worship and teaching in accordance with the uses, rights and ceremonies of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States of America." The power of the vestry to dismiss Jennings has not yet been decided by the Supreme Court.

Picked up Another's Pocketbook.

Saturday night a colored woman was seen to pick up a pocketbook in Mr. Haberle's store, on Somerset street, and walked off with it. She had entered to buy some toiletry for her husband and as she went out of the door she picked up the pocketbook, which all in the store at the time supposed belonged to her. A short time afterward a man hurriedly entered the store and inquired for any one who had seen a pocketbook lying on the floor as he had lost his. He was in the store a short while before that. It was then plainly evident that the colored woman had made off with what belonged to some one else.

A Voter Wants to Join a Republican Club.

To the Editor of The News:—Will you kindly let me know, through the columns of your paper, if there is a Republican Club or organization of any kind in the second ward, and how a voter can join same?

If there is none in this ward, what organized body of Republicans is there in the city of Plainfield? F. S.

[Correspondent is informed that while there is no Republican Club in the Second Ward, there is a Republican Association to which he can probably secure admission as a member by addressing the Secretary, Mr. John H. Doane.—Ed.]

Big Turn Out of C. Y. M. I. Men.

There was an unusually large number of members present at the Club House of the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum, on West Sixth street, last night. Some enjoyed themselves bowling, others at the pool tables while some of them had a wrestling match. Those who wrestled were Traynor and Strapp, and Galtraith and Butcher. Strapp and Butcher proved to be the best men.

At the bowling alleys Police Sergeant Kiely distinguished himself by putting up the highest score of the evening —217.

Found; His Wife on the Boulevard.

Last night when Thomas Marley, a blacksmith, who resides on Richmond street, quit work and went home he found only his children there. He then went to the boulevard where he says he found his wife "rushing the growler" for beer. He thereupon knocked her down. A large crowd gathered and Marley was arrested by Policeman Vanderweg and taken to the lockup. The Judge this morning suspended sentence in his case.

The Soot in a Chimney Afire.

Early last evening the soot in a chimney of the house occupied by Thomas Duffey, on East Fourth street, was found to be on fire. Word was sent to Chief Doane, who sent No. 2's hose carriage and a few of the firemen to extinguish the fire, which they did in a short time.

New York, Tuesday, Jan. 23.—"The Normannia," the finest ship of the Hamburg-American Line, got caught in a gale of hurricane force Saturday, while on her way to Europe, and so badly damaged by the heavy seas she shipped that she was compelled to return to this port, which she reached at 9 10 this morning, and is now at her dock in Hoboken. PROTESTING AGAINST A LICENSE.

Westfield Temperance People Making a Fight Against Klopf's Hotel.

The Westfield temperance people are making a fight against the granting of a license to sell liquor to John Klopf, who has built a place at what is known as the Sand Hill, between Westfield and Springfield, on the county road. Sunday evening at several of the churches men were stationed in the vestibule with a petition to the court against granting this license, and every man who entered the church was asked to sign the petition. Many signed, but others refused to do so. Two of the men who signed Klopf's petition for a license are members of the Presbyterian church, and the fact was mentioned, without giving names, at the young people's prayer meeting. Special prayers were offered for the two signers. Some of the members of the Presbyterian church are talking about steps being taken to expel the offending brethren. A public indignation meeting is to be held this week to protest against the granting of this license.

Grocers' Association Preparing its Black List.

The Grocers' Protective Association held a meeting in the Board of Trade rooms last night to make up the black list of people who are classed by them as "dead beats." A list containing 600 names is to be printed in pamplet form and distributed among the members of the association.

Not only grocers belong to this association, but men in all classes of business, such as hardware, furniture and clothing, are to be found in its ranks. The business men have found by experience that some such method has been made necessary by the continued losses each year through this channel.

It is estimated that when the list is completed it will contain at least 1,000 names, representing fully $60,000 of bad debts.

New Industry at Bound Brook.

Dr. Pierce of Bound Brook has sold to the Burritt Manufacturing Company of Newark, a tract of land adjoining on the east that of the Dallett Iron Company, between the Lehigh and Port Reading roads. This concern employs skilled labor in the manufacture of various styles and sizes of valves. A contract has been made with the Henry Brothers, builders, of Somerville, to at once erect a frame building, 40x80, to be covered with corrugated iron, which structure can be used as a shop as well as a more suitable building is being put up. Then this structure will be good for a store.

THE BRIDGEPORT STRIKE.

An Omnibus Line Takes the Place of the Street Cars.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Jan. 23.—The Tramline company has not attempted to move any cars, and the strikers have ceased all little trouble. Police still guard the company's property, and the new men brought here by the New Jersey cars keeping out of sight. One of the sculs was discovered near the Washington street stables and attacked by a crowd. He was rescued by the police and taken to their headquarters.

Mayor Bostwick attempted to address the strikers from the city hall steps, but was hooted by the crowd. The Salvation Army is here from Australia trying to quiet the strikers. Several men who are said to be Pinkerton detectives arrived from New York, and they are now being closely watched by the strikers and their friends.

Police Commissioners Seeley and Atwater went to New Haven and called on Governor Morris to induce him to call out the militia, but they returned without receiving any satisfaction, and the governor refuses to state what he will do just now.

Many of the labor unions in the city met and voted not to patronize the road unless the management conceded the demands of the strikers.

The iron molders voted to give the proceeds of their ball Thursday night to the strikers. An independent omnibus line is being run to accommodate the public and is well patronized. The managers of the company still assert that they will not give in to the men and will be able to run the cars. It is understood that an attempt will be made today to start the cars.

CHRIS EVANS' ESCAPE.

Sailed From Galveston, Which Place He Reached In a Box Car.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23.—A newspaper publishes a statement that Bandits Evans and Morell are safely out of the state and are sailing on the high seas free from pursuit. It is said that Evans sent to a friend in Arizona a narrative of his adventures after his escape from jail in Fresno. After capturing a buggy, lasted of driving out of town, as was generally supposed, they drove to a siding of the Southern Pacific railroad. Here the bandits entered a box car, the door of which had been left open by a brakeman in consideration of 40?. They had previously been stocked with provisions.

Galveston was reached in a few days, and from there they went to New Orleans under the care of a friend. Since then news has been received that the bandits got to Brazil without attracting any suspicion, and on the Atlantic now separates them from their pursuers.

FOUGHT FOR A CHURCH.

Two Rival Factions of the Flock Indulged In a Riot.

MEADVILLE, Pa., Jan. 23.—For some time past the rival factions of the United Brethren Valley church in Bloomfield township, this county, have been contending for possession of the church. The radicals went to the church, took forcible possession and placed a new lock on the door. Last Thursday the liberals went in a body to the church, took possession, put on a lock of their own, and, fully armed, equipped and supporting a [illegible] department well supplied with pro[illegible]ns, they went into camp to guard the property. They were fully prepared to prevent being routed by a surprise attack and gave notice to the radicals that they proposed to hold the fort against any and all comers.

For two days and nights the liberals lay on their arms waiting until late Saturday night. The radicals got re-enforcements from Erie county, and upon the advent of the Sabbath morning they came down in force to capture their church.

A regular riot followed, and a number of the participants were seriously injured, among them Rev. Harvey Earll, William Oakes, Chauncey Lee and his aged father. The fight finally ended in a draw, with the liberals still in possession of the church. Informations have been made before Squire Miller against the leader of the radicals and warrants issued. The charges are riot, assault with intent to kill, etc. Both sides are terribly wrought up, and further violence is expected.

NOW FOR IT!

It's quite probable that the only way in which most of our citizens will ever make money is by saving it, and unless chances are presented for doing that, the barrel gets empty and the crane runs dry.

HERE'S the Opportunity.

WHITE, of Plainfield.

A CASE OF TRUE LOVE.

Although He Courted Others, His Heart Was Still True to 'Mandy.

Jim was a long, lank mountaineer from Hackinn, who owned a creek farm, fairly well stocked, and he was not a bad catch, as those things go in the mountains, but he had no wife.

"How is it, Jim," I said to him one day, "that you don't marry?"

He grinned guilelessly.

"Well, colonel," he said slowly, "you know 'Mandy Collins, don't you?"

"Yes."

"Well, I axed her three months ago, an she wouldn't have me."

"Why didn't you try somebody else?"

"I did, colonel—a fine gal down the crick. I got right up to her, like a sick kitten to a hot brick, for a whole week, when one day 'long came 'Mandy, an I axed her ag'in."

"What did she say?"

"She wouldn't have me."

"Try another," I said encouragingly.

"I did, colonel. 'Nother fine gal across the mountain. I sot up to her three weeks han runnin, an one night, when I was 'most ready to pop, I seen 'Mandy at spellin school, an axed her ag'in."

"What did she say that time?"

"Purt much the same thing."

"Why didn't you let her alone, then, and devote yourself to one you could get?" I asked half provoked at his persistence.

"You bet I did, colonel! I went right after old man Hankins' gal, Mary, an Mary seemed mighty willin an obligin till one mornin I met 'Mandy comin down the road, an I up an axed her ag'in."

"What did she say?" I asked.

"Wouldn't have me no more'n t'other times," and his face fell.

"As I said before, Jim," I very emphatically remarked, "why in thunder don't you try another girl?"

"That's what I'm doin now, colonel," he responded, with more spirit than he had previously shown. "For a month an upwards I've put 'Mandy clean out of my mind, an I'm shinin up to Hester Jones seven nights a week, an ther ain't no use talkin, colonel, Hester likes me."

"That's right, old fellow!" I exclaimed, slapping him on the shoulder. "Keep at it and you'll get her sure."

"Then, colonel?" he asked, with a hopeful little smile.

"'Mandy?"

After that I gave Jim up as beyond reclamation.—Puck.

Stories About Pat.

A man in Limerick went to the undertaker to order a coffin for Pat Connell. "Dear me," said the undertaker, "is poor Pat dead?" "No, he's not dead yet," answered the other, "but he'll die tonight, for the doctor says he can't live till morning, and he knows what he says himself."

Tom Moore used to tell a story about staying, as a boy, with an uncle at Sandymount, near Dublin, and finding one morning a dead highwayman lying on the road. There was a small bullet hole in his right temple. An old woman was looking at him. "Gentlemen," she said, "isn't it the blessing of God it didn't hit him in the eye."

Some people were laughing at an Irishman, who won a race, for saying, "Well, I'm first at last." "You needn't laugh," said he. "Sure, wasn't I behind before?"

Some young fellows of the navy shaved the head of a brother officer, an Irishman, when he was drunk and put him to bed. He had previously given orders that he was to be called at 5 in the morning, and he was accordingly called at that hour. When he looked in the glass and saw an appearance so unlike what he expected, "Hang me," said he, "if they haven't called the wrong man!"

An Irish gentleman had a splendid looking cow, but she kicked so much that it took a very long time, and it was nearly impossible, to milk her, so he sent her to a fair to be sold, and told his herdsman to be sure not to sell her without letting the buyer know her faults. He brought home a large price, which he had got for it. His master was surprised and said, "Are you sure you told all about her?" "Bedad, I did, sir," said the herdsman. "He asked whether she was kind to a good milker. 'Begorra, sir,' says I, 'it's what you'd be tired milking her.'"—"Seventy Years of Irish Life."

The Main Thing.

Little Henri's father had another wish him to be a French scholar, and knowing that a foreign language is most readily acquired in childhood they have given him a French governess, with whom he is expected to talk French.

Henry gets along pretty well, but is not yet to be mistaken for a native Parisian. The other day he discovered that the barn was on fire. He ran into the house quite out of breath.

"Oh, mademoiselle," he exclaimed, rushing into the schoolroom, "I don't know whether it's la feu or le feu, but anyhow there's a big blaze in the barn!"—Youth's Companion.

Saved Her Life.

Miss Pastel—It's too bad! I love you and I've promised to marry you and yet there isn't a bit of romance about it. You have never once saved my life.

Adorer—I haven't, eh? Don't you remember the time you first saw me?

"Yes. I was walking down the avenue, and you passed me on your bicycle."

"Yes, and I rang the bell for you to get out of the way, didn't I?"—Puck.

Devotion.

She (with emotion)—Do you truly care for me just as much as when we were first engaged?

He (with conviction)—Yes, lovey, every single bit as much.

And at the time this conversation took place they had been engaged just 14 hours 8 minutes and 23 seconds.—Chicago News-Record.

That Was Different.

"How do you like the new neighbors by this time?"

"Oh, mercy, I don't pretend to associate with them."

"But I saw you coming out of there just a few minutes ago."

"I know, but I had just gone in to borrow a few things."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Old and New.

The "strictly oak and clinging vine" are out of fashion now.

The modern maiden stands alone, with trifling exceptions.

She buffets bravely with the world, she fares as best she can.

And gayly sails her way through life without the help of man.

Her broken yoke of servitude she tramples 'neath her feet,

Her ancient tyrant she defies and finds her freedom sweet.

Yet sometimes when the road is hard and things look rather black

The independent woman's thoughts insist on harking back.

The sheltered life seems very fair amid earth's crowding ills,

And restful the old fashioned plan—a man to pay the bills!

Making Up.

"Snooper, old fellow," said Skidmore as he held out his hand, "I want to make up with you. I'll admit that I was wrong in that little quarrel we had a month ago, and it has grieved me ever since not to be on speaking terms with my old friend. It was all my fault, and I'm sorry."

"Oh, I can't let you accuse yourself in that style," interrupted Snooper generously, giving the extended hand a hearty shaking. "We are all liable to err, and I am free to admit that the mistake was all on my side. In the heat of debate, you know, one doesn't stop to weigh his words, and after he has once spoken pride usually prevents his taking them back. That was the way with me. Please accept my sincere apology for—"

"Not another word about it, Snooper. The fault was mine, and I can't allow you to condemn yourself in that fashion. By-the-way, do you happen to have a 5?5 bill about you that you can spare until next payday?"—Harper's Bazar.

Willing to Accommodate.

It was a very ragged but an exceedingly polite beggar who took one of his greasy cap to a gentleman on Broadway and said:

"Pardon me, sir. Will you please grant me the favor of a gratuity of 5 cents? I have not got dined."

"Neither have I," said the gentleman, more to himself than to the beggar, because he was hurrying home for that purpose.

"Then make it 10 cents," said the beggar, "and we'll dine together."—Texas Siftings.

MAY RUN NIGHT AND DAY

THE POND MACHINE TOOL COMPANY AFTER A BIG CONTRACT.

It Will Require a Full Force of Men Working Day and Night for Twenty Months to Complete It.—If They Get the Contract About Six Hundred Men Will be Employed.

Six hundred men may have employment within a few days at the Pond Machine Tool Works. The heads of that firm have been endeavoring to secure a government contract of such magnitude that it would take day and night work, with a full force of men, for twenty months to complete it. They seem to have every prospect of getting it. We certainly wish them success.

LATER—The contract includes gun lathes several inches larger than the mammoth ones turned out by this concern last year, beside many boring and turning lathes. The bids for the contract were opened by the committee at noon yesterday in New York State. There were several companies after the work beside the Pond Machine Tool Co. The official notice of the winner will be given within a short time.

FIRE IN THE BOROUGH.

A Small Frame Building All Ablaze

Between ten and eleven o'clock last night as Mr. John Goodwin of Manning avenue was returning home from a Grand Army meeting he saw an unusually bright light in a small building in the rear of Mrs. Cary's house, on that thoroughfare. Mr. Goodwin knew that the place was formerly inhabited, but of course did not remember at that moment whether there was any one living in it or not. He concluded that it was too bright a light to be made by a lamp, however, so he hurried into the yard and made an investigation. As soon as he got near to it he found that it was on fire. The Cary house was only a few feet from the burning one. Mr. Goodwin aroused the inmates, who were sleeping soundly and had no idea of their danger. Next Mr. Goodwin hastened to the engine house and gave the alarm. The fire department responded very quickly and were soon upon the scene. Taking water from a hydrant the burning building was soon soaked with water.

The building was occupied by a colored family last Summer. After they moved out it was used to store straw in by Peter Anderson, colored, who owned it. Its contents were destroyed.

There are a number of small frame buildings in the vicinity of the burned one, and had the firemen been slow to act there might have been a more serious result.

It is supposed the building was set on fire.

A colored man named Lewis, who lives nearby and whose horse was stabled in a barn only a few rods from the fire ran barefooted to the engine house with Mr. Goodwin. Lewis had been laid up with the grip, but his trip without shoes didn't seem to hurt him.

Mr. Lewis places his loss at about $250, fully covered by insurance.

—To-night the Park Club will bowl a New Jersey Central League game with the New Jersey Athletic Club, at Bergen Point.

—Mr. White, our Front street merchant says you can save a barrel of money by buying your goods at his place. See the barrel in the show window.

—In conformity to law the taxes remaining unpaid in the borough of North Plainfield January 31, 1894, will be recorded at Somerville, and the list of delinquents advertised.

—Edsall has had an immense sign made. It reaches clear across the two stores of Edsall and Doane & Edsall and is at least six feet wide. Just read about it in his advertisement.

—To-morrow night Central Lodge, No. 48, Ancient Order of United Workmen will meet in Red Men's Hall, No. 212 West Front street. As business of importance is to be transacted all the members are requested to be present.

Sons of Veterans.

MRS. DANIEL SMALLEY'S ROOMS RANSACKED.

Fifty Dollars in Bills and Two Dozen Silver Knives and One Dozen Silver Forks Stolen.—Men Seen Saturday on the Plazza.

Mrs. Daniel I. Smalley's house, on Summit avenue was robbed early last evening. The theft was committed between 7.30 and 8.30 o'clock.

Mrs. Smalley, together with her mother and son, occupy the second floor of the house. The down stairs part are rents to Mr. John Y. Barrett.

Mrs. Smalley was kept at the store until fifteen minutes after eight. She left at that hour for home. As she went into the house she found a small partitioned box at the foot of the stairs. She thought it strange that the box should be there, but attaching no importance to the matter she went on upstairs. She says when she reached the head of the stairs she thought an earthquake had shook the house. Everything was in disorder. Contents of bureau drawers were strewn upon the floor and the drawers left in a half drawn-out position.

In the bed room all the quilts had been taken from the bed and thrown upon the floor and the mattresses disarranged.

All the bureau drawers were left open with the exception of one little one at the top. There are three small drawers in a row at the top. In the centre one Mrs. Smalley kept her money. She had left $30 in bills in this drawer and after looking it had taken the key to the store with her. She found the drawer unlocked and the money gone.

In the dinning room the buffett had been cleared of its contents, which she found lying on the floor.

Two dozen silver knives and one dozen silver forks were taken from the buffet drawers. On the handles of the forks was the initial "S." In the same drawer were a half dozen silver spoons, a half dozen silver forks and a dozen silver knives. On these was the initial "S." None of these was taken although they evidently had been handled.

Mrs. Smalley's mother had left the house at about 7:45 to go to church.

Mrs. Samuel Taynor, who also lives on Summit avenue, passed by Mrs. Smalley's house at about 7.30. As she passed the house, a neighbor across the street opened the door to admit someone. The opening of this door let out a streak of light from the hall lamp, which shone full upon Mrs. Taynor's face, enabling Mrs. Taynor to see two strange looking men standing by the door. She heard one of them say to the other: "Don't make a fool of yourself." She passed on and thought no more about it until she heard of the robbery.

It is thought the men gained entrance by unlocking the hall door.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Neaf Apgar of Evona has the grip.

Mrs. Fritz, mother of Mr. Adam Fritz of Somerset street, is ill.

Miss Dunn of Brooklyn is visiting friends on West Fifth street.

Miss Hattie Bedford, of New Brighton, Staten Island, is visiting friends on Netherwood.

The Misses Underwood of Crescent avenue will give a tea to-morrow afternoon and a progressive euchre party in evening.

Mr. Daniel Hulick of Jackson avenue has just recovered from an attack of the grip. Mrs. Hulick has also been suffering with the same disease.

Mr. Frank Hampston of Dunellen, a clerk in Schepflin & Co's. clothing store, on West Front street, has recovered from an attack of the grip and is again able to attend to his duties.

Congressman Dunn Backing Him.

[From the Elizabeth Herald.

Congressman Dunn is backing Rowland M. Stover for postmaster at Plainfield. In this course Mr. Dunn is endorsed by the best element in our party and by Plainfield business men irrespective of partisan affiliations. A sterling Democrat, Mr. Stover has a popularity that extends away beyond party lines. He is beyond any manner of question Plainfield's choice for postmaster.

Cut Its Tail too Short.

Last Summer Mr. Leonard Benton, formerly of this city, who was stopping at The Albion at the time, bought of Dr. Fritts of Park avenue a fine sorrel horse for $100. When Mr. Benton returned to New York in the Fall he took the animal with him. Yesterday the horse died with lock-jaw, which resulted from its tail being "docked" too short.

C. Schepflin & Co.'s Creditors to Confer.

A meeting of the creditors of Messrs. C. Schepflin & Co. is to be held in the Astor House to-morrow afternoon for conference about a proposition from the firm for a compromise of the claims which it accepted—as it is believed it will be—will enable the firm to resume business without delay.

Committee Meetings.

The Committee of Arrangements of Iona Council, D. of P., which has been appointed to prepare for an entertainment Monday night held a meeting last night at Councilman Westphal's corner of West Fourth and Liberty streets. The committee will hold another meeting Saturday night.

'WE'RE THE CHAMPIONS'

CLUB "YELL" OF THE Y. M. C. L. A. OF ELIZABETH.

They are Indeed the Champions and They Did Some Bowling Last Night Worthy of Their Title.

ON the home stretch the champions in the Journal League the Y. M. C. L. A.'s made their last trip to this city, in the present tournament, last night. They bowled a game with the C. Y. M. L. A.'s, and as expected they went away with another scalp dangling from a belt of many victories. The visitors took the lead at the start and held it to the finish.

The games were witnessed by a large number of visitors, among them being a goodly sprinkling of the fair sex.

The usual friendly feeling existing between the two clubs was never more apparent. There were no mean tricks to win and no disputes over decisions. At the conclusion of the game the C. Y. M. L.'s gave three cheers for the victors, and the champions in turn gave three rousing cheers for the Plainfield club, ending with their club yell, and with "we are the champions, don't you see!" Caught After Many Attempts.

Peter Fleming of Cottage place was arrested by Policeman Saunders last evening after evading capture for some time. A warrant had been issued for his arrest some time ago for trespassing on the railroad. Fleming's plan of escaping the police was to watch at his home for the policeman's appearance, and then skip out the back way to his uncle's. He was sentenced to 30 days in jail.

Judgments for the Plaintiff.

Justice Nodyne to-day rendered judgment in the case of Tuale J. Carey vs. John Allen for the full amount sued for, $68.50. The defendant failed to appear.

TROLLEY TO NEW YORK.

A FRANCHISE FROM TRENTON TO PHILADELPHIA FIRST STEP.

A Much Talk of Project at Last Evening to Assume Tangible Shape.—Said to Have Plenty Capital back of the Scheme.

Colonel E. DeV. Morrell, of Philadelphia, nephew-in-law of the late A. J. Drexel, after a hard struggle, has obtained franchises for the right of way for an electric railway to connect Trenton with Philadelphia by way of Bristol.

This with the electric road between Jersey City and Trenton, contracted for last week, will form a continuous line of electric railway between New York and Philadelphia and open up an entirely new section of country.

A prominent Plainfielder says this is to be what is known as the old "National route."

This route is a straight line and very easy grade, and includes Plainfield and North Plainfield.

It has been re-staked, surveyed, once by the National road, which during the war tried to get a direct line to Washington, but was made about 1871, which crossed Somerset street between 200 and 300 yards west of Greenbrook road.

The Baltimore and Ohio R. R. surveyed the route in 1874 or 1875, and in 1893 a survey was made by the Lehigh Valley R. R. company. None of these surveys varied more than 500 yards.

The route is reported to contemplate a power house at Bound Brook, with branches to Somerville, Metuchen and New Brunswick. Another power house at Westfield with branches to Rahway and surrounding villages.

A modification of this plan is to have the main line run through Millstone, to Bound Brook connecting the Somerville route with the old National route at Gazelle. This would be on the line of the old National route, and has a natural grade exceeding along the base of the mountain to Plainfield, striking near Somerset street, crossing the present back of Stein's place, on the Greenbrook road, thence going through to near Mountain avenue, and so on to Elizabeth, Newark and New York, tapping villages and towns on the way.

Quite a number of times have been several surveys in the vicinity named, and the Trenchise which is above reported appears to complete the route so much talked of, and leave the path clear to the work of co-struction.

A Musical Treat.

Admirers of the great Bohemian composer, Anton Dvorak, will be glad of the opportunity of hearing some of his latest creations at the Chamber Music concert to take place at 306 West Eighth street on Saturday evening, January 27th.

Speaking of a concert at Carnegie Hall given by the Beethoven String Quartette, the New York Sun says: "Last night's entertainment began in the most suspicious manner, with a quartet by Anton Dvorak, whose genial music at one end of the room was supplemented by his genial presence at the other, the composer occupying the most unobtrusive seat in the very last row of chairs. Such enthusiasm as greeted his composition must have been in the highest degree gratifying to Dvorak. A great part of the excellence of the Dvorak performance must be accredited to the pianist, Mr. Ulysse Buhler. The performance of the club was absolutely flawless throughout the evening."

Citizen's Organized Aid Association Householders' Tickets.

It is desired to remind the householders of Plainfield of the tickets issued by the Citizens' Organized Aid Association and now procurable at the office of the Association, corner of Park avenue and North avenue. One of these tickets may be given to any person applying for aid at the door or on the street, and on presentation at the office signed by the door, the applicant's case will be promptly investigated and a proper disposition made of it. If the donor desires to give $10, rather, he will receive from the agent at the office the result of the investigation.

Concert at Brookside Retreat.

The inmates at the Brookside Retreat, on Somerset street, were treated to some fine music and singing yesterday afternoon, from four to six. It was a regular monthly concert. Prof. Coode and Rogers rendered some excellent selection on violin and piano and Mrs. Collier sang.

It Pays.

It pays to take and read the papers, especially your own home daily. Often in this way good business opportunities are brought to your attention. For instance, if you wish to secure a good paying situation, then you had better look up the advertisement of H. F. Johnson & Co., Richmond, Va., in another column. EDITORIAL NOTES

About Mortgaged Farms.

Mr. Herbert Myrick has been at pains to collate from the reports of the census bureau some statistics of the mortgaged farms of the United States. The figures seem to show that the facts in reference to farm mortgages in this country have been greatly overstated.

Mr. Myrick gives the result of his investigations in the American Agriculturist. Further, he concludes from the figures he has had access to that one year's hay crop in the United States would pay off all the farm mortgages in existence in this country today. The amount of farm mortgages increased immensely, however, from 1880 to 1890, so that from assuming up in round numbers $2,235,000,000 in 1880, they amounted to $6,710,000,000 in 1890. But meantime $20,000,000 new farms were opened to cultivation between 1880 and 1890. Really, therefore, the increased crop of mortgages is a sign of progress and agricultural enterprise instead of a going down hill on the part of farmers. Fully four-fifths of the $671,000,000 of mortgage debt was incurred to buy and improve the farms themselves.

Thirty-three of the states and territories have reported sufficiently to come at the truth in regard to the mortgage question. From their records it is to be inferred that 70 per cent of our farms are all paid for. On the mortgaged lands the debt averages 44 per cent of their value, or $18 an acre. Thirty dollars per acre is considered to be the average value of farms in the United States.

The farm lands of Missouri are probably most heavily mortgaged of any, the mortgage indebtedness there exceeding half the value of the acres. While the amount of the mortgages there is large, however, the number of acres mortgaged is small, including only about one-fourth the number of the taxed acres of Missouri. While the amount of farm mortgages has increased so largely apparently, relatively it has in fact diminished. In 1880 one-fifth of all the mortgage indebtedness of the country rested on farm property. In 1890 only one-seventh of the mortgage indebtedness was on farms. Another bit of agricultural statistics not so cheerful, however, is the table showing that, while in 1880 only one-fourth of the American farmers were tenants, in 1890 fully one-third of them were such.

The Tehuantepec Railroad.

At least five times the attempt has been made to build a railroad across the isthmus of Tehuantepec in Mexico. The first was made soon after the close of our civil war by an American company. The Mexican government gave them moral support, but no money, just as it did the English company that tried the job after the American organization burst. The English corporation burst in turn and sold out to another American company, which went the way of its predecessors. So did the next company. The Tehuantepec interoceanic railway seemed hoodooed. Ten years ago the Mexican government, feeling the new impulse toward internal improvements, itself took up the task and sought to break the spell of bad luck.

Not at first could this be done, however. The evil fate pursued the enterprise still until early this year. Then the Mexican government was able to borrow money to complete the work.

The road will be about 150 miles long, solidly constructed of the best material. It is to be finished within the next two months. The United States will have almost as much cause to rejoice as Mexico, for it will open a new and quick route to the Pacific from all our Atlantic and gulf ports. The mouth of the Coatzacoalcos river is the northern terminus of the road, while a harbor in the gulf of Campeche is the southern one. Much work yet remains to be done in preparing those harbors for the entrance of deep sea vessels. Steamers from New Orleans can reach the new railroad in two days.

The time will yet come when wind, tide and river current will be utilized to furnish all the mechanical power that is needed in their vicinity. A gentleman interested in electricity in an amateur way in Montreal, Mr. Eugene Baldwin, has captured the wind and made it light his house by electricity. He constructed a windwheel. This, being turned by the air currents, conveyed motion to a dynamo which illuminated Mr. Baldwin's whole house with electric lights. Why not?

We discover how much more fortunate we are than other nations when we read how other governments—Spain, for instance—have the right to postpone elections when they fear the result may go against them. The Spanish parliament last summer postponed the municipal elections. Pezzoto, the so called president of Brazil, has done likewise, putting off by his mandate the parliamentary elections that were to take place next March till May.

The Republicans, in deciding in their congressional caucus that they will not oppose any dilatory tactics to measures brought forward by the majority party, evidently believe they are adopting the principle of giving the Democrats rope enough and letting them hang themselves.

DIED FROM BURNS.

RUN INTO BY A TRAIN.

The wagon of Adam Johnson, a farmer of Bridgeton, was struck by a West Jersey Railroad train at the Carll's Corner crossing, just above Bridgeton, Sunday morning. The wagon was completely wrecked. Mr. Johnson was buried to the ground, but escaped with several cuts on the head and the partial loss of one ear.

FELL INTO BOILING SOAP.

Little Edna Niece, daughter of Joseph Neice, of Kingwood township, narrowly escaped a horrible fate one day recently. Her mother had just removed from the stove a pot of boiling soap, and set it down on the hearth. Edna, who was thickly clothed, came in from play at that time, and in stepping backward tripped and fell into the boiling caldron. She was instantly extricated by her mother and her clothing removed before any serious harm resulted. Had it not been for her heavy wraps fatal effects must have followed.

SCHOOLS CLOSED ON ACCOUNT OF DIPTHERIA.

Diptheria is epidemic at Stewartsville, Warren county, and the public schools are closed in consequence. A number of deaths have occurred and there is general alarm in the community. One family, that of Uncertaker Nolan, has lost three children by the disease. It is presumed they contracted the disease from germs communicated by Mr. Nolan in his business.

HAY IN A MOW FOR 45 YEARS.

The Hunterdon Independent states that Whitfield Littenhouse, residing near Kingwood Presbyterian church, recently removed a load of hay from a mow in which it was placed in 1848. It was apparently in as good condition as when placed in the mow so years ago.

A freak in the poultry yard of D. V. L. Schenck, down in Delaware township, is a one winged hen, now nearly a year old. She has been sighted by nature, it is true, to the extent of uniting her for flying into the garden, but she can lay eggs alongside of the most perfectly hatched hen on the premises.

LAST OF THE LEHIGH STRIKE.

The four deputy sheriffs who have been retained by the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company to guard their yards in Perth Amboy were discharged yesterday, as the company anticipates no further trouble from the strikers.

Thirty of the strikers have not succeeded in being reinstated. The money due them from the Switchers' fund has not been paid, and the men are beginning to despair.

VISITED BY HORSE THIEVES.

Thieves broke into the barn of John Voorhis of River Edge, N. J., about midnight Monday and stole his best team of horses and a carriage valued at $300.

PIGNIT IS WANTED IN SOMERVILLE.

James Pignit, an Englishman, who drove a beer wagon for Zeita Bros., of Easton, left town suddenly on Saturday morning and has not been seen since.

He left numerous creditors behind him and last week gave Hotel-keeper Van Arsdale a check for $20, signed by himself, which went to protest. He also leaves a wife and child.

Dunellen Bowlers to Bowl on New York Alleys.

Tuesday night, Jan. 23, the Dunellen Bowling Club will bowl a final game with the Kingstons of Staten Island. Each club has so far won two games. The game will be bowled on neutral ground, and so both clubs will meet at Seed's alleys, on Church street, New York.

The Dunellen Club has also won two games from the West Ends of Somerville and lost two. The deciding game with their club will be rolled on Thursday night, February 1st.

The return game between the Dunellen and Union County Roadsters of Rahway, which was to have been bowled on the 20th, has been post-poned.

Advice From a Slot Machine.

"A year or so ago," said a young man to a Philadelphia Ledger reporter, "I spent a few weeks in New Orleans. One day I saw a machine which bore the inscription, "Drop a nickel in the slot and learn how to make your pants last.' As I hadn't a great deal of money I thought an investment of five cents to show me how to save the pants I had a pair or trousers would be small capital put to good use, so I dropped a nickel in and a card appeared. What do you suppose it recommended as the way to make your trousers last?"

"Don't wear 'em, I suppose,"

"No."

What did it say?"

"Make your coat and vest first."

Tariff Agitation Closes an Elizabeth Factory.

The large works of the J. W. Fowler Car Company in Elizabeth have shut down for an indefinite period. Three hundred men are thrown out of work. The plant was completed last September, and the firm did a good business until the tariff agitation was begun by Congress.

According to the secretary of the company the shutting down of the works is due to a lack of orders, the firm's customers refusing to buy until the Wilson bill is disposed of.

An Angry Driver Made Them Walk.

A skating party that went from Westfield to Echo Lake a couple of evenings ago had a hard time getting home again. On the return the ladies driving threw the driver from his seat, and because his passengers laughed at his mishap he became angry, and compelled all of them to get out of the sleigh and walk home, a distance of about two miles. Offers of extra pay had no effect on the driver. It was about 3 o'clock in the morning when the weary and footsore party reached Westfield.

Ground Hog Day.

Candlemas, or groundhog day, February 2d, is nearly at hand. On this day, according to popular tradition, the groundhog prognosticates the weather for the following six weeks. It may be observed quietly that if Winter does not put on its severe tongue boots and hurry along, the ground hog will catch up with it.

FATHERLAND REJOICES.

Emperor William and Prince Bismarck Make It All Up.

THE KAISER TOOK THE FIRST STEP.

Two Months Was Sent With an Olive Branch in the Shape of a Note and a Bottle of Rare Old Wine to the Iron Chancellor.

BERLIN, Jan. 24.—Emperor William of Germany has apparently become reconciled to Prince Bismarck, and the latter will probably visit the emperor in Berlin shortly after the latter's birthday celebration on Saturday next.

The news of the reconciliation has caused the utmost satisfaction throughout Germany and has increased the emperor's popularity. The news has also strengthened the government, as it is stated that Prince Bismarck is in accord with Chancellor von Caprivi and Marschall von Bieberstein, the imperial secretary of state for foreign affairs.

Emperor William delights in surprises, and thus it was, according to the story, that he arranged the culmination of his intention to seek a reconciliation with Bismarck to leak out until after their reconciliation was accomplished. Little by little the facts in the case have trickled out, and it would seem that the reconciliation was brought about entirely by the emperor himself and that he accomplished it in a most graceful manner.

Von Moltke Bore the Peace Offering.

The aid-de-camp of Emperor William, Colonel Count von Moltke, arrived at Friedrichsruhe on Monday evening and sought an interview with Prince Bismarck, which was readily granted. Colonel von Moltke, it appears, was the bearer of an autograph letter from Emperor William to the ex-chancellor congratulating the latter upon his recovery from his recent attack of influenza and begging him to accept a bottle of very old and valuable wine from the imperial cellars, which Colonel von Moltke was also charged to convey to the distinguished German statesman.

Prince Bismarck is said to have been much affected by the kind messages conveyed to him by the emperor's aid-de-camp, and the best of feeling is reported to have been displayed on both sides. Colonel von Moltke was so successful in pleasing Prince Bismarck that the latter soon royally invited him to take a drive about the neighborhood of Friedrichsruhe, but also invited him to dine at the castle. The emperor's aid-de-camp accepted both these fivitations and returned to Berlin bearing, it is said, an autograph letter from Prince Bismarck to the emperor, in which the iron Chancellor thanked his imperial majesty for his extreme kindness and thoughtfulness and assured the emperor that he, Prince Bismarck, would be most pleased to wait upon his majesty after the latter's birthday celebration.

The greatest importance is attached in this city and throughout Germany to the reconciliation between Prince Bismarck and Emperor William as heralded by the present of the bottle of wine. Especial attention is paid to the effect which the reconciliation will have upon the internal policy of Germany, much comment being made upon the announcement that Prince Bismarck, in addition to being reconciled to Emperor William, is also in full accord with Chancellor von Caprivi and with the present secretary of state for foreign affairs, Baron Marschall von Bieberstein.

Made the Fatherland Rejoice.

The reconciliation, as announced, has served to increase the popularity of the emperor, of his chancellor and of the government, as there is no doubt that a very great number of people in Germany objected to the exiling practically from all and from participation in the affairs of the empire of the great German statesman who laid the foundation of German unity and who built upon them the empire of Germany.

The effect of the news of the reconciliation between the emperor and the ex-chancellor was most marked. There was a general rise in stocks and bonds on the bourse, and a much stronger and more healthy feeling prevailed on all sides. The newspapers hail the announcement of the reconciliation as the happiest event which has happened in Germany for a long while, and the people everywhere give evidence of joyful excitement and thanksgiving.

In the reichstag the statement of Herr Kardorff, a Conservative, that it was not the existing distress could only be relieved by the protection of national labor, which, he added, Prince Bismarck had initiated, was greeted with loud cheering, and loud and prolonged applause was occasioned by Herr Kardorff's announcement that he felt the reconciliation at Prince Bismarck's journey to Berlin.

One of the results of the reconciliation between the emperor and Prince Bismarck is that preparations to celebrate the emperor's birthday on Saturday next have been multiplied, and that this event will now probably be made the signal for a general outburst of patriotic enthusiasm throughout Germany.

The excitement and satisfaction are not confined to political circles. In the army, among the bourgeoisie, among the clergy, among the aristocracy and among the peasants—here, there and everywhere—all ranks, all ages and all conditions of people, rejoice to hear that there is no longer any angry feeling between the ruler of the German empire and the great servant of the country, who has done so much for German strength and unity.

Thus it is that the approaching meeting between Emperor William and Prince Bismarck will be a memorable one in the history of Germany, and one which will find an echo of sympathy in every patriotic heart not only throughout the German empire, but wherever the German language is spoken.

TROOPS WERE HISSED.

Florida's Militia Surlily Received In Jacksonville.

GEORGIA'S SOLDIERS READY TOO.

Corbett and Mitchell Done Training, but the Prospects For the Big Prize Fight Are Still Very Uncertain—That $25,000 Check Not Cashed Yet.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 24.—Will the fight be pulled off in the arena in the city of Jacksonville, as originally proposed, or not? is the question that is agitating the minds of the people today. The consensus of opinion seems to be that it will. This feeling is based on the belief that Judge Call's temporary injunction against the sheriff and his officers will be made permanent after the hearing of the arguments today.

The governor's views on the matter were sharply defined when the Second battalion of state troops arrived in the city under the command of Major Lovell. As the cars stopped the militia, under command of their respective officers, came bundling out of the cars, each soldier in heavy marching equipment and wearing regulation uniform. A few minutes later the command to fall in was given, and the four companies lined alongside the coaches.

Reception on the Street.

The humor of the spectators soon found its peaks in their manifest, and the soldiers were greeted with remarks of ridicule. The first person to brave the displeasure of the state troops was a small negro boy, who pulled out in glee, "You may bring your guns, but you can't stop the fight!" The remark proved infectious, and similar remarks were hurled at the unoffending sons of Mars.

"Where is the governor?" "Go back home" and expressions of a like nature rang out while the soldiers were wheeling and turning. A detail of several men was placed in charge of the baggage, and the remainder of the militia, under the command of their officers, marched up to Bay street and thence out to the Wilson Battery armory. Something of a sensational nature occurred when the soldiers were passing in front of the Globe saloon. All the way up the street they were met with derisive yells and hisses, occasional taunting remarks being sandwiched in.

Crowds thronged the sides, the galleries and the windows, and a great commotion was created. In front of the Globe saloon there was an unusually large crowd, which gave vent to its displeasure by such a volume of hisses that it must have made the ears of the soldiers tingle. The hisses increased until the noise became a growl, when suddenly the soldiers, under an order from their captains, lowered their guns to a position to load and went through the motion, whether they did or not. This significant action was the cue received by the crowd and only renewed the ridicule. The soldiers, however, kept their guns "at present" for several blocks, when they were given the order to carry arms. The battalion marched in and were lined up in battalion while the general orders were read them.

One private went so far as to say that had they not received strict orders not to fire unless commanded some one in the crowd would have been hurt when the hissing began.

Ready to Shoot.

"If we face a mob," said one lieutenant, "and get orders to fire, we will do so, and not in the air either. Our boys were brought up with guns in their hands, and they can hit a man, I guess, across the street. After the treatment we received I know my men are very ill humored, and I believe that they will shoot to kill should occasion require it." Similar expressions were voiced by others of the battalion, and the fact is evident that there is much bad feeling among the boys in blue from the outside districts over the reception accorded them by a large portion of the people on Jacksonville's streets.

Speaking of Judge Call's probable decision on the injunction, Manager Bowden said:

"If the judge says that this contest is against the law, then we will at once declare the fight off and it will be held nowhere. If, however, the judge simply refuses the injunction on some technicality and does not pass on the law question, then we will go ahead and pull off the fight where it will not be interfered with."

"In the woods"

"Yes."

"What woods?"

"Florida woods."

No Cash In Sight Yet.

Referee Kelly did not get the cold cash he was looking for, and the club takes the position that it will not take any action now toward converting the check into cash of the realm until some decisive point is reached in the legal proceedings pending, notwithstanding Kelly's statement of "No money, no fight."

The talk that a postponement of the fight was proposed seems to have been extremely distasteful to Charley Mitchell, who, in an interview at Anastasia island, said he would consent to no postponement "unless it was made worth his while."

The members of the Duval Athletic club late last night said there was no danger of the fight being declared off. They also said that rumors to this effect which had been circulated were unfounded. Corbett money was a little more plentiful than in Mitchell money was a little more plentiful than in Mitchell money was a little more plentiful than in Mitchell

COAL ON THE FREE LIST

Committee Defeats All Amendments After Hard Fighting.

SUGGESTS MAY ENDANGER THE BILL.

Now the Southern Sugar Men and the Coal Men Are Disgruntled and May Vote in Secession—Foreign Relations Committee Reports on Hawaiian Resolution.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The house has determined on the abolition of the duty upon refined sugar, which was passed upon just before the house adjourned Monday night as an amendment to an amendment offered by Mr. Robertson, one of the Louisiana sugar men. A way out of the confusion which existed upon the effect of the amendment adopted Monday night was found after a two hours' discussion of the parliamentary situation by substituting the question to the house as to whether the Warner amendment placing refined sugar on the free list should be considered as a substitute for the Robertson amendment.

This was decided affirmatively, and then by an overwhelming vote, in which the Republicans joined with the radical Democrats against the sugar men and several members of the ways and means committee, the substitute was adopted. With regard to the sugar schedule, therefore, the committee of the whole has abolished the tariff and placed all sugar, both raw and refined, upon the free list.

Coal Amendments Beaten.

When it came to consider the coal schedule, however, the committee fared much better, and all four of the amendments agreed to place a duty of from 40 to 75 cents per ton upon coal were beaten.

The debate upon the coal schedule developed a great deal of feeling among the northern members, especially those from Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee and Alabama, whose states are interested either in coal or iron ore. The general impression is that the defeat of the sugar men and of those who are interested in retaining a duty upon coal will result in strengthening the movement developed on the Democratic side to reconsider the bill.

If the iron men are defeated today, and especially if the income tax should be placed upon the bill as a rider later in the week, another strong faction on the Democratic side will be added to this movement. The Republicans will all vote for the motion to reconsider, and with the Democrats who are not care to vote against the bill openly, but who are not satisfied with it in its present form, they may be able to muster a majority to send it back to the committee. This is now admitted on all hands to be the chief danger to the bill. It could be brought to a direct vote, there is no question as to its passing.

The night session was devoted to set speeches. The speakers were Messrs. Tale of Georgia, Hall of Minnesota, Wilson of Ohio, Hartshorn of Missouri, Patterson of Tennessee, Baker of New Hampshire, Taylor of Indiana and Beltzhoover of Pennsylvania.

The speech of Mr. Beltzhoover created the sensation of the evening. He announced himself a follower of Samuel J. Randall on the tariff question. He opposed the Wilson bill on the ground that instead of being a revenue measure, in accordance with the Democratic platform, it created a deficiency and was in fact simply a shifting of the burdens of taxation. He was patriotically severe in his criticism of the income tax portion, which invaded the domain of state taxation. He would vote for the bill, but only in the hope that it would be amended to conform to his ideas in the senate. He only spoke three minutes.

Sympathy Strirred by Hawaiian Talk.

The Hawaiian controversy again came before the senate. Early in the day Senator Turpie of Indiana reported from the committee on foreign relations a resolution declaring against the annexation of Hawaii, but favoring the speedy recognition by the provisional government and rejecting that foreign interference would be considered as unfriendly to the United States government.

The Hawaiian resolution, which was as follows, went over under the rules:

Resolved, That the facts submitted to the senate it is unwise and inexpedient under the existing conditions to consider at this time any project of annexation of the Hawaiian Islands to the United States; that the provisional government therein having been duly recognized, the highest international interest requires that it shall pursue its own line of policy. Foreign intervention in the political affairs of these islands is unjustifiable, and will be regarded by the United States.

Later in the day Senator Cullom of Illinois made a speech in favor of the Frye resolution of noninterference by America in Hawaiian affairs.

In his opening remarks Senator Cullom reviewed briefly the history of Hawaii and the events which led to the revolution of last year, concluding with the deposal by the queen when she attempted to revoke the constitution of 1887. He spoke in sharp terms of this action and then directly attacked the policy of the administration.

He closed by saying, "No other president of any party during our history of nearly 120 years has ever put this people in an attitude of contempt and shame, subject to popular derision and made us the laughing stock before an enlightened world."

The bill to repeal the federal elections law was taken up. Senator Wilson of Iowa made an argument against it, and Senator Chandler submitted some arguments by offering to postpone consideration of the bill until December next.

NOW A NAVAL BATTLE.

Peixoto's Dynamite Throwers Succeeded Down on Mello.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 24.—After a long delay, puzzling alike to the people who consider loyal to the government and to the insurgent leaders, Peixoto has given orders to the new warships purchased in Great Britain and the United States to sail southward and begin the long expected naval contest which in all probability will decide the struggle for supremacy between Brazil's chief magistrate and those who are seeking to overthrow him.

Word was received here that the Niethercy, Amerika, Aurora and Parnahyba reached Bahia on their way from Pernambuco to Rio. They are reported to be fully manned and in a better condition for fighting than it was supposed their officers would be able to get them, considering the fact their crews are made up of mixed nationalities.

The dynamite gun aboard the Niethercy has been subjected to a number of further tests and is now said to be working to the satisfaction of the officers of that vessel.

A great deal of comment has been excited by the visit of the insurgent Admiral da Gama to Admiral Benham. It confirms the rumors current here for some time past. Da Gama has made proposals to Admiral Benham to act as mediator between the insurgents and the Brazilian government, and Admiral Benham has had four hours. The nature of it up to the time of sending this dispatch is kept a secret. The information that the government's war vessels had sailed from Pernambuco, it is believed, was conveyed to Da Gama by some of his adherents in the north, and his visit to Admiral Benham was the result of this news."

COURTS MUST DECIDE.

Governor Werts Will Settle the Senate Trouble by a Test Case.

TRENTON, Jan. 24.—It is currently reported here that Governor Werts has instructed Attorney General Stockton to prepare quo warranto proceedings to determine which of the two senates now in existence is the legal body. At the same time he is said to have requested the chief justice to call a special session of the supreme court in order that these proceedings may be instituted and the senate muddle cleared up.

The governor suggested such a proceeding to the Republican senators and requested that they designate one of their number upon whom service could be had and that the proceeding be a friendly one, both sides agreeing to abide by the decision of the court. The Republicans discussed the matter at length in their conference and decided to oppose any such proceeding. If service is to be made at all, it must be made upon all the senators.

They do not propose to delegate their rights as senators to any other body or to abide by any other decision than that of their own body. They say if the governor wants to get the matter before the courts, let him proceed upon some of the bills which they may pass. Otherwise they will appeal only to the people. Both houses have adjourned for the week.

Miners Threaten to Burn the Works.

MCDONALD, Pa., Jan. 24.—The turbulent spirit of the dissatisfied miners in this region, particularly at Finleyville and the Patton mines, is cropping out here. The following telegram from F. L. Robbins of the Robbins Coal company, operating here, was sent to Sheriff Cherry at Washington: "A mob of striking miners armed at our Jumbo mines, Nos. 1 and 2, and terrorized over employes. They have threatened to remove boiler and burn the works down if the men now working do not stop. We must have protection." Sheriff Cherry at once dispatched enough officers to protect the works.

President Cleveland Attends a Funeral.

HARTFORD, Jan. 24.—President Cleveland arrived here today to attend the funeral of his nephew, Henry H. Hoadley, which occurs today. He was accompanied by his sister, Miss Rose Cleveland, and Private Secretary Thurber. Mr. Hoadley was a favorite with the president and was at the White House several weeks at a time. After the funeral the president will start back to Washington immediately. He suggests he be at his desk Thursday. The trip will be made as quietly as possible.

A large amount of gold bullion, the presence of which in the vessel was kept a secret, will be taken ashore as soon as there are any signs of the steamer going to pieces.

NEW LABORATORY BURNED.

Purdue University's Recently Completed Mechanical Department Destroyed.

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Jan. 24.—The great mechanical laboratory of Purdue university is in ruins—the result of a fire which broke out in the engine room. The building began a year ago and was dedicated last Friday, Governor Matthews having accepted it in the name of the state. The main portion was a two story structure, with a great central tower 125 feet in height. This, together with two one-story wings, all of brick and stone, covered nearly an acre and a quarter of ground. The equipment was now one of the best, including a new passenger locomotive and movable tracks, a number of Westinghouse and Corliss compound and cutoff engines and a vast collection of scientific apparatus, constituting one of the most notable mechanical laboratories in the United States.

The flames were fanned by a stiff wind, and owing to an inadequate water supply the fire made rapid headway until after two hours nothing but crumbling walls remained. The building cost $100,000 and was accepted from the contractors only Monday. Immediate steps will be taken to rebuild, and in the meantime the mechanical department will be conducted in other quarters.

Legislators Met a Cool Reception.

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 24.—The house of representatives, pursuant to a careless adjournment from Newport to the fourth instead of the last Tuesday in January, when they met at the statehouse, found the chamber dismantled, cold and cheerless. The steering committee and their colleagues were obliged to repair to one of the committee rooms. One faction was pronounced for war by refusal to enter into any legislation, including the passage of the appropriation bill by which the several departments may be operated, until the senate joined in the grand committee to count the votes for state officers at the last April election. Colonel Hosley of Newport was the leader of the conservatives, who were victorious. A recess was taken till Tuesday next.

—Assemblyman Codding has been asked to introduce a bill to have the whipping post made the means of punishment for wife beaters, the same as it is in Delaware. The Assemblyman has been urged by others to secure the passage of such a bill. There is a peculiarly brutal case reported—the case of a prominent family—in this city, and the general feeling of the community seems to be that such punishment ought to be meted out to the offender. The wife is said to be restrained from making complaint through intimidation. It is said that her husband, who spends much of his time drinking in saloons, has threatened to take his wife's life if she should "disgrace" him by exposure. Imagine exposure disgracing a man who would do such a thing to his wife.

"Jerry" is Well Again.

Last Friday, "Jerry," one of Gabolle's engine horses, became lame in the right fore leg. It was thought he had strained the muscle of the leg while being used to draw dirt from the old railroad embankment above Richmond street, to the gravel pit. The team was compelled to stop, as the through mud six inches deep to get their load to its destination. "Jerry" was left in the stable and given such good care by driver "Mike" Seader that the lameness disappeared, and yesterday "Jerry" was put to work again.

Bowling and Banquet To-Night.

The Catholic Young Men's Lyceum have been making extensive preparation for a grand time at their club house to-night. DIED INTESTATE.

THE LATE WILLIAM J. LOWE LEFT NO WILL.

And Now There is to be a Fight Over his Estate Between a Brother of the Deceased and Mrs. Lowe.

An interesting contest over an estate developed in the Union County Orphans' Court, at Elizabeth, yesterday. William J. Lowe, who kept the old Bridge House, at South Plainfield, recently intestate, leaving a widow and child. Mrs. Mary E. Lowe applied for letters of administration to the Surrogate of Union County. She found, however, that a caveat contrested her, having been filed by the dead man's brother, Thomas E. Lowe, of Morristown, who objected to her inheriting the property on the ground, as alleged, she had a husband living in Morristown when she married his brother. The matter was then referred to the Orphans' Court for consent and came up before Judge McCormack.

It was alleged by the contestant's lawyer that Mrs Lowe had not been divorced from her former husband when she wedded again, but the Court ruled that the burden of proving this rested with the contestant, and the latter not having such evidence forthcoming, Surrogate Parrot was ordered to take testimony in the case and afterward submit it to the Court. Ex-Assemblyman T. M. Kelly was appointed administrator pendante lite until such time as the controversy is settled. Mr. Kelly gave bonds to the amount of $12,000 for the performance of his duty.

The New Flooring at the Jersey Central Depot.

But few of the thousands of people who go through the Central R. R. depot at Jersey City know the reason why the floor is being taken up and the wooden timbers replaced by iron girders and brick arches under the flagging.

It is only about five years since the flooring was put down new, yet in that short space of time the beams have crumbled to pieces with dry rot, because there was no proper ventilation. It is a common thing for builders not to give sufficient attention to this question of ventilation, not realizing that a plentiful supply of pure air is as essential to the life of wood as to human beings, and that stagnant air quickly takes the life from the wood, with the same result as in this case.

Some of the wise acres were shaking their heads last night while looking at the new construction, and one man, pointing to the iron girders, declared history repeated itself, they are making the same mistake again. Iron needs ventilation from the foul damp air, which is sure in time to injure it.

The main depot of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Jersey City is having new iron girders and arches put in.

Levied on Mr. Page's Property.

Sheriff Kyte made the levy and also an appraisement. The property comprises two valuable tracts on Seventh street on which buildings are located. One tract is appraised as being worth not less that $15,000 and the other $5,000.

Plainfielders Helped Surprise Him.

Tuesday evening two Plainfielders, Messrs. Kurzhalz, Fitz, and G. Van Middlesworth, took a prominent part in a surprise party at Madison. The surprise was on Mr. Edward Palmer. Mr. Palmer was taken to a lodge meeting by the Plainfielders, until all the guests had arrived at the house and then the unsuspecting one was gotten out of the lodge room on the pretext that his guests were compelled to leave at that time for home. Mr. Palmer insisted that they should go to his house before departing for their homes in this city. The crowd and the fun went marching home. The surprise was complete. The party was also attended by another Plainfielder, Miss Dollie Bosterli.

NEW JERSEY PROPERTY.

REAL AND PERSONAL PROPERTY IN THE STATE.

Every County Shows an Increase in Valuation Over Last Year—Union County's Increase $1,928,897.

The State Board of Taxation has completed a tabulation of the real and personal property in New Jersey taxed under the General Taxation Laws. The figures at hand show an increase over last year in the total valuation, as well some interesting facts as to the small percentage of personal property in proportion to the real estate. The great disparagement gives rise to considerable speculation and leads to the conclusion that a large part of the personal property evades taxation.

This is more clearly made apparent by the fact that in the agricultural counties, where the proportion of personal property would naturally be the smallest the percentage returned is much larger than in the commercial counties. This is explained on the theory that in the agricultural counties the personal property is more easily discovered.

The total assessed valuation in the state, exclusive of Monmouth County, is $795,122,842. Adding to this the estimated valuation in the latter county, the entire total is brought up to $798,347,000.

Of this amount the real estate aggregates, in round numbers, $656,000,000 and the personal property $142,347,000. The percentage of real estate is .81 and that of the personal property .19.

Last year the total assessed valuation was $792,321,183, of which $654,098,664 was real estate and $148,222,519 was personal property. The percentage of real estate was .811 and of personal property .189.

Every county in the state shows an increase in valuation over last year. The valuation by counties, with the exception of Monmouth, is as follows:

Atlantic—Real estate, $14,977,669; personal $2,594,874; increase $1,648,558.

Bergen—Real estate, $19,097,851; personal, $2,952,555.

A Talk about Hand Shakes.

At a recent social event in the borough the question of telling character by the clasp of the hand as given greeting came up and was discussed with much interest, the company being about equally divided in their views about it. In this matter the following remarks of a physician will be of interest:

"Let me shake hands with a man and I will tell you something about his character," said a physician to the delegate. "I do not mean that the hand of a rough man may be rather rough, as that one is taught by has a grip, but it indicates stamina. While denoting absence of tact and refinement, it points to strength of character.

"The hesitating, insinuating hand that slips away from you easily belongs to the clever man. It is peculiar to the Irish. Its owner is shrewd, never embarrassed, and skilled at repartee. The flabby hand that returns no pressure belongs to the man who would not go out of his way to meet you. The quick, nervous shake of the hand comes from nervous temperament, and its opposite, the nerveless, passive one, belongs to person in ill health. The hand that clasps yours and lingers is generally cold. It is the same with the man whose touch reminds you like that of a snake. Idlers shake harder and longer than other people. Such a shake augurs more or much as loud speech that has nothing in it.

Sunday-school Class For Ladies.

The second term of the Plainfield Normal School begins on the 29th inst. By request a class has been formed for ladies of mature years, or those from 21 to 50 years of age, for instruction in the elementary school studies, the same principles will be applied in the afternoon for Normal Training. A specialty will be made, during the term, of "Memory" or hand from work. A class for ladies, in their work, will meet twice a week.

The perfect attendance of the scholars who have attended during the first term has been very satisfactory, specimens of their work can be exhibited at the school 308 East Front street.

For terms, which are very reasonable, apply to Isaac Dunster, at the school during the day or at 414 East Sixth street after six o'clock p. m. 16 1f

The returns of the conditions of National Banks in the State of New Jersey on December 18th, show the reserve to have been 27.73 per cent.; and discounts $47,008,800, lawful money reserve $3,252,000, of which $2,000,000 is in gold, and individual deposits, $49,392,000.

The Unkindest Cut of All.

Plainfield is supposed to be a city of the wealthy. Some of its residents travel extensively and evening on men's record expressly for them and a considerable part of its population is composed of persons fairly indeed. But just crossing the grocers of the city well, compared prices, and discovered that in many fashionable Plainfield there are 600 persons, all presumable heads of families, who not only pay a marked indisposition or inability to pay their bills. The grocers harbor the suspicion that only a few of these delinquents are worth much. Now, these lents are more plentiful in most communities as Plainfield, but to say anything of them is to incur the wrath of honest people imagine. Storekeepers should not, however, begin now heavily on books, for they have made the latter possible. If the storekeepers either refused to give credit or exercised discrimination in extending it your dead beat would be a rare bird and not the well to do old chatted fellow that he is. Plainfield merchants must be in a bad way when there are 600 names on the grocers' black list alone. The population of the city is only 11,267. Assume that each of the 600 represents four persons and you have almost one fourth of the entire population, "hanging up" the grocers' shears. That's a pretty showing for Plainfield!—Elizabeth Herald.

The Herald does Plainfield an injustice. The above does not represent the dead-beats of Plainfield alone. The grocers trade in North Plainfield, Somerset county, South Plainfield, Middlesex County, as well as Plainfield, Union County, which, though representing a population of 20,000, are all referred to separately in the census, or not at all. Incidentally it will surprise most people to know that Plainfield covers more ground than London—that is original London—which covers about two miles square. Such a statement without the explanation would be as misleading as the Herald's. The list referred to represents an accumulation of years in a changing population many times more than that credited.

We don't suppose there are any more here than in other places—Elizabeth for instance—but the merchants, the doctors, and dealers generally, are organized so that they can perhaps keep a better record of them. There is quite enough here, however, to show that it will be found that the average of one dead beat in every four persons is not above that of other places, where the worthy have to pay for the unworthy.

Crane's Annual Engagement.

William H. Crane, the comedian, will return to the Star Theatre on the 29th inst., for his annual engagement in New York City. He has arranged to make an elaborate revival of that most successful of American plays, "The Senator," and will present it with a special cast and new scenery and music.

This play, upon its original presentation in New York, ran for seventeen weeks and the season, it returned and remained for twenty-two weeks. This is certainly an enviable record. The play's success is due more to the fact that it exactly suits the sympathies of an audience. Then again the politician shown on the stage herein fore has generally been a rascal, and the authors of "The Senator" showed their good judgment in making the politician of their play, an upright, honest man, and one who could be admired for his sterling qualities.

NO BAR TO THE FIGHT.

Sheriff Enjoined, Troops Sent Home and Fighters Ready.

BIG ODDS PLACED ON CORBETT.

Jacksonville Swarming With Sports—All Eyes Turned on the Kingsbury City Council—Determination to Allow Any Interference—Troops Will Buy Tickets.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 25.—The prospects that Corbett and M. Mitchell will fight here today are of the best. Judge Call of the circuit court has declared himself upon the question of law and has said that there is no legal reason why the fight should not be held in the arena at Jacksonville. The militia which has been brought here to suppress the fight will very probably attend it, a special rate of $10 each having been made for them. They are very grateful to the governor.

In spite of the statement that the First battalion was ordered out, it did not put in appearance, even the Jacksonville company not being called to do duty further than to assemble at the armory for a few minutes, and then, of course, returned to their respective places of business. It is understood that some of the outside companies of the battalion were under arms, but the order in no sense was given.

Barriers Burned Away.

The city council of Jacksonville resolved to meet in special session this morning to consider the situation in all of its various aspects, but as this action was decided upon before it was learned that the governor had determined not to declare martial law it is highly probable that no action of great importance will be taken. The members of the council are determined, however, to uphold the "dignity of the city" against any unwarranted official infringement.

Mitchell is in his room at the Hotel Everetts, and Corbett is at the St. James. All obstacles to the fight have been removed, there seems at the present moment to be absolutely nothing which can prevent its coming off.

The excitement in the city has been intense over the question of whether or not the temporary injunction would be made permanent, but neither Governor Mitchell would declare martial law and whether he would send more troops. All these questions are now at rest, and the interest in the fight is greater at this moment than it has ever been. The late trains last night brought in hundreds of sporting men, who are thronging the streets and packing the hotels to overflowing.

The betting is more strongly in favor of Corbett than at any time yet. Both men are said to be in very good condition, and both have declared that they will make the effort of their lives. The bitter feeling between them has been intensified of late, and the struggle without a doubt will be a desperate one.

Attorney General Lamar gave out a statement announcing that he would abide by the decision of the circuit court and that contemplated action by the state would only be taken after the contest, provided that the ruling of the court on the final answer of the sheriff should correspond with that of yesterday.

Adjutant General Houston received orders late last night from Governor Mitchell instructing him to order the troops of the Second battalion to their homes. They will be dismissed today, but will probably remain until after the fight.

Mitchell Is Modest.

Following the announcement of Judge Call's decision the crowd at the Duval Athletic club was so great that it took half a dozen men to keep a pathway open for the pedestrians. The demand for tickets was such that the selling had almost presented wild confusion and a rush. Finally a scheme was arranged by which the men went in one at a time, feeding an agent at another door, and the stream of ticket buyers was continuous for hours. The citizens did not forget to advertise their victory.

Half an hour after the decision a band wagon filled with a brass band and having on it signs painted upon canvases announcing the Corbett-Mitchell fight rolled into Bay street from a side alley and was greeted by volleys of cheers as the band played Dixey's air.

Mitchell is very modest about the outcome of the fight and would only say: "I think I have a mighty good chance—much better than a 2 to 1 chance," when betting is mentioned. Corbett says he can lick me. He would be wiser for him to keep such remarks to himself until after the fight. There is some room for a walking tour talk like that. He never has licked me, and he don't know that he can. He only thinks he can. Well, I don't think so, and that's all there is to it."

He has not yet determined how he will arrange his friends in the ring, but Jim Hall, Steve O'Donnell, Jack Fogarty and Harry Durrin will probably be with him.

LAWMAKERS LIE LOW.

Utah's Republican Legislators Are In Hiding.

DO NOT WANT TO FILL A QUORUM.

Housekeeper and Custom Whey Run From the Capitol and Scattered For the Suburbs—Posse of Officials Hunting High and Low.

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 25.—A joint memorial to congress protesting against that portion of the Wilson bill removing the tariff from lead ores passed the house of the territorial legislature and was made a special order in the upper house.

This branch is composed of five Democrats and seven Republicans. There were but five Republicans and five Democrats present, two Republicans being absent from the city. The Republicans, seeing they could not pass the memorial, absented themselves from the chamber with the exception of the president.

Locked Out of a Quorum.

This left but six members—one short of a quorum. Republican members ran through the streets, leaving hats and coats behind, took suburban trains and street cars and sought seclusion in every possible way.

The sergeant-at-arms and his assistants, the United States marshal with 30 deputies, the sheriff with all his deputies and the chief of police with his officers, over 100 all told, were immediately sent in pursuit. Their services will cost several thousand dollars.

At last accounts no clew to the absentees was reported. The council was still in session, the Democrats refusing to adjourn.

STOLE AN ELECTRIC CAR.

Keorn's Drunken Freak Almost Ended in a Tragedy.

QUEBEC, Jan. 25.—A man named Keorn, slightly under the influence of liquor, ran away with an electric street car and came near killing a number of people.

An empty trolley car near the barn, he boarded it and turned on the electricity, with the result that the car started off at full speed, running down four or five people, two of whom were badly injured, and smashing up a butcher's cart.

After going about a mile he became afraid and managed to reverse the motor, whereupon the car went back as fast as it had come and knocked down three more people, collided with another car manned by street car employees and sent out to capture it, causing some $200 damage. Keorn was arrested.

Spies In Charleston Barely Escape Being Lynched by a Mob.

CHARLESTON, Jan. 25.—The first riot caused by the attempt to enforce the new dispensary law has occurred. A body of 400 armed citizens proceeded to the lodging house where the spies boarded with the intention of lynching them. The police, however, got wind of the affair, and the spies got out of the way.

There were a fusillade of pistol shots and much excitement. Willie Bellamonn was wounded in the back, but not fatally, and the crowd then slowly dispersed after finding that the spies were not at home.

All that's Yellow is not Cottolene

There's hardly a housekeeper in the country but has heard of Cottolene the new vegetable shortening. It is a strictly natural product; composed only of clarified cotton seed oil, thickened for convenience in use, with refined beef suet, pure and sweet. So composed,

COTTOLENE

Was bound to win, and to drive out lard from the kitchens of the world. When housekeepers wish to get rid of the unpleasant features and results of lard, they should get Cottolene, taking care that they are not given cheap imitations with vegetable names, spuriously compounded to sell in the place of Cottolene.

It's easy to avoid disappointment and ensure satisfaction. Insist on having Cottolene.

AN AUTHORESS' DEAD.

Constance Fenimore Cooper Woolson Dies In Venice.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 25.—Mr. Samuel Mather of this city received a cablegram from Venice announcing the death of Constance Fenimore Cooper Woolson, the authoress. She was Mr. Mather's aunt.

Constance Fenimore Cooper Woolson, whose death is announced from Cleveland,

CONSTANCE FENIMORE COOPER WOOLSON.

was the grandniece of James Fenimore Cooper. She was born in Claremont, N. H., in 1848. While she was quite young her family removed to Cleveland. Her father died in 1876, and she has resided in Europe since 1879, when her mother died. Her writings, most of which first appeared in magazines, comprise "Castle Nowhere," "Rodman the Keeper," "Anne," "For the Major," "Jupiter Lights" and "East Angels."

A TRIUMPHAL ENTRY.

Like an Old War Hero Bismarck Will Receive Ovation in Berlin.

BERLIN, Jan. 25.—It is now definitely announced that Prince Bismarck will arrive in Berlin tomorrow. The prince will alight at the Lehrte or Hanoverian railroad station, where he will be received with great pomp. The route from there will be through the Brandenburg gate, at the west end of Unter den Linden, thence along the Unter den Linden to the imperial castle. Special trains will be run to Berlin on Friday and Saturday, and most of the cities of southern Germany will be decorated for the occasion.

Berlin itself will be thoroughly decorated and brilliantly illuminated at night. The authorities have announced their intention of turning out en masse, and windows along the route leading to the castle from the railroad depot at which the prince will alight are being hired at the highest prices. The different municipal bodies and very many of the Berlin societies are preparing to do honor to the ex-chancellor, who on his way to the castle will be surrounded by military and princely pomp of the most elaborate description.

In short the entry of Prince Bismarck into Berlin after so long an absence promises to draw immense crowds of people to this city and to be one of the most elaborate events ever witnessed in the German capital.

Party Lines Broken Through by the Income Tax.

IRON ORE PUT ON THE FREE LIST.

Fate of Minor Items of Tomorrow Internal Revenue Bill Was Reported to the Senate, Senator Voorhees Objects to the Bridge Bill Veto of the President.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The amendments to the iron schedule shared the same fate as those in the coal schedule. They were overwhelmingly defeated, and iron ore remains on the free list. The remainder of the afternoon was spent in the discussion of amendments looking to the free admission of machinery used in the manufacture of cotton goods.

Just before the house adjourned the attempts of friends and opponents of the income tax upon the Democratic side were arrayed against each other, the latter attempting to prevent Mr. McMillin from calling the previous question upon the bill in the usual way. The Republicans, however, joined hands with the income-taxers and defeated the small band of Democrats who have pledged themselves to use every effort to prevent the internal revenue bill containing the income tax from being placed upon the Wilson bill as a rider.

Mr. Wilson, chairman of the committee, who is in sympathy with them, allowed the debate upon the Robbins amendment to run on without interruption, it was said, for the express purpose of consuming time, so that the committee amendments which he has to offer will, when he again takes the floor, exhaust the debate until Saturday night and thus shut out the possibility of the internal revenue bill being offered as an amendment to the Wilson bill. A great deal of bitter feeling exists, however, and should such a programme be followed it would unquestionably lead to charges of bad faith.

Measuring Forces on the Income Tax.

It was at the conclusion of a speech by several Sickles that the first open struggle over the income tax was precipitated, and it showed the depth of feeling within the Democratic ranks upon this subject and revealed the fierce conflict which will ensue when it comes up for consideration. Mr. Wilson moved that the committee rise, and this motion was agreed to without objection, Speaker Crisp resuming the chair.

Mr. McMillin, holding the internal revenue bill containing the income tax feature in his hand, was loudly clamoring for recognition, while the opponents of the income tax, including Messrs. Tracey, Cummings, Wilkinson and others of the New York delegation, were as earnestly appealing for the speaker's eye. Above the din and confusion Mr. McMillin demanded recognition to present a privileged report. The opponents of the income tax wanted to adjourn the house, and the speaker was unable to recognize Mr. Lockwood to make a motion to that effect. The Republicans, with the few Democrats favoring the income tax, voted against the proposition to adjourn, and the opponents of the income tax were hopelessly beaten. If they could hold the fort, however, for only three minutes, the house would have a special order would have to take action upon Mr. Cockran's motion to consider the income tax, and with the previous question in the hands of the speaker control the members who rose first and against the motion, announcing that it was lost—15 to 96.

The New York men still hold one more arrow in their quiver. Mr. Cockran demanded the yeas and nays. He could muster 15 supporters as a second, however—not sufficient to secure a roll call.

When the speaker made the announcement, he looked 20 seconds of the time for the house to take a recess. In that time, amid a roar of applause, Mr. McMillin reported the internal revenue bill to the house with the income tax feature in it. There were victorious, and 10 seconds later the house took a recess.

At the night session of the house Messrs. Wanger of Pennsylvania, Johnson of North Dakota, Moon of Michigan, Keifer of Minnesota, Hines of New York and Updegraff of Iowa, spoke against the bill, and Messrs. Ryan, Swanson of Virginia, Baker of Kansas, Ikert of Ohio and Chamings of New York spoke in favor of it. The latter wanted the value of clothing brought in free by Americans returning from abroad reduced from $200 in the Wilson bill to $100.

Vest Questions a Veto.

The Hawaiian question came prominently before the senate again, and after an hour's executive session it was well over. The result of the debate was to show that there is division both in the Democratic and Republican ranks as to the wisdom of acting upon the resolution reported by the foreign relations committee.

Senator Vest objected to it on the ground that if indorsed then the project for annexation might be more favorably received in the future, and Senator Allison and other Republicans objected to it on the ground that something to their interpretation the resolution pledged the senate as altogether opposing the principle of annexation and to approving the policy of the president in this respect.

A half dozen amendments are now pending to modify its phraseology, and it is likely to be subjected to material changes before final adoption.

Just before adjournment Senator Vest quoted from a United States supreme court decision to show that the president's grounds for vetoing the New York and New Jersey bridge bill were entirely untenable in the opinion of the court, a decision on the very point having once been rendered by the supreme court.

The Peckham Nomination.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Senator Pugh, chairman of the senate committee on the judiciary, said that the committee would certainly take up the confirmation of W. H. Peckham to be associate justice of the supreme court at its meeting next Monday, and he also stated that investigation led him to believe that the committee would be able to dispose of it at one sitting.

Senator Hill and other opponents of the confirmation have fully declared their intention to prevent confirmation, and they generally express themselves as confident of success in securing a report from the committee which will be unfavorable to Mr. Peckham, and which, they assert, will be followed by rejection in the senate.

New York Delegation Meeting.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—Democratic members of the New York delegation held a meeting and afterward gave the following report to the press:

"The New York delegation held a conference in the room of the committee on naval affairs. It was stated that there was danger that the agreement in caucus that two days' debate should be given for the consideration of the income tax proposition would be broken. It was also averred that although the committee on ways and means had agreed that the income tax should be considered as a separate proposition, it was the intention of the income tax men to offer the income tax bill as an amendment to the Wilson bill. If this was done, enough Republicans would vote for it to fasten it upon the Wilson bill, with the idea of making the bill as distasteful as possible. The New York delegation passed a resolution pledging themselves by every parliamentary means within their power to prevent the income tax from being forced upon, opportunity to offer such an amendment."

More Hawaiian Correspondence.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—The correspondent of the New York Sun sends the following to his paper:

Another Hawaiian message will be sent to congress by the president within a day or two, probably on Friday. It will consist chiefly of a document containing the text of President Dole's letter replying to the demand of Minister Willis for a filing of specifications to sustain his (President Dole's) charge that Mr. Willis had been conspiring to overthrow the provisional government by force and to reinstate the person whom Mr. Willis calls in the official correspondence "her majesty," the queen." This document arrived at the state department in the mails Wednesday and will be on the president's desk when he returns to his office today.

This communication will probably be a greater sensation even than the letter of President Dole which Minister Willis was so exceedingly anxious to have suppressed. The letter, which is now here, is an important addition to that record. It is understood that it sets forth facts, opinions, circumstances and names to sustain the charge of President Dole's letter that the minister of the United States had been engaged for weeks in attempting to overthrow the government which the United States has recognized and to which Minister Willis himself is accredited and for which he, in the name of the president of the United States, had expressed good will.

BLAZE IN BROCKTON.

Skating Rink, Church and Other Buildings Destroyed by Fire.

BROCKTON, Mass., Jan. 25.—Fire broke out in the skating rink in the rear of 63 Main street, in the center of the city. Fanned by a furious gale, the flames quickly spread to a tenement house and the other buildings near by. The rink was quickly gutted, and the house was practically destroyed.

The Second Congregational church took fire, and in five minutes the flames had spread throughout the building and fell to the top of the spire. The fire was soon beyond the control of the local department, and help was summoned from Boston and Bridgewater. Some of the church organ fell shortly before midnight, but did no damage. Early this morning the fire was under control, and there was no danger that it will spread further. All of the buildings destroyed were old structures, and it is believed the loss will not exceed $250,000. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Antony and Cleopatra.

The golden barge of the mighty queen floated softly down the beautiful and mysterious river, and Cleopatra turned her glorious eyes from the entrancing scene to Antony.

"O king," she murmured, "is there in all this world a sight so beautiful?"

"There are more beautiful, queen of my heart," he whispered, touching her hand with his lips.

Those wondrous eyes of hers closed languidly, and the lone ladies lay at rest upon the rich red silve of her cheeks.

"Then," she sighed rapturously, "you are a corker and no mistake."

And the golden barge floated on.—Detroit Free Press.

Y. P. S. C. E. LOCAL UNION

FOURTH ANNUAL MEETING IN THE FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

Reports Heard From All the Societies in the Organization.—An Address by the Rev. J. W. Richardson.

Y far the largest gathering that has ever attended the Y. P. S. C. E. yearly meetings was that present last evening at the fourth annual meeting of Plainfield Local Union in the First Baptist Church.

The meeting was presided over by President E. M. Cave. Representatives were present from fifteen Young People's Christian Endeavor Societies. Reports were read from the different societies showing them to have a membership as follows: First Presbyterian, 85; Grain, 15; New Market Seventh-day Baptister, and Dunellen, (no report); Washingtonville, 25; Seventh-Day Baptist, 68 active, 5 honorary, and 25 associate; South Plainfield, 22; Congregational, 34; Trinity Reformed, 125 active and 14 associate; Hope Chapel, 30 active and 5 associate; Warren Chapel, 31 active and 15 associate; First Baptist, 57 active and 9 associate; Park Avenue Baptist, 32 active and 4 associate.

The new societies in the Union, are the First Baptist, East Third Street Mission and the First Church of Christ. The latter society was added to the list last night. One of the new ones, the First Baptist, was organized Jan. 9, 1893, with 14 members. The society has made good progress and has increased in numbers very rapidly.

The society connected with the East Third Street Mission, another new one, has done much in its short existence. They have visited the sick, cared for strangers, and comforted the afflicted. Through its influence many new members have been added to the Sunday-school.

The third and last new society, the First Church of Christ, was organized Jan. 14, 1894, with 13 members. Since that time the names of 16 new members have been enrolled, making a total of 28.

After all the societies had reported President Cave said the reports were very gratifying. He said that Plainfield Local Union was organized in May, 1890, with seven societies representing a membership of 400. Since then the Christian Endeavor Societies have steadily grown until now there are in the Union 15 societies with 789 active and associate members.

A vote was then taken and the First Church of Christ Society was unanimously admitted to the Union.

Miss Hawkins, the secretary of the Union, then read her annual report, showing that the Union had now passed its fourth milestone. She said the Union had experienced many successes and a few disappointments since the last annual meeting. But on all things work together for good the Union had expected drawbacks as well as successes. Since the last annual meeting, held Jan. 24, 1893, a Spring meeting had been held on May 11th, at Washingtonville, at which time Dr. Lowrie made an address, a Fall meeting at New Market and a county meeting in the First Baptist church. In concluding her report Miss Hawkins said: "The Union enters upon the year 1894, with bright prospects before it, and we feel grateful to our president for his kind work during the year, grateful to our societies for their co-operation in the cause and grateful to Him in whose name the societies labor. Disappointments may come, but with consecrated efforts the results will you to make '94 the greatest Y. P. S. C. E. year ever known. Forget the past, and press forward. Let '94 be a year of great gladness, progress and praise."

With the presenting of this report the terms of the old officers expired, and the retiring president called upon Andrew Wilson, chairman of the nominating committee, for his report. Mr. Wilson reported that the committee had chosen the following as the nominees:

President—E. M. Cave, of the First Presbyterian church.

Vice President—G. H. Batchelor, of the First Baptist church.

Secretary and Treasurer—Miss Hawkins, of the Park Avenue Baptist church.

The above were unanimously elected.

Mr. Cave thanked them for his re-election, and then welcomed the vice-president and secretary.

Mr. Cave next introduced the Rev. J. W. Richardson, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, who made a very stirring address. His subject was "The Christian Endeavorer as the Citizen and the Soldier."

Mr. Richardson began by telling by way of illustration of a company of young men who had enlisted for the war. The company selected for their leader a young man who had all the bearing of a born leader. He had a splendid appearance, but he had never been under fire. After several days and nights of weary marching, during which the young men had borne themselves like old and tried soldiers. They did picket and scout duty without a murmur. At last under cover of darkness they were surprised by the enemy. They were under fire and stood the test. All the fighting was done in the dark. The battle finally ceased and both sides waited for the dawn of morning when the fight would be resumed by daylight.

In the morning the young men revewed the fight of the night before, but everything was disorder for they had no one to command them. Their colonel had stolen away during the darkness, afraid of battle; a coward. He had been tested and couldn't stand fire.

This illustrates the position of the Christian Endeavorer. You are served for battle on the Lord's side. You are now on dress parade, but how about when it comes to the battle field, can you stand the fire?

A soldier cannot serve two opposite leaders in a battle. Neither can the Christian serve God and mammon. An Endeavorer must not be misled by the clamor of the world; must not be beguiled into being a little worldly from fear of being called a bigot because of strict adherence to the duty of a Christian. Christians must be separated from the world. Copying the manners of the world and following them, how can you be a true Christian? The eyes of the world are upon you. It is a frightful fact there are too many people to-day wearing the world's uniform, and all the while professing to be Christians. Religious freaks are out of date. The church needs good, true Christians, whose hearts have been trained to loyalty to God. Without loyalty religion is a farce.

There was a fitten feud between two families in Kentucky during Henry Clay's time. Members of one family shot the members of the other at sight. A Baptist revival was held in the town and both families were converted. From that time on there was no more bitter feeling between them, and those who had once been most bitter enemies, became warm friends. Henry Clay remarked that what could change a Kentucky feud was of God.

You cannot be a citizen of two countries, and neither can a person be a Christian and a follower of the world. Christians are simply in the world, but not of the world. The world hates Christians. The greatest need of the church is for self-sacrificing Christians.

After Mr. Richardson had finished the Union extended a vote of thanks to Mr. Richardson for his address and to the Rev. Dr. Yerkes, and the First Baptist church for the use of the church.

BREVITIES.

—Two new residences are being built at Washingtonville by wealthy New Yorkers.

—Work is increasing at Chase's Machine Works. Yesterday he gave employment to six extra machinists.

—The case of Casey vs. Adams and Sloan, on contract, was adjourned to-day, by Justice Mosher, for two weeks.

—The bowling game between the lawyers and grocers, which was to have been bowled last night, on the Board of Trade alleys, was postponed.

—Next Tuesday night a meeting will be held at Newark of all the representatives of the different teams in the Diocesan Union League to take action on the protested game between the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum of this city and the Institutes of Newark. Captain J. J. Lynch is the representative from the Plainfield Lyceum.

—It appears that Miss Lizzie Thornton, who was taken to the asylum yesterday, was not the same one who was wandering about Monday night on Crescent avenue, demented, but a girl who was employed by Mrs. Dipper, and Mrs. Dipper discovered her condition she would not permit her to leave the house, but had a physician call immediately and attend her, giving her the best of care, until she was removed to the hospital.

—At a dinner at a well local club sometime ago several very "rare" stories were told. There were also some witty ones which quite equalled this: "It is often remarked that an unaccustomed traveler can get no pretty well if he will keep his eyes and ears open." A friend of Ireland landed at Greenock and wanted to take the train for Glasgow. Never having been in a railway station before he did not know how to get his ticket, but he saw a lady going in and determined to follow her lead. The lady went to the ticket box and putting down her money, said: "Merryhill, single." Her ticket was duly handed to her and she walked away. Pat promptly planked down his money and shouted: "Patrick Murphy, married!"

New Feature at the A. O. U. W. Meetings.

At the the regular meeting of Central Lodge, No. 48, Ancient Order of United Workmen, held in Red Men's Hall, last evening, one proposition for membership was received. A very pleasant time was had under the rule of "good and welfare of the Order."

Mr. John P. Thompson sang. Messrs. Westphal and Newcorn recited. Recorder Magee gave some very interesting statistics of the Order. Master Workman Randolph told some interesting stories and Messrs. French, Lee, Bigelow, Canfield, Clark, Mosher, and Brokaw made remarks for the good of the order. Master Workman Randolph has adopted this order of entertainment as a new feature and it was well received by the members.

DIED IN A POOL ROOM.

SUDDEN DEATH OF GEORGE GREEN, A COLORED WAITER,

Stood Watching Several Companions Play a Game of Pool, When, Without a Murmur, He Fell Back Dead.

George Green, a colored man about 45 years old, dropped dead in James Babbitt's pool room, on East Front street, at about 5.30 o'clock last night. He stood quietly by watching some friends play pool, when, without a murmur, he fell back dead. As soon as he fell Babbett and another colored man raised him from the floor and laid him upon the pool table. They first supposed he was dead. The men in the room thought it was only a fit as they saw froth issuing from his mouth.

Dr. Searles was summoned and he pronounced the man dead.

Morgan Keeper Casey removed the body to the morgue and word was sent to County Physician O'Reilly.

Green was unmarried and was employed recently by Peter Anderson as a waiter in his restaurant in Somerset street. He was a quiet, inoffensive fellow and rarely spoke to anyone except when spoken to. He was said to be a first-class waiter and was at different times employed as such at the Park House and at the Hotel Netherwood.

GUESTS OF THE C. Y. M. L.

ST. JOSEPH'S LYCEUM OF JERSEY CITY VISITS PLAINFIELD.

Bowling Followed by a Banquet.—Dancing, Singing and Recitations Form Part of the Evening's Entertainment.

The Club House of the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum, on West Sixth street, was the scene of much gayety last night, on the occasion of the reception to St. Joseph's Lyceum of Jersey City.

The guests were met at the North avenue depot by the Reception Committee of the Plainfield Lyceum and escorted to the club house. The Reception Committee comprised Miss M. Finnigan, Miss M. Casey, Miss E. Maguire, Miss Sahor, Miss Toohey, and Messrs. J. Traynor, J. Lynch, T. Hughes, M. Whelan, and C. Lee.

Arriving at the Lyceum ten of the male guests participated in a bowling match with a like number from the home club. Others of them engaged in pool matches, while the remainder were entertained in various ways. Most of them, however, preferred to watch the bowlers. Only seven frames were bowled as it was growing late and was a supper awaiting them in the hall above, which the Refreshment Committee, consisting of Miss Lillie Terrell, Miss Daly, Miss C. Madden, Miss E. Mack, Miss Butscher, Miss Glennan and Miss Cullen, had spared no pains preparing. The Committee deserve much credit for the palatable and bounteous repast they had ready for their guests. Fully 200 persons partook.

After the supper the tables were removed and dancing indulged in, excellent music being furnished by St. Joseph's orchestra.

Between the dances a short programme of singing and recitations was rendered. There was singing by Mr. Lyons, of Jersey City, Miss Wade, Mr. Ryan, J. Traynor, T. Commerford, and Mr. Cashin. The latter also gave a recitation.

The guests departed early this morning expressing themselves as delighted with the pleasant time accorded them, and resolving to return the compliment at an early date.

Altogether the affair was one long to be remembered as one of the most successful events at the Lyceum.

The Committee of Arrangements, mainly to whose efforts in conjunction with the refreshment committee already mentioned the great success of the undertaking is due comprises Messrs. M. Cashin, Chairman, T. Carty, M. Mack, F. McInerney, W. O'Connor, M. Owens, and J. Traynor.

THE PARK CLUB CALLS A HALT.

Too Free Use of the Club by Minor Associate Members Broke Criticism from the Board of Governors.

The House Committee of the Park Club, acting under the direction of the board of governors has sent printed circulars to all club members protesting against the too free use of the club house by the minor associate members and their friends. The circular says, "No minor members under sixteen years of age shall be received into or be entitled to visit the club except when accompanied by a parent or by some adult having the privileges thereof. No one but members or adults having the privileges of the club shall introduce visitors, and not oftener than once in each month. Any resident of North Plainfield or Plainfield. This action has been made necessary by the abuse that has grown out of a disregard for the laws, particularly by minor associate members. We wish to impress upon our adult members the fact that minor members have no right to invite guests to the club house at any time." Tickets were also enclosed for club members and associate members to be shown whenever any entertainment or dance is given at the club.

—It is not an easy matter to make money at the present time, and the next best thing to do is to save all you can on your purchases. Edsall says you can do that at his great clearance sale at the rate of from twenty-five to forty per cent.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Sicilian Trouble.

Sicily, the largest island in the Mediterranean, has a population about two-thirds that of the state of Ohio. Thousands of Sicilians have migrated to the United States in the past few years. Many of the American people will doubtless now recall for the first time since they studied geography that Palermo is the capital of Sicily and that the people of the island are chiefly farmers. They do not live as other farmers do, however, but in villages, walking and riding out to their work daily. The crowd, which usually a tax levied at the gates of a city or village brought within its walls. The walls of Sicilian cities have long since disappeared, but the octroi remains.

The Sicilian peasant farmers are industrious, likewise violent tempered, and very much in debt. When a new tax was imposed upon them, they rose in riot and destroyed $6,400,000 worth of property, consisting of buildings and their contents in the towns and villages. Besides that a number of men were killed and many wounded. Then the Italian government proclaimed Sicily in a state of siege and poured soldiers into it by the thousand. The military forces comprised in what is called the army class of 1869, consisting of 86,000 men, has been ordered to the island entire.

While the imposition of the tax is the ostensible cause of the rebellion of the Sicilians, the real cause appears to be the secret activity of the anarchists now so busy in Europe. The Italian authorities seem desirous of spreading the belief that secret French emissaries, plotting to overthrow Italy, are at the bottom of the disturbances, but there appears to be little ground for this belief. France has her hands full of anarchists, and factions at home at present. When the octroi riots are traced to their source, the track will probably lead straight to the anarchistic Fasci dei Lavoratori. The founder of this society, Guiseppe de Felice, who was arrested, is a member of the Italian chamber of deputies.

Lower Priced Magazines.

One result of the financial stringency will probably be the lowering of the prices of the better class of periodicals. Books have already been cut down. During the holidays it was possible to secure a fairly good edition complete of the best English novelists for a little less than $3. One of the most expensive of the monthlies has already lowered its rate of subscription from $5 to $3 a year. Another has been cut from $3 to $1.50.

Before the times of war inflation the price of even the most expensive magazine was $3 a year. But with the rise in gold and the substitution of the greenback the rates of periodicals were put up to correspond with the advance everywhere else. After the resumption of specie payments down again went the price of nearly everything, but not that of the leading monthly and weekly publications. The excuse offered for keeping up the war rate on these was that with the growth of illustration it cost twice as much to make a magazine or picture paper as it had done before.

This was probably true. But now times have changed again. The high priced weekly bids fair to be supplanted almost altogether by the Sunday edition of the daily paper. This on the one hand. On the other the hard times press so that many families have been obliged to cut off their magazines or will be unless the price is lowered. A lowering of subscription rates all around seems therefore likely to come with the coming of bringing our beautiful monthly magazines into the hands of thousands of additional families, then readers and publishers may allike congratulate themselves. No harm will be done.

A great to do is always made over our new naval vessels when they are first launched. Everything is lovely. Then, after they have been accepted, the premium for extra speed paid on them, as always done, and they pass into real service, it is found that some of them have fatal defects. This same old story has been told with regard to the gunboats Machias and Castine, which are said heavy enough for their armaments. It looks somehow as though there ought to be naval architects in America who could tell just how heavy a weight a vessel could bear, but it seems that if this is the case the architects are not consulted. Washington. At any rate the Machias and the Castine are both unstable and top heavy and have to be lengthened 14 feet before they will bear their guns and masts. To do this they will need to be cut in two in the middle and placed, as was done with two of the North German Lloyd steamers a few months ago. The German steamers were not lengthened, however, because they were too heavy, but to make them carry more freight and passengers.

After the fund has been raised in cities for the relief of the unemployed poor, they can be put to breaking stone and preparing material under shelter when the weather is too inclement for them to work outdoors. Buffalo gives her poor men employment in that manner and pays them 20 cents an hour.

Clippings of Interest of the Happenings in Various Cities and Counties.—Brief, but Newsy.

TWO SHOT, TWO MAY DIE.

Robert Johnson, Charles Allen and others of Linden got drunk and quarreled in Elizabeth Wednesday night.

Johnson and Allen shot each other, and inflicted probably mortal wounds.

Both are in a hospital.

SHOT BY A POLICEMAN.

William Flamer was shot and badly wounded in Mount Holly last night by a policeman. Flamer had threatened to kill Jane Sands and refused to submit to arrest. Flamer is in the county jail.

SLASHED HIS THROAT.

Theodore Bachman of Bergenwood Road, East New Durham, has not been living happily with his wife for several years. Several months ago she deserted him. Bachman was unable to find any trace of her. He brooded constantly over his troubles and at times acted as though mentally deranged. He shut himself up in his apartments last Sunday. There he was found dead Wednesday. He had cut his throat with a razor.

Chinese Prisoners.

[From the Pittsburg Dispatch]

A Chinese prison is called a "cangue." Its outer door is barred with bamboo and is guarded by petty soldiers or policemen. The "cangue" contains two rooms and two yards. One room and one yard are for men. The other room and yard are for women. The space set apart for women is very much smaller than that for men.

But the women's quarters and the men's quarters are alike in being entirely devoid of any provision for personal comfort or for personal decency.

Chinese prisoners are by the Government provided with absolutely nothing but the space beyond which they may not pass. If their friends thrust food to them through the bars of the prison fence the law does not interpose. Otherwise the prisoners may starve.

Concerning the Coming Dog Show in Philadelphia.

All dog fanciers of this vicinity will be interested in the following circular letter from the secretary of the Philadelphia Kennel Club:

"At a meeting of the Keystone Kennel Club, held on Friday, May 26th, it was deemed advisable for the best interest's of the dog fanciers in the city of Philadelphia and the encouragement of the dog shows, that the Keystone and Philadelphia Kennel Clubs should consolidate, it was unanimously resolved to resign from the American Kennel Club, and to at once consolidate with the Philadelphia Kennel Club by individual application for membership in that Club.

"At a meeting of the Philadelphia Kennel Club a resolution was adopted that application be made by the club for membership in the American Kennel Club. The Secretary was instructed to return the Treasurer's check for the $10. admission fee.

"The Philadelphia Kennel Club is the oldest establishment of its kind in the country, and has a prestige among dog men, second to none. The cares claimed now the show are March 27th, to 30th, inclusive; and will follow immediately after the St. Louis and before the Boston shows, which will fix very nicely for dogs coming east to Boston from St. Louis. A large guaranteed fund was subscribed in a very few minutes at the last meeting of this club, and all the members were very enthusiastic in their intention of giving a rattling big show on the dates claimed.

"We hope you will sent their representatives to the meeting and assure the Keystone of their friendly cooperation. The prospects of a most successful show for Philadelphia are the largest in its history, are very promising.

"The premium list announcing the names of judges and all other matters of interest relative to the show will be distributed in a very short time.

"Yrs. Truly, H. H. BAIRD,
Secretary of the Philadelphia Kennel Club."

The following table shows the marriages, births and deaths in the principal counties:

	Marriages.	Births.	Deaths.

Toasts and Responses.

The Leader has the following concerning the banquet to be held at Westfield to-morrow night:

W. G. Peckham will preside and a most sumptuous repast will be partaken of. When ample justice has been done to the elaborate menu there will be the following toasts and responses:

"Jersey in the Nation," Hon. St. Clair McKelway. "Westfield's Congressman," Hon. Amos Clark (letter). "Our Senator," Hon. F. S. Voorhees "Our Executive and the County Board," (Jersey style and pass his declining years with us) J. L. Miller, esq. (letter). "Our County Clerk," W. M. Oliver, esq. "Our Assemblyman," Hon. G. N. Codding. "Plainfield" (Created from Westfield), Hon. Wm. Dalton. "Mayor Gilbert, "North Plainfield" (Ancient home of the Deinwares, whom the Lenni-Lenape Sachem, who presided over Westfield now stands, conquered), Sr. J. McCutcheon. "Pastors" (Our Clergymen), E. B. Borton. "Fanwood," Chairman of Town Committee, "Clark," Chairman of Town Committee. "Scotch Plains and Providence," Chairman Beggrly. "The Ladies." (Drink to me only with thine eyes), J. Harry Gilbert. "The Rooters," (the body lay in repose his soul was in Heaven), Colonel T. J. Morgan, U. S. A. "Old Trenthell," Rev. A. N. Caldwell. "Our Old Planters," Edwin Ralph Collins. "Old Stories," Colonel Ira D. Starr. "The Sword of Bunker Hill," Squire P. C. Pearsall. The band will furnish appropriate music, and will play some old-time melodies of the other days.

Yield of Palms in North Plainfield Township.

Secretary A. P. Sutphen, of the County Board of Agriculture, has received from representatives of the board, in six different townships, reports upon farm crops, stock, prices, etc., for the past year.

Freeholder George W. Bullman reported from North Plainfield township:

	Average yield per acre.	Average price.	Product compared with last year. Per cent.
Corn	25 bus.	$ 50	75
Wheat	15 "	70	100
Rye	12 "	50	80
Oats	25 "	40	90
Hay	1½ tons	20.00	90
Potatoes	100 bus.	1.75	70
Apples	40 bus.	2.00	110
Peaches	50 bus.	1.00	90
Cabbages	2 heads	5 cts	100

Mr. Bullman states that farm wages are higher than for years ago—$20 per month. Berries and truck are receiving more attention and cereals less, because there is a larger profit to the former. As a means to improve the condition of the farmer Mr. Bullman suggests lower freight rates and fixing prices. A large export trade is the greatest need of agriculture to-day.

Won by the Terrys.

The shooting match near Rahway yesterday between Messrs. Dan. and Scott Terry of this city and Messrs. Bates and Perment of Elizabeth, resulted in a victory for the Plainfielders. The men shot at 25 birds each. Dan Terry killed 17, Bates, 16; Scott, 14; and Perment, 13. The match was for $50. Scott killed 11 out of his first 13.

After the match there was a sweepstake at 10 birds, $10 entrance fee with 15 entries. First money was won by Wilson Terry, $40 scored a second money by Dan. Terry, who scored 7; and third by Scott Terry, with a score of 6.

Is the Township Liable?

A truckman from Elizabeth got stalled with an empty wagon between Roselle and Wheatsheaf Wednesday, owing to the bad roads. His wagon was broken. Now he proposes to bring suit against the township for damages owing to the impassable roads. Should he do so, it will be a novel case, and will probably establish the extent to which a township is liable for keeping roads open as high ways that are not in condition for travel.

"Away Down in Westfield."

[Elizabeth Journal.]

Assemblyman Codding is dubbed the "young" man from "way down in Westfield" by the Newark News. It is true Mr. Codding has the smooth, white, clean and attractive appearance of a young man, but he political wisdom points were not several years ago. If he is "way up" in Westfield, he is "way up" in Trenton.

WITCHERY CASE TRIED.

Church Members Expelled For Telling Strange Stories.

LOOP FAMILY WERE AFFLICTED.

When a Sister Died, After Other Misfortunes, They Placed Out a German as I Said He Had the Evil Eye—How Members of the Methodist Church Row.

SALEM, O., Jan. 26.—Three members of Hart's Methodist Episcopal church, in the northern part of Salem township, were tried by the church for accusing another member of witchcraft, and were summarily expelled from fellowship. The defendants refused to appear for trial, but they were represented by ministerial counsel, who gave notice of an appeal to the quarterly conference.

The persons implicated in this affair are members of a prominent family. There are four Loop sisters, raised in a little frontier farmhouse not a quarter of a mile from state's church. Miss Sadie Loop remained single and keeps house for her father in the old house.

Possessed of the Evil Eye.

The three other sisters were respectively married to Howard Hughes, Norman Bleam and Jacob Culp. All live within a mile of the church. Of the three Culp is the most prosperous. He is a native of Germany and is the one who has been accused of possessing an evil eye and practicing witchcraft.

In April, 1893, Mrs. Loop became ill, and her disease did not yield to the treatment of the regular local physicians. Miss Sadie Loop and Mrs. Fannie Hughes then consulted Peter Burns of Salem, known as the "Powwow Doctor." He told them their mother was bewitched by a near relative and advised them to consult "Dr." Asa Grow Hoff of Lisbon. He confirmed with emphasis what they had already said and added that the suspected witch was a member of their church.

This person was identified by the sisters as their brother-in-law, Jacob Culp. They carried the news to H. B. Shelton, their class leader, and the other church members. They their mother died.

Finally Mr. Shelton preferred charges against Miss Sadie Loop, accusing her of immorality and falsehood in circulating the story that Jacob Culp was a wizard and practiced witchcraft. She was tried before a church court held in Salem on May 29, 1893, and convicted. Church troubles and family dissensions followed.

A few weeks after a carp dam broke, and the carp escaped. Then a stone wall of a mill fell without visible cause. Whisper said it was the doings of the man from Germany. Miss Sadie Loop published a statement in the local papers that she had not circulated the stories.

The Rev. C. P. Hollister, their pastor, now had two of the church trustees, John Allen and Homer B. Shelton, who had spoken against Mr. and Mrs. Howard Hughes and Mr. Norman Bleam. Each of them were charged with immorality in circulating the stories of witchcraft. Also with being disobedient to the discipline of the church.

Tried In the Church.

The trial was held in the little church on the New Lisbon road, four miles from town. The Rev. Dr. C. T. Kingsbury, a superannuated preacher of Alliance, was the judge. Dr. H. W. Bowers, a young Washingtonville physician, acted as clerk. Six laymen members constituted a committee of conference. The Rev. S. Y. Kennedy of Greenford, was present as a spectator and appointed, but the Rev. H. M. Shipman of Alliance represented them. Jacob Culp was there.

He sat in the amen corner, with his right arm in a sling, the result of a fall from a mowing machine last fall, when he broke his arm. It had not been properly set, and a fortnight ago it had to be broken and reset. He said that he guessed it was the work of the "Powwow Doctor."

The charges against Howard Hughes and Norman the charge of immorality was withdrawn, and they were tried for disobedience to the church. They refused to listen to the church and be reconciled to Mr. Culp until Sadie Loop was taken back.

Then Mrs. Fannie Hughes was tried on the charge of immorality, the specifications being that she had been guilty of falsehood in saying that Jacob Culp was a witch. Homer B. Shelton testified strongly against her. The jury consisted of seven, and returned a verdict of guilty as to Bleam and Mr. and Mrs. Hughes. Dr. Kingsbury arose and solemnly pronounced each of the convicted persons expelled from the church.

FIGHTERS UNDER BAIL.

The Victor and the Vanquished Both Arrested.

MITCHELL WILL NOT FIGHT AGAIN.

He Says He Was Fairly Licked by a Better Man—Corbett Admits That He Had Murder in His Heart—The Big Purse Handed Over—Sports Going Home.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 26.—The aftermath to the big prize fight begins today in the contrivers, where Corbett, the victor; Mitchell, the vanquished, and a dozen or so lesser lights must answer to the charge of disturbing the peace. The proceedings are not regarded in a serious light.

This rather tame exhibition of the majesty of the law does not interest the sports in the least. They have seen Corbett, in three short, vicious rounds, knock out the Englishman; they have seen the purse of $20,000 handed over to the champion, and they are getting away with as much beats as possible.

Neither of the principals looks today as if he had been through a very fierce battle. Who is it what they have to say of the affair:

What the Former Say.

Corbett said in an interview: "I never entered a ring in my life, and I hope never again to do so, with more of murder in my heart than I had when I got into the same ring with Mitchell. I had two separate and distinct battles to win. Some time since Mitch. I applied to me a name which I should scorn to hurl at the lowest of wretches. This was another reason why I refused to shake hands with him. The handshake would have been the action of a hypocrite. I despise the man for the foul name he used, and my heart revolted at the idea of taking such a man by the hand, even though it is the custom. I notified the referee not to call upon me to grasp his hand, for I should decline to do so positively. I am glad that this was spared me. In cutting Mitchell in the first and second rounds I was the personal issue; in knocking him out in the third round I won his purse and rested Mitchell's aspirations for the championship. I am proud of both accomplishments, and with the personal vindication and the financial gain I am content to rest on my oars until next June, when I hope to demonstrate to people who think to the contrary that I have a punch or two left over from this battle for Jackson."

This is what Mitchell said: "It is all over now and all can't be helped. I only wish I'd been in it a little longer. I shall never fight again. I have no complaints to make, and I am a great deal like the old saying, 'I've been up to Jerusalem for the other dog.' I bear no hard feeling, and I am say that America has reason to be proud of the greatest fighter who ever stood in a ring. I don't care who goes against him; if he keeps his health, he will never be beaten. I am satisfied that he was defeat me at any time."

"How are you feeling, Charley?" asked a friend anxiously.

"I am in just as good shape at this moment as when I went into the ring," replied Mitchell. "I don't know how or when I got the punch that dazed me, but after it I did not know what I was doing. Corbett is a hard hitter, I ever saw, and his style was a complete surprise to me."

Story of the Fight.

It was a short, sharp and decisive fight—too brief to have any of the elements of savagery in it. It was a foregone conclusion from the moment when the men stepped to the center of the ring. Corbett's hatred of the, Englishman coming to the surface inhibited him from shaking hands with him, he who had so wantonly abused and insulted him. There was all but murder in Corbett's eyes. They faced each other, and the intense feeling of hatred alone gave new Corbett the skill to cornered the Englishman, and as his long arms shot out with the force of a catapult there was vengeance in the wind.

Mitchell showed wonderful cleverness in the beginning in getting out of the close quarters into which the superior size, reach and weight of his opponent kept him, but there was no faltering in Corbett's plan of campaign, and he slowly surrounded the Briton, raining in upon his head and sides a shower of savage punches.

There was despair in Mitchell's face as he tried vainly to elude his agile pursuer, and finally when Corbett closed with his opponent in an off corner Mitchell realized that it was no longer possible for him to escape the battery of the American.

He quickly refused to spar, and, failing, sought to clinch, but Corbett finally beat him off and with a sharp blow on the side of the jaw brought the Englishman on all fours. It was then that the crowd broke loose in a wild shout of applause.

Corbett's Unscrupulous Rage.

With the cheers of his friends ringing in his ears and with the memories of the past crowding fast upon him, Corbett lost his head, and with the agility of a tiger and the terrible anger of a lion he sprang toward the prostrate Englishman on the rough resined platform, and describing a quick circle with his right tried to land a knockout blow. Twice he tried this, but Mitchell's weak but plucky body served the American from foolishly sacrificing the honor and the glory that have come to him from his now decisive battle with the Englishman.

There were cries of foul from the crowd, although the sentiment of the vast throng was then plainly with the American. Corbett's seconds, with presence of mind, shot through the ropes. John Kelly ran to the aid of the prostrate pugilist, and Corbett was dragged away.

Mitchell was unconscious, and he knew that Corbett was standing over him ready to deal without mercy the blow that should put the fight to him the Englishman finally struggled to his feet. Corbett, without a tithe of pity, pounded his big gloves into the face of his foe until the latter staggered and fell against the ropes and then by almost supernatural strength, on the floor, the blood smeared all over his face. When Mitchell had gotten again to his feet, the referee allowed Mr. Corbett and there was a savage exchange, and when the gong sounded the seconds and referee and the half dozen in the corner had to pry the ensilage apart.

It was hard work to bring Mitchell up again, but Corbett sprang out when the gong sounded, conscious of his strength and supremely sure of ending in the utter ruining of an eye the aspirations of his over-rated antagonist. Mitchell was all but allowed out to meet the onslaught of his rival. There was hardly a moment of sparring. Mitchell tried but once a last desperate play—to tackle, but Corbett was remarkably foxy and alert, and he soon showed the poor Englishman was almost ghastly. Again Corbett, losing his presence of mind, started toward Mitchell, and again his hands swung out, and again his weapons ran forward to save him from nominal defeat.

The Knockout Blow.

Big John Kelly ran over to the ropes where Mitchell was lying, and Corbett was borne back in his corner. Mitchell hardly cared to rise, and Kelly's finger went up and down like the pendulum of a clock to count the seconds that must elapse before the battle is over.

It seemed an hour before Mitchell finally rose to his feet again, and it was dangerously near the limit of time, but just before the gong rested out Mitchell did stand up, leaning against the ropes, his face the counterfeit of his feelings. Kelly waved his finger to Corbett, who was seated in his corner, and the American champion sprang forward for the last time.

Striding over to where Mitchell stood, a dangerous leer in his eye, and with the supreme satisfaction of revenge, he shot his hand out with the speed of a lightning bolt. The big glove landed fairly and squarely on Mitchell's face, and the Englishman fell prone upon the stage, the blood coming from his mouth and staining the rough pine boards of the ring.

He made one attempt to turn himself and then turned over and lay with his face to the floor, utterly and absolutely beaten, until his seconds came over and bore him to his corner, and with the cheers of the people pitched to the highest key dimly ringing in his ears he sat in his corner trying to realize the suddenness and completeness with which all of his hopes had been blasted.

The crowd remained long enough to see Mitchell carried to his corner. While the fallen gladiator was receiving the consolation of his admirers and the cheering sympathy of fanny Pony Moore, his fatherin-law, Corbett was being congratulated and crushed by his frantic friends, all trying to shake his hand at once.

Victor and Vanquished.

As soon as Corbett came over Corbett slipped on his trousers again, drew his towels about him, and stepping as lightly as when he had entered the ring he made his way back to the old kitchen in the yard, where he had spent an hour before the fight waiting for Mitchell to come.

Mitchell drew his old gray bathing suit over his big body, and with his wife, seconds and friends he was led back to his cabin.

Preparations were then made to get the fighters out of the city. There was a great crowd around the dressing room until the pugilists were ready to leave, but the majority of the sports rushed back to town as soon as the gong sounded the death knell of Mitchell's pugilistic hopes, burdened the wires with telegrams to their friends and broke bottles of wine or carried their book or bad judgment, according as they had planned their faith to the American or British champion.

Corbett rested for a quarter of an hour in his dressing room, chatting with his friends and expressing his satisfaction with the result. He would have liked to punish Mitchell more, and that was apparently his only regret The American showed not a trace of punishment.

Mitchell remained in his dressing room resting after Corbett had gone. His face was washed of the blood with which it had been smeared, and he was made ready to leave the city. After Corbett's carriage had rattled down the road Mitchell came out of the jaw hanging unsupported and evidently not much hurt and showing no sign of the battle save a cut on the lip, from which the blood had flowed somewhat freely during the brief fight.

The Former Shake Hands.

Corbett and Mitchell shook hands after the fight and bridged the chasm between them. It was not a proceeding, however, which was followed by the champion. The reconciliation was brought about by the officials of the club when the two fighters stood as companions before the bar of justice. While waiting for the proceedings to begin the men were the center of different groups.

"Jim, I want you to go with me and shake hands with Mitchell," said Joe Vendig.

"Oh, no; I don't care to do that," replied Corbett. "He has said so many things about me that I don't care to make up."

"But you are the winner, and it is your duty," insisted Vendig.

"Well, all right; I'll go," Corbett finally said, with a shrug of the shoulders, and forthwith he walked over to where Mitchell was sitting.

Mitchell got up and warmly took the hand that was offered him. And then there were explanations. The arrest and arraignment of the fighters, seconds and other participants in the fight followed in the usual course in the evening. After the consultation with Judge Call, Corbett and Mitchell were each fined $1,000 and costs and the remainder of the prisoners under $2,500 bonds to appear today in the criminal court before Judge Phillips to answer to the charges made.

Corbett and his party left the St. James hotel and went to the Zoological garden. It had been arranged to have the winner appear there, and there was a large crowd present. The purse of $20,000 was formally turned over to Corbett and acknowledged.

Peter Jackson Talks.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 26.—Peter Jackson, who is playing a theatrical engagement in this city, when asked his opinion of the big fight, replied:

"I do not want to say too much about the battle, but let me say emphatically that Charles Mitchell has proved himself to be one of the most courageous of men that ever entered the ring. After this no body can say that Mitchell is a coward. Why, he is as game a little man as ever stepped. I have to fight Corbett next June, but with the knowledge which he has of me I will fight him, and he's sure, as far as I am concerned and all goes well. He won the better man yesterday. It was not a question of roundsmen, but simply a case of the better mad winning."

Sullivan Will Not Challenge Yet.

WILMINGTON, Del., Jan. 26.—John L. Sullivan says that he expected Corbett to win, but that he did not think Mitchell would be whipped in less than 10 rounds.

"Corbett is a good fighter and a good man, and the big man always wins in such a case," said the ex-champion.

When asked if he intended to challenge the winner, Sullivan said he had not yet made up his mind, as Corbett already had a meeting on with Peter Jackson. He would wait until that was over before deciding about a challenge to Corbett.

MORE ANARCHIST OUTRAGES.

Attempted Murder of the Civil Governor and Fatal Explosion at Barcelona.

BARCELONA, Jan. 26.—A dynamite explosion took place in the Harbor works. Two persons were killed and several others injured. The outrage is attributed to anarchists. As the civil governor was entering his carriage at the entrance to the prison a mason fired a pistol at his head and wounded the governor in the face. The governor's secretary promptly seized the assailant, who loudly proclaimed himself an anarchist.

The bullet lodged in the upper part of the left jaw of the civil governor. The latter will be laid up for a week. It is reported any intention to commit murder, but it is generally believed that his act was out of revenge for the severity with which police took in the prosecution of Pallas and other anarchists.

MADRID, Jan. 26.—The cabinet has been hastily convened to consider the dynamite explosion and attempted murder of the civil governor in Barcelona.

Mr. Sibley's Resignation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Mr. Sibley of Pennsylvania has resigned his seat in congress to take effect March 7. Criticism of the course on the tariff bill is the cause. Mr. Sibley says he reached his determination to resign only Wednesday night and Thursday morning sent his resignation to the governor of the state, but his action was foreshadowed in a letter some days ago. He says his present determination is final and irrevocable.

Those Lovers.

They had been engaged, but now were suffering from one of those quarrels which sometimes ruffle the course of true love.

They had not spoken for three days, and neither wished to be the first to yield.

But with the hanging which afflicts murderers and lovers with reference to the scene of the late unpleasantness he called at the house on a trumped up business mission to her father.

By chance (?) she answered his ring at the door.

Gathering himself, he, with a cold, slow voice, began the following dialogue:

He—Does Mr. Dudley reside here?

She—He does.

He—Is he in?

She—He is not.

He—Will he be in soon?

She—He will.

He—Thank you. I will call again. (Turns to go.)

She—Excuse me, who shall I say called?—Life.

THE DEBATE EXTENDED

Three Extra Days For the Tariff Discussion.

INCOME TAX AS AN AMENDMENT.

In Spite of Mr. Wilson's Opposition the Democratic Caucus Voted to Tack the Revenue Bill on as a Rider—General Sickles Defends Tammany.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Only one amendment of importance to the tariff bill was voted by the house—that revealing the corporate clause of the McKinley law. The entire day was consumed by the New York Democrats, who were filibustering against the income tax proposition, which they feared would be offered, along with the other features of the internal revenue bill, as an amendment to the Wilson bill. As on Wednesday several Democratic speeches severely criticising the bill were delivered.

The bad blood that had existed during the afternoon came to the surface during the consideration of the reciprocity amendment. Mr. Sickles of New York seized the opportunity to repeat his attack on the income tax proposition. The income tax was a Democratic doctrine, he began. Samuel J. Tilden had always maintained that it was unconstitutional and had refused to make a return of his income.

Sickles Talks of Democrats.

"Don't you know," interjected Mr. Mc-Millin, "that the supreme court decided it was constitutional?"

"I am not discussing supreme court decisions," replied Mr. Sickles. "I am discussing the attitude of leaders of Democratic thought."

Did's Mr. Cleveland indorse the income tax proposition?" inquired Mr. Fithian of Illinois.

"I don't recognize Mr. Cleveland's right to construe the Democratic platform for me," retorted Mr. Sickles amid a rattle of Democratic applause.

Mr. Sickles declared that New York did not have to go elsewhere for Democratic doctrine. He concluded a long list of distinguished New York Democrats (omitting Mr. Cleveland) with David B. Hill amid renewed applause.

"How about Dick Croker?" asked some one.

"A better Democrat or a worthier citizen," responded Mr. Sickles, "does not own Richard Croker." [Democratic applause.]

Mr. Meredith of Virginia, in reply to Mr. Sickles, said he had the greatest respect for Tammany and its leaders, but he was glad to go on record as condemning most emphatically the action of the Tammany delegation in rewarding and obstructing the tariff bill. [Applause.] "Let them act in their consciences dictate, but they have no right to embarrass the action of the democratic house." [Applause.]

Democratic advocates of the income tax became impatient late in the afternoon over the course pursued by the New York delegation that they concluded that the best way to settle the question would be by adding a caucus. This Mr. Wilson finally agreed to, and on his motion the house took a recess, and the fight was transferred from the open house to a secret session.

Wilson Beaten In Caucus.

At a caucus of the Democratic members this morning a resolution was introduced in carrying a resolution that the internal revenue bill, including the income tax, should be added as an amendment to the Wilson bill. It was further determined that the tariff debate should be extended three days in order to give time for the discussion of the income tax. Under the new arrangement the final vote on the tariff and the income tax will be taken next Thursday.

These conclusions were reached after an animated meeting of an hour and a half. At the opening of Mr. Wilson's day session of the house came to a close half an hour earlier than usual in order that the caucus might be held. Mr. Holman occupied the chair. The attendance was unusually large, 164 Democratic members responding to the roll call.

Mr. Wilson presented a substitute for the resolution. He proposed that the tariff debate should be closed and the vote taken. After that a special rule should be brought in giving the internal revenue bill two days for debate. Mr. Wilson supported his substitute in a vigorous speech. He urged that the leading down of the tariff bill with an income tax would jeopardize the passage of the measure and might defeat the cause of revenue reform to which they were all pledged. Mr. Wilson continued his appeal for 20 minutes. His plea was in vain, however, for the vote taken on the Wilson substitute showed 68 in its favor and 99 against.

Senate Session Uneventful.

The session of the senate was uneventful. The Hawaiian resolution went over, and Senator Allen of Nebraska made an extended argument in favor of his resolution declaring the contemplated issue of bonds by Secretary Carlisle to be unlawful and the bonds illegal if issued. A desultory discussion of the federal elections bill followed until 5 o'clock, when addresses of eulogy were delivered upon the late J. Logan Chipman, formerly a representative from Michigan.

New York Bridge Bill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The friends of the bridge bill have had some difficulty in deciding between the introduction of a new bill and an effort to pass the vetoed bill, notwithstanding the president's objections. They have now decided upon the former course. There are some features in the old bill outside of the question of piers in the North river, to which the president objects, which the congressional managers of the bill think can be changed to advantage. One of the changes which is likely to be made is in the clause giving the secretary of war certain discretionary powers, which will probably be modified or stricken out.

Fourth Class Postmasters.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The following fourth class postmasters were appointed:

New York—Aurelius, James Hobbs; Chapinville, George Hotchkiss.

Pennsylvania—North Hope, H. E. Stewart; Sangerstown, W. H. Sigendall.

Mrs. Logan's Brother Asked to Go.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Secretary Carlisle has asked for the resignation of J. M. Cunningham, a brother of Mrs. John A. Logan, employed in the photographer's office of the treasury department.

The President's Reception.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The president and Mrs. Cleveland gave the annual reception to congress and the judiciary. There was an immense crowd throughout the evening.

INSANE WOMAN'S DEEDS.

Killed Her Husband, Fatally Shot Her Child and Blew Her Own Brains Out.

ATHENS, N. Y., Jan. 26.—A frenzied woman sent a bullet through the heart of her husband, shot her 9-month-old child through the body and then turned the muzzle of the weapon toward her own temple and sent a bullet into her brain. There were no other members of the family; consequently there are no witnesses to the affair who are able to tell the story. The husband died almost instantly after rushing to a door and shouting for assistance.

A neighbor heard the cry and dashed in over the prostrate body of the man, only to witness the horrible picture of the mother stretched across the body of her infant, from both of whom the life blood was rapidly flowing. The child lay moaning in his cradle, with the mother gasping in her death struggles and grasping in her right hand the revolver which had done the terrible deed.

The physicians in attendance say that neither mother nor child can live. The name of the man is Emil Keller, a Swiss, who married Emma, his wife, in the old country. They have lived in this city for the past two years, and he has held the position of gardener on the premises of the late D. M. Osborne during that time. The only cause which can be assigned for the horrible act of his wife is insanity. A week ago she was discharged from Auburn City hospital, where she had undergone treatment for slight mental difficulties, but she was discharged as cured.

HARTSHORNE HELD,

The High School Principal Charged With Murder.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Jan. 26.—The preliminary hearing of Professor R. C. Hartshorne, late principal of the New Castle high school, in the poor notorious case, was held. There were four charges, one of which was murder. When the prisoner was brought from the county jail by Detective Brown, the street through which he passed were crowded, and a crowd of jeering men and boys followed close on the heels of the hurrying officer and his charge. The press was so great that a special detail of officers was made to guard the door leading to the office.

Professor Hartshorne was pale to the point of being ghastly and appeared greatly frightened. He seemed very much relieved when safely inside and the crowd and its cries were shut out. Miss Alda Robinson could not appear. She was physically able to have been taken to the hearing, but, as one of her friends stated, she is "a gabbling lunatic."

Her elder sister, Margie, was placed on the stand and gave a terse, clear statement of the tragedy. No details of the case, relating practically what has been published heretofore. Hartshorne was held for trial on the four charges.

TIED UP AGAIN.

Bridgeport Street Car Men Renew the Strike, and Trouble Is Expected.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Jan. 26.—The employees of the Traction company struck again, but no violent demonstrations have been made. All the cars were driven to the stables. A crowd ran one car down the street and overturned it. The carmen refuse to break in nonunion men and state that they resigned to work on ten cents. You that their union would be recognized.

THE NEW TEA GOWNS.

Elaborate and Diverse In Style These Convenient Garments Have Grown.

What an elaborate garment the tea gown has become! One recently made up was in cream and yellow striped satin, with a brocade of rosebuds on the stripes. It had a cape of yellow chiffon and large, full, puffed yellow sleeves. Another very striking model is of moss green velveteen, with tabbed cape edged with fur, beneath which is some lace, which falls over the puffed sleeves. There are a small collar and bodice of gold embroidery, with soft cream silk front.

TEA GOWN OF VELVETEEN AND CREAM SILK

Nearly all tea gowns now display a large outside pocket or pockets.

Another gown is in the softest old fashioned brocade, with puffings on the sleeve, and perpendicular puffings assimilating with white lace form the cape over the shoulders. It is cut en princesse, fastened down the front, fitting the figure closely, and has horizontal tuckings at the waist to draw the soft material in to the figure. Charming also is effect in a loose robe, falling closely to the figure, of soft peach satin, exquisite by candle and daylight, very full and falling in soft folds all round the shoulders to the waist; covered with frillings, three deep flouncings falling over the sleeve, forming one deep puff and an elbow ruffle.

A loose gown, diversity exists in, the convenient tea jacket as in the gown.

Some New Fashions.

Among new features of evening gowns noted by Harper's Bazar is the revival of smaller sleeves and less flaring epaulettes. Some of the prettiest sleeves have a circular ruffle of the material sewed in the armhole without gathers and falling full on a small puffed sleeve of net or chiffon.

A great many draped waists are worn, a single breadth of the rich fabric of the dress being carried around the waist like a wrinkled bodice and reaching up to the armholes, the space above filled in with lace or mousseline de soie.

Both square and round necks are trimmed with a narrow band of fur, folds of satin, a ruche or galloon, and with shaped revers or epaulettes rather than the full gathered berths of lace or of accordion plaited chiffon.

While round waists are still preferred by slender women, there are sharply pointed waists for those who are larger.

Fashionable Footwear For Men.

The shoe of fashion, whether it be for dress, street or driving, is one in which the foot finds perfect rest. Shoemaking has become a science, and some of its products for this winter are illustrated and described in following the stove lid, and if I yell once he is coming up here right steps at a time to knock down the ceiling with you. Do you want to go ahead?"

Miss Daybe—I shall never marry.

Miss Bloom—Don't say that. Some one may leave you a fortune some day.—Brooklyn Life.

POPULAR SHAPES IN SHOES.

The upper is a light colored cloth, which extends well up the leg, so that the wearer may pull up his trousers in crossing his limbs a considerable distance and still show a line of small buttons on a seam of pearly cloth. This style goes with the fellow who seeks to wear what "anybody else has not yet caught on to." This sort of thing looks very well on some folks. It takes, however, a nutty fashioned foot and saintly ankle to show to best advantage.

The swell shoe for the promenade is of enameled leather of medium width. A neat thing in an evening shoe for dancing and so on is the congress shape enameled leather without a tip. The top is of silk, and the lace the seam shows in it the better.

Enameling on silver is more and more attractive. Dressing brooches, beetles, buttorflies and floral brooches of enameled silver are most desirable.

THE WRONG MAN.

He Had a Friend With Him, and the Dentist Refused to Act.

A man 6 feet high, with the side of his head wrapped in dirty gauze, went into a Monroe street dental emporium the other day and sank wearily into a chair. In response to the proprietor's "What can I do for you?" the large man said:

"I have a toothache that is breaking my heart, and I think that I ought to have a fang drawn, but, you see, I haven't been to a dentist since I was a boy, and I want to ask you a few questions before you go to work."

"Go ahead."

"I want to know whether you prop a man's jaws apart with an iron wedge and then tell him to 'look pleasant, please.'"

"Certainly we don't."

"I want to know whether you fasten one hand in the victim's hair and brace a knee against his throat, and then draw his teeth as though you were pulling the cork from a beer bottle with a corkscrew."

"Why, that would be murder. You feel no pain at all."

"That's what the dentist told me when I was a boy. I want to know whether you use a jimmy to draw teeth when the pinchers fail, and also whether you will replace, free of charge, any sections of the jaw that may be removed during the operation."

"We won't hurt you at all."

"Then you may go ahead, but I have a friend at the foot of the stairway. He is a larger man than I am, and he can punch a fellow's head in with one blow. If I yell once he is coming up here right steps at a time to knock down the ceiling with you. Do you want to go ahead?"

"I am afraid not. You had better go up street to the veterinary surgeon."—Chicago Tribune.

A meeting of the North Plainfield Township Committee was held in Sponcer's Hall last night. Committeeman Vogelsang and Smith were present and Committeeman Allen absent.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The main purpose of calling the meeting had been to hear Mr. Reed's opinion in reference to certain land fronting on Johnston's drive which the Township had bought for taxes.

Mr. Reed's written opinion in regard to the question of assessments for benefits made for the macadamizing of Johnson's Drive, had been sought by the Committee in order to ascertain how much was still due the township from property owners whose land has a frontage on that thoroughfare.

The opinion shows that on March 13, 1876, John Taylor Johnston, Florens Schetter, Wallace Vail, John L. Spencer, David Z. Thompson, and John F. Wilson, who owned three-fifths of the property fronting on Johnston's Drive petitioned the Township Committee to macadamize Johnston's Drive from Somerset street to the Valley Road.

December 5, 1876, Mr. A. Ooderdonk the engineer in charge, reported that the work was completed satisfactorily. December 7th the report was accepted by the township.

May. 11, 1877, the Township Committee petitioned the Circuit Court to appoint three disinterested freeholders to assess the costs, damages, and expense of the work.

September 18, 1877, the court appointed James M. Thompson, Nelson Young and Peter DeWitt, as commissioners to assess the costs, benefits and damages of the macadamizing.

October 18, 1877, the above commissioners filed their report, as follows:

Total cost	$25,320.68
Benefits assessed by report	13,880.00
Excess of benefits to be paid by township	$ 2,561.68

December 20, 1878, the court fixed January 10, 1879, as a time for hearing objections.

Objections were filed and on May 6, 1879, the court appointed John E. Veghte' LaRue Vredenburgh and John Lindsley as commissioners to make a reassessment according to the provision of an act in relation to assessments in township," approved March 9, 1879.

June 4, 1879, these commissioners filed a report with the following result:

Total cost	$25,195.43
Benefits made	13,759.50
Costs in excess of benefits	11,435.93

On April 29, 1882, the above report of the commissioners, was by order of the court in all respects confirmed.

In 1880 the following assessments were recorded at Somerville as delinquent taxes against such property:

Mine lot	$225.00
"	262.50
W. S. Smith	684.00
Elizabeth Stiger	270.00
Charlotte A. Gilbert	110.00
Wallace Vail	150.00
"	1260.00
Elizabeth M. Stolle	330.00
Unknown	70.00
Martin Dreis	225.30
Florence Schetter	552.00
A. C. Johnston	175.00

On January, 7, 1884, William H. Shotwell, township collector, sold 13 of the above lots for taxes. The township bought them 10 years. The 13 lots cost the township 4,066.10. The township owns the lots until Jan. 1914.

The question for the Township Committee now to solve is how to get benefits from this property.

Mr. Reed said he believed that if action had been taken within six years after the levying of the assessment those persons who had signed the petition could have been compelled to pay assessments, by means of a suit brought against them for money paid by the township committee for their use. But that chance is outlawed now, and there is nothing left for the township committee to do but to sell the property for the remaining costs.

The following claims were referred to the Overseer of the Poor:

G. Brenmer	$30.00
J. Wilson	25.00
S. O. Stanle	48.00
F. E. See	14.00

The lots on Johnston's Drive bought by the township for taxes were ordered advertised for sale.

Township Clerk Horace Martin was instructed to advertise for claims against the said property.

The Committee then adjourned to meet Feb. 1st.

—The annual session of the Newark M. E. Conference to which the Methodist Churches of this County are attached, will be held in St. Luke's M. E. Church, Newark, beginning Wednesday, April 4.

ABOUT THAT CONTRACT.

TWO FIRMS BID UNDER POND'S BUT THERE IS A CHANCE.

A Wrong Report Inadvertently Published in Other Local Papers and also Sent to New York Papers.—Because of the Report in the New York Papers Many Letter are Received from Unemployed Machinists.

There is nothing new regarding the contract which the Pond Machine Tool Company hope to get, an account of which was published exclusively in THE NEWS last Wednesday. The matter remains just about as published then. The other local papers, the next day, in copying the article from THE NEWS announced inadvertently of course that the contract had been secured, and then, as if that was not bad enough, they also sent the same erroneous statement to the New York papers which they represent as correspondents. As a result workmen from Plainfield have applied personally and by mail, in answer to the announcement in the New York dailies many letters from unemployed machinists in all States within two days journey have been received. It makes a decidedly disagreeable task for the representatives of The Pond Machine Tool Company, in their Plainfield office, to be compelled to turn good Plainfield men away and receive appealing letters from hundreds of other deluded men residing elsewhere.

This matter at present is in doubt. There is a good chance for the Pond Machine Tool Company getting the contract, and, if energy and business skill will land it, the heads of the firm who are attending to the matter have the necessary requirements.

There is also a chance of their not getting it. Two firms have bid under them, but one is said to be considered unreliable, and the other, it is claimed, furnished very unsatisfactory work to the government sometime ago and that may now prove a bar to them.

BREVITIES.

—Bad roads in the country have commenced early this year.

—To-night there is to be a song service in the W. C. T. U. rooms.

—The meeting to revive at All Souls' church has been discontinued until further notice.

—Mr. Allen has something of interest about a parcel of money in his advertisement to-day.

—A pony belonging to Mr. Phillips ran away on Park avenue this morning. No damage was done.

—Tax collector H. N. Spencer is anxious that those who still owe their taxes pay same as soon as possible.

—W. H. Sprague will conduct the gospel temperance meeting in Reform Hall to-morrow at four o'clock. All are welcome.

—A noted physician says that colds instead of being caused by atmospheric changes as is generally supposed is caused by breathing impure air. Ninety-nine per cent. of the colds are nothing more than the poisoning of the mucous membrane by bad air.

—Huckin's soups, which are advertised elsewhere, are, according to report, the best ever made. The firm has been making these soups for 30 years and would, therefore, seem to have the right to claim their origin. The fact of their surpassing excellence would seem to be emphasized by the highest award and a medal received at the World's Fair. The announcement in another column regarding Huckin's will be of interest.

AN EVENING SOCIABLE.

Held in the Grace M. E. Church Last Evening.

In spite of the incliment weather, a good attendance was present at the sociable held in the Grace M. E. Church, last evening. The officers and members of the church worked with a will to make the evening an enjoyable one, and through their efforts the time passed away very pleasantly. The programme, which was rather limited on account of the non-appearance of several of those taking part, consisted of recitations by Mr. John Voeld and Miss Cora Sheppard and songs by the young people, after which pie and coffee were served. About eleven o'clock the people dispersed for their homes.

Exciting Dog Fight at Music Hall.

There was an exciting time at Music Hall last night during a play. A big dog belonging to Mr. Beck attacked a smaller one belonging to Mr. Charles Ulrich. The animals were inside the iron fence and close to the doors which open into the main room, when they began to fight. Inside the hall it sounded as if there was a riot on the outside and someone was getting murdered. Many in the audience jumped up and ran out, while others crowded into the aisles.

Chairs were broken over the big dog's head to make him leave go his hold of the other's throat. The heavy blows rained upon him and the chairs finally subdued the brute and compelled him to let go his victim.

RUN OVER BY A TEAM.

Mr. John Daisiel's Son Injured This Morning.

A son of Mr. John Daisiel of East Sixth street was run over by a team of horses belonging to Mr. John T. Barrett, on Park avenue, about ten o'clock this morning. The boy had evidently been jumping on sleighs with other boys and had just got off of one when knocked down and run over by Barrett's team.

The boy was taken to his home by Dr. Lowrie, and his injuried attended to. It was found that he had received a severe scalp wound. His leg was also bruised.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Hardy Wharton of Third place left last night for Saratoga, on a business trip.

On Tuesday night Mr. and Mrs. R. F. B. Huntsman of Westervelt avenue will give a dance to the "Tam O' Shanter Club."

Miss May French of West Seventh street will give a progressive whist party to a number of friends next Thursday night.

Willie Boyd, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Boyd, of Manning avenue, died yesterday morning. The funeral will be held to-morrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock.

At last came the snow and with it the opportunity to try the finest sleigh in town, according to the opinion of several who ought to know. The sleigh in question was one of several beautiful creations on exhibition at the World's Fair, and was purchased by Mr. H. G. Rankin of West Eighth street.

Mr. R. R. Fairchild, formerly a Plainfield merchant, but now of Yonkers, N. Y., and engaged in the drug with his brother, Mr. George Fairchild of Grandview avenue, North Plainfield. Mr. Fairchild is the same genial person as ever and is looking well. He has a brand new beard to keep his moustache company.

The funeral of the late Bernardt B. Gray, of Hillside avenue, yesterday afternoon was attended by a large number of the friends of the deceased. Unity Lodge, Knights of Pythias, of which deceased was a member, attended in a body. The services were conducted by the Rev. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church. The Knights of Pythias held their services also at the house on account of the body being placed in a vault. The pall bearers were: L. B. Woolston, James Buckle, Ames Andrews, W. H. Sutton, Andrew Johnson and Albert Dunavan.

NEW MATRON FOR THE HOSPITAL.

Miss Horn, of a New York Hospital, Engaged.

The recent severe illness of Matron Walrod, from which she is gradually recovering, has compelled her to give up the charge of the Muhlenberg Hospital. Miss Horn of the Presbyterian Hospital, New York, has been secured to take Mrs. Walrod's places. Her engagement will begin, probably, by the middle of next month. Miss Horn has had four years' experience in the Presbyterian Hospital. She will have supervision of the Hospital, but there will be a head nurse under her, and two assistants.

The Advantage of a Thick Sole.

Thursday as Mr. Hoagland, an employee of McCullough's sash and blind mill, in the borough, was running a moulding machine, he had a narrow escape from accident. Mr. Hoagland placed his foot against the machine to brace himself to pull a piece of wood he was moulding from the machine. His foot slipped against one of the knives in motion. Mr. Hoagland had a very thick sole on his shoe, that saved his foot. The sole was nearly a half inch thick. It was torn off like paper but before the knife got into his foot Mr. Hoagland drew it back.

Heaviest Snow of the Season.

The heaviest snow-fall of the season fell last night. The snow was about six inches on a level this morning. Sleighs were brought forth from their rusty hangings and used for the first time this Winter. As usual one of the first to take advantage of the good though brief sleighing was Mr. Albert Hedden. His fine horse, "George Wilkes" hitched to a new cutter made a handsome turnout.

Magic Lantern Exhibition for Charity.

A magic lantern show was given at the residence of Mr. John M. Duck, 89 Jackson avenue, under the management of Edwin Duck. Fred Martin, George Eckardt and James Arnold last evening. After the exhibition refreshments were served. The proceeds were for the benefit of spoor family of the borough. The affair proved a success.

WESTFIELD'S BIRTHDAY

CELEBRATES ITS CENTENNIAL WITHOUT ANY WINE.

Politicians, Preachers and Women Attended the Banquet, which Ends with Cold-Water Toasts.

A big public dinner, where everybody drank toasts in Apollinaris water or lemonade, was given in the Westfield Club hall last evening in honor of the one hundredth anniversary of the town. The abstinence from the use of spirituous beverages was the result of a vote of the citizens at the meeting two weeks ago. The Chairman of the Entertainment Committee, W. H. Peckham, used all his influence to have wine served solely on the ground that it would be discourteous to guests not to do so. He was opposed by all the ministers and churches in town, and after a lot of talk it was decided to have a strictly temperance banquet and thus preserve the fair name of Westfield, which has remained unsullied through the past century.

Rev. N. W. Caldwell was the leader of the anti-wine faction. Mr. Caldwell is a direct descendant of Parson Caldwell, of Springfield, who has been immortalized by the poet as the dominie who, when the Yankee soldiers ran short of gun wads, rushed into the church, caught up an armful of Watts's hymn-books and distributed them around, crying: "Give 'em Watts, boys, give 'em Watts!"

The banquet was scheduled to begin at 6.30 o'clock, but began much after that hour. Covers were laid for 300 guests, and there were fully that number present.

The absence of a single wine glass was a striking feature, and caused some amusement to a number of the promiscuous people who surrounded the board. While a few citizens were too indignant at what they called the churches' "high-handed policy" to appear, there was an excellent representation from all the societies in town, as well as many from surrounding places. The guidelines were agreed to be responsible for a certain number of tickets. Rev. Mr. Caldwell taking twenty.

A number of women were also at the banquet. Seats were arranged for them at smaller tables, where they sat with their escorts and listened to the speeches. This feature of the banquet added greatly to the enjoyment and took away much of the formality which might otherwise have marked the occasion. It was like a family dinner, with lots of good cheer and plenty of bright speeches. An orchestra at one end of the room contributed enlivening music whenever there was a lull in the speechmaking.

Among those who responded to toasts were Hon. St. Clair McKelway, Major Gen. T. J. Morgan, Mayors Samuel McCutcheon of North Plainfield, Alfred E. Pearsall, Judge J. S. Greene, Assemblyman C. N. Codding, Ames Clark, Mayor Gilbert of Plainfield, Senator Foster M. Voorhees, Surrogate Parrot, County Clerk Oliver, Rev N. W. Caldwell, Justice of the Peace P. C. Pearsall, Col. George H. Starr, ex-Senator James L. Miller, E. R. Collins and the chairman of Fanwood, Cranford and New Providence townships.

Dancing at the Park Club.

There was a subscription dance at the Park Club last night. There was general dancing until 1030 when the cotillion was led by Mr. Irving West with Miss Marion Dumont.

Those who received were Mrs. S. St. J. McCutchen, Mrs. Walter McGee and Mrs. William L. Saunders.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. William L. Saunders, Mr. and Mrs. James T. Scott, Mr. and Mrs. George C. Evans, Mr. and Mrs. William Saunders, Mr and Mrs. James P. Mason, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin A. Heysman, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. J. P. McQuade, the Misses Holly, the Misses Mary and Miss Musgrave, Miss Emily Sandford, Miss Marion Dumont, Miss Knapp, Miss Annie Murphy, Miss Jessamy Harte, Miss Bessie Evans, Miss Katharyn Yates, Miss Florence Underwood, Miss Williams of Jersey City, and Messrs. Arthur Neville Waring, Clarence L. Murphy Julius Erickson, Roger Erickson, Peter Matthews, James Leonard, T. H. Cheeswright, Louis Waring, Howard Hunting, William Runyon, Harry Patton, Laurens Van Buren, Stewart Wood, Percy Sandford, Frank Marsh, Fabian Underwood, Mr. Adams of Philadelphia, Mr. Spencer and Mr. Davis of Bergen Point and Mr. Davis of Jersey City.

Senator Voorhees About Worn Out.

According to a New York paper the strain of the prolonged struggle between the rival Senators at Trenton seems to be having a bad effect on Senator Foster M. Voorhees, of Union county. He looked thoroughly broken up yesterday while trying a case at the Court of Chancery at Elizabeth, and said he was anything but a well man. Senator Voorhees has been suffering for nearly a week with the grip, and this, in addition to the nervous strain he has been subjected to in attending to his law practice and affairs at Trenton, has worn him out. He has been advised by his physician that he cannot much longer overtax his strength, and is going to his father's home in Hunterdon county.

Postage Stamps and Cigars.

The office of the Westfield Leader was broken into Thursday night and the desks ransacked. The contents were scattered about the floor, but nothing was taken except some postage stamps and a few cigars.

13 CASES.

Judge Coddington's Busy Day in the City Court.

City court cases occupied City Judge Coddington's attention the latter part of last forenoon. It was the largest grist for some time.

Thomas Middleton, arrested for riding on coal trains, 30 days.

James Case, same charge, 30 days.

James Dunn, same charge, 30 days.

C. W. Smith, same charge, 30 days.

Kate Ward, trespassing on the railroad, sentence suspended.

Patrick Mosley was arraigned charged with using abusive language to his wife. His wife withdrew her complaint, and the case was dismissed. The Judge advised them to go home and bury the hatchet and try to live peacefully together but warned them not to bring up the subject again when they reached home.

In the case of Harry Bogert, arrested for striking a boy named Frontier on the head, sentence was suspended.

There were five cases in which the complaint was the same. The defendants were Edward Parsons, Allen Parsons, Anthony Parsons, William Parsons, and James Ross. They were arrested on complaint of James and Katie Bergen, on the charge of being disorderly on October 22nd, 1893, the 8th day of January. All pleaded not guilty. They were corroborated by nine witnesses. The Judge dismissed the complaint.

William Parsons was tried also on another charge of using profane language to Kate Bergen. He was also discharged.

Complainant Didn't Appear.

Richard Eustace was given a hearing yesterday afternoon at Westfield on the charge of throwing oil in the stoves at the shops at Garwood, and thus setting fire to the clothing of Michael Dorn. The complainant did not appear. After hearing the testimony of a couple of witnesses the court discharged Eustace as it was shown that he was not within 200 feet of Dorn, and that Adam Zep threw the oil in the stove.

—Perhaps there is no better known man in all Germany than Carl Hagenbeck. From one end of the Empire to the other he is known to all young people as "Uncle Carl." What Barnum was in the show business to this country Mr. Hagenbeck more than doubles. Right in the centre of the beautiful city of Hamburg he has his zoological gardens where you can find animals from all parts of the world in their cages and where he meets men from the zoological gardens of all the different countries and sells to them the savage denizens of the jungle. That is one small branch of his very extensive business and another is the wonderful trained animals now playing at Tattersall's 55th street and 7th avenue, New York City. The way Carl Hagenbeck started is rather odd. His father early in life had something to do with animals but young Carl at the age of twelve was a delinquent. His position was not congenial to him and he protested until one day while working along the docks in Hamburg a sailor sold him a black bear. It was the first wild animal he ever had anything to do with, but he took it home and trained it. In the next black bear performed wonderful feats, whereupon he had an offer from Berlin to sell it. It was sold, and from that day Carl Hagenbeck became an animal dealer. The black bear was the first he ever purchased, and in the years that have passed he has purchased and sold many millions of dollars worth of wild animals. His gigantic menagerie in Hamburg is always open to children free. It is one of his fads, and it is no uncommon sight to see a hundred children playing around the grounds feeding peanuts to the elephants and bits of sugar to the bear.

STOLE TO KEEP HIS FAMILY FROM STARVING.

John Morris was convicted in the Court of Special Sessions at Jersey City on Thursday of stealing six loaves of bread from a grocery store. He has a wife and two children, and said he stole the bread because they were starving.

In view of the pitiful aspect of the case, Judge Hildepath suspended sentence and permitted the man to go.

VALUABLE GRASS.

The hundreds of acres of rank growth of swamp grass which spread for miles before hayfields have suddenly sprung into marketable value. For several years experiments have been quietly made with the grass and now it is announced that an excellent quality of fibrous paper can be made from it. A syndicate of Camden and Philadelphia capitalists has been formed to develop the industry. It is claimed the finest bond and writing papers can be made. SPENT HIS MONEY AND BECAME A TRAMP AGAIN.

Two years ago John Fisher was locked up in the Burlington county jail as a tramp. A week later he received intelligence of the death of his mother, in England, by which he had fallen heir to $1,000. After his release he returned to England, secured his legacy and then proceeded to have a high old time. A year ago he paid a visit to Mt. Holly jail, dressed like a prince, and treated all his old cronies to tobacco and other luxuries. That was the last seen of him until last week, when he was again locked up for vagrancy. He had spent every penny of his legacy and was again a tramp.

WANTED TO FILE A CLAIM FOR $500,000.

In Chancery Chambers, before Chancellor McGill, in Jersey City, yesterday, Counselor Whitehead, of New York, on behalf of John B. Waterbury, asked leave to file a claim for $500,000 against the National Coinage Company, based on the allegation of Mrs. Eliza Watt that she has sold to the company some property for which she had never been paid. Counselor William H. Corbin for the company alleged that the claim was filed to prevent the payment of a dividend January 31. Chancellor McGill adjourned the matter until February 5.

IN BEHALF OF PURITY.

Plea for the Prevention of State Regulation of Vice.

[From the Boston Herald Jan. 25.]

"Keep thyself pure," voices a possibility for humanity. It is a command addressed to humanity—not to women alone, not to men alone, but to both. It is a command which would not have been issued at all if it had not been possible of fulfillment.

These were the opening words and an epitome of the address on "Social Purity," delivered at Wesleyan Hall yesterday afternoon by Mr. Aaron M. Powell, president of the New York Committee for the Prevention of State Regulation of Vice, and editor of the Philanthropist. Mr. Powell spoke in Plainfield on Jan. 14, and hall was filled with lady members of the Physiological Institute and Moral Education Association. On the platform were seated Dr. Salome Merritt, who introduced the speaker, and Mrs. Abbie Gould Weldon.

"Slavery has been abolished, but the principle of slavery is at the bottom of that odious European system of state regulation of vice, and it is on like establishment of vice in this country that it assigns women and girls to the condemnation of this movement against state regulation of vice. "Social purity," "regulation means stately for women," and untold degradation for men," said the speaker. He spoke of the strongholds, more or less defined, to fasten the system of registration upon our cities, and suggested legislation as the remedy for existing evils.

"We need to push legislation; to put the question on the side of purity and right. Law may sometimes appear to go downward. We need higher laws and to cultivate the spirit of truth to recognize it."

Dr. Salome Merritt and other members spoke briefly upon the subject.

A reception to Mr. Powell followed.

HE WAS PAINTED GREEN

How Rutgers Freshmen Served a Sophomore.

CLASS PRESIDENT THEIR VICTIM.

He Was Kidnapped Late at Night, Taken to the River Bank and Stripped, and Then His Body Was Covered With Paint Mixed With Flaxseed to Make It Thick.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Jan. 27.—There is trouble in store for some frolicsome Rutgers college students who kidnaped G. M. Ridgway of Trenton, president of the sophomore class, while he was on his way to one of the fraternity houses. Several freshmen took him to the bank of the canal, where his clothing was removed and his body covered with green paint.

Ridgway was compelled to suffer this indignity on account of the actions of the sophomores the night before. The freshmen had had their annual dinner and had finished it before the sophomores, who make a practice of stealing the feast, had learned that the event was to take place. The mischievous sophomores attempted to get square by rooting out of bed several freshmen in Winant's dormitory who had not attended the feast and painting them green.

When the banqueters returned, there was a lively time in the dormitory, which the senate, the controlling body of the hall, finally quelled.

Planned For Revenge.

Then the freshmen decided to be revenged. Many plans were discussed. It was no ordinary revenge that they wanted. They finally decided that the leader of the offending sophomores should have a coat of green paint, which should be thicker and be harder to remove than those their own classmates had received.

Ridgway, president of the sophomore class, was the man they wanted. Some of the freshmen lay in wait for him that night. A close watch was kept by freshmen scouts, who knew he would probably visit one of the fraternity houses during the night.

It was dark and cold, and the wind was high, but the freshmen did not seem to realize it. They were willing to endure greater hardships than those which confronted them so long as there was a prospect for finding Ridgway. The victim was late in appearing, but he appeared at last. As he passed the waiting freshmen they surrounded him, and before he realized his danger they had overpowered him and were hustling him off toward the canal.

In a dark and lonely spot on the bluff near the seminary buildings, overlooking the canal, the procession halted. A pot filled with green paint was produced, and the work of removing Ridgway's clothing was begun. The high night wind chilled young Ridgway as the freshmen disrobed him.

Gloated Over His Agony.

The freshmen were obdurate. The insult of the night before must be avenged, they said. A half dozen flickering lanterns lent a weird aspect to the midnight scene. The keen cold nipping air caused Ridgway's hair into a tangle. The poor boy shrank from the paint brush, but it was no use. When the freshmen got through with him, he was covered with green paint.

To make the paint stick they added liberal handfuls of flaxseed. Then they allowed Ridgway to don his clothes. That was adding injury to insult. His torturers gloated over his agony.

It would have been only half the fun with an ordinary sophomore, but Ridgway was the president of the class. Finally he was led back to Winant's dormitory to spend the rest of the night trying to scrub off the paint and flaxseed. In the morning Ridgway looked as though he had lost 10 pounds during the night.

The sophomores are now determined that they shall get square, but there is a fair prospect of mysterious faculty meetings and detective work among the professors to locate the leading offenders. President Austin Scott has ordered a thorough investigation

BOND ISSUE FRUITFUL.

It Already Gives Confidence In the Financial Future.

DEFINITE INDUSTRIAL GAINS.

Many Manufactories Have Resumed Work, While Five Have Stopped—The Working Forces in the Mills Have Been Increased, No Large Failures Reported.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Dun's Weekly Review of Trade, published today, says: Secretary Carlisle's decision to issue bonds and the early reports of large bids for them helped to accelerate recovery of industries and trade, as was hoped last week. The sale of the amount offered will check anxiety about the maintenance of note redemption, remove the only pretext for further issues of paper and thus give a solid basis for general confidence regarding the financial future. The revenue is still small—from customs in January thus far, $16,605,301, against $19,980,351 last year, and from internal taxes, $9,487,979, against $11,059,498—and the volume of domestic trade is still small. The increase in the number of hands employed adds to the purchasing power of the people, and dealers' stocks are so reduced that any sign of larger consumption quickly gives mills some orders. In short, the conditions are such that if not interrupted by adverse forces they would naturally bring a steady revival of business.

Definite Industrial Gain.

Industrial gain is more definite than a week ago. Five establishments have stopped work, while many have resumed or increased production, and though three new works employing thousands each the aggregate increase is considerable. Reductions in wages continue, and about a quarter of a million out of 300,000 the textile figures from 7 to 17 per cent. In no direction are quotations of manufactured products lower, but while some have actually declined the general tone is somewhat stronger.

Thus distinct improvement is seen in the demand for iron products at Philadelphia, though for some, which it was thought could not go lower, quotations have been reduced. The increase in demand for iron products is mainly in structural forms, cast pipe, wire rods, barbed wire and wire nails, while in nails and others the dullness in business is in remarkably small. For the fourth quarter of 1893 the reduction of new buildings in New York is enormous was $6,321,770, against $15,—in the same quarter of 1892.

Woolen goods stores have increased work, chiefly mainly in knit goods, underwear and some prints, though several woolen mills have started, and others are reported about to start. Sales of wool are larger, amounts at the chief markets to 4,003,300 pounds, against 8,061,350 for the same week last year, but prices at Philadelphia are 1 to 1½ lower, while at New York there is more inquiry for carpet and other mills. Trade was checked by disappointment at the delay at Washington in the changes of duty to take effect, and there is little disposition to place or accept orders until the future is more clear.

The Textile Industries.

Interestings no samples of some prominent makers are yet shown nor prices named, and the keenest opened are for spring cloths, low last year's prices. Worsteds are to have a stronger position, and a better business in dress goods is generally reported for the week. Cottons are not stimulated, as was hoped by the reductions announced, and the effect has been to make buyers of other goods hold off, so that the market is weaker.

Carpet manufacturers report improvement, especially in lower grades, and orders to replenish stocks after months of inactivity are nearly as large as a year ago. The shoe and leather trades appear to gain little, though shipments from Boston for the week are again 24 per cent smaller than last year.

New York banks again added to their enormous stock of money, and offers are made for a full year at 4 per cent, the lowest rate on record for that period, while for short loans 1 per cent rules. Demoralization in silver was caused by the abandonment of the proposed import duty by the government of India and also of the fixed price for council bills at London, but foreign exchange is not seriously altered.

Failures in the United States were 420 this week, against 225 last year, and 35 in Canada, against 40 last year. None is of great magnitude. The liabilities of firms failing thus far reported this year amount to $15,000,000, of which $9,071,837 were of manufacturing and $6,850,253 of trading concerns.

Boston's Big Charity Ball.

BOSTON, Jan. 27.—The reception and ball for the benefit of the unemployed, under the auspices of the Ninth regiment of the Massachusetts volunteer militia, was one of the greatest military gatherings that has been held in Boston for years. MR. CHILDS' LAST HOURS.

There Was a Sudden Change For the Worse in His Condition.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 27.—The condition of Mr. George W. Childs, the Philadelphian philanthropist and publisher of The Public Ledger, suddenly changed for the worse, and it is reported that the symptoms are such as to cause the gravest uneasiness as to the result.

Mr. Childs was stricken while in his office in The Ledger building a week ago last Thursday with what was then pronounced an attack of vertigo, arising from indigestion. It was rumored, however, at the time that Mr. Childs' illness was apoplectic in its nature and that his friends were very solicitous as to the ultimate results. This was confirmed a few days later by an announcement from his physicians, who guardedly admitted that the attack was accompanied by partial paralysis of the lower limbs. It was also admitted that Mr. Childs had suffered at least one previous attack of a similar character.

After being removed to his city home at Twenty-second and Walnut streets Mr. Childs rallied somewhat, but he has been under the constant care of Drs. Da Costa Leidy and Roberts ever since. One or the other of these physicians remained constantly at his bedside, and bulletins were issued twice a day, giving a statement of the progress of the case. These have generally been of a reassuring nature, but it was almost universally believed that the chances of Mr. Childs' ultimate recovery were greatly lessened by reason of his age and the nature of his illness. The bulletins issued for the past three or four days were unusually cheering to his friends, the one issued Friday morning being the most favorable of any since he became ill.

The physicians in charge of the case decided to give any details save such as are contained in the following bulletin: "Mr. Childs has not improved. His condition has become a serious one."

At the office of The Public Ledger it was said that nothing further than this was known, but that accurate information would be furnished at the earliest possible moment.

Mrs. Childs, the only member of Mr. Childs' immediate family save an adopted son, was at his bedside, having hurried from their country home at Wootton on the first news of her husband's illness.

TRYING TO RUN CARS.

Bridgeport Strikers and the Police Have a Skirmish.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Jan. 27.—The Traction company, unable to make any terms with the strikers, started their cars with nonunion men. Two cars left the stables with the first loads, the regular men on each car. The first one was not hindered, but after it had passed the crowd gathered, and before the second one had gone two squares it was compelled to stop on account of obstructions placed upon the track.

Detective Arnold arrested Arthur Chamberlain, and the police kept them going until the way was clear for 12 squares, and it then looked as if they would succeed in getting the car through. The entire police force is on duty, including a number of special officers. A recurrence of the trouble is feared if the cars are run this evening.

The Traction company succeeded in running several cars over the entire road with the assistance of the police. The cars missed the nonunion men, but made no trouble. One man was arrested while placing obstructions on the track. At night no cars were run, as there were not officers enough to guard them.

Colonel Hall, the owner of the road, received a letter notifying him that his home was to be blown up with dynamite. The Electric Web Weavers' union gave a ball for the benefit of the strikers. A parade preceded it.

NEXT FIGHT IN ENGLAND.

Corbett Professes That His Match With Jackson Should Occur There.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 27.—The fight between Corbett and Jackson next June may take place in England. Jackson, who is playing at a local theater, has received word that Corbett rather preferred the contest to come off on the other side of the water on account of the difficulties met with in the recent match with Mitchell.

Both men, it is said, are satisfied that the principals in the next mill fought in this country will in whatever way prove greater obstacles than in the last one, and for that reason they would willingly agree to go to England if the inducements of a large purse was offered. Jackson stated that he would meet the champion on English soil or anywhere in this country north of the Mason and Dixon line, but he would not fight in the south.

THE MIDWINTER FAIR.

California's Exposition In Golden Gate Park Opened.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 27.—The California Midwinter International exposition was formally opened today. Great preparations had been made for the event, and the fact that Governor Markham issued a proclamation declaring a holiday caused a general suspension of business in this city and in the most important places throughout the state.

The progress of the work on the 180 acres tract in Golden Gate park which has been set apart for the fair has been most remarkable, and so far as the buildings and grounds are concerned everything was practically ready for the opening celebration.

There has been some delay, however, in getting all exhibits in place, though that work is now progressing rapidly, and it is expected that the entire portion will be complete in a very short time.

Today's celebration opened with an imposing street parade, which was probably the largest ever seen in this part of the country. It was composed of regular troops, a brigade of the national guard, naval reserve, a large number of independent military companies and representatives from all the principal civic societies and commercial bodies. The decorations were profuse about the line of march at the Golden Gate avenue to the park, and great numbers of people witnessed the procession.

THE CLUB A LOSER.

Manager Bowden of the Duval Club Talks About Stockton and Corbett.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 27.—J. E. T. Bowden says that the Duval club took in $31,000 in admissions to the fight, and out of this the $20,000 purse and $5,000 training expenses of the principals had to come, making a balance to the club's credit of $6,000, and out of this the attorneys' fees and other expenses have to be met. "We are $7,000 loser by the governor's interference," he said.

The statement that the total receipts were only $31,000 is generally accepted with a grain of salt.

Corbett, as champion of the world, will have to fight for the title some time in June, and Peter Jackson will be the man who will go up against him.

Parson Davies has sent a telegram to his brother, Vera R. Davies, in Chicago to put up the second deposit of $1,000 for a fight in the stakeholder's hands. The stakeholder is Will A. Davis of the Haymarket theater, Jackson's backer, and he now holds $6,000 of Corbett's and Jackson's money, $2,000 for each man.

Parson Davies said: "They say I am too fazy to let Jackson go up against Corbett, do they? Well, they can say what they please, but this second deposit going up just on the heels of Corbett's victory looks as though I were business, doesn't it? I've got a wonder, and the people will see it when Jackson and Corbett meet." The fight will take place between the 20th and 30th of June before the club offering the largest purse.

The old Duval club no longer exists. It broke up Friday. Some hard names passed between four of the members and Bowden, whose management was severely criticised. Bowden has washed his hands of the whole business. The other members of the club are going to reorganize with outside capital. They are planning to build a fine house, with the expectation of pulling off at least three events every winter.

There may be another battle in Jacksonville on March 5. Articles were signed in this city for a glove contest between Bob Fitzsimmons and Dan Creedon to take place on that date. The men will fight at middleweight for $10,000 a side before the club offering the best purse.

AN ARTISTIC SUCCESS.

CHAMBER MUSIC CONCERT IN THIS CITY SATURDAY NIGHT.

Given by Ulysse Bahler, Assisted by the Beethoven String Quartette.—A Fine Audience Present.—All Delighted.

The chamber music concert at the home of Mr Marsh, 326 West Eighth street, Saturday evening, was an artistic success.

The Schumann Quintette opened the programme, and was appreciated by a few who have studied the composer. Even those of the audience who could not perhaps fully analyze and understand the clever originality and new turns of thought in the quintette, were impressed by the beauty and variety of its broad melodies, or excited to fresh emotional fluctuations by the endless changes of rhythm and the almost prodigal variety in form and color. Nothing could be more perfect than the ensemble. Mr. Bahler, although a soloist of great repute, is especially adapted to chamber playing, having too high an artistic conception to subject the upper part too much to prominence, but holding it back to absolutely perfect proportion or making it subordinate when necessary to bring to the foreground the effect of the other instruments.

Mr. Bahler and the first violinist, Mr. Mr. Dannreuther, were congratulated after the flawless performance of these chamber music concerts and from the appreciation shown them in Plainfield, it was evident that all would be glad to hear them here again.

The following comprised the Beethoven String Quartette: Mr. O. Dannreuther, 1st violin; Mr Ernest Tolet, 2d violin; Mr. Otto K. Schill, viola; Mr. Emil Schenck, violincello.

The programme was as follows:

Schumann—Quintette, Op. 44, E flat, for Pianoforte and strings.
1. Allegro brillante.
First movement.
Schubert—Theme and Variations, from D minor Quartette, "Death of the Maiden," a posthumous work of Schubert, had a beautiful effect when rendered to by Messrs Knabe on the piano, and the Beethoven String Quartette.
Chopin { a. Impromptu, F sharp major. / b. Valse, A flat.
Mr. U. Bahler.

Mr. Bahler played a graceful Valse of Dvorak as encore.

a. Wagner—Dreams.
b. Godard—Scherzando.
Dvorak—Quartette, Op. 81, in A major, for Pianoforte and strings.
a. Allegro, ma non troppo.
b. Dumka.
c. Furiant (Vivace).
d. Finale (Allegro).

THE CITY OF THE PLAIN

PLAINFIELD'S PAST, PRESENT AND FUTURE.

Mayor Alexander Gilbert's Address at Westfield's Centennial Friday Night.—Westfield's Child is Expected to Reach Out and Take in the Mother.

Mayor Gilbert's address at the Westfield Centennial Friday night, is reported as follows by the Westfield Standard:

ADDRESS OF MAYOR GILBERT OF PLAINFIELD.

I have been informed that I am to speak upon the past, present and future of Plainfield. This somewhat embarrasses me—we do not like to talk of ourselves; it hardly seems appropriate as an exercise of this kind to talk of any thing but Westfield, besides the time allotted me is entirely too short to do justice to the many charms of Plainfield. It may be possible to crowd into a single night the leading years of the history of Westfield, but the glory and grandeur of Plainfield's past and present will admit of no such brevity of discussion. There is one trait of character I admire in the Westfield people, they are loyal to Westfield; to talk up any Westfield man about the future of Westfield is to make to his mind a fairy tale; but he sees looming up through the dim shadowy outlines of the future some such picture as Plainfield's present and accommodations now when they talked about far away Cathay.

I had the pleasure of listening to a speech made by your chairman two years ago at a dinner given to Plainfield's visiting editorial friends, he told us all about Westfield, his rich store of information on that subject elicited great applause. Among other things he told us that Westfield was to prosper in the centre of population that the sky touched the earth exactly the same distance from Westfield in all directions. This sounded very much like Prester Knott, but we let it pass, for he had a still greater surprise for us. He admitted Plainfield's claim to pre-eminence, but, said he, Westfield is your mother, she created you; this was a new idea; it crowding a great deale in Plainfield for mother's picture. I stopped over at Westfield the next day, hoping that I might secure a picture. I searched through your pictures galleries and old antiquary shops without success. Finally I happened into a dingy looking store filled with the relics of Westfield's past history; a little woman faced me as I stood in the doorway, I told him my errand. He said that he was sorry that he could not accommodate me; that Westfield did not stand still long enough to have her picture taken. My invitation to this banquet informed me that several towns had sprung from Westfield, but that Plainfield would hold the post of honor on this occasion. I must therefore endeavor to lose sight of myself and consider your invitation and the attention shown me to-night as only intended to do honor to the city of Plainfield.

The city in which the best years of my life have been spent, which is interwoven in my life history, with my highest aims, my truest ambitions, my sweetest joys and most sacred relations. The city which, during the past quarter of a century, I have seen grow from the village to the metropolis of the county, and the leading city of the plain. Do not, I beg of you, impute to me wrong motives. I have no desire to confront you on this Centennial occasion with the opposing forces of rivalry, but as Plainfield is as much a part of me as I am of her, as she cradled me in her bosom, and to recount to her the splendid triumphs of her own child. What greater joy can I bring to you than this. Many years have passed since you gave us a parting blessing, bidding us go out into the world and seek our fortune; what more fitting occasion for us to return than on this your hundredth anniversary, to present you of our love, our devotion, our earnest desire to be to you a joy and support in your old age.

Westfield was born in the fullness of time, just at the end of the great political and intellectual movements which gave impetus to the splendid civilization of the nineteenth century, and has kept pace in consciousness with the most stirring events in the history of the nation.

What a forward stride the human race has taken during the life of your township, the wonderful discoveries in science and mechanics have changed the current of human affairs, broken down international barriers, modified the principles of government, and elevated man to power, dignity and knowledge, such as he never dreamt of possessing a hundred years ago.

One hundred years ago a trip from New York to Philadelphia occupied from five to eight days: to-day, it can be made in as many minutes as it then required hours.

In 1794 the first telegraph line was built between New York and Philadelphia along the old coach road in the rear of your town, built there because the railroad officials refused to have the poles erected along the line of the railway. The first telegraph message from Philadelphia to New York was delivered at Somerville and carried from that point to New York by the Elizabethtown Water Power & R. R. Co. To-day there is no part of the civilized world that cannot be reached in less than two hours by this wonderful and mysterious agent. Barber in his historical collections, published in 1844, speaks of Westfield as a pretty Blue Village, having thirty or forty houses and a Presbyterian church, with a tarrying population scattered round about. Mention is made in his story of the old farm on which apple jack was the standard tipple through this section of the State, that the seeds of intemperance were literally sown in the cradle; that a keg of whiskey was regularly opened, and a free distribution of apple jack was the rule. What a change has taken place since that time. To-day Westfield celebrates her hundredth anniversary, and not a saloon or apple jack store, the need of any other stimulating liquid. This is practical.

Some of the old generation speak of a church having been erected here in 1720 that the people were morally and religiously inclined, and were imbued with a great love of liberty. That people to come in the future may have an account for the people who inhabit this township to-day. The community that can boast of liberty and religion as its parents, truly has a great heritage to inherit.

It is fitting that on an anniversary occasion like this, you should come together to celebrate, in an appropriate manner, the progress of the first hundred years of your history. While you may not be able to boast of rapid growth or of a long series of great deeds, still there is much to your credit of which you may justly feel proud. You have kept out of debt, your people have enjoyed peace and prosperity—and what is better than all, you have safely passed the stagnation period—that period in the history of every community, when for a time there seems to be little or no growth—the period of persistency, of close and rigid economy, followed by a lack of appreciation of what is necessary to stimulate a healthy development. Having safely passed that period you are now prepared to compete with your neighbors for the good things which the future holds so richly in store for all who prove themselves worthy. You have an intelligent, and energetic population—you have learnt the importance of good roads, and have studied well a sewerage system. You have begun to take on form and consistency—already you are quite attractive—keep on in this direction and you will become the object of an interest in you. We have sent our pure health-giving water to you, and in time along with other elements of our civilization, we will extend our electric railway to your doors, filling up the territory that now separates us, with pretty homes, and a contented population. When that time comes if we find you like a bride awaiting for her husband, we may offer you our hand and make you happy.

BROKE THROUGH THE ICE.

Two Boys Receive a Cold Bath in Wilson's Pond

James Walker of this city and William Acker of Washington Valley received a cold bath in Wilson's pond yesterday afternoon. The boys who are each about 12 years old, were rescued by Sunday-school goers.

The went upon the ice to see how strong it was.

Before they had advanced very far upon the pond the ice broke and they both landed in the cold water. Walker managed to crawl out unaided, but his companion was unable to raise himself upon the ice. He hung on to the ice, however, and held himself from sinking until Henry Rogers and several others who were on their way home from Sunday school, slid fence rails out to him relief, with the help of which he was rescued.

Too Slippery to Stand on Two Legs.

This morning as one of the United States Express Company's horses was being taken to a blacksmith shop it tried to get fractious and rear up. The animal evidently forgot the slippery condition of the street and the smoothness of its shoes, or it never would have tried waiting on its hind legs alone. As the animal reared up, its hind legs shot out from under and down it went with thud.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Opinions About Canada.

That always lively editor and sometimes giddy gadder, W. T. Stead, took a run up the north country on his way back to England and had time to lecture the citizens of the Dominion on the proper attitude for them to assume toward the United States. Among other gems that dropped from his lips in the course of an address at Toronto was the following:

At present the people who are supposed to set an example of public opinion are the newspapers, and they are about the worst penny-a-liners in the world. It is dull work making peace, and the natural heroes of the newspaper age is to make his paper interesting. Therefore sensational peace will see now for the British Lion to roar and lash its sides so that all the world responds, and you will hear the eagle gnashing its beak and tearing its breast and beating like a demented hare door mat, and all that it means is that so many guineas have to be filled with readable copy, with plenty of ginger in it.

For this reason and many others Stead thinks there should be established between Canada and the United States an international supreme court, which should calmly and impartially decide all matters at issue, such as the seal fisheries question was. He also suggests that this body be made up from members of "the United States supreme court and of our privy council." To this suggestion the judges of the United States supreme court might answer that they have more than they can do already.

Mr. Stead does not consider the question of the annexation of Canada to this country as of paramount importance. As a true Britisher he does not go in for it. What he does go in for, however, is the utter breaking down of all customs barriers between the United States and Canada. He observes that a row of customs houses dotted all along the line between the two countries is an ridiculous as custom houses between the different states of this Union would be. Free trade, reciprocity, or whatever one would wish to call it, would, in the judgment of Stead, be the making of both the United States and Canada. Their commercial, agricultural and manufacturing interests are bound inextricably together, he says, and friendliness and the utmost freedom of trade are what Canadians who know on which side their bread is buttered should work for.

On the other hand, Hon. Francis Wayland Glen, a former member of the Canadian parliament, writes for The American Journal of Politics a paper warmly advocating political union. He says he has the Canadian people for 40 years, and that they are steadily becoming less English and more American. Furthermore, one-fourth of all the native born Canadians are now residents of the United States. He calls for the fullest, freest discussion of this great question on both sides of the line—discussion in a kindly, calm spirit. He is sure a majority of the Canadian people are in favor of annexation. But if the question were fully set before them.

As a preliminary step to annexation he would like to see a large number of American citizens—those who lead public opinion—assemble and in a great meeting pass some such resolution as the following:

Resolved, That we believe that the political system of the two great English speaking communities, who now occupy and control North America, will deliver the continent from the scourge of war and dedicate it to the arts of peace, lessen the per capita cost of government and defense, leave the larger development of its unlimited natural resources, enlarge its domestic and foreign markets, protect and preserve its wealth, resources, privileges and opportunities as the undisputed heritage of all, and, promote, extend and perpetuate government by the people. We therefore invite the Canadian people to cast in their lot with their own continent and assure them that they shall have all that the continent can give them. We will respect their freedom of action and welcome them, when they desire it, into an equal and honorable union.

In novels it occasionally happens that people let out in the delirium of fever important secrets which destroy the plans of the wicked. Psychologists have disputed that this ever occurred in real life. It has actually taken place, however, in the case of a thieving bank teller in Philadelphia. As usual, he was the trusted employee. For 27 years he had been working for that bank, and the firm would almost as soon have thought themselves capable of stealing as their teller. Yet he had robbed them of $47,000. Another remarkable fact about the long continued stealing is that it was done so adroitly as to deceive a United States bank examiner, showing that that, too, is possible. It required, however, the confidence of two other employees. One of these, a bookkeeper, evidently had the matter as a load upon his conscience. He became very ill, and it may have been the stealing that made him so. At any rate, he became delirious and in that state told the whole story. Perhaps he would have weakened and told it anyhow. A secret of such a kind is hard to keep very after year. It is like the knowledge of a murder.

We are informed by cable that in consequence of a thaw there has been a "recrudescence" of cholera in St. Petersburg. This is frightful. A plain continuance of cholera again would have been bad enough, but a recrudescence is enough to scare the whole earth.

Even in Texas seven men have been able to hold up and rob a whole train-load of passengers. These be indeed degenerate days. Time was when one Texan could hold up a whole town.

DYING FOR HER BOY.

HEROIC BUT FATAL ACT OF A NEW JERSEY MOTHER.

Mrs. Mary Risley, a widow, was fatally injured on the New Jersey Southern Railroad, near Wilson Junction, yesterday by a fast freight train in rescuing her three year old son from death. The child wandered out of the house and on to the tracks. Hearing the locomotive whistle she looked toward the railroad and saw her only child walking on the ties and the train bearing down on him with great speed.

The woman dashed in front of the locomotive and caught the child in her arms. The engineer had reversed the locomotive, but not soon enough to save Mrs. Risley. She was knocked down but held the child at arms' length and out of danger. The engine dragged the brave mother a dozen yards. Several ribs were broken, and when picked up she was unconscious. She will probably die. The child escaped without a scratch.

REVIVING INDUSTRIES.

SEVERAL NEWARK FACTORIES AND OTHER CONCERNS IN OPERATION ON FULL TIME.

The Lister Agricultural Works, in Newark, are now being worked on full time. The E. C. Hay Foundry Company says it is working to per cent. of its full time. The report of the Domestic Sewing Machine Company, Judge Kirkpatrick says business is improving and the hands now at work will be kept employed the remainder of the winter. All the hands in the employ of the Atha & Illingworth Company were put on full time last week. The Electric Pipe Company is building another factory, and will employ more hands. The working time of the employees of several departments of the Ideal Thread Mill has been increased to 9 p. m., a two hours increase.—Newark Argus.

A CHATTEL MORTGAGE FOR $25,000.

Achattel mortgage for $25,000 has been filed against the property of the Empire Construction Company of Orange, which built the Arrow Brook section of the Orange sewerage system. The City of Orange owes the company $20,000 in unpaid percentages, and local business men have lived in constant fear account.

Gen. William Green, of New York, is at the head of the Empire Company. Representatives of the corporation say that every cent due creditors will be paid.

MAY DIE FROM THIS QUARREL.

He received other injuries, but in spite of all he came to the city unaided and went to his boarding-house at No. 549 West Thirty-eighth street, where he became unconscious.

He was carried to Roosevelt Hospital, where, he is now lying.

Fisk, of this city, to be equally divided between them share and share alike, without any restriction or limitation whatever. Full power is given to his two executors to sell and convey any portions or all of his real estate and to execute proper deeds of conveyance therefor. He appoints his son, Isaac F. Richey, and his son-in-law, Charles J. Fisk, of this city, executors.

Didn't Want to Leave Plainfield.

Saturday night an unruly horse caused some excitement on East Fourth street. It belonged to New Brunswick and had been driven here, and left at Hedden's livery stable, where it was fed. Its owner called for the animal late in the evening. When the men took the horse out to hitch it to the sleigh, it reared up, kicked out and almost jumped on one of the men. The animal got its legs inclosed in the shafts and was only released after three or four had gone to the aid of the man doing the hitching.

Pen Sketches From Life.

He was a countryman from Plainfield, N. J., and was spending the evening with a friend in New York. His friend has secured him a room at the swell boarding house he was stopping at and told him just as they were going out where it was located. They separated outside the door and at about one o'clock the countryman returned. He was tired. The door was fastened with a Yale lock and had two Yale key-holes, one above and the other below the right knob.

The vestibule was dark and the light from the hall, through the ground glass door, threw the keyholes in deepest gloom. After about ten minutes fruitless work the countryman made up his mind he needed a match and found he did not have one. Then there was more groping with the hands and at last a key-hole was discovered in which the key turned all around. More groping. Another keyhole in which the key found no obstruction. The air was very cold so the countryman hummed a little tune and hunted for more key-holes with both hands. He found this right one finally, but got the wrong key in it. That remedied, he opened the door. There were three stairways to go up. He got the right one, by accident.

When he reached the floor his room was on he was in a quandry. A general banging, smoking and reading room occupied the centre and on one side was a door leading to his friend's bed-room. On the opposite side were two more doors. One of these the key to which he was to occupy. The question was, which? It was about two o'clock. The bewildered countryman went over to the smoker's bed-room and peeked in. His friend had retired early that night. A voice said sleepily, "Who use waking him," thought the man from the country, "only get laughed at, and, now I remember, he said the door to the right. Here goes for it."

Evidently his friend didn't say the door to the right, for when the unfortunate blunderer did there, a feminine and very much excited voice, greeted him with the cry, "Who is that? Who's there?"

The proper of the Domestic Sewing Machine Company, Judge Kirkpatrick, says business is improving and the hands now at work will be kept employed the remainder of the winter. All the hands in the employ of the Atha & Illingworth Company were put on full time last week. The Electric Pipe Company is building another factory, and will employ more hands. The working time of the employees of several departments of the Ideal Thread Mill has been increased to 9 p. m., a two hours increase.—Newark Argus.

"Scott!" exclaimed the countryman. "Sure that ain't my room" and he hastily backed out and closed the door. Although pretty well rattled, he tackled the next door, and, at last, found himself in the right room. The room was dark. There was another boat for a match. Finally a light was secured in the reading room by tearing a leaf out of a book and applying it at the gas jet.

As usual in such cases, the bed was of the folding variety, and this the countryman with inward misgivings wheeled out and proceeded to examine. Now in thunder did the thing open? He knew he had seen it open from the outside somewhere, because when the arrangement was turned around he could see the springs out. First he tried to pull the bed out by force. Then as that would not work he got a chair and pried with that. Then he examined the top for a hidden catch. Then he examined the sides and finally the bottom, but no lock was visible. He mentally announced that he would have to keep in a chair and the bed be jiggered. Then he thought he'd look under be at the top to be made one more trial. To assist himself in getting up he grapped a sort of "rug," as he called it, that hung on it back. In raising himself he pulled it on that. There was a "click," a rush; there upon some sort of strong expression from the countryman who fell over the chair and—there was the bed open, and his tribulations were ended. Into the bedroom he sewers now that the next time he goes to New York, he will stay home.

HIPPOLYTE SAYS HE IS INSULTED.

It Is Said He Sent a Letter to the President of the Black Republic Criticising the Government and Suggesting Reforms, Other Dispatches Refused to Join Him.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—News reached this city driven from Hayti which indicates that the official relations between President Hippolyte and the newly appointed United States minister, Mr. Henry M. Smythe, are strained, and it is reported that President Hippolyte has sent a letter to Washington demanding Minister Smythe's recall.

The steamer Prins William I arrived here from the Haytian ports bringing a single passenger, Mr. Edward Fortune of Boston.

Mr. Fortune went to the Astor House, where he talked freely of the Haytian situation.

"Now, let me say at the very start," said he, "that all the information I have to impart comes direct from the consular officials in Hayti. Personally I know nothing of Haytian affairs, but my official friends have given me all the news. Minister Smythe has caused much trouble. He formulated a letter of warning, criticism and advice to Hippolyte and then passed it around among the other consuls for their signatures.

Insulted the President.

"That letter was a 'corker'—no mistake. It started out by condemning the rigorous measures by the government to prevent a proposed revolution. Then, after dealing in a general way with the injustices practiced upon foreigners at times, it proceeded to handle Hippolyte without gloves.

"In forcible terms the consul general severely censured the manner of management of public affairs, accusing him of of misapplying the revenues and of using his authority to advance his own selfish ends.

"According to all reports the letter was a veritable bomb, and you can well understand that the other diplomatic representatives refused to join in the note, though requested to do so by Minister Smythe.

"The German consul gave me a full account of the affair, together with the information not generally known in Hayti that Hippolyte immediately upon the receipt of Consul Smythe's remarkable 'call down' forwarded a message to Washington.

"Of course only Hippolyte and his ministers were aware of the exact purport of that message, but it is generally understood in official circles at Port au Prince that the indignant president wrote to complain of an unwarrantable interference in government affairs by Minister Smythe and to request his immediate recall.

On the Verge of a Revolution.

"Information to this effect evidently reached Minister Smythe, for when Hippolyte, a few days after the receipt of the letter, invited him to a review, to the consular representative he declined.

"Considerable excitement prevails in Port au Prince over Minister Smyth's attempted interference, and with the current belief that the country is on the verge of another revolution. It is generally believed that the exiled General Manigat, now supposed to be in Kingston, Jamaica, is all ready for a descent upon Hayti. The invaders, it is thought, are well provided with ammunition and plenty of money. That the threatened invasion has assumed being no one seems to doubt. Under these circumstances the shock of Minister Smythe's assault must have staggered Hippolyte."

Greshams Has Not Heard.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Secretary Gresham said that he had not the slightest hint of any trouble between Minister Smythe and the Haytian government. He felt sure that there was no official news there has been considerable exaggeration of the incident.

DEPUTIES IN AN UPROAR.

Communist Members Defied the President and All Authority.

PARIS, Jan. 29.—The scene of disorder in the chamber of deputies, which was only stopped by an abrupt closing of the sitting, began when M. Chauffer, who is a son of the journalist whom the communists arrested and imprisoned in 1871 and who was executed by the concierge by order of Raoul Rigault, mounted the tribune and with glowing indignation protested against the intolerable audacity of parliaments of the communists like M. Clovis Hugues, who claim to pose as champions of individual liberty.

This aroused the anarchists and socialists to frenzy. They started to their feet, gesticulating wildly and shouting frantically. The scene following was indescribable.

M. Chauffer stood with outstretched hands pointed at the Leftists and Radicals. The Moderates and the Rightists seemed to be hurling anathemas at the Leftists.

Then out of the hubbub of noise and recriminations came the shrill cry, "Vive la commune!" At the same time the president was to be seen fumbling for the book of rules. Finally the secretary thrust it into his hands at the right page. In his loudest voice the president dominated the pandemonium with the words: "I call upon you to withdraw that cry! It is a most odious one, and I shall not tolerate its utterance in this assembly!"

These words were cheered to the echo, but many socialists continued to cry, "Vive la commune!" M. Dupuy, despite all his efforts, found himself powerless to check the demonstrations. Finally silence was restored, and the diminutive figure of Thivrier, the deputy from Montlucon, appeared in the tribune. He said:

"My friends and I cried, 'Vive la Commune!' in the presence of the infamies just uttered. I have the right to say I am not like Anvergnat, who changes his mind. I abide by all that I have said."

This audacity disgusted the chamber with the exception of a handful of Thivrier's friends, who cheered him. "Vive la commune!" was cried louder than ever by them when seven-eighths of the chamber responded to M. Dupuy's appeal and voted for censure of Thivrier, with temporary exclusion from the chamber.

Jaures and other socialists then crowded around Thivrier, warmly shook him by the hand and cried once more, "Vive la commune!" The president said, "I call upon M. Thivrier to withdraw." Thivrier responded: "I decline to go. I shall only yield to force." The president then suspended the sitting.

RUNAWAY TROLLEY CAR.

Sixteen Persons Are in the Hospital as a Result of the Accident.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29.—An electric car on the San Mateo road jumped the track while going down a steep hill and rolled over twice. As a result of the accident four of the injured passengers are in the City and County hospital, seven in St. Luke's hospital and three in the City Receiving hospital. It is feared three of the victims will not recover.

The wreck occurred at Thirtieth street and Cherry avenue on a curve at the foot of a steep grade. The motorman lost control of the trolley car on a down grade. So great was the momentum when the car swung around the sharp curve that the coach was instantly overturned, the car being torn from the trucks, which remained on the track, crashed into a trolley pole and was broken in two. The passengers most seriously injured were those standing on the stairs. Nearly all of them were hurled under the wreck.

The screams of men, women and children brought many people to the spot, and after a few minutes the wrecked car was lifted up. The bleeding and mangled victims were taken out and hurried away to the hospitals. Several others who were more or less injured went direct to their homes.

EXPECT MORE TROUBLE

Anarchist Miners Said to Be Plotting More Mischief.

THREE COAL PLANTS IN DANGER.

A Secret Meeting Was Held and a Second Attack on the Works Planned.—Country Alive With Armed Sheriff's Posse.—A Victim Dead.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 29.—A temporary quiet prevails throughout the Monongahela coal region, the scene of Saturday's rioting. But few strikers are to be seen out of their houses, and the deputy sheriffs on guard at the various mines in the district had little to occupy their attention. By many, however, the calm was regarded as preceding the storm. There are well grounded fears of another outbreak, and the law abiding citizens are preparing to meet it. Trusted foremen who were supposed to be in sympathy with the rioters were sent out by the coal operators. They circulated among the strikers and returned with the information that preparations were being made to attack the works at Bridgeville, Rosevale and Brading.

The feeling among the rioters is very bitter against the Brading brothers for the killing of Frank Steplitz, and they assert that they will have revenge.

If another attack is made on the Brading works, the foreigners will meet with a still warmer reception than that accorded the deputies on the 27th inst. In the Brading family, and every one of them is as determined and brave as the three who met to fight a mob of several hundred.

The Brading brothers say they are very sorry for the anarchists hereabout are responsible for Saturday's disorder.

It is known that the bulk of the insurgents came from Bower Hill, and upon the authority of Rev. Father Jacob Worth, pastor of St. Joseph's German Catholic church at Mansfield, there are at least 100 families on Bower Hill and its environs who are strongly suspected of being anarchists. Their bible is a radical anarchist sheet printed in Wisconsin and approved by Most, Neebe, and the rest. Confession of faith is set forth in the specious sophistry of its publication. This sheet is written by an unfrocked priest named Michael Blenchak, who is of good education who fell away from the church when in Mainz, Germany. He is now publishing this sheet in Madison, Wis., and it has a considerable number of subscribers in this section and in the coke regions.

A dispatch from Mansfield says there is considerable excitement here, and preparations are being made for trouble today. Twenty-five members of Company H, Fourteenth regiment, N. G., Pa., stationed at Mansfield, were sworn in as deputy sheriffs and fully as many more citizens qualified as such.

Sheriff Richards of Allegheny county is in command, and re-enforcements are being dispatched to threatened points as fast as possible. The sheriff has his forces well in hand, and believes he will be able to cope with any disturbance that may occur. A meeting of strikers is said to have been held somewhere in Mansfield, but where or what was done could not be learned.

More Signs of Trouble.

MONONGAHELA, Pa., Jan. 29.—The events of Saturday along the Pankandle, where the striking miners resorted to the destruction of property, have created a great commotion in this section of the river valley. There are no signs here of impending trouble of a similar character, but is a significant fact that among the working miners there is a large proportion who are pot vehement in their condemnation of the riotous miners at Bridgeville and in that neighborhood.

Travelers Hear of Corbett's Victory.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—When the Aurania arrived off Queenstown, all of her passengers were seen to be assembled on deck. THE FIRE RECORD.

A Large Part of the Business Portion of Bath Destroyed by Fire.

BATH, Me., Jan. 29.—One of the most disastrous fires in the history of the city broke out in the Sagadahock House stables and burned for several hours. A large part of the business portion of the city was completely gutted, about 20 buildings being destroyed. The fire spread so rapidly that the fire department was wholly inadequate with it, equipped as it is with but three steam engines. Calls for assistance to Portland and Lewiston brought steamers, and two hand engines were sent from Brunswick. Many water pipes were frozen or broken, but few of the hydrants could be used, and it was some time before effective work could be done.

The fire communicated to the hotel from the stables, and the house, which is the leading hostelry of the city, was quickly gutted. The adjoining buildings were soon in flames, and before the fire could be controlled half a million dollars' worth of property was destroyed.

Besides the Sagadahock House there were burned the Lincoln National bank, the Marine National bank and several stores. Several sailors' boarding houses, lawyers' and doctors' offices and dwelling houses were also destroyed, while the Times Printing company and a number of stores were damaged by smoke and water.

LYNN, Mass., Jan. 29.—The Miles building, a handsome five story brick building at 44 and 46 Central avenue, was gutted by fire.

PALMER, Mass., Jan. 29.—A blaze whose damage amounted to $60,000 cleared away several buildings in the town early. It destroyed all the machinery and stock in trade of this town's most prosperous business firms. The fire caught in the lower story of Union block, owned by Holden's Opera House. An alarm was rung in, but as the block was one of wood the fire gained great headway before the engines arrived.

KIDNAPING CASE.

Think Little Eddie Is Dead or Is Being Held For Ransom.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Jan. 29.—There seems but little reason to doubt that Eddie Stephens, the five-and-a-half boy who disappeared from his home in Ashley 10 days ago, was kidnaped and that he has either been murdered or is being held for ransom. The community is at fever heat over the case and is showing in many ways its sympathy for the half crazed parents of the missing boy.

A large sum of money was raised by the friends of Mr. Brotherston to be devoted to the payment of detectives to prosecute the search, and the neighbors turned out en masse and scoured the mountain side above Ashley in an unsuccessful effort to find some trace of the lad.

All the searchers returned weary and foot sore after having dragged every pond and ransacked every nook and corner in the valley for a mile. It was possible that the body might have been concealed.

Detectives have been sent in a dozen different directions to run down rumors that the boy had been seen in company with his abductors. An Italian organ grinder named Ricco has been arrested in Scranton and brought here on suspicion of having stolen the boy. It is alleged by the police that the man's 13 year-old daughter was seen to say that the boy was in the barn until Friday night, but the girl, who is in jail with her father, denies having made any such statement.

Shot For a Train Robber.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Thomas Divere, who says his home is in Troy, N. Y., was shot and mortally wounded by a guard on the express car of train 506, which left here at 11:20 last night. The shots all took effect in Divere's right side. He says the boy was he was watching the train pull out and that three or four men attempted to board the express car. Then the shots were fired. The train officials say that four men tried to jump on the car just outside the depot and that Divere was one of them. They say that robbery was probably the object.

A Convict's Attempt at Suicide.

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 29.—There was a sensation in the big dining room at the Ohio penitentiary when Convict John H. Conroy entered in the presence of the 1,900 prisoners seated at breakfast and announced his intention of taking his own life. Conroy slashed the side of his neck with the knife with which he had been eating, and after he sat down the blood poured in a stream over his shoulder. The wound was not fatal.

WILSON BILL CHANCES.

Indications That the Measure Will Pass Are Many.

ONLY TWO DAYS MORE OF DEBATE.

Republicans Decide to Vote Only For the Absolute Defeat of the Bill and Will Not Help to Recommit—Senate Will Talk About Hawaii.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The great tariff bate will close in the house on next Tuesday at 5 o'clock, when, according to the amended special order under which the house is operating, the vote will be taken on the pending amendments and the final passage of the bill. The debate during the coming week will relate entirely to the internal revenue bill which the Democratic caucus decided to place upon the tariff bill as a rider.

Today and Tuesday will be devoted to general debate and Wednesday to debate under the five minute rule, when the internal revenue features will be open to amendment. Of course the principal opposition will be directed against the income tax, which is being bitterly opposed by the western Democrats.

The Republicans, however, will not vote with the Democratic opponents of the income tax, but will either refrain from voting or else, if necessary to make a quorum, vote for it in order to incorporate it in the bill. The attempts to defeat it will therefore be hopeless.

But Will Probably Pass.

When the bill is reported to the house on Tuesday, three hours will be allowed for closing the debate—an hour and a half on each side. Mr. Reed will close for the Republicans and Mr. Wilson and Speaker Crisp for the Democrats. These indications are that when the bill is placed upon its final passage it will have a fair margin to carry it. During the past week the movement to recommit the bill looked formidable, as at least 50 Democrats, counting the anti-income taxers and including all those disaffected with any portion of the measure, were counted upon to take this indirect method of compelling changes in their interests. With the Republican support this might have succeeded.

But some of the Republican leaders read the situation over and came to the conclusion that it would not be politic to create friction in the Democratic ranks in order to give the fall a setback which would result in the ultimate defeat, and have informally decided, therefore, not to refrain from voting or else to vote against the motion to recommit, but to stand with the opposition against the passage of the bill or for a motion to strike out the enacting clause—motions which will place the opponents of the bill fairly and squarely on record against the entire measure.

It is thought, if it is adhered to, in the ranks of the Democratic leaders, removes all doubt as to the final passage of the bill, as it is believed that not more than 30 Democrats in the house will carry their opposition to the extent of voting directly against the bill, if the Republicans should pool their whole strength (126), this would only be one vote against the bill to 156, and as the income tax included it is believed that the bill will command the entire vote of it.

The full vote for the bill, therefore, could be 206—a majority of 46. It is fair to assume that the absentees will be drawn proportionately from each side, so that from present indications the Democratic leaders claim a majority for the bill of from 30 upward. If by any change of programme the Republicans should decide to vote in favor of the motion to recommit, the additional strength gained from the Democratic side (about 20) might seriously endanger if not defeat the measure, but this is not now anticipated.

After the tariff is disposed of on Thursday a special order will be brought in for the consideration of the Hawaiian matter Friday and Saturday. The McCreary resolution will form the basis of the debate, and while some very lively and picturesque speeches will probably be made it is expected that it will be passed practically by a strict party vote.

The Senate Programme.

The present indications are that the federal elections bill and the Hawaiian question will in a large measure divide the attention of the senate this week. If the tariff bill should pass the house according to programme on Thursday and be sent immediately to the senate, nothing would be done with it except to refer it to the finance committee, where it will rest for at least a few weeks, so that there is little or no prospect of this subject interfering in any way for the present with the consideration of the bills and resolutions already on the calendar.

The Hawaiian question has the right of way for the morning hour—that is, up to 2 o'clock of the day—and the elections bill after that time. The Hawaiian discussion will be based upon the resolution reported by Senator Turpie from the committee on foreign relations, and the various amendments and substitutes will incidentally be taken up.

There are four amendments proposed, one each by Senators Manderson, Dolph, Stewart and Gallinger, and one substitute, that offered by Senator Vest. The amendments of the first three senators are very much in the same line and recognize the present government of Hawaii without committing the senate to any proposition against annexation even for expediency's sake. Senator Dolph's amendment looks to the recall of Minister Willis, and Senator Vest's substitute declares unqualifiedly against annexation.

In case the judiciary committee makes its report upon the Peckham nomination there is likely to be considerable time devoted to executive business, and there may be in any event over other nominations.

QUEBEC'S CARNIVAL OPEN.

The Ice Fort Inaugurated and the Ice Statues Unveiled.

QUEBEC, Jan. 29.—Everything was in readiness today for the formal opening of the Quebec winter carnival, but the festivities will not commence in earnest until Tuesday, when Earl Aberdeen, accompanied by the countess, will arrive, which will be made the occasion for a grand demonstration. They will be driven from the Palais de Justice to the vice regal quarters at the citadel on an immense tobogan shaped sledge, snowshoers supplying the motive power instead of horses. The only thing of consequence on the programme in the ceremonial line for today was the inauguration of the ice fort and the unveiling of the ice statues erected on Basilica square.

Mayor Fremont performed these ceremonies. This is Curlers' day. The grand bonspiel is open to the world, and a valuable trophy is offered for competitors in each class.

Tuesday's chief events will be the skating contests for the championship of Canada and a lacrosse match on skates, with a fancy dress masquerade at the Quebec skating rink. On Wednesday there will be skating races at the Quebec rink and a tug of war at the drill hall, which will be open to teams of six men from any organized snowshoe clubs in the United States or Canada. The great event of the 31st, however, will be the carnival ball at the parliament buildings, which will be graced by the vice regal presence of Lord Aberdeen and the countess.

Judge Dundy Also Grants an Order Reducing Union Pacific Wages.

OMAHA, Jan. 29.—Union Pacific labor circles were stirred to their utmost depths when the order of Judge Dundy reducing wages on the system was made public. All employees in every department are affected by the cut, which amounts to nearly 10 per cent.

The motion of the court was not altogether a surprise, although most of the men had thought the wage question could not be disturbed, but Judge Dundy went his brothers on the federal bench one better, and he not only enjoined the men from striking, but cut their pay and ordered them to work on at the reduced pay.

Dr. Talmage May Not Resign.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 29.—A meeting of the board of trustees of Dr. Talmage's Tabernacle was held at the close of services in the church. A meeting of the board of elders was also held, with Dr. Talmage presiding. One of the members of the board said after the meeting that if the financial stringency prevailing in Brooklyn was relieved Dr. Talmage would withdraw his resignation.

Over the past two weeks shows the most successful January clearing sale we have ever had. That's in selling goods, some other time we will try and figure losses.

In the meantime, we will sell goods; more than ever, lower than ever.

HERE'S EVIDENCE!

There ain't much money in Amoskeag and Lancaster Ginghams, at 4½c., but we have just five cases more to sell at that price.

MUSLINS—Probably the last week that you will buy "Fruit of the Loom," and "Dwight Anchor" Muslins for 7c., so don't wait.

HOSIERY—Just what the boys and girls want—a Stocking that is fast black, and will last a week or two without darning. That's what we are selling for 25c. pair.

LADIES' MUSLIN UNDERWEAR—No use wasting time over a machine, when for 25c. you can buy Night Dresses, Skirts, Chemises, Corset Covers, and Drawers, all neatly made of good material; and for 50c. there are Embroidered Night Dresses, Trimmed Skirts, Corset Covers, etc. Bought them from a manufacturer who wanted ready cash.

Just a few more of those Ladies' and Misses' Jackets left for $1.25. There are a few 36-46-48 Ladies' Coats, that were $15 and $18 each—yours for $8 and $9.

WHITE, of Plainfield.

HE HAD BEEN.

He Was a Man of Experience and Knew Whereof He Spoke.

I had heard numerous stories of the difficulties attending church services in the mountains along the upper waters of the Cumberland river, and of how when those who came to pray remained to shoot, and also of various killings that had occurred when mountaineers of diverse and adverse personal opinions congregated at the rude meeting houses, but placed little credence in them. I was ruminating upon this subject one Sunday morning as I rode along, hoping that I might happen upon one of those log tabernacles in my way, when I approached a cabin. A man was sitting in the yard with his head tied up and his arm in a sling.

"Good day," I said. "Are there any churches in this vicinity?"

"Meetin houses round here, you mean?" he responded quite affably, though quizzically.

"The same," I nodded.

"That's one about four mile down the branch."

"Any preaching there today?"

"No; but there was last Sunday. Won't be no more now fer a month."

"You don't have it very often," I ventured.

"It's a good thing we don't," he said sagely.

"Why? Don't you go to church?"

"I was last Sunday."

"That the only time?"

"I was about six year afore that."

"You don't have it very often," I reiterated.

"Once a good deal, mister!" I exclaimed. "You ought to do better than that. Don't you know you have an immortal soul to save?"

"Got a hide, too, I reckon," he replied rather vaguely to my comprehension.

"What does that have to do with it?"

He smiled almost pityingly.

"Reckon you hain't never been to mee.in in these parts, have you?" he asked.

"Never," I said.

"Never mind the time when two or three was gethered together an thar to bless, have you?"

"Never."

"Never seen the Ten Commandments blowed full of bullet holes, have you?"

"Never."

"Never seen the sermon on the mount peppered with a gnauful of buckshot an slugs, have you?"

"Never."

"Never seen the gospel of peace on earth, good will to men, tore open from Dan to Beersheby with a winchester, have you?"

"Never." And by this time I was almost in a state of collapse.

He rose to his feet excitedly and began limping around the yard.

"Well," he said, "you ain't the one to talk to me about goin to meetin. I've been."

The accent on that last word was too convincing, and I didn't stop a minute longer to inculcate any great moral truths. I simply said goodby and went my way.—New York Sun.

She Wandered.

"Make your complaints here," read a lady with what is known as a hatched face as she stood in front of a wicket at the gas company's office. A strange light entered her black eyes as she contested the clerk.

"This is where you make complaints, is it?" she asked.

"It is, madam," the polite clerk answered.

"And do you provide a reader?"

"That is what we are here for," said the clerk, taking on the air of one having the entire English navy at his back. The woman appeared to hesitate.

"I never was a complainer," she said, "but things have been on my mind for a long time. My husband, George William Turner, has a red haired typewriter in his private office, and an awful amount of business detains him down town nights. That's the third I would have observed."

The young man behind the wicket was seized with a bad fit of coughing. He got very red in the face, but the lady kept on.

"Our preacher," she said, "is giving a great deal of attention to choir practice. He developed a remarkable ear for music a week after we hired a new soprano. The way he attends choir meetings now is a caution. I think his congregation is entitled to anything you can do toward getting up a rumpus in that choir and forcing the soprano to resign. We want to keep the pastor. He has such soulful eyes."

The young man behind the wicket made some sort of an inarticulate utterance, and the lady proceeded:

"It's five nights to a woman who keeps a carriage. I know she can't afford it, but she does without some of the necessities of life just to have that carriage stand in front of the door. There isn't a woman on the block who doesn't think her a mean, spiteful thing. Blow up that carriage with dynamite and become a popular young man."

"I don't think, madam, you quite grasp the powers of this department," the young man said in reply, as he held it.

"The fact is, we only attend to complaints relative to gas. Perhaps if you'd relate those things to a sewing society"—

But she had already turned out of the building.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

—"Married Life," a comedy-drama, to be given in Music Hall on Thursday evening, by the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum, is something new here. The enterprising club has considerable talent in this line, and has won public confidence by the excellence of its former entertainments, and this will but sustain its reputation. It is a very merry play and will no doubt be largely attended.

—Yesterday was a cold, raw day here, the drizzling rain, freezing as it fell, making even trolley locomotion unpleasant. But what is it compared to need near by places as Quebec for instance, which you might reach in two days? At Quebec the winter markets are very curious. Everything is frozen. Large pigs, killed perhaps months before, may be seen standing frozen in the butcher's shop. Frozen masses of beef, mutton, deer, fowl, cod, haddock and eels, long and stiff, like walking sticks, abound on the stalls. Milk also is kept frozen and sold by the pound, in masses which look like lumps of white marble.

Gen. Negley vs. the Sheriff.

Among the cases tried at Elizabeth today was the case of General Negley against Deputy Sheriff Moffett. It was a suit in replevin. Moffett, as deputy sheriff, sold under writ for one Black of New York, levied on the household furniture of General Negley. General Negley disputed the claim and attacked the mortgage which was claimed by Black to be on the property. Through William M. Stillman, his counsel, he brought suit in replevin. This suit was to-day tried before Judge Van Syckle without a jury. As Mr. Stillman expected to be a witness in the case, he associated Craig A. Marsh with him to assist on the trial. Mr. Black's counsel were Parmley, Ehrenhart and Fisk of Jersey City. At the conclusion of the evidence, Judge Van Syckel decided the suit in favor of General Negley with costs.

MISS SPENCE TO LECTURE HERE.

Before the Monday Afternoon Club Early in February.

Miss Catherine Spence of Australia who lectures before the Monday Afternoon Club early in February, is a Scotch woman of a most interesting personality. She came to the United States to attend some of the conferences at the Exposition in Chicago and lingers because she believes she has a "mission." Miss Spence hopes to introduce a system of voting and proportionate representation to do away with one present plan whereby the immense majority vote, more than enough to elect is wasted. This has already succeeded in South Australia and is advocated in England by such men like Sir John Lubbock.

Miss Spence was one of two women, who revolutionized the care of orphan and destitute children in Australia, so that now there is not an orphanage in all that broad land. The idea originated with Frances Power Cobb, but Miss Spence for nearly 30 years has been working it out to practical results. Philadelphia has partially adopted the plan as an experiment and Boston, it is said, is soon to try it. These two methods, one for purifying politics and one for rearing pauper children in families, are the object of Miss Spence's endeavor.

ABOUT U. S. GOV. BONDS.

AS TOLD BY A PLAINFIELDER IN NEW YORK.

Interesting Reminiscences Showing How a Government Loan in War Times was Popularized—Possibly Explaining the Agitation for the Proposed Loan in Days of Peace.

(From Puck.)

POPULARIZING THE U. S. GOVERNMENT LOANS.

By E. N. Erickson.

PUCK is glad to add to the history of advertising the following addition to the story of the popularizing of the U. S. Bonds, in further proof of the value of advertising as the no small factor in the preservation of the Union.

During the latter years of the war the public evidenced a new departure in the method and science of advertising. Long contracts were and been known before; private firms and individuals had spent money liberally in putting their names before the people, but never before had there been an extravagant, as subsequently proved, an audacious extensive, as thoroughly forced upon the attention of the public, an enterprise as the government loans.

During the early period of the Civil War, Secretary Chase was largely dependent upon the co-operation of bankers for aid in disposing of the 5-20 bonds authorized by Congress. Before he had put the system of national banks in operation, about two hundred having been established, he determined to entrust the further negotiation of government loans to them. The 10-40 loan was brought out in March, 1864. Secretary Chase's plan was (1) authorize the national banks to expend one-twentieth of one per cent. upon their sales of the bonds in advertising. The Spring of 1864 was the darkest part of of the war. The people had become disenchanted at the waste of money in their arms, and the rapid accumulation of the public debt, reaching at the time an amount of about one billion seven hundred million dollars, led them to fear it would burden them ever paid.

On the day of opening the 10-40 loan, about $4,000,000 were taken, mainly through the personal influence of the loan, John J. Cisco, then Assistant Treasurer of the United States at New York, but owing to the cause above mentioned, and to a want of an active executive head to push the loan, subsequent subscriptions were small, and more disheartening than encouraging.

The policy of entrusting the advertising to the discretion of the banks proved a source of weakness in the style of the announcements which appeared in the newspapers. The bank's having just begun business, were more urge at in making themselves known than to secure placing the national loan. The First National Bank of Scottsville would have an advertisement something like this in the Scottsville Banner of Freedom:

FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF SCOTTSVILLE.

JOHN SMITH, President.
WILLIAM JONES, Cashier.

Money, Bonds and other securities taken upon deposit. Exchanges upon New York and other cities bought and sold. Interest allowed and a general banking business transacted.

Subscriptions received to the 10-40 National Loan.

Secretary Chase soon came to the conclusion that this would not sell the bonds. He sent for Jay Cooke, of Philadelphia, then engaged in private banking business, and Mr. Cooke, of Fessice & Co., of New York, who had for some time past been urging him to make his appeal to the people through the press, and, after a consultation with him as to his system of method for promoting the success of the loan, requested that he submit his plan for further consideration. Mr. Cooke thereupon submitted in writing a plan of operations which, upon being examined, was approved by the Secretary and leading financiers. The plan involved the expenditure of what proved to be a large amount of money, and the Secretary still hesitated, fearing that Congress would not justify him in expending such a sum. To this objection Mr. Cooke replied that he was a mere practical question whether Congress, having authorized the loan to be made, and appropriated a given sum for expenses, would justify him in spending whatever was necessary to accomplish the object in the shortest practicable time. The Secretary still hesitated, and concluded to make another experiment to sell the bonds solely through the national banks, but finding this attempt was likely to fail, as the others had done, after considerable urging, consented to make a trial as to what could be accomplished through the press. With this end in view, he placed $50,000 at the disposal of Mr. Cooke, to be expended as he saw fit, and on April 11, 1864, advertisements of the United States 10-40 bonds were inserted in the principal papers of the leading cities. The result was so satisfactory that upon the Secretary's visit to New York, about ten days after the preliminary test had been started, he greeted Mr. Shattuck with: "I had no idea that so much could be accomplished by judicious advertising, Mr. Cooke." Disposed, I am more than satisfied with the results. You can draw for $500,000 more." Cooke's plan as submitted for popularizing the loan.

The success of the 10-40 loan thereupon lead by the Secretary of the Treasury:

"TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
"WASHINGTON, April 25, 1864.

"SIR—In the general letter dated March 26, 1864, authorizing the national bank of which you are the president to become depositaries of public money for national loan, and fixing the commission to be allowed to such banks for the sale of bonds, it was expressly stipulated that at least one-twentieth of one per cent. of the sum for which bonds of the commission allowed should be used in promoting subscriptions; consisting in the purchase of such advertising as appeared to be necessary for effecting publicity and honest, has been engaged to advertise the loan throughout the country, so as to bring it to the notice of all classes of the people of every locality. The department is informed that you have applied for a portion of the commission of the whole sum allowed by the act of Congress for the expenses of the loan, and that the Secretary of the Treasury has referred the matter to the Comptroller of the Currency for reporting thereon.

"Should you think proper to adopt this suggestion, you will, of course, exercise a proper discretion in the application of whatever sum you may think fit to use through him; and by charging to you the amount so used in the account of commission to be expended by you for the benefit of the loan.

"Very respectfully yours,
"S. P. CHASE,
"Secretary of the Treasury."

A leading part of the plan was to thoroughly inform the public of the amount of our national wealth, and our consequent ability to carry a much greater debt than had then been incurred or proposed. A series of questions relative to foreign countries, including the amount of their indebtedness, their development, the proportion which their indebtedness bore to past and present wealth, etc., were submitted to the librarian of the Astor Library, who employed his assistants to search out the facts desired. The result was embodied in a series of articles widely published, tending to restore confidence, and to prove that although our debt might amount to 25 per cent. of our wealth, yet no rapid would be our increase that the ratio would be greatly reduced before the maturity of the liability. Printed and circular advertising accompanied these articles, and both were distributed largely all the newspapers of the United states, English and German, Secular and Religious, Republican and Democratic, political, literary, professional and commercial. The press, without distinction of party, aided in the work, the public mind responded to its influence and the bonds began to be taken rapidly. The advertising was on a liberal scale, as is evidenced when the required results were so important; yet it was conducted so judiciously as to be truly economical. The construction also was satisfactory to the Treasury Department.

In the Summer of 1864, Secretary Chase resigned and was succeeded by Mr. W. P. Fessenden. The two men differed widely. Mr. Chase was a positive man. Having examined the bearings of any question, he quickly decided, and executed his decision with prompt energy. Mr. Fessenden, on the contrary, a statesman of undoubted patriotism, full of himself, was distrustful of the power of others. He brought out the 7-30 loan in July, 1864, and authorized the expenditure of a given sum of money for advertising, to start the scene. That expended, he determined to leave the advertising to the national banks. The experiment was found as it had failed before. It became evident that more vigorous efforts must be made to place the bonds, and Secretary Fessenden, in February, 1865, made a contract with Jay Cooke to undertake the negotiation of the loan. That experienced negotiator, recognizing the power of the press when properly invoked and handled, at once into requisition the services of Fessice & Co. to popularize the 7-30 loan. The arrangement having been agreed upon, Mr. Cooke illustrated his customs wisely resorting toward the press, by saying to Mr. Hasbrouk, "Prepare your advertisement in all or nearly all the papers of the country. Never refuse an advertisement to any publisher who has energy enough to come to you for it; his paper may be small and weak, and you can expend a large or small amount with him as you deem best, but give him something. We may, in doing this, help to support a worthy man, or we may be helping a struggling patriotism from failing altogether." This instruction was carried out, and the orders for bonds began to increase until by June 1st Jay Cooke & Co. were in as easy a now storm, each flake an order, each order a response to the arguments and appeals made to the patriotism of the people through the press. The remittances in this flood came from a lumberman in Maine might be sandwiched between a one hundred dollar order from Ohio, and one-half a dozen from the Pine of Hatch. The result was a surprising success, and by the fifth five months after Jay Cooke had undertaken the work, $700,000,000 had been sold and the loan closed out.

The following are some of the headings which appeared in the New York Herald, June 1, 1865:

What we owe. Raised, or not? The 10-40 loan. High credit. Loans and investments. Government securities as an investment. The seven-thirties. Jay Cooke's success. The Government loan. Poor Richard's reasons for buying United States securities. The resources of the country and the ease with which it can pay the national debt. Are the Germans wrong in investing their money in the 7-30s? The advantages they offer. Interesting questions answered. Why you should buy 7-30 U. S. bonds. One hundred and fifteen millions of 7-30s. Success of the 7-30 loan. Subscriptions to the 7-30 stocks. The 7-30s and the end of the war. The third million to the people. Jay Cooke's circulars. Wherein the national debt may be made a national blessing.

During the advertising of the loans, bulletins of each day's sales were sent all over the country about as follows.

OVER FIFTY MILLIONS.

The amount of subscriptions to the 10-40 loan reported to the Treasury for the week ending last Saturday, the 31st inst., was $54,564,400. The subscriptions have averaged about a million dollars a day since the loan was first offered.

THE 10-40 LOAN.

The subscriptions to the 10-40 loan last week averaged about $1,000,000 a day, and the total amount to May 20 was over sixty million dollars. The subscriptions are now [illegible] in our advertising columns.

THE 10-40 LOAN.

The subscriptions to the U. S. 10-40 loan reported to the treasury for the week ending June 8th, amounted to $8,000,000, and the total subscriptions to date amount to $67,917,950. An unusually large proportion of the subscriptions have been [illegible] showing that farmers, mechanics and small capitalists consider this the best investment for their money.

RAIN AND SLEET.

A Furious Storm Yesterday and Last Night.

The storm yesterday was the most disagreeable one that has been experienced this Winter. The streets everywhere were full of slush and water, and the wind blew in such fierce gusts that it was almost impossible to carry an umbrella and protect one's self from the driving rain and sleet. The storm centre at midnight was moving off the Middle States into the Atlantic Ocean.

Along the exposed coast the gentry swept along the coast, the winds blew a gale, and heavy seas rolled ashore. At Asbury Park it was said that the wind was blowing at the rate of seventy miles an hour. At this resort the storm was exceptional, with the exception of two steamships that came in early in the day, made this port between noon and midnight. The wind blew along on shore and vessels gave the coast a wide berth.

To Take Action on that Protested Game.

To-night the protested game in the the Diocesan Union League, between the C. T. M. L.'s of this city and the Institute of Jersey City, is to be decided at a special meeting of the League at Newark. Capt. J. J. Lynch and several other Plainfielders will attend the meeting. If the game is decided in favor of the C. T. M. L.'s of this city it will give them the championship of the League. The game in all probability will be decided in Plainfield's favor.

Brazilian Treasure Taught a Lesson by U. S. Warships.

RIO JANEIRO, Jan. 30.—On Saturday the American brig Amy, Capt. Blackford, from Baltimore; the American bark Good News, Capt. Myrick, also from Baltimore, and the Jule Hollice, gave notice that they were were going to Santos Piers. Admiral da Gama learned of this, and yesterday he notified Admiral Benham that if the three vessels attempted to go to the piers referred to he would fire on them.

Admiral Benham at once replied that the vessels would go to the piers if they wanted to, and that he would send the Detroit to protect them. If the Detroit could not furnish sufficient protection every vessel of the American squadron would be employed in the work of protection.

When the American vessel started the insurgents fired on them. A shell was sent from the U. S. Detroit into the insurgent's war ship Guanabara and a broadside would have followed but the vessel signalled that she would stop firing.

This action of the U. S. Admiral Benham is in accordance with the new policy adopted that the fighters can maul each other, but must respect the stars and stripes.

A Tribute to a Worthy Woman.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—

Hearing of Mrs. C. P. Walrod's resignation I feel that I would like to pay a tribute to her faithfulness during her nearly ten years' work in Plainfield. Having had to come in constant contact with the hospital for a number of years past, I have had the opportunity of watching this successful, conscientious, woman's career. Possessed of self she has ever sought only to bring cheer and comfort into the lives of the suffering. In personal interviews with patients I have had many tell me they felt they almost owed their lives to this noble woman's faithfulness and skill. I feel that what I am about to say is the sentiment of many hearts in Plainfield. I can hardly find words to express my regret at her resigning, from what has so long been one of Plainfield's noblest institutions. But, knowing she is in completely prostrated in health through trying to restore others to health, and the constant mental strain of her responsible position, I trust that her years of usefulness may not only be prolonged but blessed by Divine strength. Truly she is a type of our true American womanhood, and deserves the title of a follower of Florence Nightengale for the way in which she has carried out her mission by making it a life work.

Selected Poor Tabby as a Victim.

It has just leaked out that four young women, residing in the borough, disposed a cat one day last week. One of the number has studied medicine somewhat. She suggested to the others that they try their skill on the pet of the house. Some chloroform was procured and a sponge saturated with it placed in a weak boiler with poor tabby. The cat, after jumping around and making a big racket in the boiler, finally succumbed. It was then laid upon a board and the work of dissection begun. Before they finished they were surprised by a "horrid man," and the work was left unfinished.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Character as Indicated by Voice.

A curiously interesting paper is furnished to The Arena by Dr. James R. Cocke on character reading from the sound of human voice. Perhaps this kind of delineation will in time become as fashionable as palmistry or chirographic prophecy.

By a sorrowful chance Dr. Cocke is peculiarly adapted to reading character from the sound of the voice, for it has been unfortunately the only way he has to read it. A physician's blunder when Cocke was an infant put out his sight and left him in darkness through the rest of this life. He says when he was only 5 years old he took an intense dislike to a lady merely from hearing her speak. She had a "warm, passionate, liquid voice. Yet when that voice spoke to her small three was something in it false and treacherous." He could discern whether people were beautiful or the reverse by passing his hand over their faces. He thus tested the lady with the warm, passionate, liquid voice and found she was lovely in looks, but her character was, as his ears had taught him, false and treacherous.

He was brought up in the south, and thus voices of negresses were pleasant to him, for when he rubbed his hand over their faces "the feeling of their skin was horribly repulsive." The voices of northern races are sterner than those of southern ones and contain less warmth and passion. Women's voices are more difficult to read than those of men, says the doctor, because they are naturally sweeter, which is a queer reason. Baritone voices, full of fun, merriment and good humor, belong generally to big, intellectual men, who are, however, at the same time governed by the emotional temperament and are therefore passionate and more or less false. They doubtless mean what they say when they say it, but they change their minds with the next swaying impulse. Cocke reads in the voices of such men something earthly and sensual. The courteous, cold, quiet voice belongs to a type of cultivated Englishmen.

Our blind doctor has likewise studied the voices of criminals. He recognizes in those of both men and women convicts often a canting, whining, hypocritical tone. Criminals' voices are frequently sensitive and emotional, exactly as one might expect of persons too weak to do the right thing. One of the most attractive voices the doctor ever heard was low, liquid and tender, full of childish trust apparently. Yet Dr. Cocke notes a false ring in it. "Its owner had been four times imprisoned for forgery.

Good Entertainment For Winter.

Twelve members of a woman's club in New York city are writing a novel. Each one is to write one chapter, so that the tale will be completed in 12 chapters. The ladies are mostly newspaper women and professional writers, so perhaps the novel will not be so desperately bad. But there is no reason why the same idea should not be carried into execution in private clubs and societies. Nothing could be more entertaining than a story written in co-operation by a number of friends.

W. S. Collins mentions in The Outlook that this has already been done in several instances. The writers organize themselves into a body which they call the Novel club. The Novel clubs maintain the utmost secrecy with regard to who writes the chapters. All are pledged to this secrecy till the story is finished and has been read and criticised. A certain member is requested by the chief officer to write a chapter, covering say 10 pages of letter paper, within two weeks. The story is handed then to another member, who reads what has been already written and continues the tale to suit himself. When he has completed his installment, the chapters are handed to another member, who continues it according to his idea, and so on till it is finished. Then it is read aloud.

At the Ladies' club in New York, however, no concealment or reserve is observed. The 12 authors meet and discuss the plot and who shall write the given chapters. Either method would be productive of much entertainment as well as improvement.

The sculptors of Brussels have entertained the public there by designing and modeling wonderful and beautiful snow statues and groups. This plastic material lends itself admirably to the making of fine figures, horses, people and any and all objects. Why do not artists and other persons who want a delightful winter amusement in America set themselves to making picturesque snow images and groups? Perhaps it will be the means of developing the latent powers of some future great artist among the boys and girls. Material, in some parts of the country at least, is abundant, and the fun is glorious.

The voting of women in Wyoming and Colorado seems likely to bring into prominence a new occupation. In Denver the first woman to register was Mrs. Ellen F. Beatty, wife of Governor John L. Beatty. She gave her occupation as that of "housewife."

The whole pension bureau will probably be transferred to the war department. Is this because people have been fighting over it so?

AMATEUR CIRCUS FOR CHARITY.

At Nutley, the country seat of such celebrities as A. C. Bunner, the editor of Puck, Colonel Prout and Annie Oakley, the shooter, a number of society gentlemen have in preparation a novel and amusing treat for sweet charity's sake. It is nothing more nor less than an amateur circus performance, to be given in Professor Eaton Stone's training quarters in Kingsland street. The place is most admirably adapted for the purpose, having a ring and all of the paraphernalia of a bona fide circus.

PERTH AMBOY FACTORIES RESUME OPERATIONS—PATERSON'S JUTE MILL STARTS.

The many fire-brick factories in Perth Amboy and vicinity which have been closed down for the past three months have resumed work without a single exception and are running nine hours per day. The clay mines have also started up, giving employment to nearly all the idle men. But the wages have been reduced to a lower rate than has ever been received in these industries, ninety-three cents per day being the largest sum paid, while some firms pay as low as seventy-nine cents per day.

USED A MIRROR TO AIM TRUE.

Henry Conine, a merchant and coal dealer, committed suicide this morning at his home in Howell. He also owned a large farm. He lived with his mother in rooms above the store.

He was heard coughing about 7 o'clock and a few minutes later the report of a pistol was heard in his bedroom. He had shot himself while in bed, the bullet entering the right side of his head. When discovered he was holding a mirror in one hand, which he had evidently placed before his face when he fired the fatal shot. In the other hand he held the weapon.

COLLATERAL INHERITANCE LAW.

The collateral inheritance law has gone into effect and the effect is shown in the State Treasurer's report, just ready for circulation. The law taxes intestate, estates, gifts, legacies and collateral inheritance in certain cases, and is going to prove a source of much revenue to the state. The law has only recently become effective because the original law was defective and it had to be remedied during the last Legislature.

The state received the sum of $14,247 from this source, and only paid out $3,179.74 as expenses for service.

THOUSANDS OF DUCKS OFF SHORE.

At noon yesterday the sea for a mile or more from the shore at Sea Isle City was thick with wild ducks. It is estimated that fifty thousand water fowl were swimming. They represented many species, the common blackbreast predominating. If there should be a severe cold spell the wild fowl will be driven into the bays and ponds and afford the finest shooting that this section has had in years.

It is believed he was frozen to death.

MR. B. McCUTCHEN'S SPEECH.

The Wrinkles of the Evening at Westfield's Banquet.

The following is what the Westfield Standard had to say of Mr. McCutchen's speech, at the Westfield banquet:

One of the wittiest speeches of the evening was made by Mr. B. McCutchen of Montclair. Mr. McCutchen was at once playful and wise and eloquent. He was at a disadvantage. Unlike Editor Medway he had no wife present to cheer him and no mother-in-law to admire him. Montclair, Westfield and Cranford invited by North Plainfield she was able to maintain a bank and get her paper discounted. Yes, Plainfield was a borrower old. He was reminded of a little story. There was very little in the story, Bishop's bodice. But the way told it was sixteen years old. It is very small for its age. But possession of a rapid pen and capable of reporting a speech properly. He was at some disadvantage in being the last speaker, but Wood proved he could not speak out. He felt like paying Martin Welles $5. Then he could speak with more ease. He was in the line of the theatre on a pass and felt like going to the box office, paying for a ticket and getting back to his seat, because the show was so bad. He told the story of the young man who married with the Universalist who, though poor, always managed to have flowers on the table and was for that matter, generally speaking he represented North Plainfield in congratulations and good wishes for her future prosperity. He had personal, editorial, political business relations holding up a glass of water, "I drink to Westfield, in the Westfield, in this transparent mockery."

His Accounts $2,500 Short.

There is quite a stir in political circles at Rahway over a deficiency in the accounts of ex-City Tax Collector Edmund M. Brown, the shortage, it is said, now amounting to about $2,500. The first intimation of it was discovered about four months ago, and Expert Accountant Gray, of New York, was engaged to examine Mr. Brown's books. It is now alleged that the deficiency is much more than was at first supposed. It is said the deficiency covers a period of ten or twelve years.

Ex-Collector Brown is one of the most prominent residents of Rahway, and is over eighty years old. He was in business for many years in Rahway, and about fifteen years ago retired and gave up all his property for his creditor's benefit. He is a man who has enjoyed the fullest confidence of the people of the city and how he came to run so much behind in his accounts has not been explained.

Business Men Caught in a Poker Joint.

Eleven Elizabeth men were arrested in a poker joint Sunday night. The joint was on the third floor of 123 Broad street, Elizabeth, the first floor of which is occupied by Jacob Reuter as a saloon. The big-gun was captured. Reuter was held on a charge of being the proprietor of the place, and the other ten men were fined. Some of them are business men, and all are members of respectable families, and their arrest for gambling on a Sunday night caused surprise. The police made this raid upon the receipt of a communication signed "A Mother," which said that the writer's son was gambling in the place, and begged the Mayor and police to break up the den.

Tampered with the Steam Apparatus.

Harry Nolan, a fourteen-year-old lad of Bergenfield, broke into Brownfield's hardware store at Bergenfield some time during Friday night and ruined a lot of goods. The boy, it is said, broke in just to get a place to sleep. He tampered with the apparatus connected with the steam heater, which is in the basement of the building, and caused the steam to escape and also the fire to go out. A number of handsome stoves and articles were all rusted from the escaping steam, which also ruined the varnish on the ceiling. The boy was found asleep in the store next morning by a clerk. The proprietor of the store has not decided yet what action he will take to recover damages.

A Long Contest.

The long contest for Postmaster at Pennfield has not yet been settled, the friends of the different candidates urging the claims of their favorites to such an extent as to cause the appointing powers to hesitate. Our old friend Rowland H. Silver appears to have the strongest backing, being endorsed by the leading business men of the city, irrespective of party, and by prominent Democrats both in that city and throughout the county, and from what we can learn his appointment would give the greatest satisfaction.—Rahway Democrat.

The matter was left in the hands of the post-commander Fox, of which Mr. Charles Westphal is chairman, and he had charge of the matter.

TALK OF AN INCOME TAX

Debate on Internal Revenue Features Amounts to This.

SOME PRESIDENTIAL PLUMS DROP.

Colonel Thomas Moonlight an Ambassador to Bolivia—The House May Take Up the Hawaiian Question Next Friday—Senator Chandler Hits Hill and Cleveland.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—The general debate upon the internal revenue features of the tariff bill was entered upon, but only two speeches of any length were made, that of Mr. Covert of New York, who announced his unalterable opposition to the entire bill because, in his opinion, it was framed to compel the incorporation of an income tax.

Mr. Covert, in criticising the action of the ways and means committee, contended that the meaning of tariff reform was well understood during the campaign of 1892. Free trade was not spoken of except in condemnation of it. Tariff reform was understood to be a judicial revision of the dutiable list—the reduction only of duties upon articles unduly protected. That was what he and his people understood by tariff reform. They did not understand that the work of reform should be done with an ax. He believed that the work of the ways and means committee was incomplete and unsatisfactory.

The Bill had been framed in order to make an income tax a positive necessity, and it was therefore just as objectionable and indefensible, in his opinion, as if this amendment had not been offered. He was therefore opposed to the pending bill, utterly regardless of the fact that the income tax had been proposed as an amendment to bolster up and sustain an inadequate revenue measure. [Republican applause.]

Messrs. McMillin of Tennessee and Hall of Kansas ably presented arguments in favor of the imposition of such a tax.

Hawaii Fixed For Friday.

The long deferred debate on Hawaii will come up in the house next Friday, unless the passage of the Wilson bill should be unexpectedly delayed, and will last two days, an arrangement to this effect having been reached between the committee on rules and Mr. McCreary, chairman of the committee on foreign affairs. The committee has informed Mr. McCreary that a special rule will be brought in making Rowell a special order for two days.

In anticipation of the debate Mr. McCreary presented a favorable report on his resolution condemning the course of Minister Stevens and pronouncing against foreign interference. No mention is made of the fruitless efforts to restore the queen. The report is signed by the Democratic members of the foreign affairs committee.

The Republican members of the committee will make a minority report on the McCreary resolution. They will confine their efforts to urging a substitute to the McCreary resolution, which in itself will amount to more than a minority report.

Mr. Hitt has charge of the preparation of this substitute, but he has been confined to his house by illness for a week and is still unable to attend to congressional business. Mr. McCreary announced to the house that he had conferred with Mr. Hitt and that the latter had told him of the purpose of presenting a substitute instead of a minority report.

The Republican substitute is expected not only to sustain Minister Stevens and to criticise the efforts to bring about restoration, but also to present what is regarded as the Republican plank—the enunciation of a policy as to the attitude of the United States on annexation in general. It is the understanding that an American policy of annexation will be clearly set forth. The McCreary resolution makes no reference to the policy of this country as to the annexation of Hawaii.

Chandler Attacked Hill and Cleveland.

The Hawaiian controversy and the federal elections bill occupied the time of the senate. Senator Teller of Colorado argued in favor of the annexation of Hawaii. The Hawaiian resolution went over and will doubtless be again discussed at much length before a vote is reached.

The federal elections bill being taken up, Senator Chandler finished his speech in opposition to the measure, opening with a vigorous attack on Senator Hill and President Cleveland, the former of whom as governor and the latter as a private citizen had power by the weight of the hand to stop election frauds in New York.

BENHAM ACTS.

Reckless Brazilian Contestants Are Warned.

OUR ADMIRAL INTERFERES.

An Object Lesson For the Insurgent Chieftain.

American Captains Applied For Protection, and When Da Gama Ignored a Polite Request the Decks of the White Fleet Were Cleared For Action—A Formidable Procession Up Rio Harbor—Believed That Orders Have Been Issued to Protect American Shipping—A Report That Benham Was Acting as Mediator. Peixoto Insults the Navy.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 30.—One of the most exciting days that Rio de Janeiro has experienced since the commencement of hostilities between the insurgents and the Brazilian government was Monday. The United States naval fleet stationed in this harbor furnished the excitement. Provoked beyond the endurance of patience by the continued carelessness of the gunners aboard the rebel warship Aquidaban, and tired by the indifference shown on the part of the revolutionary admiral to all his protests that American vessels entering and leaving the harbor were not afforded proper protection by the rebel fleet, Admiral Benham made a demonstration with the American war vessels under his command which has taught a much needed lesson to the belligerents on both sides and which will undoubtedly have the effect hereafter of securing proper recognition of the rights of all vessels carrying the American flag.

May Forstall a Precedent.

The foreign colony was particularly interested, and the action of Admiral Benham will probably furnish a precedent by which the commanders of other foreign vessels in this port will be guided in the future. The cause of all the trouble was the treatment to which three American barks were subjected on last Saturday by the indiscriminate fusillade from the insurgent warship.

The American vessels were the bark Amy, Captain Blackford, of Bath, Me., owned by M. B. Wilson; the bark Good News, Captain Myrick, of Baltimore, owned by C. Morton Stewart & Co., and the bark Julia Rollins, Captain Kiehne, of Baltimore, owned by Thornton Rollins of that city.

On Saturday last, while lying at anchor, all three vessels were endangered by the chance shots fired by the insurgents. Those whistled through the rigging and passed the men at work upon the decks. Many of the crews of the three vessels narrowly escaped being shot.

After suffering a great deal of annoyance and running great risks in the hope that the insurgents would realize the folly of their action and put a stop to their reckless firing, the three captains held a hurried conference and determined to appeal for protection to the United States war ships and to request that the barks be given an escort to the wharves.

Captains Kiehne, Myrick and Blackford put off in small boats at great danger to themselves and pulled up to where the flagship New York was stationed.

Admiral Benham promised that he would do everything in his power to afford them the fullest protection. He said, however, that before making any display of force on the part of his fleet or giving the captains the escort which they requested he thought it only right to first notify the insurgent admiral, Saldanha da Gama, of the captains' complaints. Accordingly Admiral Benham sent one of his officers to the Aquidaban with orders to acquaint Admiral da Gama with the facts in the case and to ask him to have an end put to the reckless gunning.

Da Gama's Cool Refusal.

Da Gama was apparently in very bad humor when the American officer arrived aboard the Aquidaban, and with many exclamations of impatience he listened to the recital of the American captains' grievances. The insurgent admiral was evidently still annoyed over the unsatisfactory conference which he had held with Admiral Benham and was indisposed to do anything which would prove pleasing to the commander of the United States fleet.

When the American officer had finished making his statement, Da Gama, with a shrug of his shoulders, said in a very sharp tone: "I will not attend. The American captains should know enough to keep themselves and their crews out of the range of our guns. I shall not take any notice of this matter."

This curt response to his message aroused the ire of Admiral Benham, and he determined to make such a showing that it would produce a lasting effect upon the insurgents. He allowed Sunday to pass quietly and without any appearance that he intended to take any further notice of the affair.

Early Monday morning, however, the greatest activity prevailed on board the fleet. Shortly after daybreak the decks of the flagship New York, of the Newark, San Francisco, Detroit and of the United States steamer Yantic were cleared for action, and their anchors were raised.

Two Captains Weak-kned.

Admiral Benham then sent word to the captains of the Good News, Julia Rollins and Amy that he was prepared to keep his promise to them and that as soon as they were ready to proceed he would escort them to the wharves. At this moment Captains Kiehne of the Julia Robbins and Myrick of the Good News weakened, and despite their vigorous representations and urgent demands of Saturday they returned word that they did not care to embitter the insurgent admiral by putting themselves under the escort of the United States naval fleet. Captain Blackford of the Amy, however, showed himself made of sterner stuff and announced that he would get ready at once and accept the protection which Admiral Benham had offered him.

Accordingly the Amy took her position in the centre of the line of American war vessels, and the formidable procession started on its way up Rio harbor. The news that something important was taking place aboard the American warships rapidly spread both on shore and aboard the ships of all the foreign fleets represented at this port. The streets of Rio fronting the bay were crowded with people, and every vessel in the harbor presented an animated scene as its crew rushed upon deck, and the guns settled themselves to witness what followed.

The Detroit took the leading part in the procession. The fleet as it approached nearer to Rio came quite close to the shore, causing intense excitement among both the soldiers and civilians on land and the sailors on board the various vessels. The Amy proceeded on her way to the wharf and was safely moored there. Not until her captain had reported that he was fully satisfied did his powerful escort leave him.

Throughout the whole affair not a single shot was fired, but the scene was quite as impressive as if shots had been done. After passing along Rio's water front the fleet returned out into the bay and anchored in nearly the same position as it had occupied previous to the demonstration. The affair is the sole absorbing topic of conversation afloat and ashore.

The policy of nonInterference so steadfastly pursued by Commander Henry F. Picking has been absolutely reversed by this action of Admiral Benham. Full protection will be given from this time on to all American vessels, as Minister Thompson has all along requested.

It is believed here that the minister's repeated messages to Washington in behalf of American ship owners have at last had the desired effect with the present administration and that Admiral Benham's action is the result of orders which he had recently received.

Taught a Needed Lesson.

There can be no doubting the good that has been done to American shipping in Brazilian ports by the demonstration in Rio. It has taught both sides in the present struggle in Brazil a lesson—and they needed it badly—that however indiscriminately they may bombard each other's property, the United States intends resolutely to defend the rights of every vessel which sails beneath the protection of the stars and stripes.

The American ship captains' complaints are only repetitions of what has been going on since hostilities first commenced here. Captains of all other foreign ships have had the same experience in visiting Rio while the insurgents and Peixoto's armies have been peppering each other with shot and shell.

Complaints in great number have been made to the home governments by foreign merchants and ship captains, and the commendable performance of duty by Admiral Benham in affording safety to the owners of American craft will doubtless result in similar orders being issued for like action on the part of the commanders of other foreign fleets at this port.

Benham as Mediator.

LONDON, Jan. 30.—The following advance cable message sent to The Times from Rio de Janeiro, dated Thursday last, via Montevideo, Jan. 29, confirms the dispatches in regard to the peace negotiations which have been going on under the auspices of Rear Admiral Benham on board the United States flagship:

"The American admiral on Monday invited Admiral da Gama to an interview on board the flagship New York. Admiral da Gama states that the American admiral assumed a somewhat peremptory manner, stating that the insurgent cause was hopeless and that he proposed to arrange a reconciliation. Admiral da Gama replied that the only terms possible were the resignation of President Peixoto and a free election.

"The American admiral then lost his temper and said that he would protect commerce and that the bombarding of government war material, using force if necessary. Admiral da Gama replied that the insurgents had the utmost confidence in Rio Grande do Sul, Santa Catharina and Parana and that they will make every effort to hold out at Rio de Janeiro until the arrival of the southern troops, as they consider they have a chance of victory.

"Yesterday the American admiral attended the palace in order to pay an official visit. He was then informed that President Peixoto, but was kept waiting for two hours, and then an orderly informed him that the president was busy and unable to receive him. The Americans say that this is a direct insult to the American navy. A conference of the foreign commanders was held today, and it was decided to telegraph to their respective governments saying that the insurgents have complete control of the harbor and asking for instructions as to whether they are to use force in order to protect shipping or give the insurgents a free hand."

Expected In Washington.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30.—There is no doubt that the correspondence which is being carried on between the state and navy departments and the American representatives at Rio de Janeiro and the captains' grievances indicates that the relations in Rio de Janeiro bay are becoming more and more strained and that a crisis is fast approaching, if not already at hand.

Officials of the state and navy departments, although they are very reticent in regard to the matter, are kind enough to make this information certain. There is undoubtedly an expectation that something may happen at any moment which will compel the American admiral, although carrying out his original instructions to protect our interests, to interfere in the progress of affairs in the bay.

"Admiral da Gama," said a prominent official, "is a hot headed man, and if he should interfere with American interests he may view the American admiral would undoubtedly interfere, acting under general instructions."

Secretary Gresham was seen and gave out the following statement:

"The American admiral," he said, "has no instructions to act in the capacity of mediator between the government of Brazil and the insurgents. It is not believed here that he is acting in any such capacity. If a collision has occurred in the bay between the forces of the insurgents and the warships, we have not been informed of it." The secretary added that it was quite likely that a crisis was imminent and that matters might be expected at any time.

Secretary Herbert admitted that the government was in correspondence with our representatives in Brazil over the situation there, but would say nothing as to the nature of the advices received. It is thought, however, that Admiral Benham has applied for instructions on some points connected with mediation of affairs.

HER DEATH A MYSTERY

Body Found In a Canal In Newark Identified.

MISS SAYS KNEW IT AS A SISTER.

The Unfortunate Young Woman Had Just Left the Hospital—It Is Thought That She Was Thrown Into the Water—May Have Been Temporarily Insane.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 30.—One feature of the latest mystery was solved when the body of the young girl which was found floating in Morris canal, near the Summit street bridge, was identified as Maria Santo by her sister. Just how the girl died has not been learned.

Many persons called at Mullin's morgue to look at the body, but it was not until late night that it was identified. Five women went to the morgue. One of them recognized the dead girl as her sister, Maria Santo, 20 years old.

The dead girl was Her Sister.

The sisters were born in Hungary and came to America alone three years ago, leaving their mother almost in the old country. Both obtained employment in Newark as domestics, and seven weeks ago Maria went to work for Mrs. A. M. Moses at 97 Market street. She frequently spoke of being despondent because of the separation from her mother. Her sister visited her, and Mrs. Moses often found them crying bitterly together while locked in each other's arms and speaking of their mother.

When alone, too, Maria spent much of her time in silent weeping. She had fallen on three of her fingers, was troubled with erysipelas in the face and severe pains in the head.

She left Mrs. Moses three weeks ago and went to a house in State street, where she said her sister stopped when out of work. She returned to Mrs. Moses a week later and as her own request was taken to the German hospital. She remained there until Saturday evening, when she was much improved, and left to go to the home of Mrs. Katz at 39 Grant street, where her sister is employed.

Her Death Still a Mystery.

She never reached there, and when her sister learned yesterday that she had left the hospital she became alarmed. Then the other branch of the mysterious drowning was sent to the morgue, hardly expecting, however, to find the girl there.

There is no doubt that the girl took a car line across the city from the hospital toward Grant street. This would be taken her to or near the Summit avenue bridge. The police probably reached their late Saturday night, and whether she fell into the water accidentally, was thrown into the canal or jumped in while temporarily insane from illness and despondency at not being able to bring her brother from Hungary to this country is still a mystery.

Passionate Through a Door.

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 30.—There was a regular battle fought at the house of John Mahoney at 9 Vaughan street, in which Mahoney and two burglars participated. The row commenced at McGuire, but as they were on the other side of a locked door no refused. They opened fire on him through the door, and he returned the compliment with a couple of revolvers until the latter exhausted their ammunition and ran away.

The Burglars Were Acquaintances.

He succeeded in tearing off one of the robbers' masks and discovered that the fellow was an acquaintance.

SPORTS FREELY CLUBBED.

Fifty Deputy Sheriffs Caused a Lively Panic at a Prize Fight.

RIDGEWOOD, N. Y., Jan. 30.—The bout between Billy Vernon, the Haverstraw brickmaker, and Billy Ernst, the Brooklyn lightweight, came to a sudden ending when Deputy Sheriff Williams of Queens county, with 50 other deputies, broke into the Casino in Ridgewood park and ordered the fight to cease. The appearance of the deputies caused a panic in the Casino. In the wild rush of the spectators to get out of the building doors were broken down, windows smashed and chairs and benches wrecked. One man's leg was broken and another's head badly cut.

The raid was not unexpected. Sheriff Norton of Queens county announced that if an attempt was made to pull off the Vernon-Ernst affair there would be trouble. The fight was under the Eagle Athletic club's management and was held at Bennett's Ridgewood park. It is a large structure, capable of seating over 5,000, and 1,500 sports journeyed to the park.

Men fell down and were trampled on. Others jumped out of the windows. At last the door in the rear of the hall was broken down and was quickly jammed with fighting and cursing men. In the meanwhile the deputy sheriffs continued to fight their way through the hall, and several of them climbed on the stage, where the ring had been pitched. During the scramble to get out of the hall a number of persons were very seriously injured, while many more were struck and bruised. No arrests were made, and it was not attempted to take into custody any of the principals or the managers of the show.

LOOKING BACKWARD!

Over the past two weeks shows the most successful January clearing sale we have ever had. That's in selling goods, some other time we will try and figure loose.

In the meantime, we will sell goods; more than ever, lower than ever.

HERE'S EVIDENCE!

There ain't much money in Anneking and Lancaster Ginghams, at 4½c., but we have just five cases more to sell at that price.

MUSLINS—Probably the last week that you will buy "Pride of the Loom," and "Dwight Anchor" Muslins for 7c., so don't wait.

HOSIERY—Just what the boys and girls want—a Stocking that is fast black, and will last a week or two without darning. That's what we are selling for 25c. pair.

LADIES' MUSLIN UNDERWEAR.—No use wasting time over a machine, when for 25c. you can buy Night Dresses, Skirts, Chemise, Corset Covers, and Drawers, all neatly made of good material; and for 50c. there are Embroidered Night Dresses, Trimmed Skirts, Corset Covers, etc. Bought them from a manufacturer who wanted ready cash.

Just a few more of those Ladies' and Misses' Jackets left for $1.25. There are a few 36-40-42 Ladies' Coats, that were $15 and $18 each—yours for $6 and $9.

WHITE, of Plainfield.

TOO MANY GUNS.

Riotous Strikers In the Mansfield Coal Region Cowed by Rifles.

MANSFIELD, Pa., Jan. 30.—There was another exciting day in the Mansfield coal regions. From dawn to dusk reports of intended outbreaks by the striking miners in different localities came thick and fast, and Sheriff Richards was busy with dispatching deputies to protect the threatened plants. While there were good grounds for the rumors, no overt acts or the prompt appearances of the officers of the law had the desired effect. The strikers would quickly disperse without having committed any serious breach of the peace. The situation has developed no immediately alarming features. Sheriff Richards believes that the worst is over, and while he does not fear further trouble he will keep his deputies in the district for several days.

The operators and railroad men, however, who have had long acquaintance with the miners, do not share this confidence. Considerable excitement was occasioned at Bower Hill by the announcement that the anarchists would raise a red flag and declare for blood. About 15 foreigners did appear with their flag, but when they saw the deputy sheriffs who were on guard they turned at once and fled. A riotous demonstration occurred at Bridgeville. Twelve Slavs entered the Foster grocery store and demanded goods on credit. They were refused and then became boisterous, threatening to wreck the store. Assisted by forty armed vigilance committeemen pursued the Slavs and arrested three. Twenty-two Slavs in the Tom's Run district, who are alleged to be connected with the Bald Eagle and Secor's miners, were arrested and are now in jail on a charge of rioting. The mine itself has resumed, and quiet prevails in that district.

An attempt will be made today to start a number of works. If no opposition is met with, the trouble for the present may be considered at an end. Deputies are also well prepared for any attack that may be made. A gatling gun has been placed at the door of the company's store, and a large cannon is also on hand. Miners and others they have winchester rifles for all the men and a large stock of ammunition.

SHOE TOWNS ABLAZE.

Lynn and Brockton Are Both Visited by Fires.

LYNN, Mass., Jan. 30.—Fire broke out shortly after midnight this morning in the shoe factory of Wellman & Osborne in West Lynn and quickly communicated to the Osborne shop, was gutted. The loss on the buildings is about $30,000 and on Osborne's stock much more. The fire is supposed to have started from an overheated furnace.

BROCKTON, Mass., Jan. 30.—Fire broke out in a four story wooden building on Montello street between Court and Center streets. It was controlled after a hard fight and confined to the building, which was owned by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company and valued at $10,000. The building is a total loss; no insurance.

SHOT WIFE AND DAUGHTER.

Brutal Deed of a Criminal Just Out of Jail.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 30.—John Costello, an ex-convict, shot his wife and 16-year-old daughter because they refused to sleep in the house with him. Both will probably die. Three years ago Costello was sent to the penitentiary for criminally assaulting his daughter.

His time expired last Saturday, and he went home, but his wife refused him admission. He returned, and his wife said he could stay, but she and her daughter would go to a neighbor's to sleep. As they were leaving he shot his wife in the head and his daughter in the neck. He was arrested and is now in jail.

Poisoned Water In a Shoe Factory.

HAVERHILL, Mass., Jan. 30.—Sixteen of the employees in T. S. Ruddock & Son's shoe factory were taken sick probably from poisoned water. The owner of the building had just completed private water works, drawing from the Merrimac river water supposed to contain some kind of poison.

No Wish to Intrude.

Business Man—Show me some of your soft black hats.

Hatter's Clerk—Yes, sir. Here's a line that will just suit you. Best quality and latest style. Gentleman's hat. What size?

"Haven't you something wider in the brim and a little higher in the crown?"

"Yes, sir. That's the kind we sell to Chinamen."

"Let me see some of them, please."

"Yes, sir; but I don't think they will suit you at all. Nobody but a Chinaman buys that sort of hats now. I've sold 'em two dozen of that kind in the last month."

"That style just suits them, does it?"

"Always."

"It's what they ask for when they come in, is it?"

"Every time."

"And you don't try to sell them any other kind, do you?"

"You bet I don't."

"Well, I guess I'll go to some store where they are as anxious to please a white man as they are to please a Chinaman. Good evening."—Chicago Tribune.

A Heartless Parent.

It was at the breakfast table, and the young woman's appetite was rather delicate.

"No, thank you," she said as her father offered her some buckwheat cakes, "I quite agree with Herbert. He says he can't abide buckwheat cakes."

"Is Herbert the young man who was here last night?" asked her father, laying his knife and fork down.

"Yes."

"And who met the milkman when he started home?"

"Yes."

"Humph!" and he resumed operations with the knife and fork. "I suppose he'd have been here yet if he had happened to like buckwheat cakes for breakfast."—Washington Star.

Method In It.

"Bobbie," said the visitor, "isn't it rather selfish in you to send your little sister after a piece of cake?"

"I don't know," replied Bobbie. "Mother wouldn't give it to me."—Truth.

Ought to Be Grateful.

Softly—I'd have you to understand, sir, that I'm not such a fool as I look.

Sarcast—Well, then, you have much to be thankful for.—Tit-Bits.

A Gentle Hint.

He (driving with a young lady)—I never try to do more than one thing at a time.

RUN OVER AN OLD MAN.

AGED JAMES McFADDEN KNOCKED DOWN BY A BUGGY.

Careless Driving on Park Avenue Yesterday Afternoon.—Mr. McFadden was at Work on the Street When Struck.

James McFadden, an old man employed on the streets, was run over yesterday afternoon, while at work on Park avenue, between North avenue and Second street, by a buggy driven by a man named Smith.

McFadden was scraping the snow out of the gutter with his back turned toward the approaching buggy. Smith was driving carelessly. There was no excuse for the accident as he had the whole street to himself.

The front axle struck the old man in the middle of the back as he stood half bent over. He was knocked down and the wheels passed over him. Although complaining that his back hurt him, Mr. McFadden got up and went on with his work.

Police Sergeant Kiely hailed Smith and ordered him to appear before the City Judge in the morning.

Smith failed to appear in the city court this morning.

Mr. McFadden is over 70 years old. He says his back is considerably bruised by the accident. He was at work as usual to-day.

A Very Successful Affair.—Supper Served to a Large Number.—About $75 Cleared.

Nprettily decorated tables last evening from six to eleven the Women's Christian Temperance Union served a turkey supper in their rooms, corner Watchung avenue and Fourth street. The tables upon which the supper was served were placed about the room in a very pretty manner. Prof. Carpenter was present with his orchestra. The orchestra was almost hidden under artistic decorations of tropical and hothouse plants.

The desk where the admission was paid was near the door and several times during the evening persons would open the door and thrust in money before those present could identify them, and the ladies feel very grateful to their unknown debtors. The room the Union served free lunch and many worthy poor received their monday meal free of charge. All day Thursday the Union will sell soap at three cents a quart or two quarts for five cents, including bread. The women would like all charitably disposed persons to aid with contributions.

To the following ladies the Union is indebted for their services: Mrs. Rufus E. NO DANCING AFTER 10:30.

Catholic Clubs and Organizations to Protest Against Bishop Wigger's Rules.

There is a growing feeling of discontent among Catholic clubs and organizations, against the rule of Bishop Wigger, which prevents them from enjoying in dancing after 10:30 o'clock at night.

Churchmen say that the Bishop has taken this stand on account of the action taken by the last Plenary Council at Baltimore, which decreed that all dances under the auspices of Catholic societies shall cease at 10:30 p. m.

The rule practically means the abandonment of all such pleasures by the Catholic associations. The organizations will make an effort to induce similar organizations to enter in a protest against the rule and urge its abrogation.

House Bill No. 4, 11, 44.

This is the correct number of the wilson bill for deficiency and leeway. It is a bill to reduce the Democratic party, provide a deficiency, continue culmination, leave the Constitution unvindication, and for other and all other purposes save and except the production of revenue only.

House No. 4, 11, 44 is the work of statesmen for defeat only. It represents the ripe economic culture of alfalfa-grass statistics, and cowyard financiers. It is as fair as injustice and as honest as stealing; and it shows a degree of wisdom that might do credit to a cretinous idiot.

It was aired by Republicanism out of Populism by Fraud out of Buncombe, according to other hippogeneological. Knock it in the head! Take it to the boneyard! It's no good.—Editorial from to-day's New York Sun.

The Dunellen bowlers were: C. Taylor, C. Krewson, W. Waters, W. C. Squires and J. B. Young.

Fought Inside a Snowy Ring.

On Saturday afternoon, two Plainfielders had a ring fight in a field near Dunn, and settled their differences with their fists. The ring was outlined in the snow, and the men went at each other in Corbett-Mitchell style. It ended in pretty much the same way as the recent championship fight at Jacksonville. One of the would-be prize fighters was badly knocked out. His nose was broken and his face bleeding when the fray was over. No arrests.

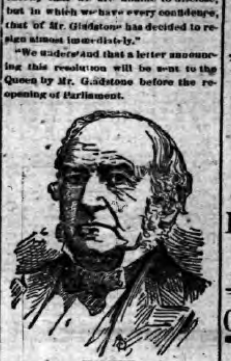
GLADSTONE TO RETIRE.

His Great Age and Recent Disagreements the Cause.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—The Pall Mall Gazette to-day, under a sprawling head and in leaded lines, has the following:

"We have reason to know from an authority that we are unable to disclose, but in which we have every confidence, that Mr. Gladstone has decided to resign almost immediately."

"We understand that a letter announcing this resolution will be sent to the Queen by Mr. Gladstone before the reopening of Parliament."



GLADSTONE.

"Mr. Gladstone's decision is due to a sense of his advanced age and to the great strain to which he was subjected during the late arduous session of Parliament.

"He is also deeply disappointed because of the rejection of the Home Rule bill and the opposition to the Parish Councils' bill by the House of Lords. Domestic pressure also had considerable influence in determining his mind at last.

"Who will succeed him, and what will be the result?"

The Gazette adds that it is understood that domestic pressure has had considerable influence Mr. Gladstone in his decision.

Novel "Anti-Treating" Bill.

BOSTON, Jan. 31.—A novelty in the line of liquor legislation is a bill that has been introduced in the House by Mr. Day, of Marblehead, providing that no holder of licenses shall take pay from one person for drink to be furnished another. Mr. Day holds that the "treat" system is responsible for many of the evils of drink.

The Comptrollership.

The appointment of State Comptroller now lies between William S. Hancock of this city, and Hon. John Ulrich of Plainfield, that is, if the appointment is made at all. At a conference of the leaders yesterday the appointment was discussed but not settled. Ex-Assemblyman Ulrich has the Central and South Jersey Republicans looking after his interests, and Mr. Hancock has the North Jersey Republicans. Camden County is neutral, and each candidate's chances seem even.—Trenton True American.

ROBBED AN EDITOR'S MOTHER.

When the mother of editor Lane arose at her home in Summit Monday morning she discovered that burglars had paid her a visit during the night and had stolen a quantity of silverware and had partaken of some cold meats and preserves that are kept in a pantry adjoining the dining-room. The burglars entered by the rear cellar door and then, finding the door leading from the cellar to the kitchen unlocked, succeeded in reaching the interior of the house. The dining room lamp was found lighted in the cellar. Among the articles missed are a number of silver napkin rings, a silver butter dish, silver teaspoons, knives and forks.

BIG OXEN OF YE OLDEN TIME.

Among papers of his father (the late Joseph Exton) recently found by Joseph H. Exton, is the following "List of Large Oxen," in the clear and careful handwriting of the old gentleman, though the manuscript is yellow with age. There were evidently (bovine) "giants in those days:" "In 1802 an ox was raised in Connecticut and exhibited in Philadelphia which was eighteen and one-half hands high, eleven feet from the top of the head to the stump, eighteen feet from his nose to the top of tail, ten feet four inches in girth, and weighed when alive 3,326 pounds. In 1821 Mr. Benjamin Woodward, of Imlay's Town, N. J., had an ox which weighed 3,150 pounds. "In 1805 the Durham ox was killed in England. The height of his shoulders was five feet six inches; its length of body eleven feet; it was eleven feet in girth, and weighed when alive 3,839 pounds. In 1810 we find by Bell's Weekly Messenger that the Durham heifer, four years old, was six foot high, twelve feet nine inches long and twelve feet girth; weight, alive, 2,920 pounds."—Clinton Democrat.

MURDEROUS THIEVES FOILED.

The apartments of Mr. and Mrs James Tourmalans, an aged Italian couple, living on the top floor of the tenement No. 29 McLean street, Rahway, were invaded by John Stempley, of No. 266 Franklin avenue, and Richard Taylor, of No. 84 Washington place, last night. The fellows were drunk, and attempted to rob the old woman of a roll of bills. She resisted and was severely clubbed by the roughs. Neighbors who were attracted by the screams of the victims were also beaten, and a lively row was in progress when the police arrived.

Police Justice Moore committed both men for trial without bail.

ITS HEART NOT IN THE RIGHT PLACE.

About three months ago a baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Shabber of Hillsdale. They soon saw it did not breathe right. Dr. F. J. Dudinhausen concluded that the child's heart was not in the right place and told the parents it could not live. Mrs. Shabber called Dr. Zabriskie, of Westwood, who told her the same. Then they called Drs. St. John and Kenrad, of the Hackensack Hospital. They decided that the child's heart had moved over an inch and was never in its right place, but that one of the valves of the heart was not closed.

COST TO RUN THE STATE

NEW JERSEY'S EXPENSES GROWING RAPIDLY.

Some Facts from Treasurer Gray's Report—The Extravagance of the Last Legislature—The Disbursements for the Year Exceed Those of 1892 by $150,000.

State Treasurer Gray has made public his report of State finances for the year ending November 1, 1893, and it tells how much it costs to pay the fiddler for the dance that the Democratic legislatures of the past years gave to the State.

The Legislature of last year acquires not only a historical distinction because of the character of its legislation, but because of its cost. One hundred and twenty-five thousand two hundred and forty-nine dollars were expended for the Legislature that contained but eleven weeks; the year previous the total cost was but $103,744, in 1890 the sum expended was but $98,489, and in 1889, $64,900, so that the increase in five years in the cost of the Legislature is over $60,000.

It is evident that the powers that be at Trenton are off on a view of making the Legislature of 1893 a very clean body, for they made active preparations in that regard by purchasing on December 13th soap, combs and brushes to the amount of $823. They supplemented the invoice of soap on January 10th with a purchase of 927 worth more.

The disbursements of the State are $159,- 523 larger than the former years, notwithstanding that there was an unusual expense last year of $120,086, for rebuilding the Assembly chamber. The absence of any expenditure for that purpose this year is more than made up however, by two other items, one of $114,911 for the New Jersey World's Fair commission, and another of $32,389 for ventilation of the Senate chamber.

The more important items of disbursements, with comparisons made with those of 1892 follow: Courts, $169,382; increase over last year, $15,083. State lunatic asylums, $125,257; increase, $5,275. County lunatic asylums, $120,- 700; increase, $10,694. Legislature, $125,249; increase, $21,505. Militia, $117,490; increase, $18,111. Advertising, $90,314; increase, $7,987. Printing, $46,315; decrease, $5,786. Stationery and postage, $15,365; decrease, $1,382. Salaries, $30,676; increase, $7,171. Clerical services, $36,729; increase, $1,421. State prison salaries, $82,511; increase, $184. Blind and feebleminded, $81,783; decrease, $7,931. State prison maintenance, $77,639; decrease, $5,429. Reform school, $39,721; increase, $4,429. State house expenses, inclusive of amount paid for Senate ventilation, $38,841; increase, $1,138. Agricultural experiment station, $29,114; increase, $18,888. Home for disabled soldiers, $20,330; decrease, $3,425. Girls' industrial school, $13,577; decrease, $1,572. Riparian commission, $15,500; increase, $3,500. Dairy protection, 12,021; increase, $706. Fish and game, 12,945; increase, $4,845. Labor inspection, $10,- 609; increase, $852. Geological survey, $11,231; decrease, $5,133. Legal expenses, $7,634; increase, $199. State Board of Health, $7,919; decrease, $1,- 170. Bureau of statistics, $5,114; increase, $860. Corporation tax expenses, $10,230; increase, $531. State Board of Arbitration, $7,000; not in existence last year. State Board of Agriculture, $7,586; decrease, $236. Electrical railway commission, $5,500, for year beginning May, 1893, and ending May, 1894. Oyster commission, $4,402; not in existence last year. Trenton battle monument, $15,000; no appropriation last year. Public roads, $20,661; no appropriations last year. State prison repairs, $6,561; increase, $4,436.

The Bell Telephone.

Those portions of the Bell telephone patents which became public property to-day are officially described as follows:

"The combination, with an electric magnet of a plate of iron or steel or other material capable of inductive action which can be thrown into vibration by the movement of surrounding air, or by the attraction of a magnet.

"The formation in an electric telephone of a magnet with a coil upon the end or ends of the magnet nearest the plate.

"In combination with an electric telephone, the employment of a speaking or hearing tube for conveying sounds to or from the telephone."

"The City of Churches."

[The Advance, Batavia, Ohio.]

Brooklyn is no longer entitled to be exclusively call d "The City of Churches," since Philadelphia now has 685 places dedicated to worship. H. K. Carroll, of Plainfield, recently showed that of this number 138 belong to the Presbyterian, 127 to the Methodists, 102 to the Episcopalians, 66 to the Baptists, 61 to the Catholics and 40 to the Lutherans. New York has only 565 churches, and Boston has only 106, including 18 Episcopalians, 18 Presbyterians, 19 Methodists, 09 Baptists 41, Reformed 34, and Lutherans 34. Chicago has 309 temples of worship. Indiana now has more Quakers than Pennsylvania.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Bills Passed and Introduced by the House.

TRENTON, Jan. 30.

The House met in morning and afternoon sessions. The following bills was passed:

House 26, which repeals the act appointing a commission to revise and consolidate the borough laws, were opposed by Mr. Becker, who insisted that the law of 1893 provided that the commission must complete the work and report to the present Legislature, hence the repeal was necessary. Mr. Ghents advocated the repealer, asserted that the commission had already cost the State over $12,000, while $2,000 was all the work should have cost. The bill were passed by a vote of 34 to 17.

The following bills were introduced:

No. 91—Mr. Downsap extends the jurisdiction of justices of the peace to suit against all kinds of corporations.

No. 92—Mr. Kerr creates the Chairmen of Townships and Committees, Assessors and Collectors of Taxes, or assigns of two resident freeholders of the township chosen by the township committee as Commissioners of the Sinking Fund of the Township of ——.

From such list slips must be prepared with names put on slips by themselves and placed in a box; then one of the above officers, in first-class counties, shall draw from such box and name twenty-four persons; in second-class counties one-seventh thereof, in third-class counties one-fifth thereof, and in fourth-class counties one-third thereof, which names so drawn shall be certified to the sheriff, who shall have two boxes in which he shall put the certified names for grand jurors, in the other those certified as petit jurors. Evidently a Popular Recipe for Cake.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—

I wrote a few days ago asking for a recipe of a cake which was published in THE EVENING NEWS, last October, I think. Will you kindly republish the same?

NETHERWOOD.

[From THE NEWS of October 16, 1893.]

SUNSHINE CAKE.

Whites of 11 eggs, yolks of 7, 1½ cups of fine granulated sugar, sifted; a teacupful of flour and a level teaspoonful of cream of tartar sifted together three times. Beat the whites to a stiff froth; add the yolks well beaten; whip in the sugar quickly and lightly, using a wire spoon; add any flavoring preferred; sift in the flour and mix it in as lightly as possible; do not beat, but turn it at once into an ungreased pan (unwarmed). Bake in a moderately, hot oven for from 40 to 45 minutes; remove from the oven; turn upside down and allow the cake to remain in the pan until perfectly cold.

[Our correspondent's letter was duly received, but, as the 1893 papers were being bound, the answer was, necessarily, delayed.]

WIGGER IS SUSTAINED.

Rome Decided Against Father Corrigan's Pet Scheme.

HIS SCHOOL PLAN NOT APPROVED.

Although Mgr. Satolli Sanctioned the Hoboken School Scheme, the Propaganda Upheld the Bishop — Held Before the Pope's Decision Was Rendered.

JERSEY CITY, Jan. 31.—The Rev. Father Corrigan, late rector of the Church of Our Lady of Grace in Hoboken, did not live long enough to learn the decision of Rome in regard to his pet scheme of securing city aid for the maintenance of the large parochial school which he had erected at cost expense of $100,000. Father Corrigan's plan was to persuade the school trustees of Hoboken to lease the school during school hours and maintain it at the expense of the city. Before and after school hours and on Sundays and holidays it was to be at his disposal to use for the religious instruction of the children of his parish.

This scheme was one of the latest serious differences between Father Corrigan and Bishop Wigger. Father Corrigan submitted the plan to the Bishop and asked his consent to make the efforts necessary to put it in effect.

The bishop and his council after considering the plan advised Father Corrigan that it was impracticable and he must not attempt to put it in force.

Father Corrigan Appealed.

Father Corrigan, who was always noted for his aggressiveness, appealed to Mgr. Satolli, the papal delegate. Mgr. Satolli, it is said, favored the scheme and wrote to Bishop Wigger suggesting strongly, but not positively commanding, that he accede to it. The bishop and his council declined to comply with the delegate's suggestion. Mgr. Satolli was averse to taking the matter in his own hands, as he might have done, so at his instance Father Corrigan prepared a complete statement of the case and sent it to the pope, together with all the correspondence.

The second congregation, which may properly be called Pope Leo's cabinet, acted with promptness in the matter. Father Corrigan's statement was sent to Rome in the latter part of September. Cardinal Ledochowski, prefect of the propaganda, communicated with Bishop Wigger and obtained a statement of his views. The propaganda then took the whole case under formal consideration and arrived at a conclusion which sustains Bishop Wigger in the position he took.

Will Open the Parochial School.

This decision is calculated to excite considerable comment and criticism among Catholics and more especially on the part of the Catholic clergy. In his letter to the pope Father Corrigan set forth the condition of his parish, the enormous debt resting on it and the impossibility of his people being able to support the school with its 1,000 pupils, without aid from the city.

He felt assured, he declared, that the school authorities of Hoboken would adopt his plan, lease the school, pay for its maintenance and that he, him have time use of the building for the purpose of giving a religious training to the Catholic children who attended it. The plan, he declared, was in entire accord with the fourteenth proposition of the scholastic laws laid down by Mgr. Satolli for the government of parochial schools in America.

It is understood that Father Kelly, the new rector of the Church of Our Lady of Grace, will take steps as soon as possible to open the parochial school.

Newbee fled to the mountains.

COCKRAN AT HIS BEST.

The Gifted Tammany Orator Assails the Income Tax.

HE SAYS THE RICH MEN FAVOR IT.

Mr. Bryan, the Young Nebraska Orator, Made a Brilliant Answer to His Eastern Opponent—Senate Will Take a Vote on the Election Bill Next Thursday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—It was a field day in the house. The opponents of the income tax had their opportunity. Messrs. Cowen and Bartlett of New York, Dunn of New Jersey and Johnson of Ohio, all Democrats, presented their opposition, along with the Republicans, to the proposition to impose a special tax on wealth. But it remained for Bourke Cockran, the great Tammany orator, to eclipse with his eloquence against the measure all speeches but one ever made in congress.

As soon as he arose in his place the house grew quiet. Members swung their chairs around to listen, and the galleries grew attentive. For over an hour the great Tammany orator poured forth his eloquence against the income tax. He had hoped, he began, that the tariff bill would be allowed to come to a vote unvexed, undisturbed, free from all danger of embarrassing side issues. He had hoped that the Democratic party would first redeem its pledges before it began to indulge the vagaries of its members. Those who opposed this proposition were to be subjected to a new test of loyalty.

Mr. Cockran Greets His Opponents.

"While willing to vote for the tariff bill," he said, "we are now asked at the behest of a party caucus to vote for a special tax on 65,000 out of 67,000,000 people. What a proposition goes further than mere taxation and is deliberately designed to tax a class, those who believe in equality before the law must array themselves against it. It strikes at the fundamental principles of democracy, at the very root of the government. It is the entering wedge in the shape of retaliatory legislation in this country. What reason is assigned for bringing forward such a proposition? Why should a homogeneous, harmonious, militant party be plunged into discord by this proposition? It is brought in upon the assumption that the Wilson bill will produce a deficit; upon the assumption that the existing conditions of business—an unparalleled period of stagnation in our history—will continue. I have said before, and I say now, that if I believed the Wilson bill would produce a deficit in the revenues it would not receive my support. The whole experience of the last two years demonstrates that the idea that the reductions carried by this bill will produce a deficit is unfounded—false in theory and a libel on the Democratic party."

BOURKE COCKRAN.

He proceeded to develop this idea, as he had done in his former speech, and then went on with the other objection to the bill—its inquisitorial character. It would be easier under the secrecy provided for by this bill for its victims to settle with the tax collectors than with the government. Secrecy would shield their crime. He had never urged the objection that it would be conducive to perjury, for human society never existed where crime did not flourish. He believed the rich would welcome it. Gould favored it; Carnegie favored it. Why? Because they knew it would ultimately give them greater control in governmental affairs. All labor and poverty could ever hope for was equality before the law. That was the basic principle of the republic. The foes of liberty were not those who took the field against it, but who seek to destroy one class by oppressing the other. Macaulay and all students of the causes of the growth of this republic had predicted a calm and even sea while all were poor here.

The danger, they said, would come when the majority who are poor would use the taxing power of the government to oppress the minority who are rich. That is the fiction which is not true up to this hour. [Applause.] Every man should contribute—whether it be 1 cent or $100,000. He will then have an equal say in the control of the government. Men have an idea that they are going to make equality by creating inequality. "I have always opposed inequality," he said. "I opposed the civil service law." [Democratic applause.]

"Don't look at them all together," shouted Mr. Pickler of North Dakota, amid a howl of laughter.

"I opposed it," continued Mr. Cockran, "because it gave the children of the rich a better opportunity to enter the civil service than the children of the poor." [Renewed applause.]

Oratorical Prostration.

Mr. Cockran went on in a glorious burst of eloquence to appeal to his Democratic colleagues not to commit this fatal error. He warned them not to throw away New York, the stronghold of Democracy, as some hot headed members had counseled them to do.

He pointed to the result of disaffection in Scotland when the highlands and the lowlands were at war. He quoted the language of Jefferson, of Hidge, of Thurmond, of Bayard, of Stevens—the sacred names and epaulets of Democracy. "Are we to go" he asked, "to be asked, "with the evolution of this new faith under the leadership of McMillin, Pithian and Livingston, and show the people how we have grown?" [Laughter.]

"Protest against this change," he concluded. "It is treason to the party, its heroes and its faith. I believe every man should be as equal before the law as before his God, before the ballot as before the altar, and so I stand here now appealing for equality—for one country, one God, one Democratic party without distinction of class, wealth or race."

The cheers which greeted the conclusion of his speech continued for fully three minutes, despite the efforts of the speaker to preserve order. Members crowded about the giant New York orator to extend their congratulations, and he was finally forced to retire to the cloakroom, so confusing was the demonstration. When order was restored, Mr. Bryan of Nebraska, the champion of the income tax, took the floor.

At the close of Mr. Bryan's speech he was accorded an ovation rivaling that which had just marked the close of Mr. Cockran's attack on the income tax. The advocates of the tax crowded about the Nebraska member, and for several minutes a long line of members filed up to shake his hand, while the galleries joined in the repeated rounds of applause coming from the members. The house then took a recess.

In the Senate.

The senate has finally named the day when the final vote shall be taken on the bill repealing the federal elections law. After another long colloquy between Senators Gray and Chandler the Republicans consented that general debate on the measure should close next Tuesday at 4 p. m. After that hour amendments may be presented and passed upon, but the final vote must be taken before the adjournment of the senate on that day.

The bond question came up in the senate again and after a long debate went over by unanimous consent until today.

The significant feature of the discussion was the firm stand take Senator Sherman in favor of the ac of Secretary Carlisle to issue the bo The gold reserve be declared to be a fund which shall be preserved inviolate, and he thought it given mandatory rather than discretionary with Carlisle to sell at least sufficient bonds to restore the gold reserve.

Kansas Veterans Tear Down the Yellow Shroud Placed Over Woman's Emblem.

HIAWATHA, Kan., Jan. 31.—A sensation has been caused here by the action of members of the local G. A. R. post in tearing down the flags raised by the ladies of the Equal Suffrage association to commemorate Kansas day.

The ladies had hung across the main street two flags having the regulation stripes, but three yellow stars taking the place of the regulation 44 in the field. This is the regularly adopted emblem of the National Suffrage association, two of the stars standing for the seals of Wyoming and Colorado, which granted the right of suffrage to women, while the third star, just showing above the edge of the field, is supposed to represent Kansas.

A few local Grand Army politicians, headed by one of their number who had just paid a fine of $200 for violating the prohibitory law, saw in this a desecration of the stars and stripes and the offensive floating emblem down. The better element of the G. A. R. is said to condemn the action of their comrades.

Colorado Senator Challenged.

DENVER, Jan. 31.—Colonel A. C. Fisk, of whom Senator Boyd said in the senate that he had never served an honest dollar, challenged the senator to fight a duel. The colonel says if the senator does not publicly retract and apologize for his offensive remarks or accept the challenge he will beat his brains out with a club. Colonel Fisk is president of the Pan-American Bimetallic association.

ONLY MUSKET SHOTS.

Admiral Benham's Account of the Incident at Rio.

DAG [illegible] TALES OF SURRENDERING

An Austrian Warship Cleared For Action In Order to Help the American Ships if There Was a Row—Report That Admiral Da Gama Threatened to Sink the Detroit.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Jan. 31.—A conflict between the American and insurgent fleets is possible on account of the action of Admiral Benham in protecting American commerce by the guns of the Detroit. Admiral da Gama is angry because the younger insurgent officers are eager to fight.

The following statement has been made by a correspondent of Admiral Benham, commander of the United States fleet in this harbor:

The insurgent forces on Cobras island hoist Friday fired upon a ship flying the United States flag. I protested to Admiral Saldanha da Gama against this action, and his response was that he had warned the commander of the ship when it was at the bar at Rio de Janeiro as to the wherefores of the danger line. I ordered Admiral da Gama to cease the firing. Both the guns on the island of Cobras and the guns of the insurgent warship Trajano opened fire Saturday upon the bark Agata, a vessel hailing from New York. I warned Admiral da Gama at once that if the fire was repeated I would fire back. I also warned him that if he touched an American ship or American goods I would consider him a pirate. I told him that I would protect American property absolutely from fire of his guns and that I should retaliate upon him for any damage done unless it was entirely apparent that the damage was due to accidental shots."

Admiral Benham says that he notified Admiral da Gama unofficially that firing by the insurgents upon the wharves for the purpose merely of creating terror and of proving a blockade would not be permitted so far as Americans and American vessels were concerned. To this communication the insurgent admiral made no answer. The captains of three American vessels, Admiral Benham continues, intimated that they wanted to go to the wharves, and the American admiral notified Admiral da Gama that it was his intention to send a boat ashore on Monday. For this purpose, Admiral Benham ordered that the boats of his fleet be cleared for action. The three ships referred to were the Amy, United News and the Julia Rollins. The names of two of the ships weakened and failed to come into the harbor.

The Insurgents Cowed.

The Amy was the only one that ventured in, and she was escorted by the United States cruiser Detroit. As a precaution a boat was made ready to go ashore on the part of the insurgents the cruisers New York, Charleston and Newark were ordered to watch the actions of Da Gama's fleet. Admiral Benham, while the United States and San Francisco were signalled to take positions near the Trajano and the Guanabara.

These precautions certainly proved effective, and the insurgents, in face of the formidable array of American vessels, made only the feeblest attempt to hinder the progress to her wharf. No guns were fired upon or by Da Gama's vessels, and as a matter of course the American vessels did not fire upon the insurgent ships.

The insurgent protest consisted of this: As the Amy got abreast of the Guanabara a marine on the last named vessel aimed a musket at her and fired. Two musket shots were fired at the Guanabara and the Trajano from the Amy's escort, the Detroit, in return.

This was all the firing done during the Amy's trip, and it was enough. All opposition ceased at once, and the use of heavy guns was not considered necessary at any time. The reason that the other two ships which had notified Admiral Benham that they wished to go to their wharves failed to do so is that their commanders were persuaded from entering the harbor by a man named Rollins, who is believed to be the agent of an English firm which has been furnishing the rebels with money.

Da Gama May Surrender.

At a later hour Admiral da Gama conferred with his officers upon the advisability of surrendering to the Detroit in consequence of the musket shots fired. He was dissuaded from doing so, but it is thought possible that he may yet decide to surrender to the American commander.

There is no doubt that Admiral da Gama is in a bad way. A proposed compromise has been refused by Peixoto's government, and it seems to be only a matter of time when he will have to give up the struggle. The consultations of the insurgent situation are increased by the absence of Admiral de Mello. The failure of the latter admiral to arrive has left the command of the insurgent fleet has given rise to the report that he is dead.

The commanders of 16 warships here, including five American and four English and French, have sent messages to Admiral Benham congratulating him upon his prompt action. The Austrian commander cleared ship and made ready to help the American admiral in case help was necessary.

Alarming reports have been received here of government disasters at Curuitiba, Paranagua and Antonina. It is stated that these places have been captured by the insurgents and that the government troops have fled, abandoning their arms and munitions of war.

An Official Account.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The following details from the official advices of the navy department are learned concerning the incidents on the 29th at Rio de Janeiro:

Previous to the 29th Admiral Benham had communicated with Admiral da Gama, warning him against firing upon American ships and refusing to allow the insurgent commander's excuse that he had given warning concerning where the danger line was. The commanders of three American ships having signified their desire to go to the wharves on the morning of the 29th, the American admiral sent word that he would convoy them. He also sent word to Admiral da Gama to that effect. Two ships were convoyed to the wharves by the Detroit, the insurgent warship following them.

When nearly at the wharf and while a tug was taking a cable ashore, the insurgents suddenly opened fire, sending a volley of musket shot under the bow of the tug. The Detroit answered with a warning shot, and the insurgent ship then sent a shot over the Detroit." The Detroit sent in reply a shell, which reached a portion of the stern of the insurgent ship, doing little damage.

The insurgent commander then fired in warning a broadside to leeward in the opposite direction from which the Detroit lay. This being answered by another shot from the Detroit, the insurgents signaled that unless the Detroit ceased firing they (the insurgents) would sink the American ship.

The language which was used by the American admiral in answer to this signal was of such a nature that the incident closed for that day, and the ships were allowed to land.

The names of the ships which were landed are not given in the official dispatch from Rio. The question raised in the dispatches as to what the United States government would do with Admiral da Gama and his forces if he has surrendered to Admiral Benham is exciting considerable interest in official circles here.

The statement that he may have so surrendered is credited. It is supposed that if he surrendered he did so with some assurances or promises from the American admiral. Officials are wondering what promise may have been made and whether or not Admiral Benham may have promised too much. Admiral da Gama, it is stated, has violated some of the laws of the United States, and he could not be turned over to the Brazilian government by this government.

QUIGG AND STRAUS.

One Republican and One Democratic Congressman Elected In New York City.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—The special election held here resulted as follows: Lemuel Ely Quigg, Republican, was chosen as congressman in the Fourteenth district by a majority of 905 over the Democratic, free trade, Tammany candidate, Colonel William L. Brown. In the Fifteenth district Isidor Straus, Democrat, was elected over Frederic Sigrist, Republican, by a majority of 4,451.

The new congressman in the Fourteenth district, Lemuel Ely Quigg, was born in Maryland in 1838, the son of a Methodist clergyman, the Rev. John B. Quigg, who is now at Wilmington, Del. He came to New York 14 years ago and has been engaged in newspaper work ever since. For the last 10 years he has been an editorial writer on The Tribune.

Mr. Quigg's writing has been almost entirely in connection with politics, especially state and national politics. He took for his campaign motto, "Smash the Wilson bill," and made his fight on those lines.

Isidor Straus is a brother of Park Commissioner Nathan Straus and Oscar S. Straus, ex-minister to Turkey. Mr. Straus is a director of the Hanover National Bank and the New York County National bank, a partner in the Brooklyn dry goods firm of Abraham & Straus, vice president of the Birbeck company and president of the Porter Glassware company. He is a member of the chamber of commerce and belongs to the Manhattan, the Nineteenth Century, the Reform and Free Trade clubs.

LOOKING BACKWARD!

Over the past two weeks shows the most successful January clearing sale we have ever had. That's in selling goods, some other time we will try and figure losing in the meantime, we will sell goods; more than ever, lower than ever.

HERE'S EVIDENCE!

There ain't much money in Amoskeag and Lancaster Ginghams, at 4½c., but we have just five cases more to sell at that price.

MUSLINS—Probably the last week that you will buy "Fruit of the Loom," and "Dwight Anchor" Muslins for 7c., so don't wait.

HOSIERY—Just what the boys and girls want—a Stocking that is fast black, and will last a week or two without darning. That's what we are selling for 25c. pair.

LADIES' MUSLIN UNDERWEAR—No use wasting time over a machine, when for 25c. you can buy Night Dresses, Skirts, Chemise, Corset Covers, and Drawers, all neatly made of good material; and for 50c. there are Embroidered Night Dresses, Trimmed Skirts, Corset Covers, etc. Bought them from a manufacturer who wanted ready cash.

Just a few more of those Ladies' and Misses' Jackets left for $1.25. There are a few 36-40-42 Ladies' Coats, that were $15 and $18 each—yours for $8 and $9.

WHITE, of Plainfield.

ALL A MISTAKE.

Poor Tom Was Not Quite So Bankful as She Thought Him.

She is discovered leaning over a basket of deep red roses.

"Poor Tom!" she begins. "He is the most uncertain man I ever knew. Why, it is almost one whole long year since I met him, and he has not proposed yet. Opportunities! Why, he has had plenty of them. Oh, he had just the grandest chance at Mrs. Brown's ball! We were in the conservatory for fully half an hour. I wore a perfect dream of a gown—he was perfectly calm and talked politics.

"Then, again, our rides before breakfast in the park. And in my riding habit I am really sublime But he was dull and talked Wall street. When I think of the sighs and my white suit, I confess I almost hate that man. No, not hate him. But he is timid, I do believe. Then all those games of tennis and two full months at Newport and he—horrible thing!—raved over nature's charms. Oh!"—desperately—"he is so disgustingly distressing. I shall not give him another chance, and oh, Tom! dear old Tom! I would have accepted you!"—sobbing"—but fate has decided against us. You are lost to me forever. I shall never, never give you another chance. Hark! I hear him coming now."

She brings forth another basket of flowers and casts his roses aside.

He enters the room a little hastily.

She (indifferently)—Ah, Mr. Revere, is that you? I did not hear you come in.

"Yes, Miss Heartwell."

"Do come and look at these beautiful flowers Colonel White has sent me. He is such an adorable old gentleman, is he not? I, for one, rather prefer an aged man. They are so clever, social and captivating, and"—laughing—"they make such ideal lovers. What exquisite taste the dear colonel does show!"

"Too gaudy for refined taste, I venture to say."

"I think, Mr. Revere, you have ventured too far"—icily.

"I shall venture still further and say I think it outrageous for that old man to run around with other women and his wife not dead a year yet." She fumes.

He takes three turns around the room, then takes from his coat a bunch of violets.

"See, Miss Heartwell, what charming taste the charming little widow, Mrs. Joy, has. I pleased for a flower. These violets were her own choice."

"I detest violets. The odor is too heavy. I cannot remain in a room with them."

"I am sorry I could not have me discard them?"—surprised.

"I would"—madly. "I tell you I detest them. I detest that Widow Joy. She is a painted, jealous woman."

"But, Beside"—

Wildly—"I tell you, Tom, I hate her, and if you are her friend you cannot be mine—and the perfume of those violets is making me faint—I feel"—

She leans back. He puts his arm around her for support.

Very softly—"Bessie."

"Tom"—tenderly.

"Mrs. Joy does resist Bessie. I believe you. I rubbed some off the other evening."

"You must have been very close." She draws herself from him.

"I was, dear—we were dancing."

"Oh, Tom, dear old Tom!" He puts his arms around her. "And, Tom, I do think Colonel White has a very gaudy taste."

"Yes, dear."

"And, Tom, do throw those violets away. I am faint from their odor."

"I cannot, darling. I know they are your favorite flowers. This is the bunch you gave me last night."

Kissing the violets—"Oh, Tom, how could you? The dear, sweet, fragrant things!"

"I could, sweetheart, because—because—because"—

"Why, Tom?"

"Because I love you. Is it yes?"

Softly—"Yes."

"Now, Tom, darling, you shall know the truth. Colonel White did not send me those flowers. Papa is ill, and his partner sent them to him."

"The dear, pretty flowers! What quiet taste his partner has!"

"Yes; quite refined, Tom."

"Bessie, darling."

"Yes, my love."

"Say yes again."

Softly—"Yes."—Syracuse Herald.

A Little Thing Like That.

"I saw a funny thing down in West Virginia not long ago," said the drummer. Sticking the snake from his cigar on his boot heel. "A bride and groom were on a Cincinnati and Ohio train from Lexington, Ky., got off for a platform promenade while the train was being made up at Huntington, and after a few minutes he put her back on the car and went to the restaurant for some fruit. As he came into the car he stood for a few minutes to speak to a friend in the smoker, and when he came on in to where he supposed his new wife was he couldn't find her. He looked everywhere without success; then he began to go crazy.

"'Where's my wife? Where's my wife?' he shouted as he tore up and down the car, and the conductor came hurriedly in to see what the matter was. As he was trying to get a coherent answer from him an old fellow said he had seen her get off the car after the young man had put her on at the last station, and he guessed she was left. Then the groom raved at him for his fair and demanded that the train go back after her. To this the conductor objected, and a committee of five married men waited on the groom.

"'Was it your wife that was left?' inquired the spokesman.

"'Yes, yes, and the train must go back for her.'

"'Hold on a minute, will you?' said the old spokesman testily. 'How long have you been married?'

"'A week only, and the train must go back after her,' he moaned as he rocked himself to and fro.

"'Well, I guess not!' said the old fellow emphatically. "When you've been married as long as we have, you won't want to be inconveniencing a trainload of passengers for a little thing like leaving your wife behind,' and the groom had to go on to the next station and wait for his bride.—Detroit Free Press.

He Wanted a Watermillyun.

One old colored man excited some considerable amusement as he passed through the market peering to the right and to the left and into every corner. Of course he was greeted with many inquiries from the dealers and would be sellers. To all he replied: "No, sah, gen'lemens; don' see nuffin I wants. I'se jes' lookin' 'roun' 'mongst de big turk, what uster—(what a fool nigger! I is just erbout ter tell sumfin). I'se got cheapin' fo' a watermillyun. 'Pears like I oughter hab dat."

"But, old man, there are no watermelons at this season of the year."

"Ah'l'ze? Den I'se gone right back home an' ship dat big cullud man who tole me watermillyuns was sellin in Jacksonville for 25 cents apiece."—Times-Union.
